Harold Cautiously Optimistic But:

Key Vote Needed For Override On Shipyard MWRA Veto

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

As a bill requiring the MWRA to relocate at the former General Dynamics shipyard awaits a probable gubernatorial veto, Senator Paul Harold said Monday he remains cautiously optimistic that the push for a Quincy-based headquarters will prevail.

The bill, which has passed the House and Senate by comfortable margins, is on the desk of Gov. Michael Dukakis who is expected to veto it. Dukakis, who wants a new headquarters to be built on Parcel 18 in Roxbury, has until July 12 to act.

On Monday, Robert Gibbons of Quincy, Legislative director for the governor, said, "The governor is expected to veto" the MWRA siting bill.

Asked what his feelings are about a veto, Harold replied, "I think there's about a 90 percent chance the governor will veto it. We're preparing for an override."

Last week, the bill was enacted by the House, 116-29, and the Senate, 25-10. Both those votes are sufficient for a two-thirds override.

However, Harold said the Senate vote is somewhat deceiving and revealed that by his count, he is one vote short of the necessary two-thirds.

"We're quite confident that the House will override the veto but we're still down by one vote in the Senate. We just have to turn around one vote and we're working on that now," he said.

Harold said the numbers are different because they are based on what senators will be present to vote for the override. He also said the nature of the enactment and override votes are different.

The 25-10 vote was for the issue of where the MWRA headquarters should be while the override vote "is against the governor," Harold said.

"We have to do our work to keep people in line," he added.

Thirty-eight of 40 senators are expected to vote. Those not expected to vote are Senate President William Bulger and Senator John Brennan (D-Malden). Brennan owns property in Malden which, like Quincy and Roxbury, was under consideration for the MWRA headquarters.

As Harold was working Monday to galvanize Senate support for a possible override, he was also trying to meet with Dukakis and convince him to sign the bill.

"I'm in here today to convince the governor to sign the bill and put other state offices in Roxbury. I'm not against targeting state agencies (for development) but (the MWRA) is not the proper agency.

"They should have their headquarters at the Quincy shipyard because they own it and because of the sludge plant. We want them down there to keep an eye and nose on the sludge plant," he said.

Asked what his message to the governor is, Harold replied, "I will tell him that I think he should sign the bill and I'll also tell him that I would be one of the first people to support state offices at Parcel 18."

"If issue is to develop Parcel 18, we can do it with other state offices. My concern is, why does it have to be the MWRA."

"If the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority wants their headquarters at Parcel 18, they can take the sludge with them," he added.

The senator also disputed the MWRA's claim that the authority needs a parking garage at the shipyard in order to work there. Harold and other Quincy lawmakers believe there is already ample parking space at the site.

In discussing the parking issue, Harold said the Authority has balked at alternative parking proposals such as commuter boat and shuttle service from their present headquarters in Charlestown to Quincy.

Damage Over $1 Million

Point Condo Blaze Called 'Suspicious'

By JANE ARENA

A three-alarm fire which destroyed three nearly completed condominium townhouses in Quincy Point Saturday night is being treated as "suspicious," according to Quincy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell.

"The fire was set by unknown persons," he said, adding that the matter is under investigation.

The 10:30 p.m. fire destroyed three of five two-story wooden buildings at Victory Heights Condominiums on Chubbuck St. Each building contained several housing units which were nearly ready for occupancy.

"The fire resulted in the total loss of four units," Chief O'Connell said, "and the almost total damage to the fifth and sixth units. Six units were pretty well destroyed."

O'Connell estimates the damage to be "in excess of $1 million."

"The fire was kept from entering the seventh unit due to a very successful interior fire attack," O'Connell said.

"(The firefighters) did an excellent job."

Chief O'Connell said that there were "several reports by neighbors of activity in the area just prior to the fire." He also said that an unidentified vehicle was seen leaving the area before the blaze.

Deputy Fire Chief Frank O'Hare reported one minor injury was sustained during the blaze when Lt. Thomas Connors twisted his knee.

Eleven pieces of apparatus were involved in containing the blaze.

Colton To Be Sworn In As DPW Commissioner

The city's new commissioner of Public Works and deputy commissioner of Public Works will be sworn in by Assistant City Clerk Thomas Burke Monday, July 10 at 8:30 a.m. in Mayor Francis McCauley's office.

The appointments of David

Colton as commissioner and Robert Federico as deputy commissioner were announced this week by the mayor.

Previously the deputy commissioner of Public Works, Colton fills the unexpired term of Paul Anderson. Anderson announced his resignation last month to take a job in the area of environmental concerns in the Midwest.

Federico, the former superintendent of the city's highway department, is filling Colton's unexpired term.

North Quincy Fire Under Investigation

A one-alarm fire in a chemical testing plant storeroom in North Quincy destroyed a large amount of records and some shelving Sunday afternoon.

The fire is classified as suspicious and is currently under investigation, says Deputy Fire Chief Frank O'Hare.

The blaze at Schuster Labs, at the corner of Hancock and Haywood Sts. was held in check by a sprinkler system until fire apparatus arrived, O'Hare said.

O'Hare said he had no estimate of damage and no injuries were reported.

MWRA Headquarters Debate Flares Again At Shipyard Tour

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The debate over the location of the MWRA headquarters spilled over from Beacon Hill to the Quincy shipyard last Friday when Quincy officials and Authority Advisory Board members and employees toured the former General Dynamics administrative offices.

For 90 minutes, the officials, employees and board members voiced their opinions on a myriad of subjects, most notably the cost of renovating the shipyard facility or building a new one on Parcel 18 in Roxbury.

In fact, about the only thing they agreed on was the time of the tour: 10 a.m.

Once inside the five-story, 31-year old building, they argued and debated the merits of a Quincy-based headquarters versus one located in Roxbury.

Quincy officials, led by State Senator Paul Harold and Michael Morrissey, said renovating the shipyard offices is less expensive than building a new facility in Roxbury.

"Common sense tells you that," Harold said.

They and other city leaders claim renovations would cost between $29 and $36 million dollars. However, Executive Director Paul Levy and other MWRA officials have maintained that building a new facility in Roxbury would save ratepayers $20 million.

The fate of where the MWRA will locate rests with Gov. Michael Dukakis and the state legislature. A bill requiring the MWRA to locate in Quincy has passed both branches and is now on the governor's desk.

Quincy lawmakers, expecting a veto, are lobbying colleagues to stand by and override the veto. A two-thirds vote in both branches is required for an override.

An override is expected to pass the House with little problem, but it could come down to one or two votes in the Senate. A two-thirds vote is needed for an override.

As many as 25 senators are on record supporting the Quincy site.

For six weeks, the debate of the MWRA's future headquarters has focused on Beacon Hill. Last Friday, it resumed at the shipyard.

Other Quincy officials who toured the building were Council President Patricia Toland, Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, Mayoral Aide Peter Kenney and Leo Kelly, a member of the MWRA Advisory Board.

According to Quincy proponents, the shipyard has adequate office space, parking, and, above all, is less expensive.

However, Paul Levy, the MWRA's director, claims a new building would be more cost effective.

One of the reasons why the cost figures are being disputed is because the MWRA wants 273 square feet of office space per employee while the Legislature has recommended 125 feet per worker.

"The State House has only 40 square feet per person and (General Dynamics) employed 1,200 people in these buildings, so I don't think it's unreasonable to put the 800 or 900 people from the MWRA (here)," Harold said.

The building has approximately 150,000 square feet. There are some 900 MWRA employees.

James Favaloro, administrator for the MWRA Advisory Board, called for an unbiased tour. After seeing some renovated offices, Favaloro said, "I don't want to see just what's good. There are questions like, is the building structurally sound. Is the heating system adequate."

"I want to see the good, I want to see the bad and I want to see the ugly," he added.

According to Robert Keagy, the MWRA general manager for the shipyard site, there are structural problems with the floors and problems with the building's electrical and mechanical systems. The roof, which leaks, would need replacing too, he noted.

However, Keagy said the building is structurally sound. Asked whether he thought the building is safe, Keagy smiled and replied "I work out of this building every day."

Most of the discussion focused on the cost to renovate the building and whether or not the 182-acre site had enough space for car parking.

Thomas Pelham, real estate manager for the MWRA, said the authority's figures are more accurate because the shipyard building is outdated.

Pelham said a technical analysis of the shipyard shows that the plumbing and electrical systems are 30 years old.

"For us to move into this building, it would need major renovation in its fundamental systems -- this building doesn't have a heating furnace because all the heat was provided off the central furnace."

Harold replied, "We have known this all along."

The senator then said a study by Gale Engineering shows gutting the building and leaving only the structural shell would still be cheaper than a new building.

After that exchange, Pelham said moving to Quincy would be $20 million more than locating in Roxbury "primarily because of the cost of garage ... nothing to do with this building."

Harold then said, "That's the point. We don't believe you need a parking garage. There is sufficient parking."

"We had 21,000 people work here. Where do you think they parked?" the senator asked, recalling the busy shipyard days during World War II.

In response, Pelham explained most of the site has been earmarked for a specific purpose or is unusable. Of the 182 acres, he said 30 acres has water, 54 is for the staging area, 35 is for the permanent sludge plant, eight is for the interim sludge operation and 70 could be used by Mass. Shipbuilders for maritime uses. That totals 197 acres of assigned use for 182 acres.

The MWRA has the right to take back some of the shipbuilders' land. Pelham later acknowledged that not all the land would be used at one time.

Furthermore, Pelham said even without the headquarters, 11 buildings are planned for demolition to create more level space.

"To say yes, it's a big yard and there's a lot of land out there but the use has been assigned for very fundamental reasons, much of it for a project you supported, the shipbuilders."

Harold then charged back and said the bottom line is if Quincy is going to get the sludge, then it should also get the headquarters to assure the sludge operation will be conducted efficiently.

"We have no guarantee for the people of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth. This is the only way we can guarantee it. That's why we're pushing for it."

Pelham and Harold then disputed each other's claims over the cost to build a new facility in Roxbury or renovate the existing offices at the shipyard.

"One reason the Roxbury site is cheaper is that they can do it faster and without the public bidding process."

"Well, we found out yesterday that's not right," Harold said, referring to Thursday's decision by the State Department of Labor and Industries that the contract awarded to the harbor cleanup agency to the developer is "void and unenforceable."

Morrissey continued the cost debate, pointing out renovating the shipyard for $30 million is a golden opportunity for any developer.

"We all know people in the development business. Tell them you have a five-story, masonry and steel-constructed building that's relatively open that's in need of rehabilitation."

"One hundred and fifty thousand square feet, and tell them you're going to pay them $200 a square foot and the answer is, when can I start. That's $30 million."

"Sure it needs some heat, some plumbing, air conditioning and electrical work but for a building this open, how difficult can it be."

"Then ask them if they're willing to take the rehabilitation project at $200 per square foot. That's $30 million. They'll be knocking your doors down," Morrissey added.

Kelly said he was concerned about a new headquarters building costing more than the MWRA is figuring and as a result, jeopardizing the cleanup.

"We want to see our baby cleaned up. We don't want to see this project abandoned because of escalating costs. We'll fight that every step of the way."

O'Connell Blasts MWRA For Ignoring Decision Against Roxbury Site

Mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell blasted the MWRA for their pledge to ignore the decision of the Mass. Department of Labor and Industries which overturned the MWRA's choice of a headquarters site in Roxbury.

"They say they'll ignore it," commented O'Connell. "I say no one, including Paul Levy, is above the law. They must comply with the decision which was finally a victory for the people of Quincy or risk the survival of the agency itself."

O'Connell and the Inspector General protested the headquarters-siting decision. In a 55 page ruling last week the Department of Labor and Industries stated that "any contract executed between the MWRA and the developers of the Parcel 18 site for the acquisition of the Parcel 18 headquarters building pursuant to the RFP which is the subject of this decision is void and unenforceable."

Further, the report concluded that the MWRA must go to the Legislature if it wishes to contract with the developers of the Parcel 18 site for the instant lease purchase agreement and obtain special legislative approval for an alternative method of construction as required by Chapter 149, section 44A(2).

"What they said in agreeing with us," said O'Connell, is that the MWRA didn't follow the rules which came out of the Ward Commission. Those rules were designed to prevent waste and corruption in state government. They were written to protect you and me from being ripped off and those rules were ignored by MWRA.

O'Connell said he will defend the favorable decision if the MWRA acts irrationally.

"This is an opportunity for the Quincy site to reevaluate the Quincy site and make a fair and economically correct decision. The headquarters belongs in Quincy."

Germantown Tot Lot Dedicated In Honor Of Thelma Rogers

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Thelma Rogers, a Quarterdeck Rd. resident since Sept. 1, 1950, had a "Tot Lot" dedicated in her honor on Saturday at Yardarm Lane in Germantown. State, City and Housing Authority officials participated in the ceremonies.

A 28-year public housing tenant, Mrs. Rogers is a strong supporter of the Germantown area. She was among the first to move in after the Snug Harbor housing project opened at the end of July 1950.

"I love it. It's the greatest place in the world," she says, "and it's a wonderful place for bringing up children."

Seven Rogers' children were raised there — they all returned for Saturday's Tot Lot dedication. Now there are also 12 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren in the family.

John "Jake" Comer, Executive Director of the Quincy Housing Authority, opened the ceremonies at the community building flag-raising, conducted by a detail of the George F. Bryan Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Peter Kolson, superintendent of maintenance, introduced Mayor Francis McCauley, State Senator Paul Harold, State Rep. Stephen Tobin, Councillors Patricia Toland, Stephen McGrath, and Rosemary Wahlberg of Quincy Community Action. Led by Bryan Post VFW, officials, children and spectators devoted to the Tot Lot where devotions were led by Chaplain Henry Sullivan of the Post.

Here, Comer stated that the $15,000 well-equipped playground had been erected by the Housing Authority staff under the direction of Kolson, saving the City much money. Its dedication to Thelma Rogers was requested by residents and the many services which she performed will be inscribed on a granite stone at the site.

Rogers was praised for "outstanding leadership," as chairperson of the Harborview Residents, holding a state office in Mass. Union of Housing Tenants. She received citations from Tobin, McGrath and Jean Kennedy, her associate in many of the activities.

'Flag On The Floor' Wins Essay Contest For Sara Gordon

For the second year, 11-year-old Sara Gordon of Grade 5 in Atherton Hough School took first place in the annual Flag Essay contest sponsored by the Houghs Neck American Legion Post.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin H. Gordon, 315 Rock Island Rd. Other winners announced by Historian Alice Scribner are Sandy McKay, Grade 5 at Snug Harbor School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McKay of 65 Doane St.; and Steve Shaw, Grade 5 at Merrymount School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Shaw of 56 Gannett Rd.

Students were asked to give their reaction to the flag painted recently on the floor of an art exhibit in Chicago. Sara's essay follows:

By SARA GORDON
Grade 5
Atherton Hough School

"A flag was painted on the floor of an art exhibit in Chicago.

Those who attended the exhibit walked on it. I don't understand how anyone could walk on the symbol of their country! I think that the people who walked around it cared and were smart, and the people who walked on it didn't care.

I know that painting is art, but why did the artist have to paint the country's symbol on the floor instead of the wall? But since the flag was painted on the floor I think that it should be properly cared for and people should not be able to walk on it! When people walked on it, they were walking on their rights and their freedom!

I can imagine how the fathers of our country would feel if they knew that the people cared so little and would stoop so low that they would step on the symbol of their country! These men and women worked so hard to write the Constitution, and the bill of rights, and the Declaration of Independence for all of us, the people of the United States of America.

And we repay them by stepping all over our country's flag! This to me represents one of the highest forms of disrespect to our country! That's how I feel!"

I'll cover each component over the next four weeks.

When the policy is issued, the insurance company must indicate the guaranteed cash value somewhere in the contract. They never have the right to alter the amount for any reason. This cash accumulation is yours to either borrow against or to take when you surrender (cash in) the policy. If you do borrow remember that you are not borrowing the money from your cash value, but you are borrowing the insurance company's money, using your cash value as collateral. Naturally, as is the case with all loans, there is an interest factor. Your policy must contain a clause that spells out the exact terms. If the loan is never repaid, it is deducted from the cash value at the time of surrender, or from the death benefit.

Sheets Confident Of Nomination

James Sheets feels sure one of the two preliminary election nominations has his name on it.

As for the second one, he thinks any one of the other three major candidates -- Joseph LaRaia, Steve McGrath, Peter O'Connell -- could land it.

"We're going to be a primary winner," he says. "I can feel it. My people can feel it."

Sheets' confidence does stem from people -- the people in his campaign camp and the people who will make the big decision Sept. 12 in the voting booths throughout the city.

"The reaction has been tremendous," he says.

"We are people oriented and people who understand people. We organized last October from the grass roots level up. Our foundation is people.

"We are going to the people. We are not relying on political names to deliver votes for us. We will earn them ourselves -- directly from the people.

"And, as a result when we win, our only obligation in office will be to the people."

SHEETS

If his campaign foundation is people, the man that helped build it is Tom Koch, his campaign manager.

"Tom is people oriented and well respected throughout the city as his family," says Sheets. "He is the ideal person for the job."

And speaking of people, Sheets

now has whom he calls "a real people person" joining him out there on the political front: his wife, Joann.

"She's a real people person," he says. "She likes people and likes to talk with them about their concerns.

Joann has been out there before knocking on doors during the Congressional campaign of 1978.

"She knocked on a good 5,000 to 10,000 doors in the district," Sheets said.

He didn't win, but he carried Quincy over eventual winner Brian Donnelly.

The Sheets have four children: Kim Woodward, 24; Jim, 22; Tad, 20 and Luke, 14. And their first grandchild is on the way. Kim and her husband, Steve, will become parents in December.

Sheets figures rumors that he has been having trouble raising campaign funds.

He figures it will cost about $65,000 to wage an effective preliminary election campaign and another $40,000 or more for the final showdown in November. Or a total of a little over $100,000.

He indicates that after expenses so far, including campaign literature, headquarters rent, and other costs, he is in good financial shape.

Sheets feels he himself has deep roots throughout the city because of his four years as state representative, 16 years as Ward 4 City Councillor and 26 years as a teacher at Quincy Junior College.

He is disturbed over the recent anonymous smear flyer attacking mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell.

"My hope is that the preliminary election and final election campaigns will be carried out on a high ethical plain. Flyers of this nature have no place in this election or in the city.

"Whoever wins this election should not have won because of having torn down another candidate but have won on his qualities and abilities and his own solutions to the problems facing the city."

Sheets thinks he has the experience to take Quincy into the 1990's.

What could he do as mayor?

"We can begin making some positive changes in the area of education. We have a good school system but we have to get better because it is going to be education that will drive the economy in the next century.

"I think we can control development. It's not under control now.

"We can still win the battle with the MWRA. I've said all along we should continue to fight and it's beginning to pay off.

"I believe the city can be fiscally sound and with no need to override Proposition 2½. Quincy can and has to live within Proposition 2½.

He says the city needs a mayor with imagination and creativity to guide it toward the new century.

And, he's that mayor he says. He points to the sewer rehabilitation fund as an example of his imagination and creativity.

Sheets drafted a home-rule petition that mandates developers must pay one percent of the total construction cost to Quincy to help finance the rehabilitation of the entire sewer system, some of it 100 years old. So far, he says, this has realized some $1.7 million.

If Sheets is elected mayor, he will take a leave of absence from Quincy Junior college where he is now chairman of the Division of Social and Public Services.

And, if he loses?

"Well," he smiles, "I don't plan to lose."

QHS Cabaret '89 Evening Of Total Entertainment

Editor, The Quincy Sun,
What can I say except, Quincy High School Chorus did it again -- you did yourselves proud!

Under the musical direction of Quincy High School's Mr. Sal Bartolotti and with help from outside choreographer Mrs. Joan Kenney, your spring production of "Cabaret '89" - The Dream Goes On! held May 5 and 6, was an evening of total entertainment enjoyed by all those in the audience. A special round of applause goes to all the teachers who so gallantly performed.

The Quincy High School

Chorus is a group of boys and girls with many varied talents. Each and every one of them along with their director, Mr. Bartolotti, deserve a tremendous amount of credit.

As much as we appreciate the use of North Quincy High School's auditorium to put on these productions, the students at Quincy High School desperately need and deserve their own auditorium to showcase their many wonderful talents. Let's give them all the support we can to accomplish this task.

130 Students Honored At Thomas Jefferson Forum Dinner

Some 130 students from Quincy High, North Quincy High and Quincy Vocational-Technical High School were recently honored at the Thomas Jefferson Forum Community Service Dinner.

The dinner was held at the Vocational-Technical High School to celebrate the Quincy school system's first year of participation with the Thomas Jefferson Forum, a private organization which promotes high school based community services.

It was founded by Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, a distant relative of the third president of the United States.

Senator William Golden (D-Weymouth) and Councillor Timothy Cahill were the featured speakers. Golden opened the dinner while Cahill closed the ceremony.

The dinner was attended by Quincy administrators, faculty coordinators and student volunteers who took part in community service this year.

According to Cahill, the students volunteered their time and services to several worthy causes. Some students cooked and served meals at Father Bill's Place, Quincy's homeless shelter, some assisted the nurses and orderlies at Quincy Hospital while others helped out in the Quincy school system and at the South Shore YMCA's Child Care program.

"It's been one of the most successful programs in the state," Cahill said.

Six teachers, two from each high school, coordinated the student efforts.

They are: Sherry Curnes and Ed Holland from Quincy High; Martha Turner and Emily Lebo from the Voc-Tech; and Carol Swanson and Kathy Swanson from North Quincy High.

Some other students, who are not part of the Jefferson Forum, were also recognized. Coordinated by David Ezikson, a teacher at the Point Webster School, the students worked with senior citizens, Cahill noted.

At the dinner, Cahill discussed the importance of volunteering in terms of building character. He emphasized that people who volunteer their time to help others are not only helping those people, they are also helping themselves.

Each student received a citation presented by School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci.

Besides the dinner, the students and coordinators were commended by Cahill at a recent City Council meeting.

Quincy's Jefferson Forum students also gathered with other volunteer students from across the state at the John F. Kennedy Library.

The students, about 400 in all, met Senator Ted Kennedy and Brian Holloway of the New England Patriots and broke up into workshops where they discussed their volunteer programs.

QUINCY VOCATIONAL-TECHNICAL High School students, along with their coordinators, Martha Turner and Emily Lebo, recently attended the third annual Thomas Jefferson Forum Meeting held at the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston. Students from all three Quincy High schools volunteered their time and services to help several worthy programs this year.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL students and their coordinators, Sherry Curnes and Sgt. Edward Holland, participated in the recent Thomas Jefferson Forum third annual meeting at the John F. Kennedy Library. About 400 students attended making it the largest state-wide meeting of youths involved in community service.

NORTH QUINCY HIGH School students and their coordinators, Carol Swanson and Kathy Swanson, recently attended the third annual Thomas Jefferson Forum Meeting at the John F. Kennedy Library. About 400 students from throughout the state attended.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Carnivals Banned At Merrymount Park

Rev. William B. Ayers, chairman of the Board of Park Commissioners, cited state laws against setting up and promoting lottery in defense of his controversial action revoking permits for Fourth of July Carnivals in Merrymount Park.

"Law enforcement was partially abandoned during the war," he said. "This condition of relaxation has been taken advantage of by groups and classes who conceive themselves above the law."

Re. Ayers' edict also cancelled the permit given to the War Veterans of Quincy to hold a fireworks display in Merrymount Park, which was postponed by inclement weather until July 8.

The Vets moved their field day to Fore River Field, where the fireworks were shot off and the wheels of chance were spun without interference from Rev. Ayers or the Park Board.

CHIEF FOILS STICKUP

A man named Chapman, under arrest in New York state, disclosed how Quincy Police Chief Alfred Goodhue unwittingly foiled a robbery at the Quincy Savings Bank back in November, 1919.

The Chief, coming out of City Hall, fell in behind two would-be robbers who were crossing the street after leaving three companions in a car parked in front of the Hancock Cemetery.

When Goodhue stopped to talk with a traffic patrolman, the gang thought the jig was up so they hopped into the car and fled, stopping to hold up a bank in Randolph instead.

Continental To Raise Rates In September

Continental Cablevision will raise the monthly rate for "Supercable," its most popular basic cable service, by $2, from $13.40 to $15.40, effective Sept. 1 in Quincy.

Monthly rates for optional services such as premium movie, sports and entertainment channels also will rise, as will service charges for cable installation, service upgrades and reconnecting cable service.

At the same time, Continental is eliminating its policy of collecting and holding deposits on the converter boxes which allow customers to receive cable service. Continental will refund the deposits, $20 for a customer's first box, $10 for each additional box, through credits on September bills.

General Manager Stephen J. Farquhar said the rate and service charge increases are necessary to cover Continental's increased costs for programming, personnel, insurance, equipment and customer service improvements.

When the new rates go into effect Sept. 1, it will have been 17 months since the last rate hike.

"Many of our basic channel program suppliers, like the USA Network, The Discovery Channel and Financial News Network, have made a considerable investment in new and original programming that has been well received by viewers in Quincy," Farquhar said. "We also added the very popular Turner Network Television (TNT), with its complete MGM film library. Those national programmers, and others, have passed on their costs to us through increased rates charged to Continental," Farquhar said.

"In addition, attracting, hiring and training the quality personnel necessary to meet Continental's rigorous customer service standards has become a major challenge in Massachusetts' tight labor market," Farquhar said. "And that costs money."

Farquhar also cited the cost of renovating Continental's 81 School St. office to improve efficiency, installing five new telephone lines to better serve customers, and extending customer service phone hours to 9:30 p.m.

In addition to the "Supercable" increase to $15.40, other monthly cable rates will go up Sept. 1 as follows:

- Supercable for senior citizens — from $12.25 to $14.25.
- Additional TV cable outlet — from $5.50 to $6.50.
- First Premium Service (e.g., HBO) — $8.95 to $9.95.
- Second Premium Service — $7.05 to $7.55.

- Bravo — $7.95 to $9.95.
- Sports Combo (NESN, SportsChannel) — $12.95 to $13.95.
- Commercial basic (hotels, taverns, etc.) — $55 to $75.
- Non-commercial Basic (social, civic groups) — $27.50 to $33.50.

Continental is also raising its one-time service charges, effective Sept. 1, to keep up with the actual cost of providing those services. Farquhar noted that discounts from the listed charges are often available through the year during cable promotions. The service charge changes are as follows:

- Standard cable installation — from $20 to $35.
- Installation for senior citizens — remains free of charge.
- Cable service upgrade — from $5 to $10.
- Reconnection after disconnect for nonpayment — from $10 to $15.
- Nonpayment reconnect at utility pole — $10 to $25.
- Returned check fee — $8 to $15.

"Comparing price, the number of channels available, the level of customer service and Continental's commitment to community television, we believe the new rates are competitive and still reflect an excellent entertainment value," Farquhar said.

5 From Quincy Area Receive Scholarships From The Cooperative Bank

Five students from the Quincy area have been presented scholarships from The Co-operative Bank.

The annual scholarship is awarded to one student from each of the 10 area high schools on the basis of academic excellence and outstanding citizenship. The program began in 1976.

The five residents from the Quincy area who received the awards are:

Michelle Cashman of Quincy High School;

Amanda Hamilton of Quincy Vocational-Technical High; Jane Amendolare of North Quincy High; Stephen Maloney of Thayer Academy; and Kristin MacDonald of The Woodward School.

In addition, the following students from the South Shore area received scholarships:

Jon Pelletier of Braintree High; Julie Purvis of Archbishop Williams High; Elizabeth Andrade of Cohasset High; Traci Feeney of Hanover High; and Lynn Smith of South Shore

Vocational Technical High.

The scholarships were presented at a reception held at the bank's Quincy Ave. office. School principals and officers, bank officers and parents attended.

The Co-operative Bank, the largest co-operative bank in Massachusetts with assets in excess of $600 million, is a state-chartered, FDIC insured co-operative bank with headquarters in Acton and retail banking offices in Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth Counties.

LaRaia Reports Safety Problems At New Police Station

Mayoral candidate Joseph LaRaia has written to the state commissioner of Public Safety concerning the completed construction work at the Quincy Police Station.

In his letter to Commissioner William McCabe, LaRaia cited completed work in the basement garage area of the new $9 million facility which is used for repair and maintenance of police vehicles.

According to LaRaia, who said he has inspected the facility, stagnated rain water which accumulates throughout the basement floor must be removed by city workmen. He noted rain water accumulates in the electric transmitter room creating a dangerous working condition.

LaRaia also said the new electric exhaust fan for vehicle fumes was inoperative and the garage drains are too high to remove rain water which flows into the basement garage.

He said the Quincy Conservation Board that reviews flood plain conditions did not officially review this condition and the Board of Appeals was by-passed by the City.

LaRaia said any application by Quincy property owners would be needed to get the approval of these two boards for construction work on their property.

"The building is scheduled for September, an indication that these dangerous problems will continue unabated," LaRaia said.

"I am sure that you have many responsibilities and rely on those inspectors within your authority. This situation needs your attention now to insure that the public is protected since our local officials responsible for this serious problem cannot measure up to competency in government," he said.

$15,000 Pledged At Cancer 'Jail And Bail' Fundraiser

The sum of $15,000 was pledged at the recent Jail and Bail fundraiser of the Quincy-Milton Unit of the American Cancer Society, according to Thomas P. Koch, chairman.

The event was held at the home of the National Fire Protection Association at 1

Batterymarch Park, Quincy.

Among those "arrested" were Mayor Francis McCauley, City Councillors Ted DeCristofaro and Jim Sheets, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Housing Authority Director John Comer, Peter O'Connell; George

Riley, Director, Quincy Business and Professional Association; Mayoral Aide Arthur Foley; Robert Quinn, South Shore Bank; John

Flavin of Flavin & Flavin; Peter Chrisom, principal of North Quincy High School;

Rhonda Merrill of Dandy Corporation, and many others.

Koch noted that without the support of Robert Grant and the National Fire Protection Association employees and Quincy Fire

Dept. Local 792 members, the fundraiser would not have been a success.

Committee members included John Gillis, Quincy City Clerk; David Mahoney,

1st Assistant, Norfolk Superior Court; Dr. Robert

Ricci, Quincy School Superintendent; Joe Courvels, President of Quincy Fire Department Local 792; Lt. Jack Doyle of Quincy Police Department; Jean MacLinnis, South Shore Realtors; and Bob Fitzgerald, Jr., South Shore Buick.

'Facing Persecution' Sermon Topic At Bethany

During the summer months there is one worship service at 10 a.m. Sundays in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

The senior minister, Rev. J. William Arnold, will preach the sermon Sunday, July 9, on the topic "Facing Persecution" based on scriptural texts from the Gospel of John 15:18-20; 16:1-4 and the First Letter of Peter 4:12-19. The lay scripture reader will be Deacon Brue J. Byorkman. Soloist will be contralto Jean E. Bettinson. Charles J. Blue, Sr., Bethany's organist will be at the console.

The sacrament of Christian Baptism will be administered to Gregory Douglas Nash, son of John F. Nash and Stephanie D. Nash. Godparents will be Jacqueline L. Douglas and Gregory Halpin.

Child care is provided for babies and toddlers. The Sunday School is not in session during the summer, reopening Sept. 17. The worship service is broadcast "live" direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 o'clock over station WJDA, 1300 kc.

An informal fellowship time begins at 11 a.m. in the Allen Parlor immediately following the worship.

Individuals and families from the area are most welcome to come and share in the worship and fellowship.

For additional information concerning Bethany's programs and ministries, please call the church office, 479-7300.

Independence Day Breakfast Held At Squantum First Church

Surrounded by American flags of all sizes and by the sound of patriotic marches, members and friends of the First Church of Squantum, gathered outside behind the church Sunday morning for their Annual Independence Day breakfast.

Those who attended wore red, white and blue, and straw hats decorated with those same colors.

Hazel Mayne, Ruth Swenson, Barbara Sorensen and Patti Hurd served the breakfast. Teen-agers from "The Way Up", a special youth outreach ministry sponsored by local churches, waited on the tables.

At the service inside following the breakfast, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor, preached on the subject "Some Thoughts on Flag-burning".

Hymns were "My Country 'Tis of Thee", "O God, Beneath Thy Guiding Hand" and "O Beautiful for Spacious Skies." Organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson accompanied the singing.

Guests were Bud and Janet Sumner. Ushers were Andrew Ogilvie and Harry Holmes. Patti Hurd hosted the Fellowship Hour.

On Tuesday, July 4, members and children of the church participated in the Independence Day parade in Squantum with a float celebrating the 75th anniversary of the church this year.

On Sunday, July 9, the summer schedule begins. The morning service will be held at 9:15 a.m. instead of the usual time at 10:30 a.m.

Bill Baird To Speak At United First Parish

Bill Baird, nationally known supporter of abortion rights, will speak at United First Parish Church (Unitarian) Monday, July 10, at 7:30 p.m.

The church, also known as "Church of the Presidents," is located in Quincy Center at 1306 Hancock St., opposite City Hall. The public is invited.

Baird will speak on Monday's Supreme Court decision and constitutional issues concerning reproductive rights of privacy and freedom of choice.

An outspoken leader for 26 years for reproductive freedom, Baird recently has said that the Supreme Court is turning the nation into a battlefield against the constitutional, civil and reproductive rights of privacy of our citizens.

Baird has been jailed eight times in five states for lecturing on birth control and abortion.

"The cost of freedom is eternal vigilance and freedom," he says. "If the court rules against abortion freedom and a patchwork quilt concept of justice is then put in it's place where abortion is legal in one state but illegal in another, then I will establish an 'underground' (if need be) network to help women get abortions elsewhere."

Monday's speech at United First Parish Church is the first stop on a nationwide lecture campaign to continue through the fall. He will be coming to Quincy from Minneapolis where he has been speaking out this past Fourth of July weekend calling for "an end to the lawlessness of anti-abortion violence and terror."

St. John's Newspaper Wins National Honor

St. John's News, a bi-monthly tabloid newspaper published by St. John's Parish in Quincy received national recognition at the annual Catholic Press Association convention held recently in Baltimore.

The Catholic Press Association (CPA) is an international organization representing 665 Catholic newspapers and magazines published in the United States and Canada.

The Quincy parish newspaper was singled out by a panel of judges during the 1989 CPA Journalism Awards competition during the CPA convention.

Complete details concerning the awards and citations bestowed on the various newspapers were published in the current edition of the Catholic Journalist, official international publication of the CPA.

St. John's News was adjudged as being "a newspaper in a class by itself" and for "an admirable 64-page commemorative of the parish's 125th anniversary."

John Noonan, editor of the parish newspaper for the past 15 years, said today that he was elated that such a prestigious journalism organization representing so many outstanding Diocesan papers and magazines in the U.S. and Canada conferred such an honor on the parish paper.

Noonan said he was happy to share this honor with the parishioners of St. John's, Fr. William McCarthy, pastor, Fr. Daniel Graham who was the coordinating editor for 13 years, and in particular, the late Fr. Joseph Connolly, the paper's founder.

"It is a very fitting memorial tribute to Fr. Connolly who passed away just recently," Noonan said.

The paper receives total financial support from the parishioners and is mailed every two months to 4000 families in the Parish.

"There is so much going on at St. John's Church that it makes my job easy. I'm just happy that I have had a role to play by volunteering my services," Noonan stated.

St. John's News is produced at The Quincy Sun.

Broadmeadows Teacher, Sun Publisher Honored By Norfolk Teachers Assn.

A Broad Meadows School teacher and the publisher of The Quincy Sun were recently recognized for their outstanding contributions to education in the city of Quincy during the sixth annual Norfolk County Teachers Association Awards Banquet.

Henry Bosworth, publisher and editor of The Quincy Sun, received a Distinguished Service Recognition Award

"for the positive effect he and his publication have had on education in Quincy through the timely and positive coverage of sports, extra-curricular activities and other functions at the Quincy Public Schools."

Marcia McCarthy, a teacher at Broad Meadows Middle School, received an Honors Award "in recognition of her years of dedication in bringing the arts and dramatic presentations to the students of Broad Meadows."

She was also recognized for her efforts in making education a top priority in the Quincy political arena.

Both recipients were nominated for their awards by the Quincy Education Association, the professional organization of 760 educators working in the Quincy Public Schools.

E. Stanley Younie Honored At HN Past Commanders Night

E. Stanley Younie, immediate past commander of Houghs Neck Legion Post, received a citation from the City of Quincy at a recent Past Commanders' Night at the Post Home, attended by 100 members and guests.

The citation was presented by Mayor Francis McCauley, introduced by Councillor Michael Cheney.

Also presented was a letter signed by all members of Houghs Neck Congregational Church trustees commending Younie for his work at the church over the years. This was given him by the Rev. M. Alicia Corea, co-pastor, with Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea, who also spoke.

Other past commanders attending as guests of honor included Thomas Hurlbaeus, Carl Barnhill, William Morrill, Mary Timcoe, John Christensen, Stanley Bovill and John Hirtle.

Commander Raymond LaRue accepted from Warren Demers, past Department State Vice Commander, awards received by the Houghs Neck Legion Post at the June Department Convention in Plymouth.

These included first place in Americanism; second place for Community Service, receiving the Howard Schreiber Award; and second place in Group 5 - Membership under 250, with a 122.28%. The Post also received a gold certificate of merit in recognition of "Extraordinary Civic Service rendered to the Community, State and Nation."

Chaplain Alice Scribner introduced the program. Committee members planning the event were Mary Timcoe, Bill Morrill and Commander LaRue.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Of all God's gifts to man, laughter is one of the most subtle and is one of the most precious. It has neither nationality nor religion. As an equalizer, it has no equal.

Laughter is one of the greatest contributions that has been given to mankind, and is one of the best things that one person can give to another. Comedians try to give that gift to us by telling jokes or humorous stories, but we don't always need an entertainer to make us laugh. We can give laughter to others; others can give laughter to us; and best of all, we can give it to ourselves.

When was the last time you had a good laugh at yourself? When was the last time you were in an embarrassing situation and didn't know what to do or say? And when you thought about it later, you realized the joke was on you and you could have just laughed! Laughing can make you feel better in an embarrassing situation and it certainly is better than crying... So keep it as an important part of your life. As the saying goes: When you laugh, the world laughs with you; when you cry, you cry alone" ...

Lydon Russell Funeral Home

Contributing To Scholarship

Through their membership in the Lofty Oaks Association of Bethlehem N.H., the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., is contributing to an annual scholarship at the New England Institute of Applied Arts and Sciences.

The scholarship will be awarded to an outstanding high school senior who has chosen a career in the funeral service profession, and will be based on both need and academic achievement.

The scholarship is funded as part of the Lofty Oaks Association's memorial tree planting program. Participating funeral homes have arranged to have a total of 3000 trees planted in the home states of the families they have served. Each time the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home has a memorial tree planted, the Lofty Oaks Association will set aside a percentage of the revenue for the scholarship fund.

Planning ahead can offer peace of mind...

It is only human to put things off. But proper planning for the event of one's death can spare a family many traumatic decisions and financial burdens. Proper ventilation helps to protect your investment in kitchen remodeling projects

You may be one of over 29 million homeowners planning to remodel or improve your kitchen this year. And why not! Experts agree that dollars spent on kitchen remodeling bring a high return on investment.

But be sure to protect that investment by ridding the kitchen of smoke, grease and moisture with the use of a range hood. Without a range hood, these contaminants remain in the house, causing greasy cabinets, grimy ceilings, soiled curtains and droopy wallpaper.

Simple to install

Range hoods, most effective when located directly over the cooking surface, are easy to install, whether ducted or duct free. Today, over 65 percent of all range hoods used in remodeling jobs are installed by do-it-yourselfers.

Ducted range hoods exhaust all the cooking contaminants, including moisture, outside the house through ductwork. Retail stores that sell range hoods usually sell corresponding ducting kits with easy instructions for consumers.

Sometimes, because of structural design, ducted range hoods are impractical to install. Duct free range hoods offer an excellent alternative, and they are easy to install since there is no duct work to worry about. But, for years consumers with duct free range hoods complained that they "didn't work."

Part of the problem was that the grease and charcoal filtering systems used at that time did not adequately remove solid cooking contaminants from the air.

Consumers challenged range hood manufacturers to develop a duct free range hood that worked. One manufacturer, Nautilus, responded by designing a range hood which incorporates a multi-layered filter that traps the cooking contaminants rather than simply recirculating them.

According to Jerome G. Santowski, Nautilus senior vice president of marketing and sales, Nautilus Microtek™ Series Range Hoods are up to 36 times more effective in removing solid cooking contaminants than even the best ordinary duct free range hoods, because of the combination of the unique filters, size and shape of the hood, and the amount of air flowing through the system.

The Microtek™ Series Range Hoods are convertible, which means that the units can be installed either ducted or duct free.

Do-it-yourselfers who purchase a convertible range hood can take it home, read the instructions and then decide whether to duct or not to duct, knowing that the same model can be installed either way.

Other features to look for when purchasing a range hood are ease in cleaning, the manufacturer's warranty, quietness and ease of operation.

Make sure that the unit is the right one for your kitchen by determining the cubic feet of air (CFM) rating. The Home Ventilating Institute (HVI), which rates range hood performance, recommends a minimum of 40 CFM per linear foot for range hoods installed against a wall. So, as an example, a 36-inch range hood requires a minimum CFM rating of 120, calculated as follows: 3 (feet) x 40 = 120 CFM.

All the Nautilus Microtek™ Range Hoods, including the economy model which is rated and certified at 160 CFM, exceed this minimum HVI standard.

Quick summer decorating fix

When planning your summer wardrobe, think about how your home can "dress" for the warm weather, too! It's easy to give a home a more seasonal look, according to the experts. Says designer Lyn Peterson of Motif Designs, New Rochelle, New York, it can be as simple as rearranging.

Take a look at your summertime lifestyle, is another bit of advice from Peterson. For example, where are you going to entertain or spend the most time? On the screened porch? The south-facing living room rather than the north-facing den? Focus your efforts there. Downplay the bedroom, saving that for winter.

To give the most-used rooms a summery look, follow the same guidelines as in putting together a summer wardrobe. Bright colors and cool pastels simply look best in warm climates and white, of course, is always right in summer.

Shed layers. Throw away the afghans and accessories that fill up a room with coziness in winter. Send the dried floral arrangement to the basement; it's out of season now. Think of how a thick wool sweater would look in July.

Bring up slipcovers for a quick change of decorating scenery. Slip 'em on, slip 'em off when soiled (drop 'em in the washer) and slip 'em off again for fall storage. That's easy decorating.

Nothing looks more like summer than flowers that abound in and around the home, so bring the outdoors in. Whatever is growing, sprouting and budding in the yard, Peterson urges: Snip a bit for a vase inside.

One spring/summer decorating "accessory" ever-present in Peterson's home is a small container of lawn grass. She puts one in every room, including the children's rooms.

It is very simple to do—just sow and grow. The kids can help, too. The bright green color of a new lawn will surely be one of the brightest spots in any room's decor.

While creating a bright look, keep cool with a ceiling fan. They really do work

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Do-it-yourself projects grow in popularity as...

Consumers take matters into their own hands

There are many benefits of do-it-yourself decorating and remodeling. Saving money is the most obvious.

When calculating potential cost savings, however, don't consider just the reduced price of labor. Sometimes the time spent—and often wasted—for contractors to show up is enormous.

With two-income households these days, having professional installers come to the house usually requires either the man or woman to take time off from work. Often, installers cannot pin down a time they'll arrive, leaving the homeowner spending much of the day just waiting.

It's no wonder that frustrated consumers are taking matters into their own hands—literally.

Wallcovering and paneling have long been popular do-it-yourself projects. But for those who desire a more unusual and elegant solution for beautifying their walls, there are new alternatives.

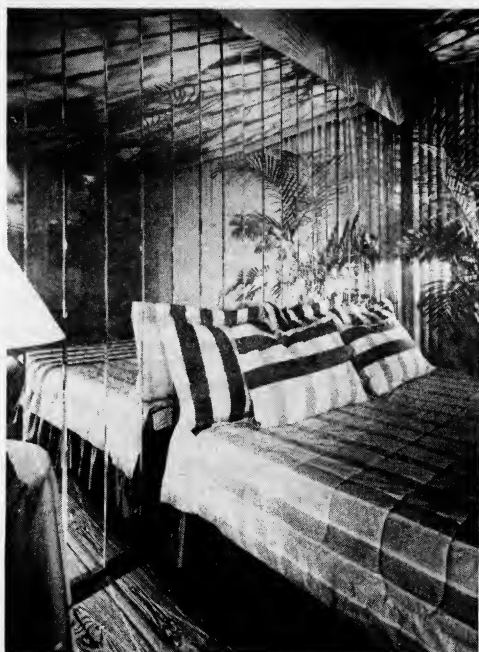

A mail-order catalog, "Through the Looking Glass," features several innovative concepts for using glass and mirrors to add sparkle and practicality to walls.

New glass marble tiles, for example, look and feel like genuine marble, but cost only about $2-$3 per square foot.

The self-stick tiles come in eight marble shades to enhance dramatically entryways, bathrooms and accent walls anywhere in the home or office. They won't stain like marble.

Another terrific wall treatment idea shown in the catalog is floor-to-ceiling mirrors. A patented beveled mirror wall panel system—the first do-it-yourself mirrored wall system—consists of lightweight, shatterproof panels that are a cinch to install. Most typical installations take about one hour.

The panels can be removed and re-mounted if the consumer relocates—a big plus especially for apartment renters who seek an economical method for adding a sense of space and light to their rooms, but who don't plan to stay too

Local Century 21 Franchise Enhances Consumer Services With Computer System

Peter Booras and ARTHUR Foley, owners of Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., has announced that the Quincy office is now able to provide a wider range of consumer services than ever, including the ability to estimate how much house people can afford prior to home selection, via their involvement in the sophisticated CenturyNet system.

CenturyNet provides consumers with immediate home affordability figures tied to suitable mortgage products — an enhanced capability "never before offered to a community, marking a giant step forward," Booras said.

"We now have at our fingertips, sales and financial information that makes real estate buying and selling a much easier and more understandable process for our clients."

Some of the features that the CenturyNet system provides clients are:

- home buyer comparison (the true cost of ownership by analyzing three properties at the same time, taking into consideration tax savings, potential appreciation and equity build-up;

- owning vs. renting (demonstrates the benefits of owning real estate as opposed to renting);

- purchasing-power comparison (comparing the projected value of a real estate investment with two other forms of investments); sellers and buyers' estimated closing costs (the estimated closing costs for which either may be responsible);

- amortization and loan analysis (principal and interest breakdown based on interest rate, mortgage amount and terms for 15, 20 and 30 year mortgages).

Century 21 Annex Realty Inc. is located at 49 Beale St.

The Adams Hosts Area Brokers

More than 100 area real estate brokers responded to an invitation to attend a recent reception at The Adams Condominium.

The occasion was the introduction of a new co-broke program instituted by The Adams. A newly decorated model was also unveiled during the reception.

The brokers attended a reception in The Adams' lobby before touring residential units, penthouses and the on-site health club. Views from the top floor of the eight-story structure encompassed the Boston skyline and harbor to the east and the Blue Hills to the west.

A highlight of the evening was the awarding of "getaway" evenings at the Ritz-Carlton, Boston. Winners of the prizes were Mary Tobin and John Ingolsby, both of Jack Conway's Weymouth office; Mike Lowe of the Lowe Company, Braintree; and Gerry Shannon of Herbert W. Raymond Real Estate, South Weymouth.

The Adams is a 47-unit luxury condominium developed by The Keller Company of Hingham and marketed by Harriet J. Malamut Associates.

Britannica's Boston Division Headquarters Moves To New Quincy Site

Encyclopaedia Britannica USA (EBUSA) announces its division headquarters is now located at Two Adams Place in Quincy.

Daniel M. Waterman, EBUSA's Boston Division manager, said the expansion of Britannica's business throughout its eight New England districts prompted the search for larger quarters. Division offices had been in Chestnut Hill the past five years.

The Two Adams Place location, at the juncture of Routes 3 and 128 at the Quincy-Braintree line, provided a natural location for the new headquarters, Waterman said.

"We will be one of the very first tenants in this most beautiful and convenient new office tower," he said. "Our new headquarters site is substantially bigger and more useful than our previous offices, the better to serve our large network of Britannica representatives throughout New England, as well as the public at large."

Two Adams Place, the second of twin, five-story office buildings developed by Charles River Development, Inc., affords access by private and public transportation to all of greater Boston.

The Codman Company, Inc., is exclusive agent for Adams Place.

Waterman said the Britannica offices will occupy 3,300 square feet of space in the building. The company's telephone number is 617-849-6767. Britannica also will maintain a toll-free number in and out of Massachusetts, 800-447-5747.

"Our division offices have been in the Boston area since the early 1930s. The Better Business Bureau of Greater Boston conferred a special honor on Britannica earlier this year, for 50 years of continuous support and membership in the Bureau."

The public is welcome to visit the Britannica headquarters at any time, Waterman said. A feature of the new offices is a floor to ceiling bookcase, bathed in light, that contains samples of many Encyclopaedia Britannica products.

District offices reporting to division headquarters are Harvard-Coop, Malden, Sudbury and Westport in Massachusetts; Manchester in New Hampshire; Bangor and Portland in Maine and Pawtucket in Rhode Island.

The New Encyclopaedia Britannica is the oldest continuously published reference work in the English language, dating back to 1768.

DeBoer Fires 2-Hitter Fans 16 For Morrisette

Erik DeBoer, who will be a senior next year at North Quincy High, is having a spring and summer that any pitcher dreams of.

DeBoer was the top pitcher in the Suburban League this spring as he led North to the league championship and its first Eastern Mass. Tournament berth in 10 years.

He had a 6-2 regular season record and lost both games on errors. He had 69 strikeouts in 55 innings and had an impressive 1.15 ERA.

This summer he is having a tremendous season for Morrisette Legion. Last week he had one of the best games of his career as he pitched a two-hitter and struck out 16 to lead Morrisette to a 7-0 victory over Wollaston. The win improved Morrisette's record to 8-2 and left it in second place in Zone 6 behind unbeaten Braintree.

DeBoer has a 3-2 record and both his losses were due to errors, a 2-1 two-hit loss to Milton and a 1-0 four-hit loss to Braintree. His ERA is phenomenal as he has given up just one earned run in 30 innings.

"Next year we'll just give him the ball and don't expect him to lose a game," said his high school coach, Leo Donovan.

"He is just amazing," said Morrisette coach Dave Perdios, the junior varsity coach at North Quincy. "I haven't seen a better pitcher in high school or Legion."

Morrisette played at Braintree last night (Wednesday) hoping to avenge the earlier 1-0 loss. Monday night it will play at Randolph at 6 o'clock, will host Mass. Truck Tuesday night at 8:30 at Adams Field and Wednesday will play at Canton at 6.

In pitching his second shutout against Wollaston, DeBoer had a no-hitter for 6 2/3 innings. But with two outs in the seventh and two strikes on Scott Logan, Logan had a line single to center.

Billy Regan followed with a single. He has struck out 54 for the season.

Morrisette collected 12 hits, off Wollaston's leading pitcher, Chris Higgins, scoring three runs in the second, one in the sixth and three in the seventh.

Rob McDonald led the offense with three hits and three RBI. DeBoer went 3-for-3 with an RBI, Billy MacDougall had two hits and an RBI, Jeff Calvert two hits and an RBI, Dan Ryan a triple and Tony Anderlionis a single.

In its previous game Morrisette bombed Carter Post of Dorchester, 11-0, as lefty Billy Warren, making his first Legion start, went all the way, allowing only two hits, striking out nine and walking only one. During the schoolboy season Warren had a no-hitter for North Quincy.

Morrisette pounded out 14 hits, including five triples. Perdios started three of his reserves and they came through in finestyle as George Rozanitis, Ryan and Mike Baylis combined for seven hits, five RBI, three triples and five runs scored.

Billy MacDougall had two hits, McDonald a pinch hit triple and Brian Taylor an RBI triple.

LORRAINE ROONEY, left, and arena manager Beverly Reinhardt look over plans for the renovations at the Quincy Youth Arena. The renovations, costing $100,000, include new dasher boards, glass and lighting system. The rink will reopen July 10.

Kelleher Standout As Bryan Post Wins Pair

Mark Kelleher was a standout in both games as Bryan VFW Post defeated Granite City Electric, 9-3, and Bank of New England, 8-5, to improve its American League-leading record to 11-3 in the Quincy Babe Ruth League.

Against Granite City Kelleher struck out 12 in a curfew-curtailed five-inning game. Catcher Bill Morrissey handled Kelleher flawlessly.

Bryan scored six runs in the first. Steven Loud and Joe Marnikovic had a double and single apiece, Rob Kane and Todd Portesi two hits each and Kelleher, Morrissey, George Wirtz and Paul Morrissey all singled.

Ed Costello had a double and single for Granite City. In the win over Bank of New England, Loud scattered eight hits, struck out eight and was extremely effective with men on base.

Kane made several outstanding plays at shortstop and Kelleher, Wirtz, Morrissey and Marnikovic played strong defense.

Kelleher led the offense with three hits, including a double, while Kane and Mike Malvesti each had two singles.

Marnikovic, Wirtz, Morrissey and Phil Bell also had hits and Terry Sheehan, Sean Skahan and Jeff Breslin also contributed to the win.

Mike Patch and Tom Balzano paced Bank of New England with a double and single each. Dave Mysluk doubled and Art Crosby, Andy Kenney and Terry Manning singled.

pounded Golden Print, 13-1, behind the two-hit, 10-strikeout pitching of Eddie Costello, who recorded his fourth win.

Granite City had 10 hits, including three by Costello, two each by Keith Norris and Kevin Boylen and one each by Vin Anderlionis, Justin Ackerman and Scott Wysocki (double).

Dave Jolley, Rob Guarnieri and Andy Veneziano played strong defense. Also contributing to the win were Mike MacDougall, Stephen Tangney and Danny Burke.

Steve Miller was the starter and loser for Golden Print, going five innings before being relieved by Aidan O'Donoghue, who was outstanding at shortstop. Miller and Dave Reinhardt had the only hits.

• Triple A

Mets Edge Braves, 13-11

The Mets scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to edge the Braves, 13-11, in the Triple A Baseball League. The Braves had scored three runs in the top of the sixth to tie the game at 11-11.

The winning pitcher was Robby Churchill, who struck out 10. Eddie Magee was the loser.

Mike Luddy drove in the winning runs. Brad Bryan, Churchill, Jim Hogrell, Shawn McTomney, Brian Beaton, Tom Gildea and Terrance Roche led the attack. Churchill had a home run and Hogrell and Gildea doubles. Mike Friel made an outstanding catch in right field to save two runs.

Williamson had a home run and Magee had two singles for the Braves. Joey Donahue played strong defense.

Kelly's Last Basket Puts Granite Rail On Track

In the season's most exciting game to date, Jimmy Kelly took an inbound pass 20 feet away from the hoop with one second left and fired the winning basket off the glass as the horn sounded, giving Granite Rail (2-4) a thrilling 56-55 victory over Bake's Club in the Jaehng Chiropractic Men's Basketball League.

Kelly was the game's top scorer with 18 points and Wink Phelan had nine. Fred Murray set up the winning basket by stealing an inbound pass with five seconds left. Bake's (2-4) was led by John O'Shea with 13 points, while Don Grant and Jim Bellafato had 10 each and Joe Derby scored all of his seven points in the second half.

The Greymen (5-1) handed Kane's Place (5-1) its first loss, 81-79, creating a three-way tie for first place. Bruno Giles had 23 points for the Greymen, Steve Millane had 19, Ray Baltz 14 and Brian Schwonke 12. Kane's, playing without Mark Millane, the league's top scorer, was led by Dean Coletti with 31, Peter Forbes with 20 and Tom Henry with 10.

Miller A.C. surprised the Quincy Nets, 70-68, as Fred Sundin took a Mike Cohen pass and scored the winning basket with just four seconds to play. John Gould scored a season-high 20 points for Miller (3-3) while Sundin had 17, Cohen 15 and Jerry Cetrone 10. The Nets (4-2) were led by Steve Belcastro's game-high 29 points, Jeff Timberlake, who scored all of his 16 points in the second half and Arturo Russell with 15.

J.B. Heating (3-3) easily defeated the Bay State Bombardiers (0-5) behind the one-two scoring punch of Donny Murphy (17) and Brian Levitt (16). Al Carty added 11 and Scott MacKinnon 9. Chris Keenan led the Bombardiers with 15 and Rick Boyle had 10.

The Jaehng Club (5-1) gained a share of the lead with the Greymen and Kane's place with a victory over Bill's Team.

The standings after six weeks: Greymen, Kane's Place and Jaehng, 5-1; Nets, 4-2; J.B. Heating and Miller A.C. 3-3; Granite Rail and Bake's Club, 1-5, and Bay State Bombardiers, 0-5.

Mark Millane is the leading scorer with a 30-point game average and his brother, Steve, is second with a 22.8 average. Timberlake follows with 22; Giles stands at 21.75 and Coletti at 21.5.

Dodgers Go Undeclared For Junior Farm Title

The undeclared Dodgers won the Junior Farm Baseball League championship with a 9-8 victory over the American League champion Indians.

The Dodgers, the National League winner, jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first. Rusty Corner led off with a double and, after Kevin Walsh and Ron Gamel walked, Scott Cooper singled home two runs. The Dodgers added a run in the second as Jake Flemming, Brian Brownell and Jonathan Brillo walked and Steve Marks was hit by a pitch.

The Dodgers widened their lead to 7-0 in the third inning as Corner again doubled, Mike Powers hit a line drive two-run homer, Gamel singled and Chris Bregoli homered over the right fielder's head.

Corner coasted through the first three innings, striking out five. However, the Indians scored three in the fourth as Brian Ross hit a long triple on which Jeff Marks nearly made a sensational catch. Matt Norton and Steve Luck reached to lead the bases, Kevin Bowes walked to force in a run and Mike Cascarano and Mark Hawes followed with RBI singles. Corner was replaced by Bregoli, who avoided further trouble when Walsh robbed Ryan Barrett on a ball headed for the outfield.

The Indians took an 8-7 lead as Bregoli walked Brian Cornea, John Harter and Jamie Dalrymple. Corner threw out Cornea at the plate on a John Barron hit, but Paul Markarian singled home a run, Ross cleared the bases with a triple and scored on Norton's single.

In the bottom of the last inning the Dodgers pulled out the win when Corner reached for the third straight line, Powers doubled him to third, Walsh grounded out with Corner scoring the tying run and Gamel drove in Powers with the winning run.

For the Dodgers, Corner had three hits and Powers and Gamel had two each. The Indians were led by Ross with three hits and Dalrymple, Barron and Cascarano had two each. Bregoli was the winning pitcher.

Members of the Dodgers were Corner, Powers, Walsh, Gamel, Bregoli, Cooper, Philip Belmont, Pat Dolbear, Andy Mauriello, Flemming, Brownell, Brillo, Steve Marks, Chris O'Hare and Jeff Marks. Fran Walsh, Don Powers and Paul Bregoli were the coaches.

The members of the Indians were Dalrymple, Barron, Markarian, Ross, Norton, Luck, Matt Lebo, Bowes, Hawes, John Bertucci, Barrett, Cornea, Harter and Cascarano. Coaches were Bill Graney and Ed Barrett.

Trophies were presented to the champions and runners-up.

Whitelaw Honored As Retiring ECAC Commissioner

By TOM SULLIVAN

Bob "Scotty" Whitelaw, a three-letterman at North Quincy High School, who retired July 1 as commissioner of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC), was recently honored by 40 of his former classmates and other North Quincy friends at an informal dinner at Walsh's Restaurant.

"We are not honoring Scotty Whitelaw, the retiring commissioner of the ECAC here tonight, we are honoring Scotty Whitelaw, a man who has had great success but who hasn't forgotten his friends in North Quincy," said Tom Fitzgerald, chairman of the committee planning the dinner.

"Scotty has never forgotten us. At the various Hall-of-Fame banquets and other ECAC events, he buys up a table and invites several of us as his guests. Instead of sitting with more prominent people, he sits at the table with us. That's the kind of a guy he is."

"We all wish Scotty a long and happy retirement," Fitzgerald said as he presented Whitelaw with a check from the group.

Whitelaw thanked his friends for honoring him and reminisced about the old days in North Quincy where he played baseball with the likes of Dick Donovan and Ken Coleman and played basketball in the YMCA Church League.

LaRoy "Curley" Rogers, a young 87 and a longtime teacher-coach at North Quincy, was a special guest.

"I owe a lot to Mr. Rogers and I don't think there is a man here tonight who can say his life was not influenced by his guidance," Whitelaw said in presenting Rogers with a special gift.

Scotty graduated in 1945 from North Quincy High where he played football, baseball and basketball. He went on to Springfield College where he starred in football, track and baseball.

After a brief stint as assistant football coach at North Quincy, he coached baseball and basketball for two years at Andover Academy and for eight years at MIT.

He joined the ECAD in 1960 when its offices were in New York. He became commissioner in 1972 and the ECAC moved its headquarters to Centerfield on Cape Cod in 1974.

The ECAC has grown under Whitelaw's leadership into one of the country's top conferences.

"We have added such sports as golf and tennis and the conference has added women's sports, something I am proud of," he said.

"One of my biggest thrills came this past winter when Harvard, a member of the ECAC, won the national (NCAA) championship in hockey."

Under Whitelaw's leadership, the ECAC now has 19 sports in three divisions. It has won 90 men's and women's championships.

"At one time every school in the Big East was a member of the ECAC," he said.

Whitelaw will continue on the National Invitational Tournament (NIT) board and will spend 21 days in Germany, Holland and Belgium speaking on basketball.

Scotty left recently for 12 days in Maui, his last official ECAC meeting.

Scotty and his wife, the former Shirley Rich of North Quincy, live in East Sandwich.

They are parents of four children, Andrea of Phoenix, AZ, Karen of Manchester, NH, Kim of Bristol, CN, and Scott of Boston. They have four grandchildren.

Two weeks ago Scotty received the prestigious James J. Corbett Award in Anaheim, Calif. This award, given by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, goes to the person who "through the years typified devotion to intercollegiate athletics and has worked for its betterment."

"I was very honored to receive this award and it worked out perfectly for me as my daughter Andrea and her two children flew up from Phoenix and we spent a day at Disneyland," Scotty said.

Assisting Fitzgerald in arranging for the dinner were Paul Jennings, Bat Bulman, Pat Cluet and Rocco Newton.

North Track, Cross Country Awards Presented

The North Quincy track and cross country teams recently held their annual awards banquet at the Sons of Italy Social Center with more than 200 attending.

Girls' coach Jeff Hennessy was master of ceremonies and introduced the head table guests, principal Peter Chrisom, boys' head coach Peter Chrisom Jr., boys' head cross country coach Dan Cuddy and assistants Earl Metzler, Ken McPhee, Nancy McCarthy, Michelle Millane and manager Joe Ruscio.

Principal Chrisom congratulated the athletes on their efforts despite the lack of upper classmen. He noted that the boys' spring track win over Quincy was "the most exciting sports event I have witnessed in a long time."

Hennessy spoke briefly of a four-year plan preparing North Quincy for its entry into the Old Colony League in the fall of 1990.

Cross-country MVP awards went to Brian Barrett and Sherrin Quintiliani, coaches' awards to George Gavros and Bridget Toland and the unsung hero awards to Andy Wohlrab and Joanne Moriarty.

Boys' winter track MVP award went to Wayne Sit, the coaches' award to Hiep Ngo and the unsung hero award to Mike Doherty. The girls' winter MVP was Robin Guilfooy, Karen Cashman, the coaches' award winner and Amanda Young the unsung hero.

The spring boys' MVP was Quan Le, Peter Wildes the coaches' award winner and Mike Yee the unsung hero.

The girls' MVP was freshman Tricia Hughes, Deirdre Murphy the coaches' award winner and Kara Sullivan the unsung hero.

Hennessy pointed out that in 1987-88 only 40 combined boys and girls were involved with the track program, while in 1988-89 the number swelled to 173 signups for cross country, winter and spring track, including 68 freshmen and 55 sophomores.

The evening concluded with senior captains Gavros, Barrett, Le, Toland, Guilfooy and Cashman presenting gifts to the coaches.

Fabrizio Distributing Summer Safety Tips Kits

Thomas Fabrizio, a candidate for Ward 4 councillor, has begun a neighborhood distribution of "Safe'n Fun with the Care Bears - Summer Playtime Kits" and parent's guide to elementary school children.

The kits have already been distributed to private schools, specifically St. Mary's School in West Quincy, to children in the first and second grades.

The bulk of the distribution will be by mail directly to the parents of first and second grade public school children.

"Our children are at risk today. The Summer Playtime Kit and parent guide provides safety tips for various kinds of recreation and play activities that children may get involved with this summer," Fabrizio said.

Parent guide topics include: Getting ready for summer, playing to grow - team sports, water sports, neighborhood play, backyard athletic games, rainy day play and activity, camping overnight and day, facts kids should know and do's and don'ts for safe street behavior.

The kits were developed by the Adam Walsh Child Resource Center, Inc., and funded by Bristol-Myers.

"I am delighted to offer these kits and parent guides to local elementary school children. It represents a kickoff of an effort to protect children," Fabrizio said.

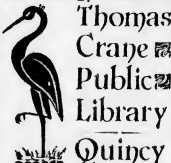

"As a father of two preschool children, I am concerned about the quality of their lives. As a social worker with DSS and a member of the Communications Staff of the Quincy Police Department, I know that our children may be at risk also.

"It is my hope that the information in these kits and parent guides will help parents and their children plan for a safe, secure and happy summer vacation," he said.

Assisting Fabrizio is Richard Iacobucci, former executive director of the Adam Walsh Resource Center, Inc., in Massachusetts.

The playtime kit and parent guide has been acclaimed by a wide spectrum of camp counselors, child protection workers, parents and community leaders," Iacobucci said.

WEEK OF: July 6

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Sentimental and family-oriented, you're young at heart despite your years. Some say you enjoy living in the past, most agree that's part of your charm. Career advancement is favorably spotlighted through the end of 1989. An important job-related decision may be rendered by October.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19
An introspective week that sees you reflecting on relationships and obligations. Information arriving now needs double-checking. Mechanical jobs need prompt, professional attention.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20
Etiquette and manners are particularly useful through this week. Creative activities are highlighted. Reports prepared at this time carry extra weight. Overdue check may arrive now.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20
Super time for bringing together "opposites." Also on tap is the outlining of a key personal plan. Real estate or legal transactions may have to be put on hold.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22
Week is favorable for drawing up agendas and itineraries. Meetings held at this time may be slightly chaotic; it may be opportune for you to assume a key leadership post.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21
If handling documents, it's important to read the fine print and to read between the lines. Diplomatic skills are put to work over the weekend. Youngsters benefit from your counsel.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22
Invitation to gala event may arrive during this period; make a point of looking your best. Community activities are highlighted, but think twice before committing much time to committees.

LEO - July 23 - August 22
Thursday-Saturday highlight buying and selling activities. Sunday-Wednesday accent creative pursuits. Household chores can be tackled with new vigor thanks to a new motivating factor.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22
Communications improve significantly—it's easier to address a hiccup, especially through the spoken word. Travel complications diminish. Interesting curio may come into your possession.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22
An old kindness of yours is repaid in a meaningful way. Avoid harping on old complaints at work. Learning new skills is also a prominent part of the week's agenda.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21
Signs of improved lifestyle begin appearing—but do not rush the process. Intuitive feelings are quite sharp, but rely on logic, especially in work-related matters.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22
You win rave reviews for your ideas, but the key now is to put them to practical use. Weekend spotlights opportunities for contacting old chums. Financial news may be brighter.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20
Good week for pooling ideas—be sure to give credit where due. Social calendar fills up carefully; make a point of leaving time for personally meaningful activities.

BORN THIS WEEK
July 6th, singer Della Reese; 7th, singer Ringo Starr; 8th, actress Kim Darby; 9th, actor Richard Roundtree; 10th, actor James Brolin; 11th, actor Tab Hunter; 12th, actor Bill Cosby.

Merrymount Students Receive Diplomas At Dinosaur Program

The second grade class of teacher Kathleen Fitzpatrick recently held their annual Dinosaur Program at the Merrymount School.

The program involves all areas of the curriculum as well as anthropology.

Eugene Creedon, director of Elementary Education, presented diplomas to 20 children for their work in science, social studies and language arts.

They are:

Lauren Baker, Ann Cloonan, Lila Consalvi, William Edwards, Kati Fernald, Ruth Fishman, Patrick Grogan, Rachel Jarvis, Michael Lencki, Meaghan Lewis, Amanda McKenna, Julie Miller, Gary Poon, Gerard Powers, Scott Quinn, Michael Shaw, Scott Staiti, Marc Sullivan, Sarah Towne and Jesse Winter.

Following the program, the children enjoyed a dinosaur luncheon prepared and served by their mothers.

The menu included pterodactyl (chicken) wings;

stegosaurus spuds (french fries), dinosaur eggs

(broccoli), brontosaurus blocks (jello), disloducus dessert (dinosaur cakes) and saurolophus soda (ginger ale).

Dick Betzger Squantum Parade Grand Marshal

Dick Betzger served as the grand marshal of the 81st Annual Squantum Fourth of July parade.
He was chosen for the honor because of his dedication as parade coordinator for many years.

Betzger, originally from North Quincy, has been a resident of Squantum for 18 years.

As parade coordinator for some fifteen years, he has held a variety of responsibilities including lining up the bands, floats, cars and marchers along the parade route, and arranging for flatbed trucks and drivers to accommodate the floats.

Betzger has also served on the Squantum Community Association Executive Board, first as Chairman of the Social Committee and later as Vice President of the Association.

A Vietnam veteran, he is a member of the Nickerson American Legion Post. He is also a member of the Star of the Sea Church.

Honored Guest of the parade committee was Katie Crossman of Squantum, who recently celebrated her 100th birthday. The parade also featured six floats, bands, antique cars and costumed marchers.

Summer Storytelling Series Starts July 11 At Library

Storyteller George Capaccio will open this summer's storytelling series at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, Tuesday, July 11 at 7 p.m. Capaccio, a great favorite with Quincy audiences, is returning to the library for the third year in a row.

He will present a program of stories called "Bag of Tricks," multi-cultural folktales that feature clever characters who use their wits. "Abiyoyo" represents both the United States and South Africa and is about a fearsome giant. "Juan Bobo and Sisi," a tale from the West Indies, features the popular Puerto Rican folk hero Juan Bobo and his pet chicken. "The Legend of Knockmanny" stars two giants of Ireland, Cucullin and Fin McCool. Storyteller, actor and mime, Capaccio uses original stories and adaptations from literature as well as folktales. He not only tells stories but also gives writings and storytelling workshops and conducts residencies in schools.

Capaccio is host and star of "The Reading Balloon," a children's storytelling series on Boston cable television. He has performed in revivals and at fairs, in schools, libraries, shopping malls and has appeared in plays, films and commercials.

STORYTELLER GEORGE CAPACCIO will open the Thomas Crane Public Library storytelling series July 11.

He is a warm and witty man who draws his listeners into his storytelling. Frequently the audience participates actively.

The storytelling series is funded by two grants, including a Quincy Arts Lottery grant.

The series will continue on successive Tuesdays through Aug. 15 and is offered to children age five and older and to adults.

Other storytellers include Li Min Mo, Jennifer Justice, Elisa Pearmain, Doug Lipman and Judith O'Hare.

2 QHS Seniors Receive Chorus Awards

Lisa Brangiforte and Scott Kradolpher, graduating Quincy High School seniors, received the "Bel Canto" award at a recent QHS banquet in the school's Method Center.

This award is given annually to graduating seniors who display outstanding musical talent and who use their talent for the success of the chorus. Their names have been inscribed on a plaque that will be on permanent display in the QHS Pride Room.

Receiving senior certificates and medals were Julie Flaherty, Kim Ricottelli and Michelle Pirog. Special recognition went to Russell Patten, Jen LaRaia and Ly Meng, most improved; Lisa Brangiforte, Scott Kradolpher, Ruthie Hernandez, and John Porcaro, South East District Chorus Award; and Lisa Brangiforte, Scott Kradolpher, Merimee O'Rourke MacLeod, Jacqueline Potter and John Porcaro, Outstanding Contribution awards.

Health Dept. Begins Summer Water Sampling

The Quincy Health Department has begun its summer water sampling program to keep the public informed of safe recreational swimming areas along the city's beaches, announces M. Jane Gallahue, Quincy Health Commissioner.

Water samples will be collected every Tuesday at 11 beaches, one to two hours before high tide, until Sept. 5. Results will be analyzed for fecal coliform counts by a certified private laboratory and made available to the media, including the Quincy Sun, throughout the summer months.

The Metropolitan District Commission will collect and analyze water samples at four locations on Wollaston Beach each Wednesday. Results will be reported to the beach managers by Thursday afternoon.

Quincy, like most coastal communities in the South Shore area, is utilizing a standard of more than 200 fecal coliform as an indication of a health risk.

Beaches with more than 200 will be posted with signs to read: Warning-- Beach Unacceptable for Swimming, Per Order of Quincy Health Department.

Such beaches are considered unsafe for swimming and the signs will remain in place until water samples show fecal coliform counts below 180.

If a period of rain has occurred after the water samples were taken on Tuesdays, it is important that people understand such samples may not represent an accurate reflection of the water quality which will be reported on Fridays.

Sewerage is often discharged into the harbor from pipes and drains that contain overflow waste water in combination with rainwater after a quarter of an inch or more of rain falls in a given day.

Therefore, the health department recommends that people refrain from swimming or bathing for a period of 48 hours after a rainfall to allow for the natural flushing action of the tides to dilute and clean the water.

A pamphlet on the Bathing Beach Water Sampling Program was developed by the Health Department this year and will be distributed throughout the city.

For more information on the testing program -- call City Hall, 773-1380, ext. 219.

JOHNNY LEE and David Risitano, fifth graders at the Merrymount School, recently took part in the litter research project on Wollaston Beach, sponsored by the MDC.

Presidential Wreath For John Quincy Adams' 222nd Birthday

A wreath from President George Bush will be presented and placed on the tomb of President John Quincy Adams on Tuesday, July 11, at 10 a.m. at United First Parish Church Unitarian, Hancock St., Quincy Square, opposite City Hall.

The ceremony will commemorate the 222nd birthdate anniversary of President John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, who was born July 11, 1767, here in Quincy (then part of Braintree).

The wreath will be presented on behalf of the White House by Commander Floyd P. Dunphy, U.S. Navy Reserve Center, Quincy and accompanied by the U.S. Navy Color Guard from the South Weymouth Naval Air Station. Mayor Francis McCauley will deliver brief remarks on behalf of the City of Quincy and Dr. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church, will also make remarks. Other elected officials are expected to attend as well. The public is invited and encouraged to attend.

The presenting of presidential wreaths at the tombs of former Presidents on their birthdate anniversaries is an annual event begun in 1966 under President Lyndon Johnson. Each year in Quincy, ceremonies are arranged by the U.S. Navy, United First Parish Church, and the City of Quincy, on the birthdates of the two Presidents -- John Adams, Oct. 30, and John Quincy Adams on July 11.

Both Presidents were strong supporters of the U.S. Navy. John Adams established the present Navy and John Quincy Adams argued for the establishment of a national Naval Academy.

Tobin Supports House, Senate Conference Budget

Adding his support to the House and Senate conference budget, State Rep. Steve Tobin (D-Quincy) has voted to send the measure to Governor Michael Dukakis.

According to Tobin, the budget proposes to spend no more than $12.3 billion in fiscal year 1990 which began Saturday, July 1. The budget will not require any new taxes, Tobin said.

However, Tobin pointed out that the budget does address basic human services by providing $100 million in new revenue to the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, as well as increased funding to the Office of Children, AIDS research and early start program.

It further allows 4.25 cost of living adjustment for human service providers.

"This budget received my vote because it protects the elderly and the young people of my district without further burdening the average taxpayer," Tobin said.

"While it is true that we can always spend more for worthwhile appropriations, I refuse to vote for any more taxes because we are still spending too much on administration salaries and white elephant programs.

"I will continue my efforts to cut waste in government so that our tax dollar funds priority programs and not waste and inefficiency," Tobin added.

Showdown Set For July 19 MWRA Override Vote Postponed

'A Spring Chicken'

PETER E. DUNN celebrates his 95th birthday with a "Big Chicken" at his Dunn's Hill Road home. The "chicken" was the gift of his great-grandchildren, Bobby-Mack, 20 months, and Haley, 17 months. Dunn's tee shirt says he's "just a spring chicken."

House of Representatives Tuesday postponed an override vote of a bill which would require the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to locate its headquarters in Quincy.

Rep. Michael Morrissey moved to postpone the vote to next Wednesday, July 19. In asking the House to postpone the matter, Morrissey cited a recent decision by the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries which overturned the authority's choice of a headquarters site in Roxbury because it violated state contracting laws.

The decision was handed down as a result from a supplemental brief filed by Quincy mayoral candidate and businessman Peter O'Connell. The department is in charge of enforcing the Ward Commission statutes against waste, fraud and corruption in public construction contracts.

On Monday, Governor Michael Dukakis vetoed the bill. The governor wants the headquarters in Roxbury to help boost the economy in that depressed neighborhood.

In the filing, O'Connell asserted that the MWRA, by picking Parcel 18 in Roxbury as its future headquarters site, violated the spirit and intent of the Ward Commission's laws. The department then ruled that any contract executed by the MWRA and a developer of Parcel 18 "is void and unenforceable."

On Tuesday as The Sun went to press, Morrissey asked for the postponement because O'Connell is due back in court in the next few days. Subsequent rulings in this case could ultimately determine where the headquarters is located, he added.

"I think it's critical that we get a favorable ruling (in court). I think it would legitimize what we've said," Morrissey said.

Morrissey said that support for a Quincy-based headquarters has slipped somewhat but there is still a fair chance for a successful override.

"We're still hanging in there by a thread. The amount of pressure put on (representatives) by the (Dukakis) administration has been intense."

In fact, it now appears the pro-Roxbury delegation has gained the upper hand and as a result, a House override vote will come down to the wire.

"In terms of actual votes and momentum, we're a little bit behind right now. We're hovering around 100 votes, plus or minus five votes," Morrissey said.

If all 160 representatives are present, the override will need 107 votes.

"It looks like we'll win or lose by 10 votes right now," Morrissey said, adding "It also depends on who is around."

Traditionally, the summer is the time for representatives and other lawmakers to take vacations.

One factor that could tip the scales in Quincy's or Roxbury's favor is whether or not the House leadership, namely Speaker George Keverian, will become actively involved in the issue.

"The unknown factor is what role will the leadership play. Will it play an active role or not, I don't know," Morrissey said.

Up to this point, Keverian has stayed neutral. However, the speaker was miffed after the Quincy delegation voted against his tax plan last week and there is a distinct chance that he will side with Roxbury.

If the House override is 27-Year Old College Student:

Sixth Candidate Takes Out Mayoral Papers

By JANE ARENA
Stressing that he is very concerned with the issues of education and affordable housing in Quincy, Joseph Mucci, 27, of 34 Berlin St., Wollaston, has taken out nomination papers to run for Mayor.

Mucci, a student at Bridgewater State College, says he will file the papers unless he is convinced that mayoral candidate, James Sheets, whom he favors, will pay closer attention to the two issues.

"Sheets is the best qualified candidate, especially as far as development goes," Mucci says, "but, as far as his school system package goes, his 'design for learning' as he calls it, it doesn't exist at all ... I think it's essential to put together (a city education program) because it accentuates another issue in this city, that of affordable housing."

"The housing problem is the education problem," Mucci continues, "it's a cycle. A specified plan for dealing with the education problem right now will allow for the housing problem to take of itself a few years down the road, ... a lot of people don't know how to earn a (higher) standard of living," he said.

JOSEPH MUCCI

Mucci said he initially wants to help Sheets on his campaign for mayor and has offered his services in the area of education. Mucci said he wants to set up a series of interviews with Quincy School Administrators to deal with the education issue.

Mucci has written, and sent by certified mail, a letter volunteering his efforts to Sheets and said that he expects to hear from him this week.

"If he'll let me go through with seeing what needs to be done (on the education issue), then I'll work with him on it," Mucci said.

"I agree with him on a majority of his other issues, but this is an issue that I plead with him to work on. I would not run if I thought there was a plan in the works to address these issues. But, if I can't persuade him that it's an area to be taken care of, then I will file the papers," he said.

Council, School Committee To Fill Kennedy Vacancy

A joint convention of the Quincy City Council and School Committee will be held Wednesday, July 19 at 6:30 p.m. in the Method Center of Quincy High School to fill the vacancy on the committee caused by the recent death of Christopher Kennedy.

The nine councillors, five committee members and Mayor Francis McCauley will appoint a successor by a vote. The appointment will expire the first Monday in January 1990.

Since Mr. Kennedy's term does not expire until January 1992, the final two years of his term will be filled in the Nov. 7 city election.

To be appointed, a person must receive a majority of the votes of Council and School Committee members present at the meeting.

Any person interested in the appointment may contact the members of the Council and School Committee or submit a resume to them.

McCauley, who will preside at the convention, said he will recommend to the members that interested persons be allowed to speak briefly on the behalf of their candidacy.

Residents can take papers out for the two-year School Committee seat next week. Three four-year seats will also be decided this fall.

As for possible successors, McCauley said he has spoken with two persons interested in the vacancy. He declined to reveal their names.

The mayor did, however, say some officials would prefer to have someone not running for the seat to fill the term up to 1990.

If a successor is chosen at the convention, he or she will be sworn in and join the other members at the regular School Committee meeting.

Special Council Meeting July 17

The City Council will hold a special meeting Monday, July 17 at 8 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

Among the items the council will act on are:

- Calling for the special election for the balance of the Christopher Kennedy term on the School Committee. Kennedy died last week after a long illness.

- Appropriation for funding to replace the fire alarm system at the Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

A joint convention of the council and school committee will meet Wednesday, July 19 to appoint a successor to fill Kennedy's term to 1990.

The election will fill the seat from January, 1990 to January, 1992.

MDC Acquires Squantum Land For Open Space

The Metropolitan District Commission has acquired nearly 200 acres of land at the mouth of the Neponset River in Squantum for open space preservation, announces Ilyas Bhatti, MDC Commissioner.

The land, in addition, to three other smaller parcels, will contribute to the MDC's Neponset River Reservation and further the Neponset River Esplanade Project.

The Quincy property includes 49 upland acres and 150 tideland acres.

The other acquired parcels are a 3.75-acre parcel rich in animal and plant habitats that borders Fowl Meadow and Green Street in Milton, 14.8 acres in Canton donated by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works, and 4.2 acres located off Brush Rd. in Milton and Canton donated by Kevin and Maxine Geller.

The acquisitions are part of the MDC's Open Space Land Acquisition program initiated in 1988.

BILL BAIRD, NATIONALLY known abortion and birth control advocate, addresses a small but sympathetic audience at the United First Parish Church Monday night.

No Confrontation Over Abortion Baird's Appearance Draws Sparce Crowd

By JANE ARENA

What some feared might become a confrontation between pro-choice and pro-life opponents of the abortion issue Monday night turned out to be a restrained and sparsely attended lecture by Bill Baird, nationally known abortion and birth control advocate.

Baird, who has been jailed eight times for lecturing on abortion and birth control, spoke at historic United First Parish Church in Quincy Square Monday night to a sympathetic audience of about 50 people, mainly women. He was invited to speak by the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister, prior to the recent Supreme Court ruling on abortion.

Speaking on a myriad of topics, ranging from the history of abortion law, to a graphic description of the once prominently practiced lethal methods of "underground abortions," Baird blasted pro-life leaders for "forcing their morality" on others.

"Cardinal Law of Boston has the arrogance of power to tell me, as a Unitarian, and all who support a woman's right to an abortion, that we must believe in his morality," he said.

Baird, who operates a number of clinics, spoke about the 1979 firebombing of his clinic in Hapstead, N.Y. He said that staff and patients narrowly escaped with their lives. Baird has tried and failed, he said, to get such attacks classified as "terrorism" with the FBI.

Anti-abortion "blockades" such as Operation Rescue which aim to prohibit women from entering clinics also present a danger, he said. He asked people to write to the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department "and demand, as taxpayers, that we have United States Federal Marshals to escort women into clinics," as they escorted blacks into schools in the 1960's.

He further called for a 50-foot "demilitarized zone" and a 500-foot "quiet zone" to be established around every abortion clinic in the country, to protect women from being accidentally injured by started doctors during the course of an operation.

"Anti-abortion blockades are increasing across the country," he said, "because nobody has taken seriously the threat to the freedom of women."

Baird also said that, if the Supreme Court decision outlaws abortion in some states, he would establish a fund to aid women in obtaining abortions in his clinics if it becomes necessary.

"My challenge to you," he said, "is to recognize, do you have the responsibility of your own freedom? If you think you've done enough, fine. But, if you haven't, there are things you can do."

He urged all citizens to fight for the government's adoption of a right-to-privacy amendment, saying that the abortion issue, in essence, is an issue of the right to individual privacy.

"For too many centuries we men have been telling you women what to do," he said. "It's about time we respect the dignity, the freedom and the rights of women to make that decision."

"My battle isn't abortion," he added, "it's got nothing to do with abortion, except as a vehicle. My battle is for this nation to respect the dignity, the freedom and the self-worth of all Americans, and that includes women."

'Votes Misinterpreted'

Tobin Says He Was Trying To Help Win MWRA Headquarters

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Responding to criticism over his voting record on a House of Representatives tax increase plan, Rep. Steve Tobin said that he was looking out for the best interests of his constituents.

Tobin denied he worked out a deal with House Speaker George Keverian involving the speaker's tax plan and a siting bill for the Massachusetts Water Resources Agency headquarters.

Last Friday, the House voted 81-76 to send the plan to the Senate. The plan calls for a temporary 15 percent increase in the personal income tax to pay off the state's budget and Medicaid debts.

Tobin was among the representatives including Quincy colleagues Rep. Robert Cerasoli and Rep. Michael Morrissey who voted against sending it to the Senate. Cerasoli and Morrissey are chairmen of House committees.

However, in the two procedural votes before the main vote, Tobin voted with the majority, resulting in charges from anti-tax advocates, namely Barbara Anderson of Citizens for Limited Taxation, that the Quincy legislator favors a tax increase.

The procedural vote margins were 82-74 and 84-72. Eighty-one votes are needed for a simple majority. On the procedural votes, Tobin said he waited until there was a majority before casting his vote.

Moreover, the freshman legislator said he sided with the majority on the procedural votes as a courtesy to Keverian and voted no against the main bill because it went against his no-tax pledge.

Kevin Costello of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, which opposes the speaker's plan, said the organization is "very satisfied" with Tobin's vote.

"I think Steve felt he was doing the right thing — trying to appease the speaker and knowing all along he would vote against the plan."

"Some people don't realize that Steve voted no on the tax package and that's the bottom line. We're very satisfied with it."

Tobin said he sided with Keverian on the procedural votes in an attempt to keep the speaker neutral on the issue of the siting of the MWRA headquarters.

A bill requiring the

authority to locate at the Quincy Shipyard was vetoed Monday by Governor Michael Dukakis. The governor supports a parcel in Roxbury for the headquarters' site.

On Tuesday, the House postponed an override vote for July 19. If overridden by the House, it would then go to the Senate.

The House passed the original bill by a wide margin as Keverian remained neutral through the discussion. A Senate override was thought to be much closer, perhaps coming down to one vote.

However, since Quincy's three legislators went against his tax plan, it is now feared Keverian will lobby for the Roxbury site and therefore dramatically decrease the chances of a House override.

Tobin said his procedural votes were intended to "placate" Keverian who was disappointed that Quincy went against his tax plan.

Because Roxbury and other Boston legislators supported Keverian's plan, the speaker will probably side with advocates for a Roxbury-based headquarters, it is believed.

"I can't see how (Keverian) can stay neutral now that the Roxbury delegation voted with him," Tobin said.

On Monday, Tobin talked with Keverian who indicated he might lobby for the Roxbury site.

In response to the criticism, Tobin said his votes were "misinterpreted, misconstrued" and, in a way, he regrets them.

He also said he was never given the opportunity to explain his votes to the critics, namely Anderson.

"My votes, which were wholly in the interest of my constituents since I was trying to do the best I could with a bad situation, have been misinterpreted as part of pro-tax votes when they clearly weren't intended to be such."

"For anyone to assume I was voting pro-tax on one vote and no tax on another is to ignore my philosophy that we have to streamline the budget of spending before we raise taxes," he said.

As proof to his no-tax pledge, Tobin pointed out that he called for the legislature to get back into session last year to resolve the state's fiscal problems.

"We shouldn't have had a vote on taxes this year. The footdragging on this issue forced the question on whether we need new taxes."

"I've opposed all efforts to raise taxes to date. I voted no on the tax bill last week and I will continue to oppose any more taxes until the people of my district are satisfied their tax dollar is put to the very best use."

"Right now, they don't feel that way and neither do I" Tobin said.

Continuing, he said, "On the one hand, I was voting for the best interest of my constituents while on the other hand, my vote was misinterpreted as pro-tax and unfortunately, I was criticized before I was given an opportunity to explain myself."

"I voted against taxes. Up until then, I tried to placate the speaker. Some have

The Real Issues On The MWRA

With the MWRA headquarters issue back in the legislature's court, it's time to tone down the rhetoric and focus on the real issues.

Governor Michael Dukakis and Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn have been pushing Roxbury as the site of the 900-member agency's headquarters.

Despite the fact that the awarding of the contract for the Roxbury site by the MWRA has been ruled in violation of state contracting laws.

It would seem that the governor of Massachusetts and the mayor of Boston believe they are above the law. But they aren't.

Now they want the legislature to join them as accessories to an illegal procedure by not overriding Dukakis' veto of the bill that would relocate the headquarters in Quincy instead of in Roxbury.

Both the House and Senate gave their blessing to the bill and it looked like Quincy would get the coveted headquarters which would be an economic boost and make up a little for Quincy having to put up with the MWRA's sludge facility here.

But then came the House tax bill vote with most of the South Shore legislators opposed to it. They voted their conscience on that one but now Quincy may have to pay the penalty because of an unhappy House Speaker George Keverian who apparently took the tax plan vote as a personal insult.

A question for the legislators is: will you vote your conscience on the MWRA bill?

We urge them to look at the real issues — not the political propaganda being tossed around between champagne sips by Dukakis and Flynn. Issues like:

Political Interference: The only reason the Quincy delegation pushed a bill through the legislature was to correct political intervention by the governor's office and the mayor's office. They have tried to pin inflated costs on the Quincy site such as a $10 million parking garage. The garage is not necessary in Quincy. There's plenty of parking space at the Quincy shipyard and existing buildings for the headquarters.

The Actual Cost: The MWRA would have you believe that the Quincy site carries a $20 million higher price tag than the Roxbury site. The truth is just the opposite.

Figures compiled by Gale Engineering show that the former General Dynamics offices could be renovated for $29.8 million compared to the $43.2 million for a new building at Parcel 18 in Roxbury.

FAIRNESS: Fairness demands that the water and sewer authority locate its headquarters on the same site as its sludge facility. As Senator Paul Harold said, quite simply: "If Quincy is getting the sludge, Quincy should get the headquarters."

PARCEL 18: One benefit of this whole political tug-of-war is an appreciation for the need to develop Parcel 18 and to do so with targeted state leases.

The MWRA is not the proper agency to locate there because it will be operating a sludge plant 11 miles away in Quincy.

There is only one MWRA headquarters but there are dozens of other state agencies that rent space that could be directed to Roxbury.

In the next year and a half, the Departments of Revenue, Public Health, Rate Setting and DEQE all have leases that will expire. They pay a combined annual rate of approximately $5 million.

These agencies could appropriately go to Roxbury, but it is only common sense that the MWRA should locate its headquarters on the same site as its sludge plant and that is Quincy — not Roxbury.

Not only that but it would provide some guarantee to the people of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth that the 180-ton a day plant will operate with efficiency.

In other words, if the MWRA headquarters is there, it can keep an eye — and a nose — on the operation.

Quincy is the logical site for the headquarters regardless of all the rhetoric from the governor and the mayor of Boston.

We ask members of the House of Representatives and the Senate to vote their conscience. And if they do, they will vote for Quincy.

A Fistful Of Matches

Sooner or later you knew someone would try to make a racial issue out of Quincy's long fight to relocate the MWRA headquarters here instead of in Roxbury.

So, take a bow, Derrick Z. Jackson.

In case you don't know who Jackson is, he writes a column for the Boston Globe.

JACKSON

Last week he did his best to turn the Quincy campaign for the MWRA headquarters into a white vs. color war.

Jackson led off a column with a quote from Senator Paul Harold (D-Quincy) in an obvious attempt to drag racism into the picture.

The Harold quote: "I don't see the necessity of having this type of confrontation."

Jackson then went on to comment: "Then quit crying Sen. Harold, before your tears of kerosene make this state a more inflamed place to live."

Well, Harold wasn't — and isn't "crying tears of kerosene."

But Jackson sounds like a guy running around with a fistful of matches looking for a gallon of the stuff.

Jackson took the quote out of context. What Harold said was that he didn't see the necessity of a confrontation between the legislature and Gov. Michael Dukakis over the siting of the MWRA headquarters. Not a confrontation between white and color.

But what the hell, why let the facts get in the way. If racism really isn't there, manufacture it.

And it would seem Jackson did just that because Senator William Owens (D-Roxbury) called Harold after the column appeared and told him he was upset that anyone would infer that there were racial overtones.

"This is not a racist issue," he agreed with Harold.

Jackson, in his column, slammed not only Harold but Reps. Michael Morrissey and Robert Cerasoli and Congressman Brian Donnelly for what he calls trying to "strong-arm" the MWRA into relocating in Quincy instead of in Roxbury.

"As part of their strategy," he says, "the Quincy pols tried to frame any bid from Roxbury as a welfare case."

He accuses Quincy officials of slandering Columbia Plaza Associates "the consortium of 50 African-American, Latin-American and Chinese-American developers of Parcel 18" the Roxbury site at the Ruggles Station.

The consortium, he notes, "invested $2.5 million of their own money trying to win the MWRA headquarters."

Columbia Plaza Associates seemed to have won the MWRA headquarters in May as Governor Michael Dukakis and Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn toasted the victory with champagne. The photo of them guzzling the bubbly with a the-hell-with-Quincy look on their faces actually rallied the Quincy forces for a fight.

Dukakis didn't know it at the time, but that bottle of champagne became a bugle for the Quincy charge up Beacon Hill.

If anyone is doing any strong-arming it's Dukakis, who more than anyone else pushed and shoved the MWRA headquarters to Roxbury. He has acted more like the mayor of Roxbury than the governor of Massachusetts.

The Columbia Plaza's "bid was $20 million under the MWRA estimates for rehabilitating the Fore River shipyard site in Quincy" Jackson pointed out arguing for the Roxbury site.

The MWRA estimate? Do you believe it? Would you buy a used car from Paul Levy?

Well, Quincy isn't buying that $20 million-under estimate. And anyone with a little common sense would have to question it.

The MWRA already owns the shipyard. Remember how they sneaked into town and grabbed it?

There are existing buildings there. With a little rehabilitation and some touch up here and there, the MWRA could move in in a few weeks instead of having to wait months or a year or so for a new structure to be built from scratch.

But the MWRA has a reputation for living high off the hog. The shipyard wouldn't be fancy enough. They want to build a palace in Roxbury. "A Taj Mahal," as Representative Morrissey puts it.

Senator Harold notes that according to a study by Gale Engineering it would still be cheaper to gut a shipyard building leaving only its structural shell than to construct a new building.

Thomas Pelham, real estate manager for the MWRA tried to shoot that down by claiming the $20 million higher cost estimate for Quincy was "primarily because of the cost of garage — nothing to do with this building."

"That's the point," Harold shot back. "We don't believe you need a parking garage. There is sufficient parking (already)."

The shipyard had thousands of workers during World War II and for sometime after. They had no trouble getting to Quincy by auto, bus or street car.

The MWRA simply doesn't want to come to Quincy. Even though workers could ride commuter boats or shuttle buses right to the front door. Or have plenty of room to park their cars.

Maybe they don't want to have to whiff the aroma from the sludge plant they have pushed onto Quincy. Let the residents of Quincy Point, North Weymouth and East Braintree smell it though.

If Quincy wins the battle for the headquarters, it would be a bit of an insurance policy that the sludge facility would be operated properly.

Peter O'Connell, Quincy businessman and mayoral candidate, who knows a little about bidding, a few weeks ago asked the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries to look into the awarding of the headquarters to Roxbury on the grounds it did not follow the rules of the Ward Commission.

"Rules," O'Connell notes "designed to prevent waste and corruption in state government."

Last week the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries ruled that the MWRA did not follow the state contracting laws in awarding the headquarters to Roxbury.

But obviously, the MWRA feels it is above the law. And so does the governor of Massachusetts. Both the MWRA and Dukakis are still pushing for the Roxbury site whether it was illegally selected or not.

But at least Atty. Gen. James Shannon has respect for the law. He says he is ready to enforce the decision by the state Department of Labor and Industries. He might just yank the rug from under both Dukakis and the MWRA.

Meanwhile, Dukakis has vetoed a bill that breezed through both the House and Senate requiring the headquarters to be relocated in Quincy. And there may be enough votes to override the veto.

The Globe's Jackson sees that bill as a racist measure. Quoting Senator Harold as saying "the plan for Parcel 18 just isn't going to work," Jackson comments:

"Harold needs to stop fishing for insults to the intelligence of people of color. The Legislature needs to fish its way out of its role as Quincy's vigilante, lest its mob mentality rupture the already dubious reputation of Boston on matters of color."

Jackson also gets off a couple more goodies:

"The state is about to lower itself into the long tradition of denying just fruits to system-playing African-Americans.

"The Quincy representatives would never have welfare baited a white community. Legislators would not have lined up so quickly against South Boston or Malden, two other proposed MWRA sites."

Whether they would have lined up or not no one can say for sure. But one thing is certain: Quincy would have taken on any community—not just Roxbury—in a fight to relocate the MWRA headquarters here.

Now the MWRA has come up with figures claiming if they are forced to Quincy after selecting Roxbury it will damage their image as an autonomous agency which in turn would reduce their credit rating and cost water and sewer taxpayers an extra $315 million over the next 30 year.

The MWRA needs to have someone keep a sharp eye on them. They're already a Frankenstein monster on the loose. Someone has to corral them and keep them under control. Like the law that says the Roxbury selection was illegal by the MWRA violating bidding regulations.

Whether or not Harold, Cerasoli and Morrissey can hold onto enough votes to override Dukakis' veto of the bill requiring the MWRA to relocate in Quincy remains to be seen. Hard feelings have erupted over local votes against the House tax plan.

And that's not racism either. That's old fashioned politics still very much in vogue.

Quincy officials simply feel if the MWRA picked Quincy for its sludge facility, the MWRA headquarters should be here, too.

And in the long run, they believe it would be cheaper using existing buildings and with plenty land for parking.

It has nothing to do with color as in racism.

If there is any color involved, the color is green. Like in money.

Youngsters Protest Pollution At Wollaston Beach

Eight youngsters from the Hudson St. area of Quincy staged a noisy demonstration in Quincy Square to protest their inability to swim in Wollaston Beach, a 15-minute walk from their homes due to pollution.

The kids, dressed in outlandish costumes and led by Gail Peterson, 14, clanged pan covers, sounded a bugle and carried signs, one of which read "It Ain't Fit to Swim in."

The demonstrators included Paul Peterson 12, Charles Nord 10, Roger Knudsen 10, Donald Peterson 9, Alyce Hoxie 8, Carle Peterson 6 and Jerry Peterson 2.

SHIPYARD STAND DISPUTED

A noon mass meeting of some 2,000 production and maintenance workers at the Fore River shipyard heard union officer dispute the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s contention that it cannot afford pay increases.

Arthur Boyson, former president of Local 5 Shipbuilders' union, just back from the negotiating table in New York, cited the company's profit statements and bonuses paid to executive as evidence.

On another labor front, a six-week strike of 60 iron workers at the Norfolk Iron Works, 33 Newport Ave., Norfolk Down, ended when the union agreed to a 5-cent hourly pay hike and six paid holidays.

Creamy Basil Salad is Refreshing, Easy

It's that time of year when the temperature runs high—but our energy levels run low. These months, even the most enthusiastic of cooks look for ways to conserve energy and minimize kitchen time.

Creamy Basil Salad is a cool, refreshing "make-ahead" pasta salad. Those whose spare time amounts to "a half an hour here and a half an hour there" will appreciate that this dish can be assembled in different stages. Cook the pasta and make the dressing the night before and keep refrigerated. The next day, steam the vegetables and refrigerate for a few hours before tossing them with the chilled pasta and salad dressing.

Those who prefer to make the whole dish ahead of time can do that, too. If refrigerated, it will easily keep for two days.

The dressing, made with evaporated skimmed milk, vegetable oil, white wine vinegar, fresh basil and seasonings, is easily whipped up in a blender. All of the ingredients for this easy-to-make dressing are as close as the cupboard shelf. In addition, Carnation evaporated skimmed milk is a lower fat milk alternative for those concerned about their fat intake.

Creamy Basil Pasta Salad
(Makes 7-8 cups)
1/2 cup undiluted
CARNATION Evaporated Skimmed Milk

1/2 cup vegetable oil
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
2 tablespoons chopped sun dried tomatoes
(optional)
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil*

1/4 teaspoon cracked fresh pepper
1/2 teaspoon seasoned garlic salt
5 cups cooked rotini pasta, drained and chilled
2 cups sliced, cooked vegetables, chilled Parmesan cheese, grated (optional)

In blender container, place skimmed milk, oil, vinegar, tomatoes, basil, pepper, and salt. Process 2 to 5 seconds. DO NOT OVERPROCESS. Chill. In large bowl, combine pasta and vegetables; toss with chilled dressing. Sprinkle with freshly grated Parmesan cheese, if desired.
*or 1 1/2 teaspoons dried basil

Delicious Avocados: The Warm Weather Treat

Avocados are a versatile, healthy fruit. Their nutty flavor goes perfectly with warm-weather menus.

Delicious California avocados are a healthy addition to any eating occasion. They contain absolutely no cholesterol, and ounce for ounce they pack more potassium than 45 popular fruits, juices and vegetables. (Note: studies indicate that potassium may help lower the risk of stroke.) Avocados are also naturally low in sodium (helpful for people with hypertension) and they're a good source of vitamin A, which helps maintain healthy eyes, skin and hair.

The key to enjoying avocados is to know when they're ripe. Ripe avocados yield to gentle pressure when squeezed. The Hass avocado, with its thick pebbly skin, changes color when ripe—from green to purple-black.

California avocados are great whether they're sliced into a sandwich or on top of a pizza, diced into a salad, cubed into an omelette or wrapped with ham slices for appetizers. They're also an excellent garnish for this delicious recipe that makes for quick and easy grilling:

GRILLED TURKEY AVOCADO BURGERS
1 package (about 1-1/4 lbs.) fresh ground turkey

1/3 cup dry bread or cracker crumbs

1 egg
1/4 cup minced onion
2 teaspoons
Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon seasoned pepper
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
4 slices sourdough bread, toasted
4 leaves curly leaf lettuce
8 slices tomato
1/2 cup bottled Thousand Island dressing
2 ripe medium California avocados, seeded, peeled, cut into crescents

4 radishes, sliced

In a bowl, combine turkey, bread crumbs, egg, onion, Worcestershire sauce, seasoned salt, garlic salt and seasoned pepper. Form into 4 large patties, each about 3/4-inch thick. Heat oil in large skillet over medium heat. Cook burgers 15 to 20 minutes, turning once, until meat is no longer pink inside.

To assemble sandwich: Place lettuce on top of each bread slice, top with 2 tomato slices and turkey burger. Garnish with 2 tablespoons of Thousand Island dressing, avocado crescents and radish slices. Makes 4 servings.

What's Cooking?

Looks Like We're In For A Warming Trend!

microwave ovens, and children as young as six are being taught to use them. Their favorite fast-fix foods? Popcorn and pizza.

According to NPD Group's National Eating Trends study, the number of meals which included a microwaved item almost doubled between 1983 and 1987, and forecasters expect this to increase.

In an attempt to lure consumer dollars away from fast food and carry-out restaurants, food marketers have scurried to meet the demand for a speedy feed with a wealth of microwave products, reformulations of existing products which can be microwaved, and microwave cooking directions for established products.

Frozen pizza is a good example. At first, it suffered badly by comparison with microwaved instead of baked. A soggy crust that didn't meet consumer expectations was a major drawback. According to

The Quaker Oats Company, manufacturer of popular frozen Celeste pizza and the nation's leader in the microwave pizza category, frozen pizza producers tried several directions to adapt frozen pizza to fast-paced lifestyles. Many tried reformulating products to make them more acceptable when microwaved. But for Celeste, skimping on the old family recipe was out of the question. Instead, a microwave crisping disk was developed as part of the product's packaging, designed to go into the microwave along with the pizza, producing a microwaved pizza that tastes oven baked.

O'Connell Calls MWRA Higher Rates Claim 'Scare Tactics'

The MWRA claim that taxpayers will foot higher water rates if the MWRA headquarters if moved to Quincy is "an irresponsible scare tactic ..." says Quincy businessman and Mayoral candidate Peter F. O'Connell.

The MWRA has suggested that if the legislature forces the MWRA to locate its headquarters in Quincy, the agency's credit rating would go down because of "political meddling."

O'Connell said, "It is absolutely ridiculous to suggest that the cost is higher if the headquarters is in Quincy," according to O'Connell. "A Quincy MWRA headquarters would be $25 - $30 million dollars cheaper than building a new headquarters in Roxbury. The greatest threat to the MWRA's bond rating would be to locate their headquarters to a Roxbury site - a process which violates state bidding laws. How good are the bonds of an agency that has violated the law and chooses an illegal headquarters site."

"The state Department of Labor and Industries, the Office of the Inspector General, and now the Chief Law Enforcement Officer of the Commonwealth - the Attorney General - all agree with the brief filed with Labor and Industries that the Roxbury selection procedures violated state law. It is an illegal site for the MWRA headquarters. Would you buy those bonds?" asked O'Connell.

"It's a shame that a public agency is resorting to scare tactics to intimidate legislators and taxpayers. If the Quincy site is cheaper isn't there an obligation to the public to use the least expensive site?," said O'Connell.

"The MWRA's predisposition for Roxbury as dictated by the Governor and the Mayor of Boston is financial quicksand. Its social goals may have merit, but as a businessman, I know that it is an economic disaster for the taxpayers."

"Financial projections by the MWRA are just not believable. They apparently will say or do anything to get the Roxbury site. Perhaps it is time for an independent financial analysis of the two sites under the supervision of the Inspector General or the Attorney General of the Commonwealth."

McGrath, Campaign Workers To Clean Quincy Center Saturday

Mayoral candidate Stephen McGrath and his campaign workers will take a day off from neighborhood campaigning to clean the Quincy Center area Saturday, July 15.

Campaign workers and other volunteers will gather at 10 a.m. at the McGrath headquarters, 1661 Hancock St. Large paper biodegradable trash bags, brooms and other recyclable cleaning supplies will be provided.

McGrath said the cleanup demonstrates his commitment to a cleaner environment. "A clean environment is of singular importance to every member of our community," he said.

In conjunction with the clean-up activities, McGrath's campaign committee has adopted Liberty Tree Park at the intersection of Hancock St. and Elm St. The committee will plant and maintain this municipal island.

In addition, McGrath has negotiated with the owner of the Hancock Plaza (former Remick's Building) and the owners of the Parkingway building to participate in the same Adopt-An-Island program and be responsible for the development and maintenance of the public parcels.

They are located at the former pedestrian seating area at Hancock and Cliveden Sts. and at the entrance to the Ross Garage.

Anyone wishing to participate in the cleanup should call the McGrath headquarters at 328-6806 or join the committee at the headquarters Saturday morning.

THE WHOLE LIFE (ORDINARY) POLICY

DIVIDENDS
There are four dividend options available to you that are paid on your policy anniversaries. Although you may elect one particular option at the time you apply, it can be changed at any time. The options are as follows: cash, net premium, paid up additions and accumulate interest.

CASH: When selecting "cash" the insurance company will send a check only to the name and address of the policy owner of record.

NET PREMIUM: The insurance company will send you your premium notice, subtracting the dividend from your premium and billing you for the difference.

PAID UP ADDITIONS (ADDS): The insurance company will purchase a fully paid up whole life policy based on the amount of the dividend. These additions will increase the total cash value and the total death benefit.

ACCUMULATE INTEREST: This is like a Swiss bank account in that the dividend is deposited into your account. This account will earn a competitive interest rate, and any interest earned must be reported on your tax returns. The dividend, being considered as a return of premium, is never reported as income.

For professional advice on all of your insurance needs please contact the experts at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Call us at 471-6200 or stop by our office at 1660 Hancock St. in Quincy.

Obituaries

Christopher F. Kennedy, 66 School Committeeman, Retired NU Vice-President

A funeral Mass for Christopher F. Kennedy, 66, of Quincy, was celebrated July 8 at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy. Burial was in Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline.

Mr. Kennedy, who served as a Quincy school committeeman for 14 years, died July 4 after a long illness.

Mr. Kennedy retired last year as vice president of Administration at Northeastern University.

He worked at Northeastern University for 40 years, first as a Mathematics teacher, later as dean of freshman and dean of students, and, in 1984, was named vice president for administration.

Mr. Kennedy also served as president of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees for 1987-88 and as chairman of the board of the Newman Preparatory School in Boston. He was also president of the Cerebral Palsy Association of the South Shore.

Mr. Kennedy's involvement with the Quincy School system began with the parent-teacher organization of the Montclair School. He was elected to the Quincy School Committee in 1975 and was re-elected every four years since.

Mr. Kennedy was also a lector and eucharistic minister at Sacred Heart Church, past chairman of the Quincy Parks and Recreation Board and past president of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra.

Raised in Dorchester, Mr. Kennedy attended Boston Latin School and graduated from Harvard University in 1946, after serving three years as a lieutenant in the Navy, stationed in the Pacific.

CHRISTOPHER F. KENNEDY

He moved to Quincy in 1952.

After graduating from Harvard, he received an education degree from Boston State College. He then taught mathematics at Boston Latin School for two years before working for Northeastern.

Mr. Kennedy is survived by his wife, Mary T. (Devine) Kennedy; five sons, Christopher F. Kennedy, Jr. of Braintree, John W. Kennedy of Scituate, Robert M. Kennedy of Weymouth, Richard P. Kennedy of Boston, and James P. Kennedy of Quincy; three daughters, Kathleen M. Becker of Weston, Judith A. Higgins of Merrimack, and Mary Catherine Kennedy of Baltimore; a brother, H.J. A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It is a known fact of life that the period following the death of a loved one presents a difficult time and that there are many adjustments to be made.

Ms. Theresa Morse in her book, "Life is for the Living," points out that a team of experts such as a lawyer, accountant, and investment counselor can provide the professional advice that well-meaning relatives and friends simply cannot give. She also points out that a widow should seek out a professional in these areas that she is comfortable with; that she trusts and has her confidence. Because only through this trust can they help her chart her course of action. In simple words, they become part of her "team."

We at the Deware Funeral Home desire to be part of this "team." We want you to be comfortable discussing any questions you might have. Remember that we, like the lawyer, accountant, etc., are professionals in our field. Remember that your problems are our concern. We are here to help you in your time of need and our service continues even after the final tribute. Our purpose is to be helpful in as many ways as possible...

Caterina Di Tunno, 92 Former Granite Firm Co-Owner

A funeral Mass for Caterina (LoStrappo) DiTunno, 92, of East Bridgewater, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated July 6 at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy. Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Mrs. DiTunno, former co-owner of DiTunno Granite Company on Columbia St. South Quincy, died June 30.

Mrs. DiTunno and her late husband, Pasquale DiTunno, operated the monument firm for several years. After his death in 1952, she sold monuments from her home.

Mrs. DiTunno did most of the paperwork for the company.

Born in the Abruzzi region of Italy, Mrs. DiTunno grew up on a farm and was educated in Italian schools.

She came to the United States as a young woman and joined her father and two brothers in Thomas, West Virginia. She taught herself to speak, read and write English.

She and her husband married in Thomas and moved to West Quincy where they built a two family home.

Among her many hobbies were crocheting, cooking, wine making, canning and gardening.

Mrs. DiTunno was active in the Sodality of St. Mary's Church and frequently went on bus trips to religious sites with that group.

She was also a longtime member of the Stonecutters Association.

Mrs. DiTunno is survived by a daughter, Catherine M. Perry of Jacksonville, Fla.; a niece, Mary DiBlasio of Brockton; 27 grandchildren, 34 great-grandchildren, and eight great-great-grandchildren. She was the mother of the late Rose A. Thomas, Bena Meargan, and Eda DiTunno, and the sister of the late Dominic LoStrappo and Antonio LoStrappo.

Funeral arrangements were by the Boica-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St.

Kenneth C. Walker, 79 Retired Electronics Experts

A funeral service for Kenneth C. Walker, 79, of Wollaston, was held July 6 at the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Mr. Walker, a retired electronics expert who worked for the Federal Aviation Administration, died July 2 in the John Scott Nursing Home after a long illness.

Mr. Walker worked for the Raytheon Company as a civilian engineer for the Navy during World War II. He served several years in the South Pacific.

After the war he formed A.E. Walker real estate company in Quincy. He sold the company after 15 years to return to the electronics field.

Mr. Walker was a member of the Quincy and Wollaston Republican Clubs and attended the First Baptist Church in Wollaston.

He is survived by his wife, Clara (Wyman) Walker; a son, Robert W. Walker of Montague; two daughters, Sally MacKinlay of Rockland and Diane Porter of Quincy; 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Kathleen H. Powell, 68 Was School Clerk

A funeral Mass for Kathleen H. (Mackie) Powell, 68, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday at Star of the Sea Church, Squantum.

Mrs. Powell, a clerk at the former Myles Standish School in Squantum for 18 years, died July 7 at Quincy Hospital.

She retired in 1983. Born in Ireland, Mrs. Powell had lived in Dorchester when she came to the United States.

She was a graduate of St. Gregory's High School in Dorchester.

She is survived by her husband, Arthur Powell; a son, John W. Powell of Quincy; and a sister, Emily DeCilio of Wollaston.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, Hancock St., Wollaston.

Vette 'Ring' Larson, 78 Former Amateur Boxing Champion

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at Mortimer M. Peck Funeral Home, Braintree, for Vette "Ring" Larson, 78, formerly of Quincy. Rev. Janice Howe of Union Congregational Church, Weymouth, officiated.

Mr. Larson died unexpectedly July 7 at South Shore Hospital. Burial was at Village Cemetery, Weymouth Landing.

Amateur middleweight boxing champion of America in 1930, "Ring" Larson trained at Joe Beston's Gymnasium above the former Bargain Center in Quincy Square, as did Lou Brouillard, who later became professional middleweight champion of the world.

In 1930, Mr. Larson took the Massachusetts, New England and national amateur championships. He beat Eduardo Piazzi, European middleweight champion, at Boston Garden that same year.

In 1932 he became a professional and won the New England light-heavyweight crown. After injuring his elbow in 1939, he gave up fighting but helped train younger boxers.

In June 1959, Mr. Larson acted as a sports reporter for the Patriot Ledger, covering the world heavyweight boxing championship match between his cousin, Ingemar Johansson of Sweden and Floyd Patterson.

Mr. Larson retired after 25 years as a shipfitter for Bethlehem Steel at the Fore River shipyard.

Mr. Larson was born in Gottenberg, Sweden and lived in Norway for about five years before coming to the United States.

He was a member of Viking Lodge in Braintree, and the Union Congregational Church of Weymouth and Braintree.

Surviving are his wife of 48 years, Marion E. (Satterlund) Larson; two sons, Roger R. Larson of Weymouth, a linebacker for Northeastern University from 1961-1965; and Russell R. Larson of Plymouth; a sister, Elsa Elmgate of Gottenberg, Sweden; four granddaughters and two nephews. He was the father of the late Ronald Larson.

Donations in Mr. Larson's memory may be made to the Music Department of Union Congregational Church of Weymouth and Braintree, 74 Commercial St., Braintree 02184.

Patrick J. 'P.J.' Connolly, 55 Boston Firefighter

A funeral Mass for Patrick J. "P.J." Connolly, 55, of Quincy, was celebrated July 5 at St. Boniface Church. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Connolly, a Boston firefighter for 23 years, died July 1 at University Hospital in Boston after a long illness.

Mr. Connolly was assigned to Engine 13 in Dorchester in 1966 and later served at stations in South Boston, the downtown area and the Back Bay. For most of his career he served with Ladder 18 in South Boston.

Mr. Connolly was promoted to aide to the district chief three years ago.

He was a member of the Firefighters Union Local 718 and was elected trustee of the Fireman's Relief Fund.

He was a member of the Firefighters Mutual Relief Association, the Society of St. Florian, the Boston Gaelic Fire Brigade and the Irish-American Association of South Boston.

Mr. Connolly was an Army veteran of the Korean War. Born in Boston, he attended Boston schools.

He is survived by his wife, Catherine M. (Doherty) Connolly; three sons, Patrick J. Connolly, Jr. of Whitman, and Michael Connolly and J. Robert Connolly, both of Quincy; five daughters, Cathleen Connolly, Maureen Connolly, Mary B. Connolly, Eileen Connolly and Lisa Connolly, all of Quincy; a brother, Joseph Connolly of Quincy, a lieutenant with the Boston Fire Department Ladder 19; and two sisters, Teresa Connolly and Mary Connolly, both of Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

John W. Murphy, 75 Former BHA Housing Manager

A funeral Mass for John W. Murphy, 75 of Quincy, formerly of Boston, was celebrated July 6 at St. John's Church.

Burial was in St. Patrick's Cemetery, Wareham.

Mr. Murphy, a former housing manager for the Boston Housing Authority for 35 years, died July 2 at Quincy Hospital after a brief illness.

He retired in 1976. Mr. Murphy was an Army veteran of World War II and a member of the Jamaica Plain American Legion Post.

Born in Boston, he had lived in Quincy for 13 years.

He is survived by his wife,

Frances M. (Walsh) Murphy; a son, Kenneth W. Murphy of Waltham; a daughter, Lorraine M. DiMauro of Holbrook; a brother, Frederick Murphy of Mattapan; a sister Esther Chassee of Rockland; a grandson, Paul W. Murphy of East Milton; and many nieces and nephews. He was the brother of the late Marie Cleary.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Memorial donations may be made to the Joslin Diabetes Center, 1 Joslin Place, Boston, 02115.

Leona F. Johnson, 97 Worked In Real Estate

A memorial service for Leona F. (Leavitt) Johnson, 97, of Quincy, was held Wednesday in Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Mrs. Johnson, who worked in real estate with Hannon Brothers, Arthur Curtis and Arnold Swinner Realtors, died June 10 in St. Petersburg, Fla.

She was a church soloist, piano teacher and accompanist for a weekly musical radio program in Portland, Me.

Mrs. Johnson was born in Portland ME and moved to Massachusetts in 1933. She had lived in Quincy for 30 years.

She is survived by a daughter, Avis J. Haskell of Quincy; a son Harold W. Johnson of El Paso, Texas and five grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made in her name to the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Mary A. Mahoney, 74

A funeral Mass for Mary A. (Reddington) Mahoney, 74 of Wollaston, was celebrated July 5 at St. Agatha's Church, Milton. Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Mrs. Mahoney died Sunday at St. John of God Hospital in Brighton after a long illness.

Mrs. Mahoney was born in Cambridge and lived in Boston before moving to Quincy 36 years ago. She retired in 1976 as a clerk typist at Quincy Hospital after working there 12 years.

Wife of the late John A. Mahoney, she is survived by a son, John V. Mahoney of Virginia; a daughter, Marilyn E. Kaes of Wollaston; and three grandchildren, Beth Ann Kaes, Timothy Brian Kaes and Melissa Kaes, all of Quincy.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

THE WARMTH AND NOSTALGIA of the "English country" look is easy to achieve, even within the limits of a small bedroom. A lace-trimmed, ruffled shower curtain with a double overdrap from Jackson, a CHF Company, sets the mood with its pastel-hued "Nosegay" pattern. Coordinated towels in white or ecru, embroidered with a bouquet plucked from the design, add a decorator touch, while the brass table and French-style chair enhance the elegant tone.

New vinyl tiles recreate folk art motifs and painted finishes for charming country floors

Painted decoration, in the form of faux finishes, stenciled borders and spongeware designs, is fueling the continued interest in the country look, one of the most popular interior design trends to hit the American home in decades.

These folk art motifs grace everything from lamp shades to country cupboards, wallcoverings to fine china. They are applied to furniture, walls and floors, by a burgeoning group of hobby enthusiasts who are learning the age-old techniques, and by smart home furnishings marketers who use advanced technology to recreate these painstaking crafts.

One such marketer is Tarkett Inc., a major manufacturer of vinyl flooring, that has used its patented printing processes to duplicate centuries-old stenciling and painting methods. The processes are featured in the new vinyl floor tile patterns now available in floor covering stores and home centers.

"Our process applies colors in layers, very similar to the way paint is applied by hand with a brush, sponge or feather," says Bruce Terwilliger, design director for vinyl floor tile at Tarkett. "Therefore, each tile has delicate surface characteristics of its own, just as hand painted tiles would."

"Country Geese" features geese silhouettes centered on each side of a 12-inch tile. A heart motif separates the facing geese; a satin ribbon border flows from a bow beneath the heart to surround the tile. A diagonal, broken-grid design with a scatter of stylized calico flowers fills the spongeware background.

"Country Geese" is available in three colors: Barn Grey with mauve; Hearth Clay with pastel green; and Berystain Blue with mauve. Each color features apricot geese, said Terwilliger.

"This introduction marks the first time Tarkett has included an animal motif in a flooring design," said Terwilliger, "but initial response has been very favorable."

"Faux Marble" features the popular marbling design technique that has been used on walls, floors and ceilings for centuries, said Terwilliger.

"The Tarkett marble pattern was created by an expert in faux finishes," he said. "With our printing process we can capture the delicate veining that the feathering creates."

A NEW ADDITION to the Tarkett Inc. Stylgo® vinyl floor tile collection, "Country Geese" features an early American folk art design of geese silhouettes, hearts and ribbons on a spongeware background. Patented Tarkett technology recreates centuries-old stenciling and painting methods in four popular color combinations.

"It's the next best thing to having an artist handpaint a floor," added Terwilliger.

The "Faux Marble" pattern features four marbled squares set diagonally on a marbled background. The pattern is available in three colors that each offer a distinctive look, said Terwilliger.

Victorian Grey features mauve blocks on an off-white background. Amber Beige offers a softened amber block with a brown veining on a neutral background. Solstice White is a traditional black and white combination of black marbled blocks on a white marbled background. A thin, softly colored line, similar to a grout line, joins each block to add a contemporary geometric element, noted Terwilliger.

The Tarkett Stylgo® line of 12-inch vinyl floor tiles features the Brite-Bond™ No-Wax Wearlayer for easy care. It also offers exceptional stain and scuff-resistance.

"Country Geese" and "Faux Marble" are available with a Sure-Stik® adhesive backing for an easy and permanent do-it-yourself installation or dry back for professional installation.

For more information about Stylgo, the complete line of Tarkett Inc. sheet vinyl and vinyl floor tile products, and the nearest retailer, consumers may call toll-free 1-800-FOR-TARKETT.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Customize your kitchen to suit your lifestyle with affordable accessories

It used to be that "a kitchen was a kitchen." It didn't matter whether your household was large or small, young or old, "stay at home" or not. Whomever you were, however you lived, you used your kitchen to store, prepare and (possibly) eat food. Period.

Varying tastes, income levels and cultural influences affect what's important to different people. Today, thanks to readily available and affordable stock cabinetry and "customizing" accessories, average homeowners now can create kitchens suited to their own needs.

"One reason for all this accessorizing is technology," according to Greg Wolf, director of product planning at Merillat Industries, Inc., the nation's largest manufacturer of cabinetry for the kitchen, bath and home.

"Back in the 1950s, people didn't own microwave ovens, food processors and electric yogurt makers, so they didn't need microwave cabinets and appliance garages to store such technological marvels. But appliances like these are pretty routine now, with more and more entering the market all the time.

"Consumers don't want to give up the convenience of the appliances, but they don't want their kitchens cluttered with 'machines' either. Accessories help solve that problem," Wolf says.

Form and function

Some accessories are purely functional—microwave cabinets, adjustable tray units and "lazy susan" revolving shelves, for example—while others give people more choice in "the look" of their kitchens, such as decorative dishwasher panels and stained glass cabinet doors.

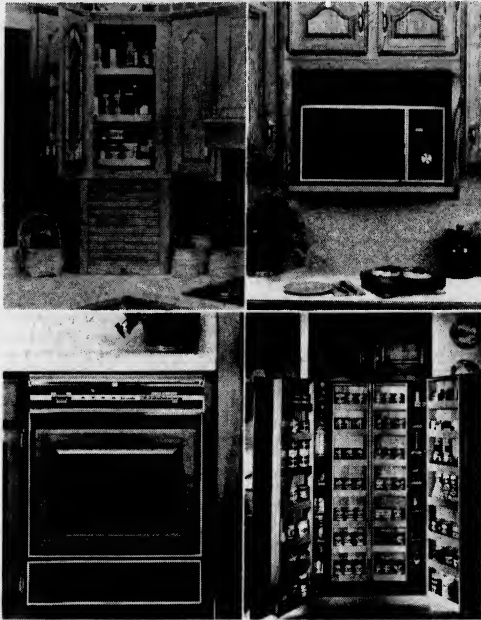

The following examples illustrate how three "typical" households could customize their kitchens affordably using stock cabinetry and accessories:

• Two-income "couples" with two children: An architect, he works 60-hour weeks; she is a part-time investment consultant, in addition to devoting after-school hours to "being mom."

The item highest on their kitchen "wish list" for the dream home he designed was plenty of storage space to accommodate their time-saving "once-a-week supermarket runs."

What works is a 36-inch-wide pantry unit with adjustable shelves and swinging storage-unit doors. The adjustable shelves accommodate even king-size cereal boxes easily, and the vinyl-laminated interior means that peanut-butter-and-jelly "accidents" aren't disasters. An 18-inch-high wall cabinet sits above the pantry, keeping cleaning materials beyond the children's reach.

• An "empty-nester" couple, whose youngest child just finished college and moved out of state: Both husband and wife enjoy cooking and entertaining, so the small kitchen in their new town house has to accommodate this lifestyle.

They "custom designed" the kitchen with easy-maintenance stock cabinets, two equipped with base-cabinet pull-out trays, a combination range hood/spice rack, a diagonal appliance garage for their food processor and a combined pull-out cutting board/cutlery drawer.

A roll-top desk and modular shelving system, available from the manufacturer in the same finish as the cabinets, creates an "office" for drawing up shopping lists, writing invitations, and displaying cookbooks and decorative serving pieces.

• A 76-year-old widow who lives independently in a small condominium: A microwave shelf provides a stable surface for the microwave oven her grandchildren gave her, yet uses none of the limited counter space.

A lazy susan corner cabinet and base cabinets with pull-out trays give her "no strain," easy access to food staples, and pots and pans.

"The possibilities for personalizing a kitchen with stock cabinetry and accessories are virtually limitless," Wolf emphasizes, "as well as affordable."

At Marina Bay

The Seaport Features One, Two Bedroom Homes

More than 300 people attended the recent public unveiling of the Seaport, the latest phase of residential development of Marina Bay consisting of one and two-bedroom homes.

20 of the units were sold. They range in price from $114,000 to $264,000.

Marketed by the Codman Company, the Seaport at Marina Bay is a six-story building consisting of 125 homes with a classical architectural style borrowed from the 18th century.

Other residential properties located at Marina Bay include Marina Point East and West, luxury high-rise condominiums offering 240 one and two bedroom units, and the 101 quaint, Nantucket-styled, multi-level townhouses.

Views of the city skyline, the Boston Harbor or the Blue Hills can be seen from any of Marina Bay's residential vantages.

Located on 440 acres, the seaside community offers its residents an assortment of specialty shops, boutiques and fine dining. In addition, a diversity of prime commercial space including both office and retail space at Marina Bay's Corporate Park give many of the residents the opportunity to work and play at Marina Bay.

The Marina Bay yacht basin is the largest full service marina on the northeast coast with a total of 675 slips and the capacity to accommodate boats up to 120 feet in length.

For more information on The Seaport or any of the residential properties located at Marina Bay call the Marina Bay Sales Center at 617-479-5600.

Mid-Year Residential Real Estate Outlook Encouraging

Although high interest rates slowed overall home sales during the first half of 1989, officials of Century 21 Real Estate Corporation expect the second half of the year to be strong and healthy for the residential real estate market.

"We had interest rates rise up to about 11 1/2 percent in the first quarter of the year," said Richard J. Loughlin, president and chief executive officer of Century 21 Real Estate Corporation. "Now rates have softened up quite a bit, and we're finding interest rates at 10 1/4, 10 1/2, in some cases, even under 10 percent."

"We fully expect the market to stay strong and to have the continual appreciation of property exceed that of inflation," continued Loughlin. "So it looks to me like it'll be a good healthy year this year."

Loughlin said the Federal Reserve Board (FRB) is continuing to try to move interest rates back down.

"They've (FRB) been able to slow down the economy sufficiently to reduce the risk of greater inflation, and that's good for our business. We expect interest rates throughout 1990 probably will run somewhere between the 9 1/2 and 11 percent range on fixed rate mortgages."

Despite the media's dire predictions for first-time home-buyers, fully one-third of Century 21 sales are to first-time buyers, he said.

"I think it's a little more difficult today for people to qualify for the average-priced home, but there's still a home out there for first-time buyers," said Loughlin. "If they have a reasonable income, and if they can save to make that down payment, yes, there's a good opportunity for them in almost every marketplace."

"It's interesting that today, when people are buying their first home, they're buying a lot more home than the first-time buyer got 10 or 20 years ago. And we believe it will continue to be that way."

Potential home buyers, who have shied away from the real estate market due to the predicted housing price collapse of 1989, had better reconsider their position, according to Loughlin.

"There are always a few people who predict doom and gloom for the housing market," said Loughlin.

"Perhaps they're trying to build a reputation for themselves. But history has proven them wrong every single time. We expect the decade of the Nineties to be a very strong, healthy, growing real estate market."

"We see nothing ahead that is going to take away from property values. I'd strongly suggest that if people are contemplating getting into their first home that they do it today, because the market looks very, very strong," concluded Loughlin.

Century 21 Real Estate Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, is headquartered in Irvine, Calif., and is the largest real estate organization in the world, with more than 7,000 independently owned and operated offices.

Collectively, an estimated $60 billion worth of real estate was sold last year through the Century 21 system.

CURIOSITY SEEKERS

QUESTION: I'm trying to sell my house on my own and I'm being swamped with "curiosity seekers." How do you limit these intruders?

ANSWER: Curiosity seekers are one of the plagues which the do-it-yourself broker has to contend with. It's not only an inconvenience, but it could be a risk to open the door, day and night, to all who knock. The best solution is to place your home in the hands of a local REALTOR. He'll weed out curiosity seekers from prospects at his office, visit you only by appointment, and will always accompany prospects. On top of that, you'll probably end up with more money than selling it on your own.

Quincy Wins 3 In Row

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy Legion baseball team got off to a slow start this season, but has been playing excellent ball of late.

Following a tough 9-8 loss to Milton, Quincy has won its last three games to improve to 6-7 (it will be four in a row and a 7-7 mark if the team is awarded a forfeit over Carter Post, which failed to show for a recent game).

Monday night's game with Mass Tire was rained out. Last Friday, Quincy edged Canton, 6-5, in eight innings, with Rich Burns, who has been pitching well, going 7 1/3 innings of relief for the victory.

Quincy will host undefeated Braintree Saturday night at 8 o'clock at Adams Field and will be at Milton Monday at 6 o'clock.

Nick Dragone, who has been one of the top batters in Zone 6, went 2-for-3 and walked twice and Jim Kearns had a hit and walked three times.

The previous game with Wollaston was rained out in the first inning.

After the tough loss to Milton, Quincy defeated Holbrook, 8-5, thanks to some clutch pitching by Peter McLoughlin and timely hitting.

Quincy clinched the game with a five-run fifth inning. Quincy trailed, 4-3, after four innings, but a double by Dragone, a triple by Paul McLellan, walks to Chris Beatrice and Wayne McCulley and a bases-clearing triple by Kearns highlighted the big fifth inning.

The 16-year-old Burns caught in this game and did an excellent job in place of the injured Mike Toland.

Quincy then blanked Randolph, 5-0, behind the three-hit pitching of Burns, who struck out eight.

Barry Glynn started his first game catching and threw out two runners and blocked a runner at the plate on an attempted suicide squeeze to end what might have been a big lift for Randolph. McLellan paced the offense as he went 3-for-3 with two RBI and two runs scored and he stole two bases.

Quincy was six for six stealing.

"I know every coach says this, but our record is not indicative of how well this team has been playing," said coach Ed Spring. "There have been only three of 13 games that we have not been in. We seem to play six good innings, then something happens. I am generally pleased with the way we have played and I know Dick (coach Dick Laracy) is, as well."

Carter Post claimed a schedule error was made when printing its programs, giving that as the reason for not showing up to face Quincy.

"Obviously they were not prepared to play, but this has no bearing as Quincy was the home team and we were ready to play," said Spring. "I feel we will be given a forfeit win."

CHRIS HIGGINS was the starting pitcher for Wollaston Legion last week against Quincy, but the game was rained out in the first inning.

Quincy, North Final Suburban Season

Quincy and North Quincy's final season in the Suburban League will get underway Friday night, Sept. 15, when Quincy's football team hosts Cambridge Rindge and Latin, and Saturday, the 16th, when North plays at Milton.

The two schools will move into the revamped Old Colony League in the fall of 1990.

The two football teams will play their home schedules as a year ago.

Quincy will meet league rivals Cambridge, Waltham, Newton North, Brookline and North Quincy, Greater Boston League Peabody, Malden and Revere, future

Old Colony League rival Weymouth-North, and Weymouth South, which will be moving to the South Shore League.

North will face league rivals Cambridge, Newton North, Brookline, Waltham and Quincy, Greater Boston League Revere and Medford, future Old Colony League rival Silver Lake, Milton of the Bay State League and Weymouth South.

Under a new proposal to realign several leagues, Quincy and North Quincy will join the revamped Old Colony League as part of a new Pilgrim Conference.

Quincy and North will join

Plymouth, Silver Lake, Barnstable, Taunton, Falmouth, Weymouth North and Bridgewater-Raynham.

This will mean Quincy and North will have only one non-league to round out their schedules. The Thanksgiving Quincy-North Quincy game will continue.

The league realignments are necessary because of the wide difference in school enrollments in the current leagues. North Quincy will be the smallest school in the league while Quincy will be number five in enrollment. However, Quincy's enrollment includes the Vo-Tech School.

Morrisette Rebounds To Shell Dorchester

The Morrisette Legion baseball team bounced back from its second loss to jinx rival Milton to bomb Carter Post of Dorchester, 11-0, last Friday to improve to 9-3 and stay in second place in Zone 6.

Morrisette's game at Randolph Monday was rained out.

Morrisette played at Canton last night, will host Quincy Friday night at 8:30 at Adams Field and will be home to Holbrook Monday night at 8:30 at Adams.

Morrisette led undefeated Braintree, 3-1, last week with ace Erick DeBoer pitching, but, rain halted the game in the third inning.

Billy Warren and Gary Rawdon shared the pitching against Carter Post with Warren getting the win to improve to 2-0.

Morrisette had only seven hits but five were for extra bases highlighted by Bob Cinquegrano's 350-foot home run, the team's only home run this year.

Billy MacDougall, Ron Boudreau and Mike Baylis had triples, Tony Anderson had an RBI double and Dan Ryan, Jim Glynn and Warren all drove in runs. Baylis had three triples in two wins over Carter.

Morrisette's defense fell apart as it lost its fourth straight game to Milton, including two playoff games last season. Milton romped, 8-0, as it took advantage of six Morrisette errors and several mental errors. Morrisette was held to three hits.

Kevin MacDouglass was the losing pitcher, dropping to 2-1, and Warren took over in the sixth inning.

Wollaston Breezes

The Wollaston Legion baseball team rolled over Carter Post of Dorchester, 13-3, last Saturday, improving its record to 8-4 and continuing on the road to a Zone 6 playoff spot.

Wollaston faced Milton last night, will host Mass. Track Sunday at Adams Field with the finish of a suspended game at 8, followed by a regularly scheduled game, will be at Canton Monday at 6, will host Quincy Tuesday night at 8:30 at Adams Field and will play at Braintree next Tuesday night at 8.

Dave Hutchings was the starter and winner against Carter Post, pitching four innings. Tom Roberts pitched two innings and Chad McMahon one.

Mike Noonan had a big night, going 4-for-4, while Bill Bellew and Scott Logan each were 2-for-4.

In its previous game Wollaston bombed Holbrook, 15-2, with Chris Higgins the winner, improving his record to 4-1. He went four innings with Roberts pitching two innings and McMahon one.

Logan and Bellew each had three hits and Fred Regan and Chris Noble two each.

Monday night's scheduled game with Braintree was rained out and last week the game with Quincy was rained out in the first inning. Higgins was the starting pitcher in that game.

Prizes and awards were presented by Tournament Chairman Brian Buckley.

Sullivan Team Wins Broom Classic

The Beacons, captained by Barry Sullivan, formerly of Quincy, won the eighth annual Broom Classic at Presidents' Golf Course with an 11 under par 59.

Sullivan along with teammates Charlie Bergeron of Quincy, Dave Robinson of Hanover and Mike Conlon of Quincy were two shots better than the nearest competitors, the Barrels, who were nine under.

The Barrels, captained by Don Smith, formerly of Quincy, and John Franceschini, Paul Radzik and Rick Brown all of Quincy were 6 under par on the back nine to secure second place.

250 Expected For Harvey's Vet's Day

Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club members are expecting some 250 hospitalized veterans, their nurses and attendants to show up on Tuesday, July 18, at 8:30 a.m. for their annual Vets' Day fishing outing.

The Lobster Fishermen's Association under Tom Morrell, along with many private owners, will provide large boats to convey veterans to the fishing grounds from Hurley's Boatyard and the Quincy Yacht Club pier.

Men will return about 2 p.m. for a catered dinner at Quincy Yacht Club, where awarding of prizes and entertainment will follow the meal. The Pilgrim Chapter of Telephone Pioneers are donating caps for all the veterans. Fish caught will be filleted and sent back to the hospitals when they return, along with floral decorations at the hall.

Robert Allan, president of Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club is chairman for Vets' Day. Veterans expected from the Bedford, Brockton and West Roxbury VA Hospitals and the Chelsea Soldiers Home will be greeted by members of the Salvation Army.

Softball Camp Requirements Changed

Recreation Director Barry Welch, announces that the Quincy Recreation Department Instructional Softball Camp has changed its age requirements to age 8 - 14.
 The camp will be run July 24 - 28 at McCoy and Mitchell Field and is under the direction of Joanne Ruane, head coach of softball at Regis College.
 This is one of 14 self-supporting programs conducted by the Quincy Recreation Department during the summer of 1989. This is the first time softball has been offered in the seven years of self-supporting camps.

 The softball program will focus on improvements of each participant's existing fundamental skills. Instruction will be provided in all aspects of the game: hitting, fielding, base-running and pitching, as well as developing more advanced strategies for offense and defense.

individual and small group instruction with drills to enhance skills for team play. Scrimmage opportunities will be provided each day for application of skills and strategies.

Time is 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The cost is $25.
 Registration is on a first come, first serve basis and can be done at the Quincy Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, 8:30 to 4:30 daily.

Marnikovic Sharp In Bryan Win Over Morrisette

Joe Marnikovic pitched a perfect game for six innings as Bryan Post VFW defeated Morrisette, 9-2, to improve to 13-4 in the Babe Ruth League.

Morrisette broke it up in the last inning on singles by Tom Ridge, Sean Connelly and Mike Burke.

Marnikovic, given excellent support anchored by shortstop Rob Kane, struck out seven.

Bryan exploded for seven runs in the first inning highlighted by Kane's double, hits by Steve Loud and Michael Malvesti and a triple by Marnikovic. Bryan's other hits were singles by Kane, Mark Kelleher, Tom Nutley, Malvesti and Marnikovic.

Philip Bell, Jeff Breslin, Todd Portesi, Sean Skahan, Terry Sheehan and Bill Morrissey all contributed to the win.

Ridge pitched well for Morrisette, striking out nine.

Bryan also defeated the Police Club, 6-4, with Malvesti and Loud combining on a five-hitter and striking out eight. Lam Higgins pitched well for Police with eight strikeouts.

Bryan started with three runs in the first on a booming triple by Kelleher and singles by Nutley and Marnikovic.

Police countered with two in the second on Marc Swirbalus' single and a double by Noel DiBona. A fine play by second baseman George Wirtz prevented further damage.

Bryan increased its lead to 4-2 in the second on Malvesti's RBI hit and made it 6-2 in the fourth on Nutley's double and Kelleher's single.

Police scored a run in the fifth on Brian Doherty's RBI hit and had the bases loaded when Loud relieved Malvesti to end the threat thanks to another fine play by Wirtz.

Police added its final run in the seventh on hits by Chris Cunio and DiBona. With the tying runs on base, Loud struck out two and Paul Murphy made a fine play in right field to end the threat and the game.

Storyteller In Concert At Main Library July 18

Well-known area storyteller Li Min Mo will appear in concert at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Sq. Tuesday, July 18 at 7 p.m.

The program, funded by a federal grant, is for children age five and older and for adults.

Mo is a familiar figure in Quincy having told stories at the library before and given workshops in the Quincy public schools. She has also appeared in Boston's First Night Celebration, as well as at art festivals, museums, colleges and universities throughout New England.

LI MIN MO

Born in China, Mo lived in many places throughout the world before settling in the United States. Her repertoire is very international and highlights tales from China, Japan, Korea and other Asian countries.

Many of her stories are family stories passed down from generation to generation. Her mother, a great-grandmother, uncles and aunts are sources for the rich body of stories she shares with her audiences.

The library's summer storytelling series continue on July 25 with Jennifer Justice, Aug. 1 with Elisa Pearman, Aug. 8 with Doug Lipman and Aug. 15 with Judith O'Hare and the You and Me Puppets.

Quincy Choral Society Offering Vocal Workshop

The Quincy Choral Society is offering a series of vocal workshops for members and non-members.

Topics to be covered include vocal production, diction, sight reading, dynamics, phrasing and expression. The repertoire will include works by Bach, Handel, Haydn, Mozart, Faure and Bizet.

The workshops are: Thursday, July 27, "How to Handel a Running Line," the Baroque Style of Choral Singing.

Thursday, August 3, "Know When Your Vibrato Should be Haydn," the Classical Style of Choral Singing.

Thursday, August 10, "A Faure Into Romantic Music."

All workshops will be held from 8 to 9:30 p.m. at East Congregational Church, 610 Adams St., Milton, in Fellowship Hall.

The cost is $3 per workshop for members and $5 for non-members and pre-registration is required.

For registration or further information, call Martha McMahon, at 439-4100.

Sally Tobin Re-elected Photography Club President

Sally Tobin of Wollaston was elected for the 14th consecutive year as President of the Happy Recreation and Photography Club of Quincy at the annual business meeting held recently at Ridder's Country Club in Whitman.

Also elected were Joseph

Weger, vice-president; Mary Donnell, treasurer; Fran Collenborg, secretary; Mary Hinkley, Annette Suk and Annie Elias, directors.

Entertainment following lunch and the business meeting were provided by the Rev. Bob Ryder and his Parsons Plunkers.

A Review

'Great Balls Of Fire' Burns Too Quickly

"Great Balls Of Fire" Starring Dennis Quaid and Winona Ryder Directed by Jim McBride Now Playing at Entertainment Cinemas, Quincy Fair Mall

By JANE ARENA

If ever a rock star's life were ready-made for the silver screen, it's the life of Jerry Lee Lewis. Too bad "Great Balls Of Fire" was made too soon.

Because he's still alive and actively performing, any telling of his life story can't help but be incomplete. What's unforgivable though, is that "Great Balls Of Fire" is an incomplete telling of a portion of his life that is already history. In the end there are too many questions left unanswered and too many interesting avenues left unexplored.

Based on the book by Myra Lewis, the 13-year old cousin bride of Jerry Lee Lewis, the film aims to be part love story and part docu-drama about their marriage and the subsequent fall of his rock and roll career. Ultimately it fails in both attempts.

As a love story, it is unconvincing. We never see the metamorphosis of the affair. One minute they go out for an ice cream and the next minute they end up in a quickie-wedding chapel.

If the film is meant to exonerate Jerry Lee Lewis for the act of marrying his child bride, it doesn't do it very well. "Great Balls Of Fire" depicts Myra as the 13-year old teeny bopper she was: a bubble-gum-chewing, pony-tailed little girl who is just as crazy over Jerry Lee as her school friends are, even though he happens to be her second cousin and he happens to be living in her house.

In the course of the film we see her forced to grow up too soon, her innocence ripped from her without her really understanding. There's a scene after they're married where she is made to look exactly like a little girl playing dress-up and we feel sorry for her. She looks ridiculous. And, the marriage scene itself seems more a kidnapping than courtship.

When the fickle public gets wind of the marriage, and we see Jerry Lee's fans turn on him, it doesn't seem fair, but we are not made to feel sorry for him. When his hits fall from the charts as quickly as he falls from favor, it's frustrating but not surprising. We don't have time to be upset.

The problem with "Great Balls Of Fire" is that it moves too quickly. Nothing ever develops, it all just happens.

This, though, is likely the film's intent. And, under different circumstances it might have been an asset.

The 1950's rock and roll was a dizzying world, where the gateway to stardom was a revolving door and the "next big thing" was always just around the corner.

Jerry Lee's is the classic rock and roll odyssey: he rose fast and far and fell with a bang. And it all just seemed to happen.

In the film, most of the action is set against the rhythm of the soundtrack. Jerry Lee sells his songs, sings his songs, climbs the charts, hits it big, tours the world, and falls from grace all to the three-four beat of the music. In the end, the audience is left (as the song says) breathless.

But try to mix all this with a love story and it backfires. We want to know more, we want to see more, but there just isn't time.

The film also hints at other angles of Jerry Lee's life and never quite delivers. The good-bad contrast with his other famous cousin, Jimmy Swaggart, might have been played up more. And the rivalry between Jerry Lee and Elvis Presley could have been a movie in itself.

"Great Balls Of Fire" packs enough raw material for a mini-series into two hours. And, although the movie isn't all that bad, anyone interested in the whole story would do better to buy the book.

Abortion Topic For 'Taking Sides' On Ch. 3

How should the Commonwealth of Massachusetts respond to the recent Supreme Court decision on the Webster case, which gives states more power to regulate abortions?

That will be the topic on the next "Taking Sides" cable television show Tuesday, July 18 on Channel 3 from 7 to 7:30 p.m.

Co-hosts Rob Selwitz and Joe Kaplan and guests will debate one of our nation's most controversial issues.

Nancy Sutton, Massachusetts representative of Concerned Women for America and chairwoman of the Family First Coalition, will represent the "Pro-Life" side.

State Rep. Marjorie Clapprood (D-Sharon), a leading proponent of abortion rights in the state legislature, will represent the "Pro-Choice" side.

The live show will air in Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

misinterpreted that as a pro-tax rate.

"But those who know me and my pledge know I couldn't be supporting a pro-tax vote. There had to be more to it. These were inconsequential, procedural votes which the speaker had already won.

"I was putting my vote to the best possible use given that my votes couldn't have stopped the tax package. I did the next best thing."

Tobin also noted that the House debated the tax plan for more than 14 hours, from Thursday afternoon to early Friday morning.

"There were grumblings in the Chamber. It was quite evident to me that the speaker and the leadership were going to link the support for the tax package to the support for the MWRA headquarters," Tobin said.

Commenting on Anderson's criticism, Tobin said, "Barbara Anderson is angry because she's a well-paid lobbyist. She waged a very good fight but lost.

"When it comes to taxes, her philosophy and mine are really identical. We're on the same side."

However, Anderson perceived Tobin's courtesy vote as a flip-flop on the tax constituents. As such, Tobin said Anderson is using him as a scapegoat.

"I'm dismayed at Barbara Anderson. I'm the scapegoat now that we're going to get new taxes. I did what I thought was best for my district. The MWRA is a critical issue for me.

"So long as I voted no on the main question for next taxes, I did not vote for a tax increase. I did what I thought was in the best interest of my constituents. The headquarters issue is not important to Barbara Anderson. She lives in Cambridge.

"But it's important to me and I tried to save it. And that's all I did.

"I did nothing wrong."

As for the fallout from his votes, Tobin said he regrets what has happened.

"Could I have done things differently? Yes. I tried to think about two major bills and solve them both. And I was misperceived.

"I didn't anticipate it. And I find it regrettable.

"Would I do it over again differently? Yes I would. No because I'm afraid of criticism for no one should enter public office and not expect some form of criticism at some time, but because it was my first tax package vote and I didn't appreciate the need to be symbolic on all my votes," Tobin said.

McDuff Urges Taxpayer PAC Here

School Committee candidate John McDuff has urged a group of supporters to work for the formation of a Taxpayers Political Action Committee (T-PAC) in Quincy to elect candidates opposed to an override of Proposition 2½ and to what he termed 'unnecessary' tax increases.

McDuff said: "Large tax increases are already certain on the state level to pay for the mismanagement on Beacon Hill. We also read of plans to weaken Prop. 2½ by allowing city councils to override rather than leaving it up to the voters. Now we see a coalition of local police and teachers forming a PAC to promote and fund the candidacies of those who will side with them on increased taxation and spending on education.

"If this small but vocal band gets its way we'll all be in the poorhouse. We need a Taxpayers PAC to offset their propaganda, and we need it now.

"They will no doubt try to portray those who oppose them as selfish anti-education cheapskates, but Quincy now spends $38 million a year on education. That is not cheap, and we are not anti-education. We are pro-taxpayer and pro-freedom.

"The socialist liberal agenda for America calls for control of every aspect of our lives. To accomplish this they need unlimited access to our earnings.

"If they can take all we have and dole it out as they, in their wisdom, see fit, they will control us 100 percent."

"I hope people can see how this is being pushed on the local level and take steps to fight it. Don't let them fool you.

"Ask these people if any of them favor 2½. You'll find they never did.

"In a free society they have the right to set up their PAC. We should do the same, and the sooner the better."

Patrick Faherty Writes Top Report On Hazardous Materials Awareness

Patrick Faherty of 1 Trevore St. Quincy, a student at North Quincy High School, has been selected as the student who wrote the best report on the recent Hazardous Materials/Title III Awareness program.

Faherty was one of 27 students from Quincy High School, North Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational-Technical High who represented city councilors at the program held recently in Swansea, MA.

Faherty, who represented Council President Patricia Toland, will receive $100 for writing the best report.

Civil Defense Director Anthony Siciliano, who accompanied the students, said all the reports were excellent and the decision to pick a winner was difficult.

Siciliano called Faherty's report "well thought out and quite detailed and informative."

"This indicates (Faherty) learned a great deal by attending the program," he said.

Of the original 27 students who were scheduled to participate in the program, 21 attended and 14 turned in reports.

School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci thanked Faherty for "representing Mrs. Patricia Toland, president of the City Council, and North Quincy High School, in such an impressive manner."

The program was set up to give students an opportunity to receive first-hand information on how to better understand a hazardous material incident if one should occur in the community.

"Emergency preparedness planning for a city the size of Quincy is crucial in the event of an accident involving hazardous chemicals," Siciliano said.

The conference featured several guest speakers, including Robert Boulay, director of the Mass. Civil Defense Agency, Douglas Forbes, senior director of planning for the Mass. Fire Defense Association, Stephen Coan, director of the Mass. Fire Academy, James Hall of the Federal Emergency Management Agency and Arnold Saperstein of the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

The topics ranged from legal issues, historical perspectives, comprehensive emergency management and the concept of emergency management.

Set up by Boulay and Thomas Rodger, Area II director of the MCDA, the workshop was attended by various public and industrial officials.

After listening to the speakers, Faherty realized that "not only must the city of Quincy have an (emergency) plan, but the community must be aware of it."

In his report, Faherty outlined the important aspects of the conference while highlighting several key points, including the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act (SARA) the definition of hazardous materials or chemicals and the dangers of these materials.

Faherty noted that in 1986, Congress passed the Emergency Planning and Community Right to Know Act as Title III of SARA.

"In doing this, (Congress) began to deal with hazardous materials, chemical spills, fire and explosions," he said. Quoting Boulay, Faherty added, "we have to get ready" and "we have been pretty lucky so far."

A hazardous material is a chemical or substance which can be both helpful and harmful to human health and the environment. These substances are used in industry, agriculture, medicine and consumer goods.

They present a hazard when released uncontrollably into the environment—air, water or ground.

Among the dangers of hazardous chemicals Faherty and the others learned are:

- The release of toxic gases may cause immediate death or disablement if inhaled.

- Water resources, if contaminated, are unsafe and unusable.

- Hazardous materials in the environment may cause debilitation, disease or birth defects over a long period of time.

- Loss of livestock may lead to economic hardships within a community and to food shortages in communities supplied by the affected areas.

- How the loss of wildlife would affect a particular area is unknown.

Faherty and the others were reminded of the toxic chemical spills and fires, including the chlorine plant blaze in Springfield which forced 30,000 to evacuate.

In conclusion, Faherty wrote, "This workshop enabled me to look closer at the dangers of a hazardous material spill, how one can be avoided, and what the MCDA is doing to prevent incidents and deal with them better."

Faherty ended his report again quoting Boulay: "Don't be caught without a plan."

Vacation Travel Tips

You are probably more vulnerable to theft, robbery or even assault while you are traveling away from home than you'd like to think... You can, however, substantially reduce your chances of becoming a crime victim while traveling by taking a few sensible precautions, such as those listed below.

- Before starting your trip estimate your expenses and purchase and carry sufficient travelers checks. NEVER carry large amounts of cash. Most stores, restaurants and motels take travelers checks. If you lose your travelers checks they can be replaced, cash cannot. Record travelers check numbers and keep them in a safe place.

- Carry credit cards. Record their numbers and leave that record in a safe place, apart from your luggage and/or with someone you can easily contact. You will need these numbers to report loss or theft and to have the cards replaced.

- Leave unnecessary valuable items at home, preferably in a safe deposit box. Make sure your suitcases are permanently identified with your name and address, and that they have good locking devices. Check your homeowners insurance to determine what coverage it provides while you are traveling or staying in a hotel or motel.

- If you are traveling by automobile, empty the trunk of unnecessary items. Never leave anything of value in the car unless it is stored in the locked trunk or covered storage well. If you turn your car over to a parking attendant or service station, leave only the ignition key, never leave the trunk key or house keys. Make sure that your house keys do not have your name and address on them.

- Portable CB radios and other items should be removed from the passenger compartment and put in the locked trunk whenever you stay for any length of time and the car is out of your sight.

Youngsters Hop To Raise $1,461 For Easter Seals

Youngsters from the Atherton Hough School and Virginia's Day Care Center in Quincy hoped to help people with disabilities, raising over $1,075 and $386, respectively, in an Easter Seal HOP-N-ING.

The children spent the previous week learning about disabilities - what causes them, how disabilities affect people's everyday lives, the equipment used to cope. After that, they were ready to help.

Each child secured pledges from family and friends for every hop performed during a three-minute HOP-N-ING.

The funds raised help provide Easter Seal services for men, women and children with disabilities.

Easter Seal services include: summer camp, therapeutic swim programs, home health care, physical and occupational therapy, speech therapy, equipment loan, support groups for people recovering from strokes and information and referral services.

Last year, more than 8,000 children across Massachusetts learned about disabilities and hoped for Easter Seals, raising $170,000. The HOP-N-ING is sponsored by Zayne.

Silvana Couto Awarded NU Scholarship

Silvana Couto of Quincy has been awarded a Medical Laboratory Science Faculty Scholarship Award from Northeastern University.

The daughter of Robert Bagu and Ana Maria Bugo, she is a 1985 graduate of

A student in Northeastern's College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Professions Pharmacy Program, she was selected for her high scholastic achievement and high personal qualities.

Braintree Committee Says Clean Harbors' Report Understates Risks

The Braintree committee reviewing the hazardous waste incinerator that Clean Harbors, Inc. has proposed for the town said Monday that significant health and air quality impacts may result from the project, both in Braintree and surrounding communities.

The Braintree Local Assessment Committee, established to represent the community's interests under the state's hazardous waste facility siting law, strongly criticized both the content and the "orchestration" of the Draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR) issued recently by Clean Harbors, which wants to build a rotary kiln incinerator to burn 45,000 tons of hazardous wastes yearly in a densely-developed area that is only 700 feet from a residential neighborhood.

Noting that the committee is requesting an extension of the July 27 deadline for its comments on the 6,000+ page document, Braintree Selectman and Committee Vice-Chair Frank Toland said: "We object both to the EIR's serious factual omissions regarding health and safety issues and the way that Clean Harbors tried to steamroller public opinion by widely releasing the report to the media and others before we received it."

The committee was particularly critical of the baseline health survey of Braintree, Quincy and Weymouth. Arthur Armstrong, chairman of the Board of Health and a LAC member, said "Virtually every state agency and other reviewer of Clean Harbors' baseline health report has questioned its validity because the response rate was soabysmal: only 35% — and perhaps less — while at least 70% is needed to assure the sample is representative."

Saying that "the survey form was so flawed that the results are worthless," Armstrong specifically emphasized that:

- it didn't question the long-term biological outcomes of women and reproductive health histories of men and women in the area

- as the state Department of Public Health pointed out, the results may not be representative of environmentally sensitive subgroups such as the elderly, since the percentage of elderly answering the survey was less than those actually living nearby and because those living in group residences such as nursing homes weren't identified (there is a major elderly housing project, 1000 Southern Artery, 1/2 mile away from the site, and other high concentrations of elderly nearby).

Public safety officials are also very worried about the ability to respond to major accidents at the facility.

"The EIR does not adequately look at the problems associated with siting in the area," said Fire Captain John Grandy. "Our ability to evacuate people from the surrounding neighborhoods is not evaluated, and may be a serious problem. The question is not only whether Clean Harbors has a plan to respond to accidents, but whether the plan will work. And, if multiple accidents were to occur simultaneously in this congested area, it would be a total disaster."

LAC Chairwoman and Braintree Selectwoman Marge Crispin also attacked the study for its failure to consider the cumulative impact of the air emissions from the Clean Harbors project with the proposed MWRA sludge treatment facility, the proposed construction of a 300 Mw power plant at Boston Edison's Edgar Station, and possible resumption of boat building at the Fore River yards. "Everyone knows that these facilities are likely to be built and that their emissions will combine with ones from the Cigo tanks, The Procter and Gamble plant and other facilities. Clean Harbors may want to ignore them, but those who will have to breathe all those emissions can't, and the EIR can't either."

Crispin said the LAC, its consultants and various state agencies have also found serious methodological flaws in other aspects of the report, and will make them public in coming weeks. At the same time, she said, the LAC is at a serious disadvantage by only having 60 days to completely analyze such a massive document and respond to it.

In addition to criticizing the content and execution of the EIR, Crispin said that the Local Assessment Committee was concerned with Clean Harbors' attempts to manipulate the EIR review process by leaking the draft report to the media and other groups before the LAC received its copies.

"Clean Harbors' slick p.r. operation tried to minimize the very real risks to Braintree, Quincy, Weymouth and adjacent communities by getting favorable media coverage before we even had copies. While it wasn't illegal, their actions certainly weren't in the spirit of the siting process and we hope that the media and public will give Clean Harbors' claims the rigorous analysis they deserve. The health and economy of our community are at stake, and the questions we have raised must be fully explored."

successful, it would then move to the Senate where another close vote is expected. According to Paul Harold, the drafter of the bill, he is one vote shy of the required two-thirds.

However, even if the override attempt fails, the local lawmakers are confident they can win the headquarters battle in court.

Besides the favorable court ruling, Attorney General James Shannon has also sided with Quincy, saying the authority's bidding process was flawed.

"It appears we'll still have the votes but even if the override fails, we'll still go to court. We feel very, very confident that we will win out, one way or the other," Rep. Robert Cerasoli said.

"Ideally, the court is going to be the final arbitrator of the dispute. If the bill passes, the ball game is over. But if it doesn't, we are going to court," Morrissey said.

"We're in the fight of our lives and we have a chance to override the governor's veto, the first time in many years."

"If we don't win, we still have the backup of the courts. We're all pretty confident they'll rule in our favor," he added.

Morrissey and Cerasoli agreed it is uncertain if Keverian will lobby on behalf of the Roxbury site. The Roxbury delegation sided with the speaker's tax plan last week.

The officials also believe the tax plan and the MWRA siting bill should not be linked.

"Those issues shouldn't be combined with the tax issue. My stand to vote no on taxes was the right stand. It has nothing to do with the headquarters," Cerasoli said.

Asked if Keverian will lobby for Roxbury, Cerasoli replied, "He's never been involved in the issue up to this point. I don't know what his position will be."

"To me, it doesn't make any difference because I'm going to continue to vote against new taxes. One has nothing to do with the other. The speaker never said to me they were connected," he said.

Morrissey added, "I don't know if the leadership will take it out on us. It wasn't very easy to vote against the tax plan. We were aware there would be implications."

In the next week, Quincy legislators said they will work extremely hard to regain any lost support.

"My greatest concern which has been on my mind for sometime was trying to hold the votes together to override the veto," stated Rep. Steve Tobin.

"The Quincy delegation's opposition to the speaker's tax plan certainly jeopardizes our ability to override the veto but I have faith that we'll win by the merits and I will work very hard to win my colleagues over," Tobin said. Morrissey said he is talking with "every one of my colleagues" to galvanize support.

In his veto message,

Dukakis cited four reasons for blocking the bill which have been disputed by Quincy officials:

- The measure forces an agency to move to a certain spot sets a bad precedent. Quincy legislators counter by saying the governor manipulated the MWRA siting process and forced the board he dominates to pick Roxbury.

- The Roxbury site is $20 million cheaper over 30 years than moving to Quincy. Quincy officials say the MWRA fabricated the figures and that its Quincy cost estimate is inflated.

Local lawmakers also point to a recent Gale Engineering study which shows moving to the shipyard $15 to $20 million less expensive than building a brand new headquarters in Roxbury.

- The Roxbury site is centrally located, near major transportation routes.

Quincy legislators claim the shipyard property the Authority purchased for $49 million is also accessible by MBTA bus lines and is near several major highways.

- The headquarters move and the 900 jobs it would bring would give the Roxbury economy a shot in the arm. Quincy legislators say that putting the MWRA at the shipyard would counter the economic effect of closing the General Dynamics shipyard and compensate for an MWRA sludge plant at the shipyard.

Miller Official Starter For Home Run Race

Jay Miller, former Boston Bruin star and currently with the L.A. Kings, will be the official starter for the 10th annual Home Run Race, Thursday, Aug. 10.

Miller will shoot the starter's pistol at precisely 7 p.m. for this 10K road race that benefits the Quincy Youth Commission's Group Homes.

The 1988 race attracted over 300 runners and this year's race should top the 363 runners that took part in 1987.

home Run. Other notables that have run in past races include Boston's Mayor Raymond Flynn and Quincy's Senator Paul Harold.

The major sponsors for the 89 Home Run are the Wollaston Credit Union and Barry's Deli of Quincy and Wollaston. The first 400 registered runners will receive a T-shirt and refreshments will be served to all participants. First, second and third place awards will be given to the top 3 finishers in each division as well as Get-Away Weekends for two as Grand Prizes to the first male, female and wheelchair finishers.

Applications for the race are available at the Wollaston Credit Union or by calling the Quincy Youth Commission at 773-1380, Ext. 468.

WEEK OF: July 13

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You're utterly creative and utterly charming but sometimes find it difficult putting your great ideas to practical use. A business-oriented partner helps balance the imaginative side of your personality. Partnerships generally are favored over the coming 12 months; selectivity, however, is crucial.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Excellent time for pooling ideas from diverse sources. You may be nominated for a leadership role; don't be too quick about turning it down. Self-improvement activities are favored.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Excellent time for pooling ideas from diverse sources. You may be nominated for a leadership role; don't be too quick about turning it down. Self-improvement activities are favored.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Avoid short-cuts, especially in matters related to health or finance. Supervisor is much more interested in your talents. Home life is unusually lively, especially through weekend.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

"Three's a crowd"--saying that's particularly true for Taurus this week. Recent financial planning may pay off modestly at this time. Community-related obligations may increase.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Your chief goal this week is to coordinate tasks and events; your organizational skills have rarely been this sharp. Long-distance phone calls prove well worth the investment.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Relationships seem carefree but don't take the situation for granted. Spend extra time with ailing friends and relatives. Weekend offers opportunities for re-evaluations and reconciliations.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Avoid mixing volunteer and professional assignments; each task should be clearly defined. Good week for learning about machines and mechanics; perhaps you enroll in a car repair course.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

You're especially competent in the areas of sales, marketing, and advertising; this is a fine week for promoting your own abilities. Support for your plans comes from a surprise source.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Clarify responsibilities before beginning a major task. Home improvements are generally favorable, but be sure estimates are realistic. Leave extra time for dealing with youngsters.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Household chores take more time and ability than initially assumed; it may be smart to call in a recruit. Travel planning is highlighted--a good week for research in this department.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Relationships proceed more smoothly thanks to the removal of some small but pesky roadblocks. At work you find it easier to delegate tasks; be sure to maintain control, however.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

Partnership ventures are positively spotlighted but be more than certain that each partner's responsibilities are perfectly understood. Small financial windfall may arrive after weekend.

BORN THIS WEEK

July 13, host Dave Garroway; 14th, actress Polly Bergen; 15th, singer Linda Ronstadt; 16th, actress Ginger Rogers; 17th, actress Diahann Carroll; 18th, comedian Red (Richard) Skelton; 19th, singer Vikki Carr.

Michelle Lydon Licensed Funeral Director At Lydon-Russell

Lydon-Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston announces the licensing and association of Michelle A. Lydon as a Licensed Funeral Director and Embalmer with the funeral home.

Miss Lydon has been apprenticed with the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home the past two years and was recently sworn in as a Licensed Funeral Director before the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Board of Registration in Funeral Service.

A Quincy resident for 24 years, she is a 1982 graduate

MICHELLE LYDON
of Archbishop Williams High

School, Braintree, Fitchburg College Class of 1986 with a B.A. Major in Human Services and a 1988 Associate Graduate of New England Institute of Applied Arts and Sciences.

Miss Lydon is a member of the Wollaston Business Association and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

She served for two years as the president of the Human Services Club and one year as a Judicial Board Member at Fitchburg College.

She is the daughter of John and Diane Lydon of Quincy.

Dr. David Thomas Elected MAHPERD President

Dr. David Q. Thomas of Quincy, Assistant Professor in the Physical Education Program at the University of Massachusetts at Boston, was elected President of the Massachusetts Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

Thomas took over the leadership of the 1500 member organization this spring. In addition, he participated in Congressional Fitness Awareness Day in Washington D.C. in June. Designed to increase the awareness of Members of Congress of the value of physical fitness, it was attended by leading Senators and Congressmen and their aides.

Dr. Thomas demonstrated fitness assessment techniques for the group.

Program To Help Potential Dropouts Starts At Quincy Vo-Tech

A federally-funded program geared for students who are potential school dropouts has begun at Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

It is a program that combines academic programs with work experience, and according to program director, Emily Ostrower, is designed to be an enjoyable and a positive learning experience.

The Summer Training and Education Program (STEP) will span 15 months and give 94 disadvantaged youths a better chance to succeed in school, graduate, and improve their prospects in life.

Remedial education, blended with summer work programs that pay students the minimum wage, strengthened by counseling during the school year, cannot help but make a difference, says Ostrower, who predicts that before the program is over Quincy Vocational Technical and Quincy High School will have received over $250,000 in federal monies.

The grant, awarded to both schools from South Coastal Career Development Administration, also provides for emergency measures to be introduced, if necessary, during the school year to prevent students from dropping out of school.

STEP, as explained by Ostrower, was designed in direct response to the numbers of low-income youths dropping out of school.

STEP, as explained by Ostrower, was designed in direct response to the numbers of low-income youths dropping out of school.

"The rate was alarming and leads to long term difficulty in the labor market," she explained, adding, "and since low income youth lose ground academically during summer months, this program is ideal."

Ostrower noted that the highest priority for most of these young people is earning money during the summer.

"But, since jobs are usually scarce for 12 to 14 year olds, a summer program with a pay check is very attractive," said Ostrower.

James Dempsey and Jason Currie are students enrolled in STEP. From 8 a.m. to noon they are in class taking Mathematics, English, Reading and courses that involve life skills. Currie, who will attend Quincy High School in September, then works from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., doing landscaping chores at Quincy Housing Authority, while Dempsey works on the maintenance crew at the high school. He will attend Quincy Voc-Tech in the fall, wants to learn a trade, and admits that the best part of attending summer school "is getting a job and getting paid."

Ostrower credits South Coastal Executive Director, Paul Ricca, for his vision and willingness to fund the program which will be buffered by funds from Horace Mann Grants for the high school and the Perkins Act for the vocational school.

"We plan to give these at-risk students every support so that they succeed in school, develop a strong sense of self-worth, and achieve throughout their lives," Ostrower concluded.

Historic Quincy

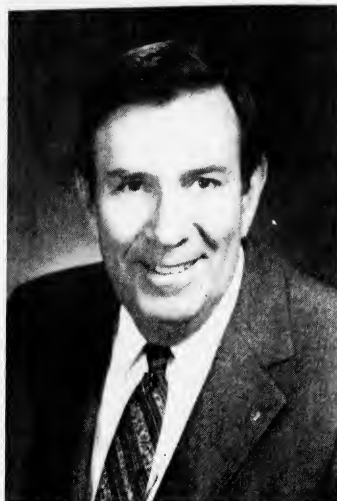

A Tourist Guide

City of Quincy, Massachusetts

Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy

As the Mayor of the City of Quincy, it is with great pride and pleasure that I welcome you to the City of Presidents.

Quincy's Historic Trail is not a road by which one follows history, but rather a way by which one may experience contact with a rich and diverse history.

Quincy, Massachusetts conjures up a wealth of images in many people. The rich history, the abundance of important historical sites, the source of granite for famous structures, the building place of many ships, the home town of famous people; all of these are distinctions that belong to Quincy alone.

We continue to acknowledge our history and our heritage. Quincy recently celebrated the 250th anniversary of President John Adams' birth. In the words of President Adams, "I made a Constitution for Massachusetts which finally made the Constitution of the United States." Thus, as the nation approaches the 200th anniversary of the United States Constitution, it will be with special pride that Quincy will watch the celebration of the Constitution, whose origins are traced to Adams' law office right here in Quincy.

It has been over 350 years since the first Europeans settled in what is now Quincy and we have been a city for 100 of those years. From being a small trading post to a city of over 88,000, Quincy has kept pace with the changing world around it, but has retained a distinctive identity that is based in its proud past.

In the pages ahead, you will read about places and men and women that have played significant roles in the history of our city and our nation. I think you will agree with me that Quincy is indeed rich in historic heritage. I urge you to visit the "Church of the Presidents" (First Parish Church) and our City Hall, and while you are in Quincy Center, take time to visit the Adams Academy (site of the birthplace of John Hancock) and a U.S. Landmark, the Hancock Cemetery. All of these historic sites are within a short walking distance of one another and are excellent examples of Quincy's heritage preserved for her visitors and citizens of today.

I hope your visit to Quincy will be a rewarding and memorable learning experience and that you will return again.

Sincerely yours,

Francis X. McCauley

After Painstaking Renewal Project

John Adams Birthplace 'As It Was'

The birthplace of John Adams, second president of the United States, now looks like it did when he and his parents, Deacon John and Susanna lived there.

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project.

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

It is open to the public this year for the fourth time since restoration began.

The only furnishings in the house when it opened to the public two years ago were a table, bench and two chairs in the kitchen and a chest of drawers on another room.

The house is well furnished now and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her taste. They are furnished not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1980, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted. Mrs. Harris, an authority on the Adams family, hopes the USNPS will change its mind again.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979, after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace re-opened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John Adams, home from the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for the first time in a year, sitting at the table drinking a cup of tea.

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, the model on which the U.S. Constitution was based.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copies from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Abigail's old kitchen cabinet was discovered serving as a bookcase in the Old House.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of the blue china that John purchased when he was emissary to Holland.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2.00 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available.

The Cover

The Adams Cottages

Our Only Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gently rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

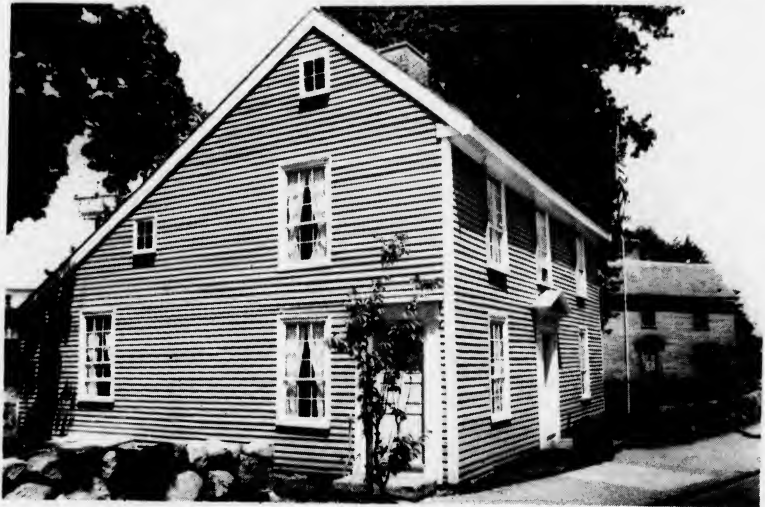

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean-to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monaquot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was, a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard-working farmer whose cider was acknowledged best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland, 9½ acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of

Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabdiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735 (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

The junction of Franklin St., Independence Ave., and President Ave. in South Quincy is the only place in the country where the birthplaces of two presidents who are father and son stand side by side in the same city.

The precise age of the two cottages at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was retored by the Daughters of Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1681 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, a grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 through Nov. 10, with guided tours. Admission is $2 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days.

The Quincy Presidential Trail

The Adams Birthplaces are an important stop on the newly designated Quincy Presidential Trail, a 10.5 mile route that takes the visitor through the 17th and 18th Century locales associated with the lives of the Adams family.

Historic sites along the trail include the Adams Mansion, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Adams Academy, First Parish Church, Adams Crypt, City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, the Birthplaces, Abigail Adams Cairn, First Commercial Railroad, First Ironworks, Col. Josiah Quincy House and Moswetuset Hummock, most of which are described in this magazine.

The Quincy Presidential Trail is a National Recreation Trail, the seventh in the state of Massachusetts and the 625th in the nation.

ADAMS MANSION NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

The Adams Mansion

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed and warm than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamsses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was at first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith, "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

The site at 135 Adams St. is open to the public from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour as at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days.

The Adams Family

HENRY ADAMS (1583-1646) emigrated from England in 1638 and was granted 40 acres in Mount Wollaston (later Quincy).

2. JOSEPH ADAMS (1626-1694), son of Henry, farmer and maltster of Old Braintree.

3. JOSEPH ADAMS (1654-1737), son of Joseph, who married Hannah Bass, a granddaughter of John Alden and Priscilla Mullins.

4. JOHN ADAMS (1691-1761), son of Joseph, farmer and selectman of Old Braintree, known as Deacon John.

5. JOHN ADAMS (1735-1826), son of Deacon John and second President of the United States.

5a. SAMUEL ADAMS (1722-1803), revolutionary firebrand; great, great grandson of Henry and cousin of President John.

6. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS (1767-1848), son of John, sixth President of the United States.

7. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS (1807-1886), son of John Quincy, minister to Great Britain during the Civil War.

8. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS II (1833-1894), son of Charles Francis, state legislator and thrice candidate for governor of Massachusetts.

8a. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS II (1835-1915), son of Charles Francis, historian and founder of the Quincy school system.

8b. HENRY ADAMS (1838-1918), son of Charles Francis, author of "The Education of Henry Adams."

8c. BROOKS ADAMS (1848-1927), son of Charles Francis, the last Adams to live in the Old House in Quincy.

9. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS III (1866-1954), son of John Quincy II, mayor of Quincy and Secretary of the Navy under President Hoover.

10. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS IV (1910-), chairman of the board of Raytheon Co.

John Adams 'Father'

U.S., State Constitution Both Born Here

Two years ago, 1987, was the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution and while many people think of the convention in Philadelphia 202 years ago, the fact is the precious document was born in Quincy. At least the seed was planted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in the law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go to the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He had arrived home only seven days before on the French frigate La Sensible after nearly 18 months in Paris helping to negotiate a commercial and military alliance with France. He was in such a rush to get home that he apparently landed the day before La Sensible reached Boston by rowing ashore from Nantasket Roads.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

"One was angry, another was full of Greif, and the third with Melancholy, so that I burnt them all," he wrote to her from Passy on Dec. 18, 1778, listing his complaints with her most recent letters. "If you write me in this style I shall leave of writing intirely, it kills me.

"Am I not wretched Enough, in this Banishment, without this? What Course shall I take to convince you that my Heart is warm? I beg you would never more write to me in such a strain for it really makes me unhappy."

"How lonely are my days?" she wrote on a Sunday evening, Dec. 27, "How solitary are my Nights? How insupportable the Idea that 3000 leagues, and the vast ocean now divide us -- but divide only our persons for the Heart of my Friend is in the Bosom of his partner."

Somewhere on the vast ocean the two letters passed each other.

Paris and the dissolute court of Louis XVI held small appeal to the Puritan in John Adams, even when his closest everyday companions were Dr. Benjamin Franklin, still with an eye for the ladies at age 73, and the swashbuckling Capt. John Paul Jones, half patriot, half pirate, who had just taken command of the leaky old East Indianman he had renamed Bon Homme Richard.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant: butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of defeat, privation and horror.

Like many Brintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

"I cannot avoid sometimes repining that the gifts of fortune were not bestowed upon us, that I might have enjoyed the happiness of spending my days with my partner," she wrote, "but as it is, I think it my duty to attend with frugality and economy to our own private affairs; and if I cannot add to our little substance, yet see to it that it is not diminished."

She abstained from drinking black market tea, allowing herself one tiny complaint: "I should like a little green (tea), but they say there is none to be had here. I only wish it for a medicine, as a relief to a nervous pain in my head to which I am sometimes subject."

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three, John and Samuel Adams; and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams wound up in the law office of his home at the foot of Penn's Hill, paired with his firebrand cousin, Sam, and his ailing friend, James Bowdoin, to write a Constitution for the state of Massachusetts, which in turn became the model for the Constitution of the United States.

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee -- by the Committee upon the subcommittee -- and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee -- so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780:

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admiration in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw."

Dorothy Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Rd., on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line; two nephews.)

The house was the social center of old Braintree during the regime of the fourth Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later vice president of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it to the state with the proviso that the Dames continue to run it.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead is open to the public May through October, Wednesday through Sunday, from noon to 5 p.m. (last tour at 4 p.m. It is also open by appointment only Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to noon for groups. Admission is $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children age 12 and under.

Reaching New Heights in Health Care . . .

Quincy Hospital is about to embark on an exciting new era in its historic commitment to the City of Quincy.

This summer, inpatient units and other major hospital services will move into new, $60 million health care facilities. The state-of-the-art medical buildings mirror the progress of both the city and the hospital in our first century of working together.

The staff of Quincy Hospital is proud of the new facilities. That's why we're celebrating throughout the summer and fall with a series of health education programs and public tours of our new home.

If you or your organization would like to arrange for a group tour of the hospital, please contact the Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department at (617) 773-6100, Ext. 4016.

THE FIRST PARISH CHURCH

TOMBS OF PRESIDENTS John and John Quincy Adams and their wives in First Parish Church.

First Parish Church

Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chappel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56 which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate-and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of its benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

Still an active Unitarian Church, it is open to the public for tours July 1 through Labor Day, Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. There is no charge for the tours but donations are accepted. Group tours should make reservations at least one week in advance. Church tours at other times of the year may also be made by appointment.

No charge for the Josiah Quincy Homestead.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.--the first Quincy--was named in 1792."

Colonel Quincy was the great grandfather of sixth president John Quincy Adams.

Apparently all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-zee."

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it. Seems like a sound argument.

The Thomas Crane Library

A Romanesque Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite-cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy saw of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial -- preferably a library -- to his father.

"My father always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy," was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English scientist Dr. Joseph Priestly and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I can not guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees.

It was Adams who gave the library its name. Albert Crane wanted it to be "The Quincy Free Public Library." Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

"You are, but you wouldn't have if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism -- "Food will win the war," they said -- the area was planted with potatoes, tended by an expert brought in from Maine. The experiment failed.

THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1936, that now houses the stacks and the children's section.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., is open to the public, free of charge, Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Saturdays during July and August.

Abigail Adams Cairn

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children, Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth president of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin St.) meets Viden Rd. atop Penn's Hill a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public free of charge.

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native-son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Col. John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great grandfather.

John Hancock who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

Opponents argued that Hancock

was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished-but deceased-person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished - and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741 - 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77 - two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888.

But a lot of people will go right on thinking Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway

First Commercial Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, 6 and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Col. Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year round, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

JOSIAH QUINCY HOMESTEAD

Josiah Quincy Homestead

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country; and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct. 10, 1775, General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquillia" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex-President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family -- Col. John Quincy, the great grandfather of John Quincy Adams sixth president of the United States.

The Josiah Quincy Homestead is open to the public from June 1 to Oct. 15, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Visits may be made at other times by appointment. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children age 12 and under. Residents of Quincy are admitted free.

How Many Miles From Boston?

Stone mile markers across Hancock Street from each other indicate that the traveler is both 7½ and 10 miles from Boston. And both are correct.

The 10-miles marker was placed on the Old Coast Road, one of the oldest highways in the United States still in existence, which went from Boston to Plymouth in 1639 by way of inland Milton.

The 7½-mile marker was raised after the first bridge over the Neponset River was built in 1803, creating the Neponset Turnpike, which is today Hancock St. in North Quincy and Wollaston.

We're proud to have been a part of the historic City of Quincy for over 30 years

Quincy Junior College was established by the City of Quincy School Committee 30 years ago. In September of 1958 the College opened with a handful of students. In June of 1960 we held our first graduation with 4 graduates. We've grown since then into a major force in the Quincy region. This year we had a record-breaking day enrollment topping 1,400 students, while other schools have been forced to cut back this year we have been serving more students than ever and plan to continue that growth. Quincy Junior college has been a leader in implementing Developmental Education, Child Care for our students, innovative Financial Aid programs and a variety of Continuing Education programs.

We're proud to be part of the City of Quincy in this centenary year, and we plan to be a part of the City's Bicentennial Celebration.

John Winthrop, Jr. Blast Furnace

First Productive Iron Works In U.S.

It failed after nine years of effort and, since failure was anathema in a growing America, perhaps that is why the site and even the memory of the first commercial iron blast furnace in the United States was lost for so long.

It flourished, if that is the word, from 1644 to 1653 on the banks of the Mount Wollaston River (now Furnace Brook) in a section of Old Braintree called "the Woods."

Iron was an important commodity in Colonial Massachusetts, particularly for nails and pots and pans. Iron utensils had to be imported from England, a costly process for the penny-wise colonists.

With this in mind, John Winthrop Jr., son of the governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, went to London and formed the "Company of Undertakers for the Ironworks in New England."

The first iron was turned out in 1644 but young Winthrop was fired from his 100 pounds a year job the next year, to be succeeded by Richard Leader. The Ironworks itself didn't last much longer.

The ore from which the iron was blasted on the banks of Furnace Brook was not a high quality product. It was bog iron from the nearby swamps. Making it proved to be more expensive than the imported kind.

The Company of Undertakers appealed for fresh money in 1646 and apparently there were enough investors ready to send good money after bad because the furnace was still in operation in 1650 when the Scotch Prisoners arrived.

The Scots were rugged Highlanders, soldiers in the army of the future King Charles II who were captured by Oliver Cromwell at the Battle of Dunbar. Cromwell shipped 272 of them to New England as cheap labor in an effort to make the Quincy Ironworks a paying proposition. It didn't work.

The Company of Undertakers went bankrupt in 1653 and "the Woods" went back to the bear and the deer.

Meanwhile, with the same Richard Leader as agent, construction began on a second iron works north of Boston in Saugus in 1646. When it was completed in 1650, it was recognized as the first integrated iron industry in America.

Adams Academy

On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Sts., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body ---25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 and 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar schools" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Leverett, an aimable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett who signaled the passing of Adams Academy --- and many other 19th Century classical prep schools --- at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did and on June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

The building today is occupied by the Quincy Historical Society, which maintains a museum and research library in the old classrooms as well as an expanded gift shop. The museum and gift shop are open all year, Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and Saturday from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Saturday from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. or by appointment. It is closed Sundays and holidays. There is no admission charge.

Seat Of Government For 145 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 145 years, the nerve center of government for first the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a president of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard - who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months - the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a 3 and one half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

Sweeney Funeral Service

Established 1917

A LITTLE HISTORY . . .

Sweeney Funeral Service has been serving families in the city of Quincy and the surrounding South Shore area for over 70 years. Owned and operated by three generations of the Sweeney family, it is the oldest operating Funeral establishment in the city.

Since 1917, beginning in a small storefront on the corner of Hancock and School Sts., it was founded by Dennis S. Sweeney. Here it remained until 1929 when property was purchased at the corner of Elm St. and Miller Stile Rd. for the purpose of one of Quincy's first "Funeral Homes." Today it serves as the main office for the Sweeney Funeral Service.

In 1948, after the death of the owner, the business was acquired by his nephew, M. Joseph Sweeney through personal bequest in 1950.

In 1962 a second funeral home was opened at the former Elcock Estate, 326 Copeland St., West Quincy. This was to serve as a branch of the corporation. People in West Quincy remember well this home as that of the former Dahlia King noted for the beautiful Dahlia flowers raised by the Elcock family.

Now under the ownership and direction of Dennis S. Sweeney, son of the late M. Joseph Sweeney and grandnephew of the original Dennis S. Sweeney, it continues the tradition that has earned the reputation as one of the finest funeral homes in Quincy.

Abigail Adams Wife, Mother Of Presidents

Mrs. John Adams, the former Abigail Smith of Weymouth, is the only woman to be wife of one president and mother of another --- and she could have been grandmother of a vice president.

Husband John was chief executive from 1797 to 1801; son of John Quincy occupied the White House from 1825 to 1829; and grandson Charles Francis Adams ran for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, Abigail Adams once wrote to her husband, John:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

Part Of Quincy's History For Over a Half Century And Very Proud Of It.

14 Franklin Street
Quincy, MA 02169

Hancock Cemetery

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Col. John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

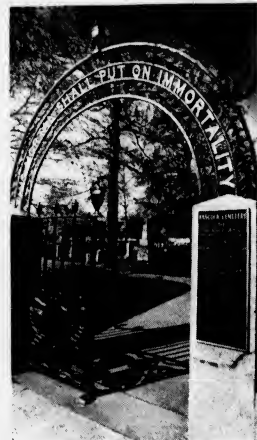

Among the belongings found in the Elm St. lodging house were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and down-trodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

HANCOCK CEMETERY

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternity.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it as a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrowhead (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy history as a rather pathetic figure.

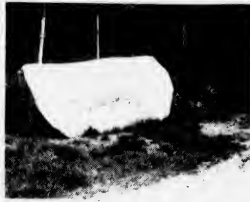

He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to field some 3,000 warriors for a war with the Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plague.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallop with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay.

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and he was succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah Wampatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wampatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Moswetuset Hummock, identified by a marker stone and maintained in its natural state, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Harold, Morrissey, Tobin MWRA Game Plan: Compromise, Stall Override Vote

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A new strategy in the battle over the future headquarters of the MWRA has been devised by several Quincy officials, but one local representative is against the tactic.

On Tuesday, Sen. Paul Harold and Rep. Michael Morrissey said the new strategy is to delay the override vote while working out a compromise with officials who support a Roxbury-based headquarters.

Yesterday (Wednesday), the House was scheduled to vote on an override of the bill which would require the authority to locate its headquarters in Quincy. The original bill was vetoed by Gov. Michael Dukakis after it breezed through the House and Senate.

On Tuesday, Harold,

Morrissey and Rep. Steve Tobin said they want the override vote to be postponed again. However, Quincy's third representative, Robert Cerasoli, said the vote should not be delayed any longer.

Last week, the House voted 91-63 to postpone the override vote. A two-thirds vote is needed for an override.

In addition, Cerasoli said the Quincy delegation should not be working toward a compromise.

"I don't think it's time to compromise at this point. I think we should go to court and then consider a compromise," he said.

Cerasoli said he opposes a compromise because a decision by the State Department of Labor and Industries and the support of the Attorney General's office has put Quincy in a commanding position.

The labor department has ruled that the MWRA violated state bidding laws in awarding the headquarters contract to Roxbury. Attorney General James Shannon has said he will go to court to enforce the ruling.

"It's not fair to have the attorney general support us and then have individuals make their own deals," he said.

Cerasoli, who learned about a potential compromise by news reports, was somewhat disgruntled because he was not consulted.

"The problem that I've been having is people out there working on their own. We have five representatives (Quincy-Braintree-Weymouth) in the House who sponsored the bill.

"I think it's obligatory that we meet and act as a group. There's a lot of positioning and chest-pounding going on. I'm just trying to represent the people of Quincy Point," he

3-Days Of Fun, Good Buys Thursday Through Saturday

Downtown Sidewalk Bazaar Biggest Yet

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

This year's Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar, which begins today (Thursday) and continues through Saturday, will be bigger and better than ever before, officials say.

"We have more merchants participating than ever before. We've got a greater interest in organizations desiring to be participants in the bazaar," says George Riley, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

The QCBPA sponsors the annual event.

"It will be bigger and better than ever before. We look forward to a real enjoyable three days for Quincy shoppers," Riley said.

Charles Ryder, bazaar program director and owner of Ryder's of Quincy, says there will be lots of fun, entertainment and of course bargains.

Noting there will be more than 50 colorful selling and activity booths, he said, "there will be more things for the kids, lots of entertainment and more merchants on the street."

"This year's bazaar will have a whole new look. There'll be a lot of new stuff and more activities than we've had in the past," Ryder said.

The familiar multi-colored pennants are up over Hancock, Granite and School Sts. and merchants are ready for the three-day extravaganza.

Among the features making their bazaar debut will be Kiddie Carnival Games and a Prize Everytime, miniature house building demonstration, canine demonstration by the State Police and a hazardous materials handling demonstration by the Quincy Fire Department.

Other new attractions include a remote control vehicle demonstration by Hobbyworld, a demonstration by the Ellis School of Gymnastics and an exhibition by Fred Villari's Studio of Self Defense.

The self-defense exhibition, to take place Saturday at 11 a.m. near Quincy Fair, will feature about a dozen experts.

There will also be a blood pressure and cholesterol screening booth.

Well-known features returning for another year include Caricatures Unlimited, Moonwalk and roller dancing, South Shore Joey Clowns and face painting and the ever popular Ronald McDonald Show.

Other returning attractions are the dunk tank, M.D.C. Zoomobile and square dancing.

Local talent headlines the entertainment as the bazaar will feature performance by the Quincy Community Theatre, Quincy High School Alumni Band and the Baron Hugo Orchestra.

As in year's past, the highlight of the bazaar is the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant to be staged Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy Center Plaza.

Thirty contestants from the Quincy-South Shore area will vie for the coveted crown and the honor of reigning over the 52nd Quincy Bay Race Week Aug. 2-6.

More than $2,500 in prizes will be shared by the five finalists. The new queen will receive the largest share.

The bazaar officially opens today (Thursday) with a ribbon cutting ceremony at 10 a.m.

Mayor Francis McCauley will have the honor of cutting the ribbon at Granite and Hancock Sts. The mayor will be joined by QCBPA President Robert Colman, Executive Director George Riley, pageant chairwoman Beth Anne Streng, assistant pageant chairwoman Eileen Cohen and last year's Miss Quincy Bay, Dawn Larkin.

Also on hand will be officers, directors and members of the QCBPA as well as contestants in this year's pageant.

Hancock St. between School and Granite Sts. will be turned into a pedestrian mall as the street is closed to motor traffic.

John Nicholson of radio station WJDA will conduct sidewalk interviews during the bazaar. Also broadcasting will be WUMB from the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

The Miss Quincy Bay Pageant and other activities will be telecast live by Continental Cablevision Channel 3. The pageant telecast will begin Friday at 6 p.m. with highlights of the bazaar.

Quincy Sun Channel 26 will also show bazaar highlights and a preview and highlights of the pageant.

CROWDS LIKE THIS are expected at this year's annual sidewalk bazaar today (Thursday) through Saturday.

All Beaches Closed From Sewerage

All 11 of Quincy's beaches were closed to swimming Tuesday after the city's Health Department learned that 11.8 million gallons of untreated sewage was discharged into Quincy Bay during a 12-hour period Monday.

According to Cynthia DeCristofaro of the Quincy Health Department, the untreated sewage was discharged from Calf Pasture which is part of the Boston Water and Sewer System. The outfall occurs around Moon Head near Squantum, she said.

"Just to be on the safe side, we're going to close all the beaches," DeCristofaro said Tuesday.

A decision to reopen the beaches was not expected to be made until today (Thursday). Water samples were taken Tuesday and results should be known by Thursday.

Sample results are listed on Quincy Sun Channel 26.

The discharge, which occurred from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Monday, was "most likely" caused by the day's heavy rains, DeCristofaro explained.

Health department officials were notified of the discharge Tuesday morning. DeCristofaro said it is "typical" for notifications to be issued a day later.

New Fire Alarm System Approved For Vo-Tech School

The City Council appropriated $237,000 for a new fire alarm system at the Quincy Vocational-Technical School at Monday's special meeting.

A recommendation to replace the obsolete system was made by Fire Chief Paul O'Connell to Mayor Francis McCauley about four weeks ago.

The old system, which features manual pull stations, needs to be replaced in order to bring the school up to code. The system has not been updated since 1980.

The Vo-Tech is the last building which needs upgrading.

The new system will feature better detection. It will include heat sensors in the shop ducts and a handicap function.

Preble First To File Nomination Papers

Mike Preble has become the first of the eight candidates for School Committee to file his nomination papers. He returned three times the 50 signatures required to be nominated for the Sept. 12 preliminary election.

"The people of Quincy have been very responsive to my candidacy," Preble said. "I enjoy talking about the issues and I am learning a great deal."

He said that among the positive feedback is an invitation to attend an elementary school classroom in early September.

Preble said he plans to continue canvassing the city and has several coffee hours planned for later this month and into August.

"I have said from the beginning that I will be accessible to the people," he said. "I believe that knocking on doors and talking with people provides a wealth of insight into what people feel is important. To properly represent the people of Quincy on their school committee, I must have their input. I am looking forward to meeting as many residents as possible in the upcoming months."

SYC Explains Proper Flags Display

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Published in a recent edition of your paper was a letter from Dennis F. Tardo, of Quincy, concerning the desecration of the American flag.

In his discussion of the "Improper display of Old Glory," he specifically called to the readers' attention the flags at the Squantum Yacht Club.

He describes how the club's bugee (pennant) is flown from the masthead, while the American flag flies "dipped" from the gaff. Calls to the Squantum Yacht Club got
Mr. Tardo an unsatisfactory reply as to this custom which he calls "improper."

While the Federal Flag Act addresses the proper display of the American flag, this "Flag Code" relates to those flags flown ashore. The act requires, with the exception of the United Nations' flag, that flag fly above the Stars and Stripes. Maritime custom necessarily varies. The practice of flying the National Ensign from a gaff evolved to keep the flag from being fouled in the rigging of sailing vessels. To allow the National Ensign to become entangled and torn would not be proper.

The gaff, an arm protruding aft from the mast, allowed the flag to fly free and undamaged. According to Chapman's Piloting, Seamanship and Small Boat Handling, the "flagpole or mast at a yacht club ... is considered to represent the mast of a vessel, and the peak of the gaff, if one is used, is the place of Honor from which the United States Ensign is flown ...

"There has been some confusion because proper flag etiquette requires that no other flag be flown above the United States Ensign, and obviously, another flag, such as a yacht club burgee, at the masthead will be higher than the United States flag when the latter is at the gaff. This is entirely proper because above in flag etiquette, means directly on top of, as would be the case if the burgee were above the United States Ensign on the same hoist."

The Chapman book is recommended by the Coast Guard, which, along with the United States Navy, practices the same flag flying custom.

Mr. Tardo's contention may be to enact a law which would change this custom.
He states that laws are needed because "common sense does not enforce etiquette to show pride in America and the flag
..."

Common sense would indicate that a law requiring the American flag to be flown in a way that would entangle and damage it would not help to honor our country's flag.

We at the Squantum Yacht Club are proud to display the colors and want all to know that we do not display them improperly.

Move Governor To Shipyard

If Quincy doesn't get the MWRA headquarters--or a slice of it -- I've got a suggestion for the Quincy Shipyard site.

Why not move the governor's office there?

There's been such a smell coming out of Michael Dukakis' Beacon Hill office the past few weeks, he would feel right at home working alongside a sludge plant.

Dukakis is determined to push and shove the MWRA headquarters to Roxbury whether it is legal or illegal, whether it is right or wrong morally, and whether it is right or wrong from a cost factor standpoint.

DUKAKIS

As far as he is concerned, Quincy can go fly a kite.
This despite the fact that at the request of mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries looked into the process the MWRA used to ticket its headquarters for Roxbury and ruled that the procedure violated state contracting laws.

And despite the fact that Atty. Gen. James Shannon says he will enforce the decision by the Department of Labor and Industries by taking the Roxbury award to court.

And now, despite urging by Inspector General
Joseph Barresi for the Legislature to override Dukakis' veto of the bill requiring the MWRA to site its headquarters at the Quincy Shipyard.

Barresi, who is the state's financial watchdog, urged the override of the veto on two counts: (1) the Quincy Shipyard site would be cheaper (2) Irregularities in the selection of Roxbury as the site.

Of course, Quincy officials have been contending all along that the shipyard site would be less expensive because it would be cheaper to rehabilitate existing buildings at the shipyard than to build a palace in Roxbury.

Quincy officials have also argued there would be no need for a parking garage at the shipyard. A garage is part of the Roxbury plan.

Barresi agrees there is no need for a parking garage in Quincy.

But Barresi has come up with a fresh suggestion: a new building at the shipyard. He says it would be $8.1 million cheaper.

A new building, he says, could be constructed at a cost of $44.5 million which is $8.1 million less than the price tag for the proposed Roxbury building.

And, a new Quincy building, he says, would be $28 million less than what the MWRA claims it would cost to come to Quincy and rehabilitate existing buildings.

Barresi's figures, his office says, are based on the first independent cost analysis of the Quincy and Roxbury sites.

Barresi has written to both Senate President William Bulger and House Speaker George Keverian saying that an override of Dukakis' Quincy bill veto would be "a reasonable legislative restraint on irresponsible conduct by the authority (MWRA)."

Barresi said:

"My job is to make nonpartisan and disinterested recommendations to the Legislature to prevent waste and abuse in such projects.

"Having followed the process closely over the past year I have concluded that an override would prevent both waste and abuse."

An MWRA spokesman, Paul DiNatale, tries to dismiss Barresi's findings.

"The Legislature is certainly intelligent enough to ignore Barresi's advice when that advice doesn't make sense," he poohs.

But you can bet if Barresi's findings had favored Roxbury, DiNatale, Dukakis and Boston Mayor
Raymond Flynn would have wrapped themselves in it like it was an American flag and sang The Star Spangled Banner.

Meanwhile, Dukakis keeps pushing and shoving for Roxbury regardless of what the Department of Labor and Industries, Atty. General Shannon and Barresi have said.

Yep, the Quincy Shipyard might make the ideal location for the governor's office. With a big picture window close to and overlooking the sludge plant.

SEVERAL CANDIDATES were in contention as the City Council and School Committee were to meet in a joint session last night (Wednesday) to temporarily fill the vacancy created by the recent death of School Committeeman Christopher Kennedy.

Names being mentioned: Ron Iacobucci, who has run three times for City Councillor at-large, Robert Jarvis, former candidate for School Committee; Michael Cronin, associate member of the School Committee Alicia Gardner of Squantum and Betty Swanton of Merrymount.

MARY KENNEDY, Chris Kennedy's widow, could have had the temporary appointment if she wanted it.
Sentiment would have been with her. She was asked to consider it but declined. She reportedly said she just couldn't take his place.

CHRIS KENNEDY'S DEATH leaves a tremendous void in the community. He was dedicated to education for more than 40 years at Northeastern University from mathematics teacher to Vice President to Administration.

And, of course, during his 14 years as a member of the School Committee.

He was one of those rare individuals who don't come along often enough in life. I never heard him down anyone and never heard him utter a profane word.

He was a good family man -- a good husband and father -- and a dedicated public servant who loved his city. He was a gentle man and a gentleman.

It would be a much better world if there were more Chris Kennedy's in it.

"Save those pennies," Morrissey advises.
In the future, the association will seek city revenue assistance and private donations.

removed from his left knee June 28.

Though the knee is still painful, Tardo is getting

THE WHOLE LIFE (ORDINARY) POLICY PREMIUM

The premium in a whole life policy is determined by actuarial statistics. These statistics will approximate what the death rate for each age group will be in the coming years. The final calculations, along with cost factors of operations, will determine the dollar and cents cost per thousand of insurance for each individual. For example, the annual cost of a $100,000 policy at the rate of $20.50 per thousand would produce a premium of $2,050.

Keeping in mind the name of the policy, "whole life" means that the premium must be paid for the entire life of the insured. Although many policies today are being illustrated showing an "out of pocket cost" for only a short period, such as 8-12 years, the premiums for the remainder of the years afterward are being paid from the policy itself.
Premiums "must" be paid until death or age 100. At age 100 the policy is matured and all monies paid to the insured.

If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Riely Insurance

Quincy Ships Played Key Role In Moon Landing

By JANE ARENA

The former General Dynamics Shipyard has been making recent headlines as the site of the future MWRA sludge plant.

But, 20 years ago this week, the Quincy shipyard was making headlines of a more honorable sort — for its part in the Historic Apollo 11 moon landing.

Three former World War II tankers, originally built in 1944, were rebuilt at the Quincy Shipyard and transformed into high-tech communications links which helped to guide Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Mike Collins to the moon.

The ships were lengthened, widened, and each equipped with over 400 tons of computers, electronics and satellite dishes to become floating control centers for the Apollo mission.

During their wartime duties the ships were used as oil tankers and bore the names "Mission San Fernando," "Mission San Juan," and "Mission DePala." They were renamed the USNS "Vanguard," "Mercury," and "Redstone" for their part in the moon mission.

The ships were stationed at key points to supplement the vast network of land control centers in the mission. Not only were they in constant voice contact with the astronauts, but the crew and the equipment on board were also used to relay high-speed computerized data between the spacecraft and Mission Control in Houston whenever the Earth orbit path brought the spacecraft within reach.

When Apollo 11 roared off its launch pad, for example, the USNS Vanguard was stationed in the Atlantic about 1,000 miles down range from Cape Kennedy, in the gap between Bermuda and the Apollo ground station at Antigua.

About nine minutes after liftoff, data from the Vanguard helped to guide the spacecraft into its Earth orbit.

Each of the ships had a crew of 88 and 122 technical personnel who maintained and operated the systems.

The moon ships built at the Quincy shipyard played crucial roles in one of mankind's greatest achievements and helped in the realization of a once inconceivable dream, to land a man on the moon and return him safely to Earth.

The Quincy Shipyard's role in man's historic voyage to the moon was one of many highs in a long and glorious history.

A history that dates back before the turn of the century when it was founded as the Fore River Engine Company by Thomas Watson, the man who helped Alexander

Graham Bell invent the telephone, and who received that famous first telephone call: "Mr. Watson, come here, I need you."

In 1902 the world's only seven-masted schooner, the famed Thomas W. Lawson, was built there only to be lost in a storm five years later in the Cornwall Coast of Great Britain.

In World War I, the yard turned out submarines, destroyers, cargo ships and tankers.

In the 1930's and during World War II under Bethlehem Steel some of the Navy's mightiest warships, including the battleship Massachusetts, carriers

Lexington and Hornet, heavy cruisers Quincy, Boston, light cruisers, destroyers and other ships went to battle from here.

During that war employment at the Quincy shipyard and its Hingham Yard reached about 40,000 workers.

In the 1950's the USS Long Beach, the world's first nuclear-powered surface vessel was built here, followed by the USS Bainbridge.

The 100,000 ton SS Manhattan was a Quincy product — the largest ship ever built in this country at the time. It barely squeezed through the Fore River Bridge.

And there were the luxury liners SS Independence and Constitution which are still seeing service today off Hawaii.

In 1958, Queen Frederika of Greece set foot on Quincy soil to christen the 859-foot tanker, Princess Sophie, named after her daughter. It was the largest tanker ever built in America. And, at the time, it was noted that Queen Frederika lauded more ship tonnage with one swing of a champagne bottle than Helen of Troy, who touched off the Trojan War.

Glory days, glory years. Now gone.

It's sad to think of the Quincy Shipyard's future as the site of a lowly sludge plant.

Spotlight On HEALTH AND FITNESS

Fiber: A Dieter's Best Friend

Looking for a way to lose a few pounds or control your current weight?

The secret may be to eat more, not less! Specifically, more fiber, that is. By increasing the amount of high fiber or "bulky" foods in your diet, you will likely experience less hunger and may even decrease the total amount of calories absorbed by the body. The explanation:

- Fibrous foods take longer to chew, giving the brain longer to register and eliminate hunger signals.

- Fiber, once eaten, absorbs several times its weight in water, resulting in a full feeling.

- Fiber tends to speed food and waste products through the gut, which may decrease the opportunity for absorption.

Complex carbohydrates containing fiber also provide "staying power." They take longer to digest than simple carbohydrates containing sugar, and trigger a slower rise in blood sugar. This stabilization of the blood sugar means less fluctuation in appetite. You feel satisfied longer and are, therefore, more likely to eat less.

There are additional benefits. Dietary fiber is thought to reduce the exposure of intestinal tissues to cancer-causing chemicals, reducing the risk of colon cancer. It may also reduce levels of blood fats and cholesterol, thus reducing the risk of heart disease. A diet low in fat is likely to enhance these benefits.

Experts report that most Americans now consume only half as much fiber as they should for optimum health. To add more fiber to your diet, follow these suggestions from the Diet Center Weight-Control Program:

- Eat your vegetables. (Mother was right!) Raw vegetables, with the skins, contain the most fiber. If cooked, they should be only lightly steamed.
- Need a snack between meals? Choose fruit. In fact, a good way to curb your appetite is to eat an apple one to two hours before a meal.
- Eat more salads, but not just the lettuce and tomato kind. Lettuce itself is only a fair source of fiber. A good rule of thumb is to include 5 to 7 kinds of fresh vegetables.

- Replace white bread and refined cereals with whole-grain products. You will increase your fiber intake, as well as the intake for those nutrients otherwise lost through the refining process.

- Add wheat or oat bran to dishes you are preparing (i.e. hot cereal, casseroles, breads, salads). Experiment cooking with other whole grains, such as bulgur or barley.

- Bran cereals, bran muffins and bran breads are excellent sources of fiber and taste great. At approximately 110 calories per bran muffin, though, be careful not to overdo.

Cutting The Risks During Barbecue Season

With the warm weather here the welcomed taste and irresistible aroma of charcoal broiled foods beckons.

Unfortunately, as with other gastronomical favorites, indulging too often in this type of cooking method may be shadowed by health concerns. Specifically, research suggests that the charcoal broiling process may actually create carcinogenic or cancer causing compounds in the foods, especially meats. While the risk of cancer from barbecuing is not a major one, cancer experts do suggest moderation in intake.

According to the American Institute for Cancer Research, as fat drips from meat onto the hot coals or stones, benzopyrene, a substance found to be carcinogenic, is formed. The smoke that rises from the fire carries this substance back up to the meat and deposits it on the surface of the food.

Another possible problem with high heat cooking such as grilling, smoking, barbecuing, and high temperature broiling, is that some of the proteins in meats may convert into substances that may damage the DNA or genetic material of human cells. Such genetic damage may also play a role in cancer development.

While more research is needed, the National Cancer Institute suggests two major ways of reducing these risks. First, when cooking meats, reduce extremely high temperatures by lowering broiler racks or raising barbecue grills away from heat sources and cook more slowly. Second, try to reduce the direct contact with smoke or flames by wrapping foods in foil (make holes in foil to let fat drip out) or putting foods on a pan before barbecuing.

Other suggestions for barbecue aficionados offered by the American Institute for Cancer Research:

- Cover the grill with aluminum foil before you cook out. Punch holes between the grids to let the fat drip down. The foil will help protect food from smoke and fire.
- Select meats that are low in fat and trim excess fat from meat before cooking. Research shows that the higher the level of fat in charcoal-broiled meats, the more carcinogens may be produced.
- Substitute fish or poultry (with skin and fat removed) for more fatty meats.
- Cook the meat until it is done without charring it and try to remove any charred material that forms on the food surface before eating.
- Discourage fire flares. Burning juice or fat adds nothing to the charcoal flavor of foods but can produce harmful smoke. Keep a squirt bottle of water handy for dampening coals that become too hot or flare up.

- If smoke from dripping fat is too heavy, move the food to another section of the grill, rotate the grill, or reduce heat.

- When possible, use a drip pan to catch dripping fat.

• Use springtime and summer to enjoy fresh seasonal fruits and vegetables especially those rich in vitamin C and beta-carotene, the vitamins which may offer some cancer protection. Experiment with fresh vegetable dishes barbecued, to reduce the emphasis on meat. Try grilling in foil, acorn squash, baked potatoes, zucchini, tomatoes, or corn on the cob. Or, pack in foil fresh vegetables such as mushrooms, onions, green peppers, and tomatoes and pieces of chicken, fish or lean meats and cook over the fire.

SAVING YOUR SKIN FROM THE SUN

If you set out to get that perfect tan you may get something that's not so good as well: dry skin.

Too much sun can hurt your skin. Sun combined with salt water, chlorine and air conditioning is a recipe for dryness. Especially vulnerable is the face. Facial skin is highly sensitive and perhaps the most exposed part of the body. Fortunately there are a few things you can do to take care of the skin you're in all season long.

- Clean gently with a non-alkaline, non-soap cleanser such as Dove beauty bar. With one-quarter moisturizing cream, it won't dry skin the way soap can.

- During and after sunbathing and exercise, drink plenty of water or other liquid such as fruit juices to restore moisture. Alcohol, a drying agent, should be taken in moderation if at all, especially during hot weather.

- Maintain a well-balanced diet that includes fruits, vegetables and other foods rich in vitamins and minerals lost through perspiration but vital to supply skin.
- Limit exposure to the sun to early morning and late afternoon when the rays are not as strong as they are at midday. Build your tanning gradually, starting with ten to 20 minutes a day.

- Watch out for ultraviolet rays reflected from sand, beach umbrellas and water. These rays also come through water and clouds so use a sunscreen while swimming and cover up even on overcast days.

Follow these ideas throughout the warm weather months and you'll have a better chance at a healthy complexion the following fall.

MWRA Game Plan: Compromise, Stall Vote

Cerasoli's district includes the Fore River shipyard.

On Tuesday, Morrissey said he was "getting closer" to working out a compromise.

He said Quincy is in a position of bargaining strength since there are enough votes in the House to postpone the vote which in turn could affect the project's financing.

"Roxbury knows Quincy has the votes to postpone the override vote. If we postpone it, that would give them a hard time in terms of financing the project," Morrissey said.

Terms of a possible compromise have not yet been drafted. "What we're aiming for is some substantial presence of the Authority at the shipyard," Morrissey said.

Amount the conditions that Morrissey is seeking are:

- Relocation of part of the MWRA's operations at the shipyard.

- Give Quincy control over the distribution of surplus property at the site. Thirty-five acres have been freed up now that sludge composting has been ruled out.

- Restrictions on composting and incineration.

Morrissey said these restrictions have been given preliminary approval but "we want it so that they can never compost or incinerate."

- Environmental monitoring programs.

"We're working to resolve the matter. We're trying to work out a compromise with both communities so that we both come out in a win-win situation," Morrissey said.

Tobin said he also favors postponing the vote and negotiating a compromise.

"At this point in time, I would favor a postponement. But, not because whether or not we have enough votes for an override."

"My primary concern is that we should act in everybody's best interest. If we're not satisfied, we'll resort to law suits and legislative actions," Tobin said.

As for postponing the vote, Cerasoli said a delay will hurt Quincy's chances to override the veto.

"The longer we postpone it, the less chance we have of overriding the veto," he said.

"The governor has more pork barrel stuff to offer. All we have are arguments."

"The governor is actually making deals with legislators," Cerasoli added.

However, Harold and Morrissey believe delaying the vote will help the city's cause.

"We still have enough support to postpone it. The longer the issue is around, the better it is for us."

"From a strategy point of view, the longer it's out there, the better chance we have on gaining the upper hand," Morrissey said.

Harold added, "Time is on our side."

If a compromise is worked out, Morrissey said the override vote will not pass.

If a compromise is not worked out, Morrissey said the vote could be delayed until at least mid-August or sometime this fall.

As for the chances of a successful override, Morrissey said, "We're playing catch up. We're still down some votes."

"The governor is still lobbying and the House leadership is not with us because of the tax package," he said, referring to a recent decision by Quincy and other South Shore legislators not to support House Speaker George Keverian's tax increase plan.

"When you only have a 10 vote majority, it doesn't take much to turn people," Morrissey added.

One positive development in Quincy's case for the shipyard came Monday when Inspector General Joseph Barresi urged legislators to override the governor's veto of the bill because his figures show the Quincy site likely to be $8 million cheaper than Parcel 18 in Roxbury.

He made his recommendation based on what his office described as the first independent cost analysis addressing the harbor cleanup agency's siting battle.

According to Barresi, the cheapest option, not considered by the MWRA, is to construct a new building at the Fore River Shipyard. The inspector general also urged the override based on irregularities in the process leading to the Authority's Roxbury decision last May.

An override would represent "a reasonable legislative restraint on irresponsible conduct by the authority," he wrote in a letter to Senate President William Bulger and Keverian.

Harold said the inspector general's letter reinforces Quincy's position and gives credence to the city's argument.

The letter shows that Quincy is clearly the less expensive of the two sites and that the MWRA violated the state bidding process, the senator said.

"The inspector general was very forceful in tone but his letter also clarifies our position and the cost issue once and for all."

"This is the first time he has gotten involved in an issue this controversial. The fact that he's become involved is quite significant. He's never done that," Harold said.

Keough Gets $47,000 Community Educator Coordinator Position

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A divided City Council approved the hiring of a community educator coordinator at a salary of $47,000 Monday night.

By a 6-3 vote, the council okayed the hiring of former Quincy Junior College Associate Dean Arthur Keough as the coordinator. His principal responsibility will be to apply for state, federal and private grants which would help finance new and existing programs for all newcomers in the city, especially Asians.

Keough is regarded by many officials, including Mayor Francis McCauley, as experienced and well-qualified for the job. Last year, he wrote grants totaling $275,000 in state money while this year he has applied for and received $147,000 in state money.

Some councillors and the mayor believe Quincy needs a full-time grant-writer in order to help the city meet the needs of its large Asian population. The job can be quite successful. On an average, 25 percent of grants applied for are approved, Keough said.

Councillors supporting the position were Michael Cheney, Lawrence Chretien, Ted DeCristofaro, Thomas Nutley, Charles Phelan and James Sheets.

Timothy Cahill, Stephen McGrath and Patricia Toland were opposed.

The majority viewed the position as an "investment" in the city's future while the minority questioned whether $47,000 is an appropriate salary.

McGrath, who called the salary "hefty," tried to cut it to $37,000. However, his motion failed to get a majority as only three councillors, Cahill, Chretien and Toland, sided with him.

The salary issue raised some interesting dialogue among councillors, especially McGrath and Sheets who are both running for mayor.

McGrath said the $47,000 salary is "an example of potential runaway spending." He advised other councillors that Quincy should learn from the state's fiscal "disaster" and examine every appropriation carefully.

"Thirty-seven thousand dollars is not a trivial amount," McGrath said, adding that excessive state spending has led to the current budget problems on Beacon Hill.

Sheets replied, "If the state had invested $47,000 to make $400,000, perhaps we wouldn't be in the mess we're in now."

Sheets also said that McCauley, a fiscal conservative, would not have created the position and approved the $47,000 salary unless he thought the job could give the city dividends.

"Frank McCauley has always run a tight fiscal ship. If Frank McCauley hadn't thought this investment was worth it, he wouldn't have sent it down to the City Council," he said.

Cheney, Nutley and Phelan also said the job is a must for Quincy.

Noting that Keough could accumulate $400,000 in state, federal or private assistance, Phelan said, "There are a lot of grants out there to be had if I think it's something we have to support," he said, especially with state aid likely to decline he added.

Nutley and Cheney agreed. "There's a desperate need for this program. Funding is being curtailed. We definitely need this grant-writing effort and I think Arthur Keough's qualifications are unmatched," Nutley said.

"If you really want to get your dollar's worth, you have to hire someone with experience. Arthur Keough has the experience and knowledge," Cheney said. "We're not just hiring any old grant-writer. This is different from a grant-writer in the Planning Department," he said.

McGrath moved to amend the salary after learning that grant writers in the Planning Department earn between $32,000 and $37,000.

During the first half of this year, Keough worked as a grant writer at Quincy Junior College, one day a week, about 24 days in all.

In not supporting the order, Cahill said his vote was not against Keough but rather against expanding city government.

"Although the cause is good, the message is wrong. I'm wary of the precedent we'll be setting," Cahill said, adding that he believes there are city employees who could do the job now. "We've hired too many people to do the same thing," he added.

Toland, who also voted against the measure, favored the $37,000 salary, calling the figure "a reasonable salary and a satisfactory compromise."

Money to fund the position will come from the city's UDAG account.

Besides grant writing, Keough will be responsible for program management and coordination and development of comprehensive programs for all newcomers to the city in three areas: survival English skills, vocational training and working training programs and citizenship as well as higher level academic programs.

McCauley selected Keough to fill the position. Some councillors were angered over the mayor's refusal to advertise the job.

"The mayor has not put his best foot forward. If he did, he would have advertised the position and used the affirmative action process," Chretien said.

Mr. Palermo died July 12.

He is survived by his wife, Cheryl E. (Bower) Palermo; two sons, Roger T. Palermo Jr. of Quincy and Anthony Palermo of Dracut; three daughters, Nichole S. Palermo of Quincy, Deborah L. Moran of Dracut and Crystal M. Palermo of Texas; his mother, Mabel G. (Morill) Palermo of Maine; a brother, John Palermo of Dorchester; two grandchildren and several nieces and nephews. He was the son of the late Samuel A. Palermo.

Vincent Buonfiglio, 82 Owned Funeral Home

A funeral mass for Vincent Buonfiglio, 82, of Milton, formerly of Quincy, former owner of the Buonfiglio Funeral Home in Quincy, was celebrated July 15 at St. Elizabeth's Church, Milton.

Mr. Buonfiglio died July 12 at Quincy Hospital after suffering a heart attack.

He retired in 1983 after operating funeral homes in Quincy for 50 years. His first home was on School St. and in 1941 he moved to 116 Franklin St. That home is now the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, operated by Michael Bolea.

The son of Italian immigrants who were both funeral directors, he grew up in Schenectady, N.Y., and completed high school there.

His mother was the first woman to be licensed as a funeral director in the state of New York.

A former resident of Revere, he graduated from the New England School of Anatomy in Boston in 1929 and became a licensed funeral director.

He later moved to Quincy with his wife, Lydia (Baguolo) Buonfiglio, and lived there until moving to Milton in 1967.

An accomplished musician, Mr. Buonfiglio enjoyed playing drums from the time he was a youngster.

He also liked to travel, visiting Europe, California, Las Vegas and the Caribbean.

In 1983, he and Mrs. Buonfiglio were honored at a 50th anniversary party at the Lantana in Randolph. Some 250 friends helped them celebrate.

He was a member of the Quincy Lodge of the Sons of Italy, the John Adams Club, Quincy Adams Club, Quincy Elks Lodge, St. John's Senior Citizens and the Massachusetts Funeral Directors Association.

He is survived by a daughter, Diane Tenaglia of Hanover; a brother, Dr. Arnold Buonfiglio of Revere; three sisters, Anna Tanguoso of Melrose, and Elvie Curtis and Mary Dellaquila, both of Revere; and two grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Mr. Nicholson died July 14 in Crestview Nursing Home, Quincy, after a long illness.

He retired in 1984 after more than 30 years with the Globe. He owned the hardware store on Montclair Ave. from 1957 to 1972.

A flight officer in the Army Air Corps during World War II, he was a member of the World War II Glider Pilots Association and Braintree Disabled American Veterans.

An avid sailor who had spent many weekends on his boat, he was a member of the Savin Hill Yacht Club.

Mr. Nicholson was a member of the Boston Globe Bowling League and Stream and Forest Club, a conservation club. Born in Boston, he lived there before moving to Quincy 45 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Beryl J. "Bee" (Craft) Nicholson; two sons, James R. Nicholson of Abington and Richard V. Nicholson of Greenville, Texas; two daughters, Donna C. Flanagan of Little Rock, Ark., and Jane F. Hult of Quincy; a brother, Robert G. Nicholson of Quincy; three sisters, Grace Dauphinee, Marjorie E. Sweeney and Virginia E. Behm, all of Quincy; and 12 grandchildren. He was the father of the late John "Jack" H. Nicholson and the brother of the late Paul B. Nicholson and Warren G. Nicholson.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St. Wollaston.

Donations may be made to the memorial fund of Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, 15 Harvard St. North Quincy, MA 02171.

William E. Murphy, 64 World War II Veteran

A funeral Mass for William E. Murphy, 64, of Quincy and Fort Lauderdale, a World War II Navy Veteran, was celebrated Monday in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point.

Mr. Murphy died July 14 at Massachusetts General Hospital.

He was an electrician for the B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. for 21 years before retiring.

Born and educated in Cambridge, he lived in Braintree 10 years, Waltham 15 years and in Cambridge before moving to Quincy three years ago. He spent the winter in Fort Lauderdale for 20 years.

He is survived by his wife, Rita M. (Per) Murphy; two daughters, June M. Janovsky of Braintree and Janet M. Black of Lakeville; two brothers, Leo Murphy of Somerville and Francis Murphy of Cambridge; two sisters, Mary Savill of Arlington and Anna Panilla of Somerville; six grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

She moved with her husband to Quincy 65 years ago.

She is survived by her husband, Thomas L. L. Williamson; a son, Thomas Hall Williamson of Quincy; a daughter, Nancy Thornton of Schenectady, N.Y. and five grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the Memorial Fund of the Memorial Congregational Church of Atlantic.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Are you a truly tolerant person? Too often in our fast-paced world many people believe that tolerance consists in the attitude of "I will go my way and you will go your way and let us not annoy one another with dissent or argument." Is this true tolerance? Hardly.

Couldn't it be said that a truly tolerant person is one who does have firm convictions of his own and believes in the finality of these beliefs, and because of these beliefs being very precious to him, readily recognizes the disposition of other men to do the same? Yes, true tolerance is a vigorous matter, intellectually defensible and capable of bringing forth much good fruit. Yes, true tolerance is a positive and cordial effort to understand the beliefs, practices and habits of others without sharing or accepting them. Just as no two stars or no two snowflakes are identical so did God make men and women individual personalities with specific temperaments.

A great thinker centuries gave us the only formula that will ever work: "In essentials, unity; in things doubtful, tolerance; in all things, love."

Wollaston, N. Quincy Traffic Changes In Effect Next Week

Several significant traffic changes are being implemented in the area bounded by Beale St., West Squantum St., Newport Ave. and Highland Ave. announces Ward 3 Councilor Lawrence Chretien.

The changes have been approved by the City Council and should be in effect within the next week.

- The changes are:
- Farrington St. will be one-way northbound from Beale St. to Holbrook Rd.
- Safford and Fayette Sts.

will be one-way southbound from West Squantum St. to Brook St.

The pattern of stop signs will be changed so that signs are placed at every intersection on streets that run north and south.

Stop signs currently on east-west streets will be removed except at the following intersections which will have three-way stop signs: Farrington and Elmwood, Farrington and North Central, Farrington and Hobart, Farrington and Wilson and Brook and Highland.

Traffic signals on Newport Ave. will be modernized.

According to Chretien, the Quincy Traffic Commission believes the plan will benefit residents by improving public safety and discouraging commuters from cutting through the neighborhood.

The Commission recommended the plan in response to four public meetings held from last March to this May and a survey sent to residents this March.

"Although you may not be in complete support of the traffic plan," Chretien told residents in a letter. "Please understand that it is based on opinions of a large majority of interested neighborhood residents."

"If it appears that the plan needs modifying after a reasonable amount of time, changes can be made," he said.

Residents with questions or comments concerning the plan should call Chretien at 472-1400 or the Traffic Department at 479-1212.

QHS, Vo-Tech Program Evaluation Study Continues

Staff and administrators at Quincy High and Quincy Vocational Technical Schools are continuing a study to determine appropriate educational programs for Quincy's students.

This is in preparation for a full-scale evaluation by the Commission on Public Secondary Schools of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

Results of that evaluation will determine whether the accreditation to both schools will be renewed and extended.

Reports are complete after a ten-month study which considered each course offered in both schools, following a statistical survey of the characteristics of the community and schools.

"We think we are a better school because of the study which identified areas we need to approve," said Lloyd Hill, principal of Quincy High School, in a joint statement with Joseph A. Mazzarella, Director of Quincy Vocational Technical School.

'Emptiness' Sermon Topic At Bethany

During the summer at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, there is only one worship service, at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach this Sunday, on the theme "Emptiness". Lay scripture reader will be Corinne Mikami.

The special music will be provided by a quartet composed of Sylvia Byrkman, soprano; Suzanne Wright, alto; Win Bettinson, tenor; and Tom Newton, bass, all four of whom are members of Bethany's chancel choir. Charles J. Blue Sr. will be at the organ console.

The Church School is not in session during the summer. Child care is provided for children from birth through kindergarten during the worship hour.

The service is broadcast live direct from the sanctuary at 10 a.m. on radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

A fellowship will be held in the Allen Parlor at 11 a.m. immediately following the worship service. Individuals and families from the area are cordially invited to share in both the worship and fellowship.

For additional information concerning Bethany's ministries and program, please contact the church office at 479-7300.

Rev. Gordon Benson In Final Sermon At Covenant

Rev. Gordon Benson, interim pastor since April 30 at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., will preach his final sermon at the church on Sunday at the 10 a.m. worship.

He will be succeeded in the pastorate by Rev. Curt Johnson.

Rev. Benson will conclude his series on "Thriving or 'Surviving'" with the topic, "Thriving: Having a Sense of Grace." Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude. Kenneth Nelson will sing a solo.

A nursery is available for children age five and under. The attendant will be Ida Taylor. Greeters will be Eleanor Kruse and Luisa Dano.

Immediately following the service a coffee hour will be held in Person Hall. These are hosted by various church families.

Vacation Day Camp begins at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, July 19. The sessions will last until noon, with a snack served at 10:30. The theme this year is "The Lord is my Shepherd." There will be videos and related activities as well as crafts.

For more information about any of the church's activities, please call the church office at 479-5728.

RSVP Has Two Volunteer Openings

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program has two volunteer opportunities in Quincy for people interested in helping retired seniors keep active and busy.

They are:

• Day program needs assistance with mentally retarded individuals.

Volunteers are needed a few hours a week to teach a craft class, such as sewing, knitting or crocheting.

Free parking, travel reimbursement and free lunches are provided. Convenient North Quincy location.

• Volunteers needed two to three hours a week who enjoy shopping. A young blind woman in Quincy needs assistance with her grocery shopping, either nights or weekends.

A car is necessary. Those interested in volunteering should call Valerie or Pat at the RSVP office, 479-8181.

30 To Compete For Miss Quincy Bay Title

Thirty contestants will compete for the title of Miss Quincy Bay of 1989 and some $2,500 in prizes Friday at 7:30 p.m.

For the seventh straight year, the beauty pageant, the highlight of the annual downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar, will be staged at Quincy Center Plaza, corner of Hancock and Granite Sts.

The new queen, to be crowned by last year's winner, Dawn Larkin of Weymouth, will reign over the 52nd Quincy Bay Race Week Aug. 2-6.

She will also receive the largest share of pageant prizes. The four runners-up will also receive a portion of the prizes which include jewelry, gift certificates and savings bonds.

In addition, the new Miss Quincy Bay will receive a $1,000 scholarship from Quincy Junior College.

Music for the pageant will be provided by Baron Hugo and his orchestra.

Bernie Reisberg will be the emcee.

The pageant will feature a choreographed tribute to the United States. All the contestants will dance to several patriotic songs.

There will be five judges: Renee Vardaro, Miss Quincy Bay of 1987; Peggy Seahill of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association; Dr. O. Clayton Johnson, president of Quincy Junior College; Ronald Zooleck, executive director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; and Ted Johnson, president of Quincy Bay Race Week.

CPA Richard Corner will tabulate the scores.

In case of inclement weather, the pageant will be held Saturday at 6 p.m. at Quincy Center Plaza.

The pageant is co-sponsored by the QCPBA and Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

Contestants, South Shore single girls ages 16 and over, will be judged in evening gowns and swimsuit competition.

They will be escorted by commodores of yacht clubs associated with Quincy Bay Race Week.

Morrisette Ready For Playoffs

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team defeated Holbrook, 4-1, Monday night to clinch at least second place behind Braintree in Zone 6 play.

Morrisette has a 14-3 record with only a replay of a game at Braintree last night (Wednesday) while Braintree (12-0) still had six games to play.

Milton and Mass Tire, each with a 9-5 record, are battling for the third and fourth playoff spots.

The playoffs are scheduled to open Friday night with Morrisette expected to play Mass Tire or Milton.

Kevin MacDougall pitched another strong game against Holbrook to improve to 4-1, as Morrisette won its sixth game in a row. He pitched three-hit ball, struck out eight and walked three. The only run was unearned.

Morrisette had only three hits but took advantage of Holbrook errors to score its four runs. It scored a run in the first without a hit and three in the second on doubles by Kevin MacDougall and Tony Anderlonis. Brian Taylor had the only other hit.

Billy MacDougall made an outstanding catch in center field for Morrisette.

Last Saturday, Morrisette edged Randolph, 4-3, as Eric DeBoer pitched a three-hitter and struck out 14, including the first nine batters he faced. However, in improving to 5-2 (only losses were to Braintree, 1-0 and Milton, 2-1, both on unearned runs), he had to get out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the last inning to survive.

According to scorer-statistician Richard "Berger" Ryan, DeBoer has struck out 76 in 44 innings and has an outstanding 0.64 ERA.

Morrisette scored four unearned runs in the fourth on two hits, one an RBI single by Billy MacDougall, three walks, two errors and two wild pitches.

Randolph scored twice in its half on a hit, two walks and an infield out. In the seventh Randolph had an infield hit and two walks and a run scored on an infield out.

Billy MacDougall had two hits, Bob McDonald two hits and two walks and Jeff Calvert, Anderlonis, Rob Cinquegrano and Jimmy Glynn a hit apiece.

In its previous game Morrisette defeated Quincy, 10-5, despite a bad night in the field.

Morrisette led, 3-1, only to have Quincy score three runs as starter Garry Rawdon had a wild streak and his mates came up with five errors. Billy Warren relieved, put out the fire and pitched 4 2/3 innings to pick up his third win against no losses. He gave up two hits and a run, struck out three and walked three.

Peter McLoughlin was the loser for Quincy, going all the way. Taylor had a triple and single and three RBI, Mike Baylis a double and single and three RBI, Billy MacDougall two hits, Anderlonis two and McDonald and Kevin MacDougall one each.

For Quincy, Rich Burns had two hits and an RBI, and Nick Dragone, Mike Toland and Mike Connor one each.

Earlier Morrisette topped Canton, 5-1, turning in its best defensive game of the year as Kevin MacDougall continued his fine pitching.

It took a fine running catch in left field by Dan Ryan and three outstanding plays by Cinquegrano to help MacDougall stay out of trouble.

Kevin and Billy MacDougall combined for five of Morrisette's 10 hits as Bill went 3-for-4 with a triple and an RBI and Kevin went 2-for-4 with a double and an RBI. Ryan had two hits and McDonald, Anderlonis and George Rosanitis one each.

GARY RAWDON has been pitching well for the Morrisette Legion baseball team, which has a 14-3 record and is assured of second place in Zone 6.

• Pub Softball Zurom Powers Point To 10th

The Point Pub men's softball team defeated Granite Rail, 8-7, on Dave Zurom's home run in the eighth inning for its 10th win in a row.

Point moved into a three-way tie with Granite Rail and Putnam Investments for first place in the "C" Division of the Quincy Men's Softball League with a 15-3 record.

Point raced out to a 7-1 lead but Granite Rail battled back to tie the score. Zuroms, the team's MVP for the second straight game, unloaded his powerful homer on the first pitch. He also had a single and played strong defense.

Chuck Sullivan had two hits and pitched well in gaining his 12th win. Bob Ianello had two hits and an RBI, Steve Constatas two hits, and Daren Zemp, Mark Glynn, Alton Freeman, Bob Kane and Brian Beliveau all had hits.

John McKay led Granite Rail with an inside the park home run and a triple and also pitched well. Mike Conon, Dave Morrocco, Mark Hubbard, Brian Cosby and Scott Mele all had hits.

In its previous game, Point Pub topped Putnam Investments, 13-9.

Sullivan, the team captain and leading batter, had another fine game and pitched well. Zuroms went 3-for-3, had three RBI, played well at shortstop and started two double plays, one ending the game.

Freeman, Paul Ratti, Mike Bates, Constatas, P.J. Hussey and John Loceniak had hits and played well on defense.

For Putnam, George Reese had a home run, his league-leading 11th of the year, and played well at third base. Bob Lynch had three hits and Jim Luciano had a three-run homer.

The standings: Point Pub, Granite Rail and Putnam Investments, 15-3; PIP Printing, 8-8; Continental Cable, 9-10; Luke's Lounge, 7-10; Washington Tap, 6-10; Hat Rack, 5-11; Sagamore T.T., 3-12; Sagamore P.O., 1-14.

• Babe Ruth Baseball

Malvesti Key As Bryan Sweeps

Bryan VFW Post improved its Babe Ruth League record to 16-4 with wins over Barry's Deli, Firemen and Houghs Neck.

Mike Malvesti played key roles in all wins with his pitching and hitting.

Bryan defeated Barry's 9-3, as Steve Loud pitched a two-hitter and struck out seven. Rob Kane had two singles, stole two bases, scored three runs and was outstanding at shortstop.

Malvesti had two hits including a key hit in the first inning which drove in two runs. Joe Marnikovic (two hits) produced the big hit with a bases-loaded double in the fourth inning. Loud, Mark Kelleher, Tom Nutley and Rich Gorman all had singles. For Barry's, Chris Peck and Jeff Craig had singles.

Bryan topped Firemen, 9-5, as Malvesti struck out seven.

Kelleher led the attack with four hits, including a double. Paul Murphy doubled and singled, Loud tripled and Malvesti and Marnikovic doubled. Nutley and Jeff Breslin had singles. Nutley made an excellent catch in centerfield and Terry Sheehan, Phil Bell, Bill Morrissey and Sean Skahan all contributed to the win.

Jason Radzevich, Tom Courtney, Duane Holmes, Mike Wood, Sergi Wassiliew and Mike Kenney had hits for the Firemen.

Bryan edged Houghs Neck, 8-7, as Marnikovic pitched five-hit ball and struck out six. Matt O'Toole pitched well for HN.

Bryan scored twice in the second on a double by Malvesti (two hits) and a single by George Wirtz (two hits). HN tied it in the third on Garrett Butkuss' double.

Bryan took a 6-2 lead in the fourth on hits by Wirtz, Murphy and Portesi, all of whom scored on Kane's bases-clearing triple. Kelleher also had a double.

HN picked up a run in the fifth and rallied in the sixth to take a 7-6 lead on key hits by Jim Gately (two hits) and Matt Fratolillo.

HN threatened in the seventh on Brian Connolly's double and had the bases loaded, but Marnikovic started a home-to-first double play to end the inning.

Bryan then scored twice in its half to win it as Kelleher stole two bases and scored the tying run on Nutley's long double. Nutley scored the winner on Malvesti's single.

Quincy Youth Arena Wins Bay State Games

The $100,000 renovations to the Quincy Youth Arena paid off handsomely for both the arena and the Bay State Games.

Bay State Game officials were left without a rink after complaints over the soft ice at the Burlington Arena a year ago.

Bay State Games executive director, Doug Arnot, came to Quincy and reviewed the proposed alterations. It was agreed the Quincy arena was the perfect location for the Games' ice hockey games.

The renovations include new boards, tempered glass and the painting of the entire inside of the rink.

"It's a major move," said arena manager Beverly Reinhardt. "Before the changes, the boards had a lot of personality and everyone knew where a puck would come off. I hope a new one will develop. The tempered glass is the biggest difference. It's five times better. It's crystal clear."

Thanks to the alterations, some of the outstanding schoolboy hockey players in the state played in Quincy three days last week.

The teams were split into six divisions, Southeast, Northeast, Coastal, Central, Metro and West.

In the championship game Sunday, Southeast defeated Coastal, 5-2, after losing to the same team, 10-6, earlier.

In the third place game, Metro topped Northeast, 8-6. Good crowds attended the games and the visiting coaches and players all were impressed with the Youth Arena.

Campbell, Reaney Scotch Foursome Winners

The Ponkapoag Golf Course Ladies' Inner Club joined with the men's Inner Club and hosted a nine-hole mixed Scotch foursome tournament.

First place honors went to Warren Campbell and Helen Reaney with a net 32, Pete Peters and Mary Lou Burke were tied for second with Rich Carlton and Joan Morton at 33 and Lou Vitti and Charlotte Dickie were fourth at 36.

A long-short "run" tournament for nine holes was won by the team of Nancy Carlton and Mary Michaels, Stephanie Rizza and Charlotte Dickie were second and Debbie Hodges and Sally Barr, Pat Fitzgerald and Joan Morton tied for third place.

Winner of a best six-of-nine holes tournament was Ginnie VanSchnel, with Thelma Berman second and Sandy Magler third. Winner of a best 12-of-18 holes event was Debbie Hodges with Sue Reyroft second and Nancy Carlton and Stephanie Rizza tied for third.

A special clinic will be held each Tuesday morning before the Ladies' Inner Club tournament. The clinic is conducted by Jim Hanlon, who has joined the staff of club pro Jack Neville.

Vacation Travel Tips

Part II

As we told you last week, you are more vulnerable to theft, robbery and assault while you are traveling away from home.

The following is the second part of a two part series giving you sensible precautions to take while away on vacation.

- When you stop at a hotel or motel you should determine the most direct route to and from your room, the most direct route to the fire escapes, elevators and nearest phone. Linger in the hallways or other isolated areas is an invitation to assault.

- When in your room use all auxiliary locking devices on doors and windows. Don't rely on chains only as a deterrent. Use the door viewer to identify anyone requesting entry, before you open the door. Then open the door only if you are certain the person has legitimate reason to enter your room. If in doubt, call the hotel/motel office.

- Once you are in your room, unpack and place your belongings in the closet and dresser. Lock and stow empty suitcases so that they can't be used to carry your property out of your room. Take your valuables and place them in the hotel/motel safe.

- Never take valuables to the beach. Always lock them in the hotel/motel safe, that's what it is for.

- Be alert when you travel in hallways, elevators or parking lots. Report anyone who appears suspicious to the hotel/motel security people.

- When you are by yourself don't enter an elevator with anyone who arouses your suspicions. If someone you are not sure about gets on the elevator with you, wait to signal your destination until after they get off, even if it means riding all the way back to the lobby. Stand close to the control panel so you can reach the emergency alarm if necessary. Have a friend or the hotel/motel security person walk with you to your car if it is parked in a dark area. You can drop the person back at the main entrance.

With these tips we hope that you have a safe trip. Remember: Common sense and caution can help crooks and make your travel safe and leisurely.

Home Run Road Race Aug. 19

The 10th Annual Home Run 10-kilometer road race, sponsored by Wollaston Credit Union and Barry's Deli, will be run Thursday, Aug. 19, at 7 p.m., starting and finishing at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Entry fee for the event, which benefits the Quincy Youth Commission, is $6 prior to the race and $7 the day of the race.

The official starter will be Jay Miller, formerly of the Boston Bruins and now of the Los Angeles Kings.

Awards will include three get-away weekends for two, awarded to the first male, first female and first wheelchair finishers.

Medals will go to division finishers and all runners are eligible for a merchandise raffle. The first 400 registered runners will receive T-shirts.

Mets Explode, Knock Dodgers Out

The Mets exploded for eight runs in the last inning to overcome a 4-2 deficit and defeat the Dodgers, 10-6, knocking the Dodgers out of the Triple A Baseball League playoffs.

The winning pitcher was Robby Churchill, who struck out 15. He also hit his third home run of the year to bring in the winning runs.

Churchill and Jason Bernier had multiple hit games. Steve Gilead had a double, Mike Uddy a triple and Joe Barry a double. Terrence Roche had a strong game defensively for the Mets.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Give Your Kitchen Excitement With Wood Mouldings

Looking for an inexpensive way to add eye-popping appeal to any room in your home?

If so, decorative wood moulding may be your answer.

Wood mouldings are among the least expensive, most versatile, readily available and easy to use building products, according to Georgia-Pacific Corporation, the nation's leading manufacturer and distributor of building materials.

The earliest recorded use of wood moulding was to hide poorly fitted joints in crudely built structures. Ancient Greeks elevated mouldings to an art form and embellished their classic columns with them.

Today, wood mouldings are enjoying renewed popularity as easy do-it-yourself projects to enhance a home's appeal. The uses for decorative mouldings are practically endless.

Mouldings give rooms a finished look. They add depth and interest to walls, ceilings, doors, windows, cabinets, or even fireplaces. And keep in mind that wood moulding applications need not be limited to large-scale projects.

Moulding can provide the crowning touch to wainscoting, decorative wall panels, room dividers, planters, picture frames, trellis work and even toys. The use of moulding is limited only by your imagination.

There are also many practical applications. Base mouldings protect walls from being damaged by mops and brooms; chair rails protect walls from being dented by carelessly-moved chairs and furniture.

You can be as creative as you wish with decorative mouldings. Apply them vertically, horizontally, diagonally, or combined with paneling, wallpaper or fabrics.

Stain wood mouldings to bring out their rich grains and textures. Or paint them to blend or contrast with their surroundings.

Other exciting decorating ideas with wood mouldings can be found in G-P's 24-page color booklet, "Moulding Makes It More...". The booklet shows a variety of moulding styles used throughout the house and also offers instructions showing how to measure, install and finish your own moulding project.

Send $3 to "Moulding Makes It More...", Georgia-Pacific Corporation, Dept. HITM, P.O. Box 2808, Norcross, GA 30091.

For the G-P Registered Dealer or Home Center nearest you, call 800-477-2882.

Beautiful, Durable And Simple Way To Decorate Outside And Inside

You can easily beautify your home interiors or exteriors with decorative brick and stone from Z-Brick Brands. Easy to install products from Z-Brick provide the consumer with the best of several worlds in a variety of current decorating textures and colors in products designed for the Do-It-Yourselfer.

Z-Brick decorative wall coverings provide a look of permanence at a fraction of the cost of traditional masonry while providing the elegance, ease of maintenance and durability. Recent product introductions like the Americana line of decorative brick are offered in colors and textures designed to coordinate with today's styles and colors.

The ease with which Z-Brick is installed is one of its greatest advantages. The adhesive is also the mortar which eliminates some additional steps required by other similar products. Simply spread the adhesive, press the brick or stone in place, and smooth the mortar lines with a brush supplied in the installation kit and your new "brick" or "stone" wall is finished. It will last a lifetime. For added protection and easier maintenance you can add a protective seal coat with Z-Sealer.

Z-Brick is also great for outdoors. You can give your home that added touch and style associated with brick and stone since all Z-Brick stone and brick can be used outdoors in all kinds of climates.

All Z-Brick products are listed with Underwriter's Laboratories and have a Class I fire rating which indicates that they are safe to use around and behind today's wood burning stoves and fireplaces. All of the adhesive mortars are non-toxic as well.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Lattice For Timeless Elegance Combined With New Utility

Lattice, in both square and diagonal pattern, has long been associated with fine gardens and outdoor living areas of the well-to-do. It was used in the formal gardens that surrounded the elegant Georgian homes of Revolutionary days, and continued popular throughout the last century. Now it is enjoying a resurgence, and is becoming widely used in homes in every price range, and in contemporary as well as traditional designs.

With its airy, classic feeling it adds a grace note to any yard, and provides the ideal background for foliage and bright floral displays. Painted white or in pale pastels, it strikes a formal note; unpainted, weathered, or in light, transparent stains, it blends with natural settings for a more casual or rustic touch.

And yet this light, elegant material is highly practical in its application. It serves to provide effective screening against wind and sun. It offers a highly effective means of assuring privacy without resorting to solid walls. It can be used overhead, to provide dappled shade. It provides attractive support for vines, climbing plants and floral baskets.

But building lattice has always been expensive and time-consuming. Good quality lattice demands good quality lumber, precision cut into smooth lath. Then the lath must be carefully and accurately assembled, painstakingly nailed at every intersection, and the assembly reinforced around the outside edges to assure rigidity. A forbidding task for most homeowners.

Now, fine quality lattice is available almost everywhere in America. Woodway Lattice, manufactured by the LWO Corporation, is available in western red cedar, redwood, pine, and treated softwoods, in a variety of sizes, thickness and styles. While this fine lattice is made of top grade lumber and to exacting manufacturing standards, it costs far less than making it yourself.

Many building material retailers offer "bargain" lattice at low prices. Most of this material is totally unsuitable for use in the home or yard where good appearance and long service is desired. It is made from low-grade wood, with many open knot-holes and splits, and is intended for applications where it will be mostly concealed or where appearance is totally unimportant.

Woodway Lattice is made for the places in the home, garden our outdoor-living area where fine appearance and durability are important. It is made in two grades: one uses clear, almost unblemished lumber; the other uses a mixture of clear lath and pieces with small, tight knots and other minor defects.

Each panel is then assembled on precision equipment, fastened securely at each intersection with a heavy rust-resistant staple driven diagonal for maximum holding power. The angle of the staple is reversed for every other intersection, providing a very strong, rack-resistant assembly. Panels are double-stapled on the outside edges where impact-resistance is most important. The staples do not penetrate through the panel, so they cannot scratch or tear.

Each sheet of Woodway Lattice carries the Quality label of the manufacturer, LWO Corporation, of Portland, Oregon, the largest manufacturer of fine lattice. It is available in diamond or square pattern, with 1 1/4 inch or 2 3/8 inch openings, and in 1/2 in. or 1 in. total thickness. The thicker version is most suitable for railings or other structural applications. Woodway Lattice is also available treated against decay, but unless the wood is likely to be in direct contact with the earth, treating is unnecessary, particularly with cedar and redwood, which are very decay-resistant.

For finishing off the edges of panels, and for joining them where panels come together, Woodway cap and divider mouldings, precision machined from the same fine woods, are also available.

With these fine lattice products now widely in stock at quality building materials dealers, you can plan to add the classic elegance of a lattice screen, or gazebo, or lath-house, or deck railing to your own home, secure in the knowledge that it will meet the high standards of quality that you have set for the important features in your life.

For more information on Woodway Quality Lattice and how to use it in and around your home, write to: LWO Corporation, Woodway Lattice Division, P.O. Box 17496, Portland, OR 97217.

Master Storyteller At Main Library July 25

The third program in the summer storytelling series at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Square will feature master storyteller Jennifer Justice Tuesday, July 25 at 7 p.m.

The program is open to children age five and older and for adults.

Although this will be her first visit to the Quincy library, Justice has performed in many other libraries, schools, business firms, even weddings.

She is a member of the area group, Storytellers in Concert, and was featured at the National Storytelling Festival in 1986. In addition, Justice won the 1987 National Education Film and Video Festival, Silver Apple Award. She also has performed at the Three Apples Storytelling Festival in Harvard.

Justice is an accomplished and dynamic storyteller who draws her audiences deep into her stories. Her repertoire is quite varied and includes ghost stories, Irish legends, fairy tales, tall tales, myths and much more. She also teaches, conducts workshops and records stories.

JENNIFER JUSTICE

The remaining programs in the summer storytelling series features Elisa Pearman Aug.

I. Doug Lipman Aug. 8 and Judith O'Hare and the You and Me Puppets Aug. 15.

North Quincy Alumni Theatre To Stage 'Brighton Beach Memoirs'

The North Quincy High School Alumni Theatre (NQAT) will present Neil Simon's comedy "Brighton Beach Memoirs" at the following times: July 20 to 22 and July 27 to 29.

Each performance will take place at 8 p.m. in the Black Box Theatre at North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St. with all tickets costing $5. "Brighton Beach Memoirs" is an autobiographical production based on Simon's teenage years in Brighton Beach, N.Y., during the early 1940's. Simon tells of the difficult and often comical escapades of his family, his first encounter with love and his overall growing pains through the character of Eugene Jerome. This is Simon's 19th play and it became a movie in 1987.

NQAT has presented plays for the last two summers. Its cast, production and technical crew consist of graduates from North Quincy High School extending back to 1983. This year's production is dedicated to the memory of Gregory Toland who formed the Alumni Theatre organization in the summer of 1987.

The cast for "Brighton Beach Memoirs" includes: Jim Phelan as Eugene; Tim McDonald as Stanley; Ashot Gheridian as Jack; Karen Perry as Kate; Kathryn Gralton as Blanche; Sheila

Miss Quincy Bay Pageant On Ch. 3 Friday

Quincy Community Television will cablecast Friday's Miss Quincy Bay Pageant on Channel 3 beginning at 6 p.m. with highlights from the three-day Quincy Center Sidewalk Bazaar.

The cablecast will also feature information on the pageant's history and highlights from the Miss Quincy Bay photo session including a closer look at this year's contestants.

The pageant has been an annual event in Quincy for 23 years and since 1984 the Quincy Community Television Council has provided lighting to make the event possible and improve cable television coverage.

Bill Earley of Quincy is this year's chairman of the Community Television Council which has been in existence since 1981.

The pageant will be rerun on Channel 3 Saturday, July 22 at 1 p.m., Sunday, July 23 at 9 p.m. and Thursday, July 27, at 8 p.m.

Sidewalk Bazaar On Ch. 3

Quincy Community Television Channel 3 will cablecast live from the annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Bazaar which begins today (Thursday) and continues through Saturday.

Channel 3 will show highlights from the day and evening events from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. all three days, and show Thursday's evening entertainment including the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant from 6 to 9 p.m.

Bazaar highlights will include interviews with special guests, local business people and public service agencies.

Live coverage will include the Ronald McDonald Show, a performance of the Quincy Community Theatre, square dancing and musical selections performed by the Quincy High School Alumni Band and the South Shore Men of Harmony.

In addition, Channel 3 representatives will be part of the Continental Cablevision booth, where prizes will be awarded throughout the day and information on cable television services and Quincy Community Television will be available.

A recap of the bazaar will be shown on Channel 3 Monday, July 24 and Tuesday, July 25.

On July 24 beginning at 4 p.m., highlights of Thursday's bazaar activities will be shown. At 7 p.m., Channel 3 will show highlights from Thursday's evening entertainment groups.

On July 25 at 4 p.m., Channel 3 will show highlights from Friday's bazaar activities and at 7 p.m., highlights from Saturday's bazaar activities will be shown.

Continental To Aid MDA With Free Month Of Service

Continental Cablevision is donating $10 to the Muscular Dystrophy Association for every new subscriber who orders cable television service now through Aug. 15.

Besides the donation for "Jerry's Kids," Continental is giving every new subscriber the first month of basic cable service free of charge, free HBO and Cinemax service for one month, free remote control and 50 percent off the usual $20 cable installation charge. The cable service/installation package is a $50 value.

"We wanted to do something to help ease the pain of children who have been or will be stricken with muscular dystrophy, while at the same time making it as financially painless as possible for Quincy residents to become Continental Cablevision subscriber," said Stephen J. Farquhar, Continental Cablevision general manager.

Those who sign up for cable service by Aug. 15, and pay the reduced $10 installation charge, are eligible for the free first-month cable service package. A $10 donation will be made in their name to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

For more information, Quincy residents should call 479-2936.

WEEK OF: July 20

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Usually quite practical and assertive; most find your leadership skills impressive, but a few think you're bossy. Academic interests are highlighted over the next six months and you may be assuming a teaching role. Several unusual travel opportunities are sprinkled over the coming year.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19
Independent acquaintance may feel shy in your presence while relatives appear decidedly frank. New project gains steam but it's up to you to maintain the momentum.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20
Independent streak starts to surface and self-confidence begins to zoom. Weekend is favorable for collecting debts and patching up a wounded friendship. Be careful with cash after Monday.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20
The letters you're waiting for may be slow in coming; by Monday it is time for you to initiate the process. Week accents mobility as you explore many diverse destinations.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22
There's a formal air to the week; the key is to be yourself among all the VIPs you meet. Relationships are more relaxed. On-again off-again travel is on once again.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21
Good week to proceed with travel and/or academic plans. Recent strategies pay off at work. An old school friend may be trying to reach you. Accounting tasks demand a thorough review.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22
Self-confidence, which has been lagging lately, begins to soar and winds up in the stratosphere by Wednesday. Use this key week for speaking your mind and planning your next moves.

LEO - July 23 - August 22
The performing arts are on tap this week, and you may be involved in a dance or drama session. Detective work pays off. Good week for research, especially if planning a major purchase.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22
Older relative may seek you out for advice on a sensitive subject. Creative energies are strong, and the week is particularly good for projects that involve your sense of design.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22
Bargain-hunting is generally favorable so long as you avoid impulsive actions. Series of invitations arrives through the week. Watch out for a tendency to put your foot in your mouth.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21
Public-speaking engagement is on the week's agenda, along with last-minute travel changes and an unexpected travel companion. Archeological projects are favored, as well as other jobs that involve digging.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22
Taking unnecessary risks is not wise, especially this week. Aloof friend is more agreeable, but relatives are generally more demanding of your time. Financial question is cleared up.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20
Much mayhem may be happening on homefront, but there's an air of festivity to it all. Explore opportunity for earning spare cash—it's really worth the time and trouble?

BORN THIS WEEK
July 20th, actress Diana Rigg; 21st, actor Don Knotts; 22nd, actor Orson Bean; 23rd, composer Ron Evans; 24th, actress Ruth Buzzi; 25th, singer Joanne Sorel; 26th, singer Mick Jagger.

Codman Negotiates Lease For Telemarketing Firm

Codman Associates has negotiated a lease for 5,300 square feet to Telemarketing Systems at One Parkingway in Quincy Center.

The lease negotiations were handled by Cara Pelle of Codman Associates.

Owned and developed by the Ricciardi Company, One Parkingway is a 47,000 square foot office building. Located across from the Quincy Center MBTA station, One Parkingway has underground parking and is within a short walking distance of many restaurants and shops.

Formerly located at 100 Newport Ave., North Quincy, Telemarketing Systems is a marketing and sales organization that conducts high volume, low cost telemarketing campaigns for their Quincy office or helps clients set up and train their own telemarketing group in-house.

The company specializes in business-to-business direct marketing programs for the financial, high tech, publishing, insurance, medical, various manufacturing and consumer industries.

Codman Associates, exclusive leasing agent for One Parkingway, is one of New England's largest brokers of office and industrial/R and D space with offices located in downtown Boston, Providence, R.I. and Nashua, N.H.

RE-MAX, Jordan Open House To Benefit Fire Destroyed Church

RE/MAX of South Shore, located in Quincy, and Jordan Homes, will present an Open House/Field Day on Sunday, July 23, to raise funds for the reconstruction of the Old South Union Meetinghouse in Weymouth which was destroyed by fire in May.

The event will be held from 2 to 6 p.m. at Heather Estates in South Weymouth, a subdivision being developed by Jordan Homes and marketed by RE/MAX. The property, at Pleasant and Ralph Talbot Sts. is the former site of the Weymouth Fairgrounds.

The main attraction of the day will be a giant hot air balloon. Visitors will be able to watch as the balloon is inflated and, at 4 p.m., tethered rides will be conducted to a height of 300 feet (weather and wind conditions permitting).

Other attractions include pony rides, clowns, a disc jockey, free gifts and refreshments. Free parking is available.

CURIOSITY SEEKERS

QUESTION: I'm trying to sell my house on my own and I'm being swamped with "curiosity seekers." How do you limit these intruders?

ANSWER: Curiosity seekers are one of the plagues which the do-it-yourself broker has to contend with. It's not only an inconvenience, but it could be a risk to open the door, day and night, to all who knock. The best solution is to place your home in the hands of a local REALTOR. He'll weed out curiosity seekers from prospects at his office, visit you only by appointment, and will always accompany prospects. On top of that, you'll probably end up with more money than selling it on your own.

MOVING IDEAS Making Your Move Less Taxing

You're moving up in the world! If you move to a new residence is job related, you may be entitled to significant tax breaks. Here's information from the experts at the Arpin Moving Institute on how to claim deductions on your moving expenses.

Turn your house hunting expenses into returns. If your move is job-related and your new job is at least 35 miles farther from your old residence than your old job was from your old residence, you may be able to deduct house hunting expenses such as travel, lodging, tolls and meals. Your qualified moving expenses would be listed as itemized deductions on Schedule A of the Federal Income Tax Return and are used in arriving at your Federal taxable income. However, during the 12 month period immediately following the move, the taxpayer must be employed full-time for at least 39 weeks. For other details and special requirements for the self-employed, contact your local IRS office.

Simple deductions for renters and owners. If you itemize on your income tax return, you can claim deductions on Schedule A of the Federal Income Tax Return. If you're a renter and are moving for employment reasons, you can claim two deductions: the cost of breaking the old lease, and the cost of securing a new lease. If you're a homeowner, you're entitled to deduct advertising costs, real estate listing fees, state transfer tax stamps and legal fees resulting from the sale or purchase of a home. Both renters and homeowners can deduct actual moving expenses which include van line services, packing material, travel, meals, tolls and temporary lodging incurred en route.

Put your capital gains into deductible form. Significant deductions can be made based on the sale of your old house and the purchase of your new one. Check with the IRS for three rules that must apply in order for you to make the deduction.

There are also deductions for home improvements and special provisions for those aged 55 and older. For more information on tax deductible moving expenses, contact your local IRS office or write the Institute for free brochures: Arpin Moving Institute, P.O. Box 1302, East Greenwich, RI 02818-0998. Or call toll-free: 1-800-323-1489.

NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in the estate of CHARLES L. PRATT, SR., late of Quincy, in said County, deceased.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the twenty-fourth account(s) of Bank of New England, N.A. and Mable F. Pratt as Trustees (the fiduciary) of the will of said deceased for the benefit of Charles L. Pratt, Jr., Mable F. Pratt and Lora M. Ginchies during their lifetimes, and thereafter for others has been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the thirtieth day of August, 1989, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

When the going gets tough...

When The MWRA directors voted to put the agency's headquarters in Roxbury, instead of Quincy - without going through the public bidding process as required by law - it was Peter O'Connell who challenged them and brought the case to the Department of Labor and Industries.

It was Peter O'Connell who brought the appeal. And it was Peter O'Connell's attorney who prepared legal briefs to defend Quincy's position. And it was Peter O'Connell who went to the hearing and testified before Labor and Industries on Quincy's behalf. Peter O'Connell alone stood up to defend Quincy.

It was Peter O'Connell who won the case when Labor and Industries ruled that The MWRA vote to locate their headquarters in Roxbury was illegal, and The Attorney General backed that decision.

Now, Quincy has a fighting chance to be treated fairly, if not in the Legislature, then in the courts.

Whatever it takes, Peter O'Connell will be there, because when the going gets tough, Peter O'Connell doesn't give speeches and wring his hands. He takes action quickly, and effectively - and he gets the job done.

Now, that's leadership. Elect

Peter O'Connell Mayor of Quincy

McCauley: Hospital May Need Subsidy

A 2-ALARM FIRE gutted an abandoned home on East Howard St., Quincy Point which resulted in injuries to two firefighters when they fell through the porch roof onto rubble below. It took nearly two hours to contain the blaze which was believed set.

Campaign Warms Up

McGrath, O'Connell Spar Over MWRA

Mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell's involvement in the MWRA headquarters siting issue has drawn criticism from at least one political rival -- Councillor Stephen McGrath -- but, praise from Mayor Francis McCauley.

"I think (O'Connell's) involvement ultimately led to the compromise agreement. I welcome citizen participation quite frankly. It was a good idea," McCauley said Tuesday.

Last week, the legislature postponed action on a compromise that would bring 300 MWRA employees to the city, rule out composting and incineration at the Fore River staging area and give Quincy some sort of mitigation package.

The legislature, now in recess, will vote on the compromise in September.

The compromise was hammered out last week by Quincy officials and Boston officials who were divided over the headquarters issue. Quincy wanted the MWRA headquarters to be located at the former General Dynamics shipyard which will be the site of the authority's sludge processing operation.

Reacting to the projected $4 million deficit and planned 200 layoffs at Quincy Hospital, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday the facility may need a city subsidy sometime in the future.

"We have enjoyed eight years of a hospital run in the black that is professionally managed. It hasn't cost the taxpayers of the city any money.

"However, it is very possible that the hospital may need a subsidy -- when, I'm not sure, but it's a possibility," McCauley said.

Hospital officials have not asked for a subsidy, the mayor added.

McCauley's remarks came one week after hospital officials announced that approximately 200 full-time employees will be laid off within the next month because of the deficit.

The primary reasons for the deficit are inadequate health care reimbursements and changing insurance regulations, said Tom Ayres, a hospital spokesman.

The reimbursements, which include state Medicaid payments and federal Medicare payments, total $3.5 million. The other half of a million dollars comes from a shortfall in the hospital's revenue line.

According to Ayres, the staff cuts will be "across the board -- there will be reductions in virtually all levels at the hospital, including management."

The reductions are expected to save the hospital $5 million over the course of the next fiscal year which begins Oct. 1, McCauley said.

This would be the first time in eight years that the hospital finishes the fiscal year with a deficit. Since the hospital management was taken over by Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) in 1981, the facility has finished on the plus side.

Both McCauley and Ayres said the hospital's financial woes are being caused by external forces, not HCA's management.

Asked if HCA should continue to operate the hospital, McCauley said, "You have to have management. I wouldn't terminate HCA."

"I think they've done a great job. Up until now, they've always operated in the black," McCauley said.

As an example of delinquent reimbursement, Ayres pointed out that the state owes Quincy Hospital $2.1 million in Medicaid payments.

He also said the hospital's financial crisis is part of a statewide problem. Since last October, almost 2,000 state hospital workers have lost their jobs, Ayres noted.

He also estimated that 60 percent of hospitals in the state are operating at a deficit level.

"I don't think this situation was largely under our control. We're dealing with a very regulatory climate."

"By and large, it was external forces that brought us to this situation," Ayres said.

McCauley added, "This will continue until the state and federal governments provide the proper reimbursements. We're getting into circumstances which, in many instances, are beyond our control."

In some instances, the hospital is called on to pick up unanticipated and additional patient costs. Ayres noted that Medicare pays for certain types of illnesses and a certain number of days of care which are set in advance.

However, if the patient requires more care and further hospitalization which Medicare did not anticipate, the hospital must pay the balance.

Hospital Situation Topic For Council Committee

There will be an informational meeting of the City Council Public Health and Hospital Committee tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

The committee will discuss the present situation at Quincy Hospital. The hospital faces a $4 million deficit and 200 employees will likely be laid off.

Merchants Pleased With Sales Weather Fails To Dampen Downtown Sidewalk Bazaar

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

This year's Quincy Center Sidewalk Bazaar lived up to its advance billing as one of the biggest and best ever.

Merchants and bazaar officials agreed this year's event was extremely successful, despite some overcast and rainy weather. In fact, the unseasonable weather coupled with bargains and entertainment provided ideal shopping conditions last Thursday and Friday.

On Saturday, the climate turned warm and sunny again, making the bazaar's final fund for everyone.

The three-day bazaar was sponsored by the Quincy Center business and Professional Association. More than 50 businesses participated, making it one of the largest, if not the largest, bazzaars ever.

Robert Colman, president of the QCBPA and owner of Colman's Sporting Goods, said the bazaar went well all around.

"I think it was successful. We had a great turnout, especially on Thursday under threatening skies. Although the day was shortened by the rain, the weather did hold out until 7:30 or 8 p.m."

"Friday was overcast and although it was cool, there was no rain. Because it was cool, the day was more adaptive to retail."

"On Saturday, the warm weather returned. We had as large a turnout on Saturday than we've had in the past," Colman said.

"All in all, we did well. As for the operation, I thought we had a good year. The people who participated indicated to me they were very happy with the results," he said.

George Riley, executive director of the QCBPA, was also pleased with the bazaar's success.

"Overall, the bazaar went very well. In hindsight, I'm glad we made the decision to go with the pageant on Friday evening. Had we not, it would have caused, to say the least, confusion."

"We're just glad the fair weather prevailed," Riley said.

The decision to stage the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant outside Friday night at Quincy Center Plaza was made by officials Friday afternoon. Because of the concern to electrical apparatus such as the lighting, the pageant was almost moved indoors to the Quincy Vocational Technical School gymnasium.

The pageant, the highlight of the bazaar, has been staged at Quincy Center Plaza for seven straight years.

Noting there were 50 booths this year, Riley said, "Most of the merchants were pleased with sales. I believe this year's bazaar must be considered one of the best ones ever."

"There were not major problems encountered. Overall, everything appeared to go extremely well," he said.

Despite the cloudy and at times threatening skies, bazaar activities went off mostly without a hitch.

"The weather did seriously dampen the audience participation of the wonderful performance by the South Shore Men of Harmony Thursday," Riley said.

Cancelled because of rain, a concert by the Quincy High School Alumni Band.

Charles Ryder, owner of Ryder's Draperies and Curtains Shop in Quincy, said the bazaar was "terrific."

"We had more volume in sales and there seemed to be more people on the street. We even ran out of some merchandise near the end."

"Surprisingly, the weather did not hurt business. In fact, Thursday was better than last year, volume wise. We were surprised by that."

"Friday was fine and Saturday was just a gorgeous day and sometimes that works against you. When the weather is really nice and warm, people tend to go to the beach."

"Saturday really turned out well for us," Ryder said.

"We seemed to have more entertainment and better responses from customers. Everyone appeared to enjoy themselves," he added.

"There were more red and white booths, there were more activities on the street and there were more people, especially Saturday which really surprised us."

"It showed that people really wanted to come down to the bazaar," he said.

The many attractions and features turned Hancock St. from Granite to School St. into a carnival atmosphere. In addition to the bargains, there were demonstrations, face painting, kids rides and entertainment.

"I had no problems. It was great. And next year, it'll be great. And next year, it'll be even better," Cohen said.

HUNDREDS OF SHOPPERS move along Hancock Street between Granite and School Streets during last week's downtown Sidewalk Bazaar.

FOUR YEAR-OLD Chris Maloney is ready to ride as he sits on a Quincy Police motorcycle during the recent Quincy Center Sidewalk Bazaar.

RITA STEBBINS, age 13, is entertained by Geeeeee Wizz of the South Shore Joys during last week's Quincy Center Annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

Drug, Alcohol Treatment Unit Approved At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital received state approval Tuesday to open a 15-bed drug and alcohol treatment unit on the sixth floor of the hospital's west wing.

The approval came from the Public Health Council, the policymaking arm of the state Department of Public Health, after a staff analysis by the department. The staff analysis determined a need for the program. The services to be offered include detoxification, medical care, individual counseling, peer support groups and family programs. In addition, hospital doctors will receive substance abuse education and training.

Called the addictions treatment unit, it will be created by the conversion of 15 medical and surgical beds. The health department has reportedly determined a surplus in medical-surgical beds, while there is a need for additional drug treatment centers in the state.

Since 1983 the hospital has been working with the Quincy Detox Center, next door to the hospital, in the medical and surgical treatment of detox patients. The cooperation will continue with the new unit.

Flynn and other Boston officials want the headquarters to be sited in Roxbury to help boost development in that neighborhood.

O'Connell, a developer and businessman, entered the headquarters issue earlier this summer when he requested the state Department of Labor and Industries to look into the selection of Roxbury because he said it was a violation of state anti-corruption and bidding and constructing laws.

The department agreed and ruled the authority's contract with Roxbury was void. Aided by the prospect of an O'Connell-financed state lawsuit that would enforce the order, O'Connell and Quincy legislators tried to bring the MWRA and its 900 employees to Quincy.

A bill to do that passed the House and Senate but was vetoed by the governor. A legislative override was expected to come down to the wire.

Noting that support for the override was deteriorating, McCauley said, "If (O'Connell) hadn't gotten involved, we would have lost the override and that would have been the end of the ball game."

The compromise and O'Connell's involvement have irritated Councillor McGrath, a candidate for mayor. McGrath has charged that O'Connell's involvement sets a "very bad precedent" because it encourages private citizens to negotiate on the city's behalf.

PETER O'CONNELL

STEPHEN McGRATH

"I just don't think it's very wise to have private individuals negotiating on behalf of the city of Quincy. I think it sets a very bad precedent," McGrath said.

"It seems to, I think, get into waters here I think we would just as soon stay out of. We have elected representatives and a senator to do those types of things for us," he said. However, McCauley disagreed.

"I welcome participation. I think it's helped the city of Quincy's position. (The compromise) gives Quincy just about everything we wanted from the MWRA."

McGrath said the city should not compromise and instead should support the attorney general and inspector general who have ruled that the MWRA's choice of Roxbury is illegal.

"In any event, I feel the decision by the attorney general should stand, that the original siting decision is illegal and there shouldn't be any compromise," he said.

However, O'Connell said that with the compromise, Quincy is now almost guaranteed that some of the MWRA's employees will work in Quincy near the sludge operation.

Furthermore, O'Connell criticized McGrath for not acting on the issue when he was city council president two years ago. The MWRA bought the shipyard two years ago.

"It saddens me because the very individual who is questioning why a private citizen would be involved in this MWRA action was actually the president of the City Council who let the MWRA into the city in the first place."

"I think he (McGrath) should be ashamed of that action and I think now he should be more silent when I have stepped into the picture and defended the city of Quincy with my own efforts, my own intelligence and resources," O'Connell said.

Boston Man In Good Condition After Jump

A 25-year old South Boston man was listed in good condition at Quincy Hospital Tuesday after sustaining lower back injuries when he jumped 150 feet into Swingle's Quarry Saturday morning.

Joseph Mulvaney called for help after jumping into the water in the quarry and apparently hurting his back on impact, according to officials.

His brother-in-law, Jeffrey Connors, 26, also of South Boston, dove into the water after hearing Mulvaney's call for help. Connors was able to pull Mulvaney from the water to the shore, but could not move him up the steep, rocky ledge of the quarry. They waited together for help to arrive.

Two unidentified companions called authorities for help and then apparently fled, according to Quincy Police Officer Ronald Johnson.

Authorities said the men appeared to have been drinking alcohol before the 10:20 a.m. incident.

Quincy firefighters, police and Metropolitan District Police then performed a daring rescue using ropes and harnesses to pull Mulvaney out of the quarry. The rescue, led by the fire department, took nearly two hours, officials said.

Connors, who was not injured, was arrested and charged with trespassing in the off-limits quarry when he was brought up from the quarry shore after Mulvaney was rescued. Connors was later released on $15 bail.

Mulvaney will also face trespassing charges, officials said.

The two evidently had to scale a six-foot fence which was posted as off-limits before entering the quarry, officials said.

Health Care Law To Cost City $48,723 A Year

The Health Security Act of 1988, commonly referred to as the Universal Health Care Law, will cost the city of Quincy $48,723 each year beginning in 1990, according to State Auditor Joseph DeNucci.

In all, the law will cost cities and towns across the state $3.2 million, DeNucci said.

The new law requires employers, including cities and towns, to pay a percentage of each employee's wages to a state trust fund which would then be used to purchase medical insurance for the unemployed.

The auditor's ruling is the result of a petition by the city of Boston to DeNucci's Division of Local Mandates to determine whether the new law contravenes the mandate provisions of Proposition 2½, which requires the state to fully fund all new state laws and regulations imposing a financial obligation on cities and towns.

The law requires employers with six or more employees to pay the state one-twelfth of one percent of each employee's wages. The law also establishes $14,000 as the upper limit on wages subject to the contributions, and is effective on wages paid after Jan. 1, 1990.

DeNucci's ruling by itself does not relieve Boston of the duty to comply with this requirement of the law. "However," he explained, "cities and towns may seek exemption under Proposition 2½ from this unfunded state mandate in superior court."

"In such a court challenge the state auditor's determination is prima facie evidence of the cost imposed on any city or town."

In addition to the city of Boston, the Legislature's Committee on Health Care also requested in May that the auditor's Division of Local Mandates study a bill which would amend the new health law to provide for reimbursement of all mandated costs.

In his response to the committee, DeNucci estimated that the trust fund section of the law would cost all Massachusetts cities and towns a total of $3.2 million per year.

"I am in favor of legislation to exempt municipalities from this unfunded state mandate," DeNucci said. "Most cities and towns in the state are struggling under extremely tight fiscal restrictions. This is no time to require cities and towns to spend funds they do not have."

'Racism' And The MWRA Issue

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Thank you for the information in your "Sunbeams" article of, concerning the racism aspect of the M.W.R.A. dispute. I have sent the enclosed letter to Derrick Jackson of the Boston Globe, concerning his views.

I hope that you might publish it, to show your readers that they can, and must, speak out for themselves, especially when it concerns issues as serious as racism.

Letters do not have to be vulgar, however, must get the emotion of their content across, to illustrate the degree of severity of the viewpoint. I feel that I have done so.

I very much like your style of writing, somewhat like that of the Herald's columnist, Howie Carr. I would encourage all of your readers to vent their M.W.R.A. frustration through writing. In this case of the Dukakis Administration's bureaucratic annihilation of rational consideration (as usual), the pen IS mightier than the sword.

Thank you for keeping Quincy updated on the M.W.R.A. fiasco. A job well done.

Brian E. Glennon II
24 Tyler St.

(Mr. Glennon submitted a copy of his letter to Derrick S. Jackson, The Boston Globe, for publication in The Quincy Sun.)

Dear Mr. Jackson:

I knew that sooner or later, someone would label the M.W.R.A. fight between Roxbury and Quincy a racist issue. Congratulations. You are the first "journalist" to come right out and do so.

You must be in tears, that those "Patronage Pals", the "Terrible Trio", Dukakis, Flynn and Levy, could not abscond with both the shipyard AND the headquarters. They might have run away with the shipyard, but the headquarters...that's a different story. If Quincy is going to have to live with the sludge plant, the M.W.R.A. is going to have to live with Quincy. Let's call it a symbiosis.

Your appalling remarks were uncalled for. Roxbury does not have to live with the sludge. Quincy does.

Obviously, the M.W.R.A. must move its offices to Quincy, to keep a "nose" on the operation. You may charge Quincy of being racist. I charge you of being unfair.

If you think, by any means, that it is a racist move to locate the headquarters in Quincy, you're living in a dream world, a noxious rubbish pit of false accusations and assertions. You come across as a solution looking for a problem...if a problem doesn't exist, you invent one.

I must laugh at your unrealistic remarks. As the trio's Parcel No. 18 deal is sinking faster than did the Titanic, you are trying to accuse Quincy as being the iceberg. A shameful sign of weakness on your part.

Your inkingsing methods would be better appreciated in the Enquirer. Stop tooting your horn, because all of your notes are flat.

Brian E. Glennon II

Abortion

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
ABORTION is the motivational issue.

Basic Human Rights is the major issue. If abortion was not involved, we might be on the same side.

Taking away that freedom, is the same as taking away your Virgin Mary in a half shell on your front lawn because half the people on the block don't approve. It's the government saying, all you people over here can reproduce the rest of you, who cares.

It's one woman telling another you have to raise that child, even though you know you can't and may become abusive toward it (And don't say adoption white infants are in demand the rest, who cares).

It's your local parish saying you cannot paint your house red, that's the devils colour.

Do we really need another Civil War?

Do we really need any more hatred and violence in this country? Isn't there enough? Why would God abiding people breed hatred for thy neighbor? Aren't we supposed to love thy enemy?

In this case the enemy is someone who only chooses to be different from you.

Once this right to choose is taken away the next to go is the right to choose your children's education, or to live a life of simplicity or a harried city existence. It all follows from there. Please understand this issue completely if not...Big Brother is closer than you think.

School Race Shaping Up

The mayoral race took center stage early this election year but the School Committee field is now shaping up as a pretty good co-feature.

In fact it may be the only other action in the Sept. 12 preliminary election.

As of now there doesn't look like any preliminary excitement for city council at-large or in the wards.

Apparently there just aren't enough people interested in serving in the City Council.

But there are enough candidates for School Committee -- eight at last count and incumbent Mary Collins is expected to soon make it nine. She has nomination papers out but has not yet announced.

Incumbent Frank Santoro has not yet officially announced but he, like Collins has nomination papers out.

The other candidates:

Judith Brams, Richard Crespi, Gary Fine, Ronald Mariano, John McDuff, Michael Preble and Charles Sweeney.

Joel Davidson of Presidents Lane who took out nomination papers a week ago has notified the Election Department that he does not plan to file them.

Earlier Sal Giarrantani who had announced his candidacy, later withdrew because of family reasons.

The entrance of Sweeney, a former School Committee member into the field raises an interesting point.

Sweeney announced but did not say whether he was a candidate for the four-year term Peggy Nigro has decided not to seek re-election to. Or, the two year unexpired term of the late Christopher Kennedy.

The only candidate so far to take out nomination papers for the two-year term is Richard Iacobucci, brother of Ron Iacobucci, a three-time candidate for City Council.

The question is: Can any of the candidates who have taken out nomination papers for the four-year term file them instead for the two year term?

"No," says Asst. City Clerk Thomas Burke. They can't switch their four-year papers over to the two-year papers.

But, they can return them, not file them, and take out a new set for the two-year term and get new signatures. Time is running out for that and, for that matter, for anyone thinking of running for any office. Friday, Aug. 4 is the deadline for taking out papers, and Tuesday, Aug. 8 at 5 p.m. is the deadline for filing them.

So far, there doesn't seem to be any one with plans to switch. But, you never can tell.

IF THAT COMPROMISE on the siting of the MWRA headquarters finally wins approval in the Legislature, there will still be one flaw in it.

THE WHOLE LIFE (ORDINARY) POLICY DEATH BENEFIT

The death benefit (proceeds) of a life insurance policy, with dividends, is capable of producing far greater amounts than contracted for. That is, assuming that the dividends are not taken in cash, or withdrawn by surrender or loans.

The proceeds can go to your estate, a named individual, charity, an institution, a religious order or even a government. In most cases, the proceeds are received by the named beneficiary tax free. Bear in mind, however, that if you have a taxable estate at the time of death, and you are the owner of your policy, the proceeds are added to your gross estate for estate taxes.

In naming an individual, you can opt to have that person receive the lump sum, or you can designate different types of payments, such as a specified monthly amount until all the monies are used; a period of time, like 10 years, 15 years, etc., or provide a lifetime income, and the insurance company will add interest to any money it is holding for your beneficiary.

Under the compromise, Roxbury would get the MWRA's executive offices as anchor tenants at the proposed Ruggles Center development.

Quincy would get the other divisions of the MWRA and other state agencies including, maybe, the Department of Environmental Protection and the Department of Public Health.

Supposedly, in addition to economic benefits, Quincy would then have someone overlooking the operation of the sludge facility.

That sounds pretty good. But the flaw is, that it leaves His Majesty Paul Levy free to romp through the palace he will have built in Roxbury.

He's the guy -- along with Mike Dukakis -- who targeted the Quincy Shipyard for the sludge plant. And he's the guy who should have to be down there to keep an eye -- and a nose -- on the operation.

LEVY

A PARTY FOR the James Sheets mayoral campaign workers will be held Saturday from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Bryan VFW Post. Music and refreshments. Tickets are $10 each. You don't have to be a worker to attend.

IF BOCCIE PLAYERS had their pictures on cards like baseball players do, you could get a wheel barrel full of Asst. City Clerk Tom Burke's just for taking them away. Right now, anyway.

Burke was a member of a bocce team at the recent South Shore Chamber of Commerce clambake which also included Tom Koch.

Larry Carnali and Don Conboy. (Burke says he was the captain).

Anyway, the team managed to win the first two games but got knocked off and out in the third match. Burke scored two points in the first match, one in the second, and went for a fat zero in the third.

In that third match, the only ball he could hit belonged to a teammate. But Burke insists it wasn't his fault. They let their ball get in his way.

Latest word is that Burke is now quietly practicing at the South Quincy Bocce Club by flashlight at night, and plans to make a roaring comeback at next year's clambake.

But Koch, Carnali and Conboy say they are still hoping to trade him. No takers so far.

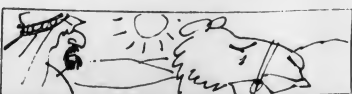

LOUIS CARUSO who retired from the Quincy Highway Department a year ago after 31 years service with the city, recently underwent surgery and is recuperating at his home, 44 Newton Ave., Braintree. Maybe you'd like to drop him a card.

LOOK ALIKES: Don Gohl of the Cooperative Bank and Morley Safer of CBS' 60 Minutes. (Well, a little, anyway).

This Week In History

This week in 1619, the House of Burgesses, the first representative assembly in the New World, was elected on July 30 in Jamestown, Va., on July 30. In 1925, John T. Scopes was found guilty of teaching evolution in a Dayton, Tenn., high school and was fined $100 on July 24. In 1945, a U.S. Army B-25 plane hit the Empire State Building in New York City and killed 14 people on July 28. In 1951, fighting ended in Korea on July 27. In 1974, on national television, the House Judiciary Committee recommended three articles of impeachment against President Richard Nixon (July 24-30). In 1981, both Houses of Congress passed President Ronald Reagan's tax-cut legislation, the largest tax cut in the nation's history on July 29.

6-Year Old Looks To Future Despite Illness

Melissa Hogle: A Young Profile In Courage

by JANE ARENA

Melissa Hogle of Quincy Point is a happy, bright, outgoing six year old girl.

She likes the same things most six-year olds like: playing, reading, and she loves all kinds of animals.

She says she'd like to be a veterinarian when she grows up. But, on her days off, she says, she'll be a model.

She could do it too. Melissa has long blonde hair, pale blue eyes and a smile she uses almost constantly. She's full of life and absolutely endearing.

One might never guess that she's spent most of her young life seriously ill. Since Melissa was two months old, she has been plagued by chronic heart, lung and kidney disease.

Her weight might belie her illness. She's tiny for her age. And, if, in a sudden movement her arms lift her shirt a bit, you'll get an accidental glimpse of a rubber tube coming out of her stomach.

Melissa eats normally, says her mother, Karen Hogle, but she has trouble maintaining any weight because her weakened heart needs everything her body has.

At night the tube in her stomach is hooked to a machine which pumps nutrients into her system.

Melissa grimaces at the mention of the machine.

Melissa can't be as active as she might like because of her weakened heart. She can't walk for any distance and she can't climb stairs.

She has a hard time breathing in the summer months and she makes regular trips to the hospital.

She has had surgery three times and more is needed when she's stronger and she takes "all kinds of medicines," her mother explains.

Melissa makes a mother face at the mention of medicines. But, it doesn't take much to get her smiling again.

Just ask her about her trip to Disney World.

Recently, Melissa and her mother were treated to a five-day trip to Disney World thanks to a Marshfield-based organization called the Children's Happiness Foundation.

The foundation, formed in 1980, grants wishes to New England children, age 3 to 18, who are terminally or chronically ill.

The foundation was suggested to Karen by teacher Gail Kimmel, who knew Melissa through a pre-school program at the Lincoln-Hancock School.

After filling out applications and doctors referrals, Melissa was asked to draw pictures of three wishes. She drew pictures of a computer game set, a doll house and a picture of a trip to Disney World.

Three weeks after the wishes were submitted, Melissa was told that she and her mother were going to Disney World.

Melissa talks excitedly of the trip, explaining that Epcot Center was her favorite attraction. "It's a big golf ball," she says, pointing to it in a photo.

She went on the Peter Pan ride. Peter Pan is her favorite character. "And, I had breakfast with Minnie Mouse," she says, showing the proof in her photo album.

"They were wonderful," Karen says of the Children's Happiness Foundation, explaining that she is still in contact with them even after the trip.

Melissa was invited to a benefit fashion show the kinds of leaves." After a Foundation held in April, and was promised a chance to model for the next fashion show. She's already thinking about her future career.

Despite her illness, Melissa leads an active life. She and Karen make frequent visits to museums, the aquarium and the library.

"And she likes to follow up on the museums," Karen says, "she likes to buy books on the subjects."

"I like to learn," Melissa says.

At the moment her favorite subject is Australia.

"There are Koala bears," she explains, "and different moment's thought, she remembers that Koala bears eat eucalyptus leaves.

After completing a kindergarten program at Lincoln-Hancock School, Melissa is looking forward to entering the first grade in the fall. She attends Lincoln-Hancock School, Karen explains, because the building has an elevator she can use instead of stairs.

When Melissa is in school during the day, Karen plans to enter Northeastern University to earn her marketing degree.

One gets the impression that both mother and daughter will handle it well.

36 Years Ago

Capt. George F. McDonell, husband of Claire McDonell of 20 Alrick Rd., West Quincy, was known to be prisoner of war and Lt. Robert I. Adams, husband of Dorothy Adams of 52 Bayfield Rd., Atlantic, had died in a prison camp.

Carl W. Anderson, vice chairman of the City Council, speaking for Mayor David S. McIntosh, said:

"The news of the armistice is cause for thanksgiving to all the people of Quincy and particularly to the scores of Quincy residents whose sons and husbands have served so heroically in the Korean conflict.

"It is my heartfelt hope that the armistice is the forerunner of a lasting peace which will allow these valiant men and their families to be reunited soon."

GRANITEMEN, VETS PROTEST

A delegation of granitemen and veterans, led by Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund, president of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association, met with City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. to protest plans for a World War II memorial in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Fagerlund said that the city was spending $15,000 on the memorial but only one-quarter was being spent on landscaping.

Included in the delegation were Constanzo Pagnano of the granite cutters union, Augustus Settimelli of the manufacturers and John W. Burke, Arthur Wesley and Louis Volpe representing veterans' organizations.

Alicia Coletti At Leadership Institute

Alicia Coletti, Equal Opportunity Coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools, has been selected to be a participant in the Commonwealth Leadership Academy's Institute on Intercultural Leadership.

The institutes are designed to help school administrators enhance their leadership skills in improving instruction and educational services in their schools.

Coletti is participating in a training institute at Mt. Holyoke College, South Hadley, through Friday. The Intercultural Leadership Institute is designed to enable school leaders to respond to the challenges they face as public schools are asked to provide an increasingly broad range of services and curricula to more diverse groups of students in a multicultural society.

Coletti will join with 20 other educational leaders from throughout the Commonwealth to participate in peer coaching visits, networking meetings and individual action plans which will describe the goals they wish to focus on for the future.

"I'm pleased to be participating in this Intercultural Leadership Training Institute because the skills gained here will enable me to respond to the challenges facing the Quincy schools as they attempt to educate an increasingly diverse student body," Coletti said.

New Miss Quincy Bay To Be A Pharmacist

PAMELA HALL of Braintree is escorted down the runway by emcee Bernie Reisberg, after being crowned Miss Quincy Bay.

By JANE ARENA

Pamela Hall, 21, of Braintree, who has crowned Miss Quincy Bay 1989 at the annual pageant Friday night at Quincy Center Plaza, says character, more than just beauty won her the title.

"I think they really want a hometown girl," she says. "They want more than just the flash and glamour. They want someone who is down to earth."

And does that describe Pamela? "Yes," she says, "I'd like to think it does."

As the new Miss Quincy Bay, Pamela won the largest share of the $2,500 in prizes, including a $1,000 scholarship to Quincy Junior College.

Pamela was crowned by last year's winner, Dawn Larkin of Weymouth.

Also sharing the prizes are the four runners-up. Deborah Nicholson, 19, of Abington, first runner-up; Joann Ogden, 16, of Quincy, second runner-up; Kelli Beatrice, 16, of Weymouth, third runner-up; and Malissa Doering, 17, of Rockland, fourth runner-up.

Tara Donovan, 16, of Quincy, was voted Most Photogenic by Bill Fitzgerald and Glenn Caterer of Photo Quick of Quincy Center, official pageant photographer.

Pamela will reign over the 52nd annual Quincy Bay Race Week, Aug. 2-6. She will also attend other functions of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, who co-sponsored the event with the Quincy Bay Race Week Association, and will ride in the annual Quincy Christmas parade.

Pamela, daughter of Robert and Ann Hall of Braintree, and a 1985 graduate of Braintree High School, says she was nervous and excited when she realized she had won the pageant.

"To tell you the truth, I was numb. My hands and feet were numb. It's kind of a blur," she says, "I don't really remember what went on... I was nervous," she laughs, "and I know we made a lot of trips to the ladies' room."

Pamela had entered the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant once before, five years ago, at the age of 16.

"That was uneventful," she says.

This time, she explains, she was better prepared for the pageant.

"I had watched it a few times," she says, "and I became, basically, a little more mature about the whole thing. Age had a lot to do with it, at least for me, anyway. There's a big difference between 16 and 21."

"And my bathing suit was different too," she adds, "they saw less this time."

Pamela wore a basic black, one-piece suit, in the swim suit competition. For the evening gown competition, she wore a blue sequined full length gown, sleeveless on one side.

Pamela is about to enter her fifth and final year at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy. She will graduate in June of next year, after which she will take the state exam to become a licensed pharmacist. She currently works at the South Shore Pharmacy in Braintree.

Although she had once wanted to become a doctor, Pamela explains that a job in a pharmacy when she was younger sparked an interest in that field. She said she may continue her education in the future to earn her doctorate in pharmaceutical studies.

Pamela's dedication to the medical field was evident during the pageant. At the end of the evening, the five finalists were asked this question by Bernie Reisberg, Master of Ceremonies for the pageant and Quincy Harbor-master: "If you were guaranteed that one personal goal you wish to obtain would definitely come true, what goal would you select?" Pamela thought deeply for a moment and gave her answer:

"I believe that America is founded on two basic truths: 'land of the free and home of the brave,' and 'united we stand, divided we fall.' If I could obtain one goal in my life I would like to unite the medical community to give better medical care, more information, and better education."

Church News

Esther Sanger Guest Speaker At Covenant Congregational

Esther Sanger, founder and director of the Quincy Crisis Center will be the guest speaker at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

A door offering will be taken for the Crisis Center.

The Crisis Center's mobile home, from which the daily meal for the homeless is provided, is parked in the church parking lot. The first sermon Esther preached was in this church.

Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude and will be the featured soloist. A nursery for children age five and younger is available. The attendant will be Nancy Johnson.

Immediately following the service, there will be a coffee hour in Person Hall. Members will have an opportunity to talk with Esther Sanger.

Vacation Day Camp has started, but anyone interested can still catch up with the "Gettin' Goin' Gang" Wednesday mornings from 10 a.m. to noon. This year's theme is "The Lord Is My Shepherd." There are theme-related activities, crafts and videos.

On Sunday, Aug. 6, at the 10 a.m. worship service, the new co-pastors, Kathryn Graves-Johnson and Kirk Johnson will be installed by Conference Supt. Rev. George Elia. Afterwards there will be a reception in Person Hall.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

'Beyond Religion'

Sermon Topic At Bethany

During the summer months at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, there is one worship service held at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach a sermon Sunday, titled "Beyond Religion". Wendell C. Cosgrove will be the lay scripture reader.

The duet of Jean and Win Bettinson will sing two selections. Guest organizer will be Jay Janell, a graduate student at Boston University. Sunday School is closed during the summer. However, child care is provided for children from birth through kindergarten, in rooms 1 and 2 of the parish house, during the ten o'clock worship service.

The worship service will be broadcast "live" direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 a.m. over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

A fellowship hour will be held in the Allen Parlor at 11 a.m. immediately following the worship service. A brief meeting of the Bethany Churchwomen will be held at 11 o'clock in the sanctuary.

The Administrative Committee will meet at 11:30 a.m. to receive and act on the report and recommendation of the Personnel Committee on calling an Interim Associate Minister, to begin Sept. 1.

Individuals and families from the area are invited to come and share in both worship and fellowship Sunday morning. For additional information concerning Bethany's ministries and programs, contact the church office between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at 479-7300.

Hour was hosted by Eva Martin and Mary Scott.

During the summer, the Sunday morning service begins at 9:30 a.m. Visitors are always welcome.

QCA Housing Services Program Starts Third Year

Quincy Community Action's Housing Services program recently began its third year of operation, announces Michele Goss, the program's landlord counselor.

Now finally established in the community, Housing Services has maintained its visibility through its landlord counselor, tenant counselor and program director's efforts to create extensive outreach programs.

Housing Services offers assistance to landlords and tenants alike through community outreach, educational workshops and counseling.

According to Goss, the program offers education on rights and responsibilities, fair housing laws, the eviction process and more.

"We are available to provide mediation to settle disputes as an alternative to eviction. We can make referrals to other resources and assistance agencies to meet a variety of needs."

"On a regular basis, we conduct informal workshops. Some of the tenant workshops have included topics of housing searches, securing and maintaining tenancy and eviction."

"Some of the landlord workshops have included topics of tenant screening and selection, state sanitary code and rental subsidy programs," Goss said.

In response to the influx of Asian residents in Quincy, House Services has added a bi-lingual housing counselor this year available to tenants and landlords. The counselor holds office hours at Wollaston Lutheran Church and can be contacted through its main office 479-8181.

The primary objective of Quincy Community Action's Housing Services program is to maintain stable and affordable housing. For assistance, call 479-8181 Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Handbag Security

This is a category of crime in which older persons are particularly vulnerable.

The best way to avoid pursesnatching, of course, is not to carry one, if at all possible. This may not be as impractical as it might first appear.

It is a wise idea to carry your house keys separately from your other things. That way, if your purse or wallet is lost or stolen, the key won't be there along with your address. When walking for example you could carry your house key on a chain around your neck.

Put a small amount of cash and/or a credit card in either a wallet or a compact cosmetic case and then carry either one concealed in a coat pocket. Some women have had small hidden pockets sewn on the inside of their coats for the same purpose.

If you can get by without a wallet or compact, you can carry a small amount of cash, check book, or credit card in a pocket of your jacket.

When you think about it, a big reason for carrying a purse is force of habit. And when you really think about it, it might be worth modifying that habit in order to reduce the opportunity for crime.

If you must carry a purse, don't dangle it by your side in a way that a thief can run by you and grab it away. Carry the purse close to your body, preferably in front. If feasible, carry it upside down, with your hand on the clasp. That way, if someone tries to grab it away you can open the purse so that the contents fall on the ground.

Bulky purses are the easiest to spot and grab, although shoulder bags are harder to get free. Don't wrap the strap around your wrist; you're likely to get hurt if a robber yanks hard.

If someone does grab at your purse, except for dumping out the contents, don't attempt to resist or fight him/her off. You're likely to get injured in the process. Sit down, if you're carrying your whistle, blow it repeatedly and observe the robber as closely as possible to try to get a description to the police.

When shopping, don't tempt a thief by leaving your purse on a counter or in a shopping cart unattended. It only takes a second for someone to remove it.

28 Water Leaks Repairs Save $1.5 Million Gallons Per Day

The Department of Public Works crews have repaired 28 water system leaks so far this year, saving one million gallons of water per day, according to Commissioner David Colton.

In all, 1.5 million gallons per day of water loss had been detected in a cooperative effort by the city's leak detection and repair crews and the MWRA's audit consultant, Pitometer Associates, Colton said.

This past January, a water consumption study for the city performed by the Water Department showed that, of the total water supplied to Quincy, just over 4 billion gallons per year, 20 percent was unaccounted for.

Unaccounted water is partially due to leaky pipes, due to many factors, including the system's age, corrosion, traffic weight, soil movement and frost upheaval.

In response, the city participated in the MWRA's leak detection effort. Through the use of a consultant, Pitometer Associates (under a $100,000 MWRA contract), the city identified 53 leaks which generated 1.5 million of lost water each day.

Quincy's entire 240 mile distribution system ranging from pipes constructed in the 1880's, to pipes installed in the 1980's, supplying water to 20,630 services, was surveyed via this aggressive program.

In addition to the 1.5 million gallons detected, Quincy's leak and repair crews have identified and repaired 25 main line breaks, 46 sidewalk to main line breaks, and reported 19 private residence leaks in their own properties so far this year.

The benefits of recovering this unaccounted-for water are simple.

It costs the city $2,049,466 per year to buy water from the MWRA and 1.5 million of undetected and unrepaired water leaks cost the city approximately $280,320 per year.

In addition, water leaks cause property damage and inconvenience to the public and hinder the effort to conserve water.

Charles Sweeny Candidate For School Committee

Charles T. Sweeny, a former School Committee member has announced his candidacy for School Committee this fall.

In his announcement, Sweeny said the Committee, which will have at least two new members next year, needs experience and new leadership which he can provide.

"Experience is a vital requirement for membership on the School Committee which faces unprecedented and difficult problems. These problems can only be solved by the informed input of experienced School Committee members."

"I submit my candidacy based on extensive experience matched only by Frank Anselmo, followed closely by Mary Collins," he said.

Sweeny served on the School Committee 20 years and experienced the administration of three superintendents: Paul Gossard, Robert Pruitt and Lawrence Creedon.

While a member of the committee, Quincy Junior College was founded, the Quincy Vocational-Technical School was established, an addition to North Quincy High School was built and elementary lab centers for the academically talented were created, he noted.

Sweeny notes he was instrumental in the retention of hockey as an interscholastic sport, the introduction of soccer to the athletic department and the expansion of participating sports for girls.

He served on several negotiating teams after the advent of collective bargaining.

In addition, Sweeny has served as president of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees and has been a member of the Board of Directors of the National School Board Association as well as chairman of its Northeast region.

Former president of the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Committee, he has attended education conventions and seminars in Boston, San Francisco, Anaheim, Houston, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Paul and communities in Massachusetts.

A retired executive of the United States Veterans Administration, Sweeny was involved in the G.I. Bill of Rights which provided Liberal Arts and scientific education for veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict.

Among the issues that the School Committee will face are curriculum, building maintenance, health concerns, special courses and Proposition 2-1/2, he said.

"With the financial constraints imposed by Proposition 2-1/2 it becomes absolutely necessary that limited available funds be channeled wisely and effectively in the areas most needed to improve quality education for the students of Quincy."

"I respectfully submit that my qualifications will well serve the purpose of policy making decisions that is the basic function of the Quincy School Committee. I have no other political ambition," he said.

Sweeny also said efforts to reduce the drop-out rate must continue and the schools be restored to the quality standards which brought recognition and applause locally and nationally during the 1960s and early 1970s.

McGrath Pleased With MWRA's Decision To Drop Composting Plans

City Councillor and Mayoral Candidate Stephen McGrath has applauded the recent decision of the Mass. Water Resources Authority to drop plans for composting at the proposed sewage treatment plant at the Fore River Shipyard.

"I am very pleased at this decision by the MWRA board of directors as the composting element is extremely harmful to the Quincy Point area," said McGrath. The smell would have been horrendous."

McGrath also made these points during his recent trip to Washington to confer with White House Deputy Chief of Staff, Andrew Card.

"I am pleased that our message got through to the MWRA and the Environmental Protection Agency. I believe this decision shows that the position taken by me and the City of Quincy, namely to oppose sludge treatment at the shipyard, is the correct one" said McGrath.

"From the beginning, I have said that we should fight the MWRA on the sludge siting. This decision to eliminate composting shows the benefit of continuing to oppose the MWRA. I believe this victory is a beginning" said McGrath, adding he was pleased the city had not adopted a defeatist attitude and merely accepted the sludge plant.

City Should Have More Control Over Hospital Budget, Says LaRaia

Reacting to the projected $4 million deficit at Quincy Hospital, mayoral candidate Joseph LaRaia has called for more city oversight on the hospital's budget.

Last week, hospital officials announced that the hospital faces a $4 million deficit and will likely lay off 200 employees. LaRaia, who as a city councillor advocated more city control over the hospital budget, renewed his pledge at a press conference last week.

"The city is responsible for the debts of the hospital not the management firm handling its financial affairs," LaRaia said.

The municipal hospital is run by Hospital Corporation of America, which signed an agreement with the city in 1981. HCA reports to a board of managers appointed by the mayor but operates under an enterprise account budget separate from the regular city budget.

"The public has been kept in the dark too long about the operation of the hospital and the reasons are obvious," LaRaia said.

"The hospital budget is not reviewed by the city council in a formal setting as other city departments. Two years ago, I requested that the administration submit the budget to the city council."

"The mayor refused and the council did not support my council order requesting the same. The budget has not been reviewed once in the eight years of the McCauley administration," he said.

As chairman of the Council's Post Audit Committee two years ago, LaRaia said he asked Attorney Sanford Kowal to review the issue and offer testimony. Twice, Kowal appeared before the committee and argued against the city's position that a formal review of the budget is not necessary.

"Two years ago while sitting as a city councillor, I made public that hospital officials were using interest from construction money to make their budgets appear to look black when, in fact, the hospital was treating a half million dollars yearly from construction escrow interest to make their projected yearly budgets show a small surplus," LaRaia charged.

"Now that the construction money has been exhausted and the new building is to be opened soon, the string has run out in juggling the books," he added.

The hospital's $60 million expansion project is scheduled for completion in October.

LaRaia said he realizes some of the problem lies with nonpayment of state and federal reimbursements and that the situation is symptomatic of the industry.

"But, in Quincy's case it is not the only answer to the financial crunch being experienced presently. The long and short of it is that there is not enough sharing of information between the hospital and the city," LaRaia said.

LaRaia called on Mayor McCauley to meet with the council soon to see what could be done to resolve the situation.

"They should start by examining the new positions which HCA has created above the normal routine of going through the ordinance process," LaRaia said.

He also said the group should examine the service contracts that the hospital signed to carry out its normal operations.

D. Scott Deware

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

If you would increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your brother's faults. Forget the slander you have heard, forget the temptations, forget the fault-finding, and give more thought to the cause that provoked it. Forget the peculiarities of your friends, and only remember the good points that make you fond of them. Forget all personal quarrels you may have heard by accident, and which, if repeated, would seem a thousand times worse than they really are. Obliterate everything disagreeable from yesterday; start out with a clean sheet for today, and write upon it, for sweet memory's sake, only the things which are lovely and lovable ...

There is an old Chinese proverb which states: "Think of your own faults the first part of the night when you are awake, and the faults of others the latter part of the night when you are asleep."

Something to think about? We think so ...

Peter J. Kanavos, 64 Developer, Humanitarian

A funeral service for Peter J. Kanavos, Sr., 64, the son of an immigrant barber, who grew up in Quincy Point and became one of the country's youngest millionaires, as a well-known developer, was held July 21 at St. Demetrios Church in Weston.

Mr. Kanavos, who developed shopping centers, industrial parks, hotels and apartment complexes, died July 18, in Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston, from pancreatic cancer.

His ventures included Executive House, Quincy's first high-rise apartment structure in 1967, and developments in Massachusetts, Florida, Maine, New Jersey, Arizona, Virginia and Europe.

At the time of his death, he was a resident of Ft. Myers, Fla., where he was president and chairman of Florida Land Acquisition Group that controlled over 30,000 acres in Florida. Another one of his companies, Del Tura Corp., recently completed a 1,500 unit residential country club in Ft. Myers.

Mr. Kanavos lived in Newton after moving from Quincy.

His life reads like a chapter out of Horatio Alger, the famed rags-to-riches success story.

Mr. Kanavos was born in Quincy. His father, who emigrated to the Quincy Point "melting pot" from Greece, operated a small one-man barbershop on Washington St. in Quincy Point.

Mr. Kanavos graduated from Quincy High School as member of the Class of 1942. The Golden Rod Yearbook of that year saw a political career for him. Classmates at Quincy Point Junior High School, where he graduated from in 1939, early saw success in his future as they voted him "Most Likely to Succeed."

Mr. Kanavos graduated from Harvard College in 1946 and Harvard Business School in 1948.

His college education came through scholarships, loans and jobs as a shipyard worker, and night watchman in a battery factory.

Mr. Kanavos was a man of quiet generosity, making donations and contributions to many in need, but doing so without the fanfare of publicity.

He financed surgery for a number of youngsters born with physical handicaps, treatment of those afflicted with cancer, some of whom he flew to the United States from Europe. He also provided college tuitions to needy students.

And, he also aided classmates with donations or loans.

Mr. Kanavos launched his career in the development field by purchasing an apartment house and several bars and liquor stores.

His first big project was the 1,500 acre Marlborough Industrial Park, followed by Norumbega Park in Newton, the Dedham Plaza in Dedham, Holiday Inns and other projects.

He became a millionaire in his early 30's and was one of the country's young millionaires profiled on a television program hosted by Art Linkletter.

Mr. Kanavos was an incorporator of Emerson College and was formerly a member of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Mr. Kanavos is survived by his wife, Alice (Garobig) Kanavos; three sons, Peter J. Kanavos, Jr., Paul C. Kanavos and Mark D. Kanavos, all of Ft. Myers; a brother, Harold Kanavos of Newton; two sisters, Connie Calistro of Newton and Diana George of Holbrook; and his wife's mother, Marie Garobig. He was the father of the late James M. Kanavos.

Donations may be made to St. Demetrios Church, 57 Brown St., Weston 02193.

Despite dire predictions by the "experts" about a slow market in condominiums on the South Shore, more and more people are looking at condos to meet their changing lifestyles.

For many people, condominium residences have become a logical solution to finding the right home today. While the headlines have been casting foreboding shadows about overdevelopment of condos in recent years, an increasing number of homebuyers view condos as the perfect alternative to single-family homes.

What many people have discovered is that this is a good time to shop for condos. Developers are offering attractive buyer incentives and rebate programs; banks and financial institutes are creating special mortgage packages; and real estate salespeople are willing to work with homebuyers more than ever before.

But all too often people are looking for condos the wrong way. In today's market, you have to be thoroughly prepared to find the right condo from the large number of units being offered. Indiscriminate visits to dozens of open houses and model units can be a confusing, self-defeating waste of time. The key to looking the smart way for a condo is to do your homework-beforehand and be prepared to shop around.

Before you visit one open house or make your first appointment to see a model unit, make a list of your priorities, based on location, price and your own particular lifestyle.

Most condominium developments are geared to people with different needs. Young couples looking for their first home. Professionals who want to upgrade their residences. Mature homeowners who are ready to sell their big, empty houses and perhaps invest in smaller homes locally and second homes in a warmer climate. It's important to identify the right type of residence for your particular lifestyle. And the single most important factor in any home purchase is location.

List what is important to you in location. Are you looking for something near public transportation, shopping and entertainment? Do you want a convenient city address, or, if you prefer a more suburban setting, do you want easy access to major highways and shopping areas? Are schools, recreation facilities or community activities important?

Or are you looking for a more upscale address in the right location with amenities like a health club, secure parking, and proximity to the services you need to fit a busy schedule? Everybody is looking for something different, and in today's market, it's important to narrow the range so that you're able to spend your time only those residences that meet your particular needs.

The next step is to determine a price range that is comfortable to you. Again, developers and realtors are offering a wide range of condominiums to meet different needs-from affordable units for the young family to luxury penthouses for the busy executive-and it's important to decide what your price range is before you waste your time and efforts on the wrong ones.

Once you've determined your priorities and your price range, find out as much as you can about condominiums that might be attractive to you. Talk to friends, co-workers, relatives, real estate brokers-as many people as you can. Ask for references from people who have purchased condos recently. Find out where they looked, what they saw, and why they made their final choice. Get as many recommendations as you can, and make a list of the locations you would like to visit.

Now you're ready to attend open houses and visit sales offices and model units. But don't attempt to accomplish too much at once. Don't look at more than three addresses in one day, and don't visit more than two units at each address. Don't be afraid to ask questions. In fact, carry a notebook and any sales literature you receive, and jot down your questions and comments as soon as you think of them. That way you won't forget to ask the right questions of the sales representative or real estate broker. Very often, they will be willing to work out any problems on the spot-remember, they're willing to negotiate with you. Talk to them, ask them questions, and listen carefully to their responses.

After each visit, write down what you liked and didn't like about each residence as soon as possible. You'll find that if you don't list your comments immediately, you'll end up confused and frustrated. "Which address had that plush lobby?" "Did this unit have the two baths, or was it that unit?" "Did they say they offered underground parking?"

When you're done visiting models and collecting all those glossy brochures, eliminate the ones you don't like. Throw them out, no matter how polished and full of details they are. Keeping a dozen sales pamphlets will only confuse you more in the end.

If you've done your homework and know what you're looking for, you'll soon be able to narrow the list down to two or three locations. From there, it's easy to make the right choice-the smart choice-on your next home.

Central Real Estate Moves To McGrath Highway

Central Real Estate of Quincy has moved to 128 McGrath Highway.

The firm purchased an eight-room colonial home and converted it into prime office space to better serve its customers.

Founded in 1986 by Vincent R. Moscardelli, Central has developed into a multi-specialty real estate office that sells residential, commercial and industrial properties.

Central brokers are Gregory Cataldo, John Franceschini Jr., Jack Kreckie, Robert Mudge, David O'Connell and Alice Pece.

VINCENT MOSCARDELLI

Central is an active member of the Quincy South Shore Board of Realtors, Plymouth

County Board of Realtors, Massachusetts Association of Realtors, Commercial Investment Division of Massachusetts Association of Realtors, National Association of Realtors and the National Federation of Independent Businesses.

"I look forward to working in the new office" said owner Moscardelli. "The new office will help us operate more efficiently and to continue to expand our services."

Central brokers invite you to visit them in their new office to discuss your real estate needs or if you are interested in starting a career in real estate.

2 Promotions At Kennedy & Lehan

Two promotions and a new appointment at Kennedy & Legan, Certified Public Accountants, at 300 Crown Colony Drive, Quincy, are announced by Ed Pendergast, chairman.

Walter J. Pendergast, Jr. of Quincy, CPA, has been promoted from accounting and audit manager to director of administration and finance. He joined the firm in 1982 with 20 years previous experience in accounting, auditing and financial reporting for regional and national CPA firms.

Mark S. Robinson of Wollaston, CPA, a firm member since 1984, is now quality control manager at Kennedy & Lehan. He will review financial statements, oversee implementation of the firm's new auditing philosophy, and assist in standardizing the use of Fast Audit software for federal and state tax returns.

Both Pendergast and Robinson are members of the American Institute of CPAs and the Massachusetts Society of CPAs. Both have bachelor's degrees. Pendergast is accounting from Bentley College, Waltham, and Robinson, in business administration from Suffolk University, Boston.

Patricia Reynolds has been appointed consulting public relations director for the firm. She has had nearly 20 years experience in communications for companies in Virginia, Colorado and elsewhere. She holds a B.A. in communications from Simmons College, Boston, and is a member of the Public Relations Society of America.

SAFETY SENSE

"Home Sweet Home, Home Safe Home"

Home for many represents a haven—a refuge where people can feel safe and comfortable, a retreat from the hubbub of the outside world. But a home that's been broken into can dash that sense of security. Homeowners have invested considerable sums of money in their residences. So, they can't afford to be careless about home security. Personal safety, material possessions and peace of mind are all at stake.

With some research and a little care, homeowners can greatly reduce the risk of becoming one of the shocked victims of a break-in or burglary.

Here are 10 tips from ADT Security Systems, the world's leading supplier of security systems, to help keep your home safe and secure:

- Check your locks and doors. Make sure outside doors are made of solid, 1 3/4-inch metal or hard wood.

- Invest in a window key lock at the hardware store and consider installing grills on basement or street-level windows.

- Don't hide the keys to your locks in a mailbox, planter, or under the doormat. As an alternative solution, you might give a duplicate key to a relative, close friend or neighbor.

- Take a good look at your home from the outside. Burglars will be discouraged from selecting your house as their target if:

- Your porch, entrance and yard are well-lit and well-maintained.

- Your shrubbery is pruned and not obstructing doorways or windows.

- Your tree limbs are cut back.

- Consider purchasing an alarm system. Whether to help safeguard your valuables or provide you with reassuring peace of mind, there is an array of systems available on the market. They range from simple electrical circuits for door locks and frames to sophisticated sensing devices.

- Look for a system designed to meet quality and reliability standards. Remember to check the manufacturer's references before you sign a contract.

- Know your neighbors. Having a friend next door who might spot an intruder can be an excellent defense against being burglarized.

- For more information on helping to protect your home, write to: ADT Security Systems, Inc., 300 Interpace Parkway, Parsippany, NJ, 07054; or call, 1-800-ADT-INFO.

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

Newer vehicle models are in need of additional summertime protection

With temperatures on the rise, it's time to gear up for summer driving. Owners of newer model cars and trucks should be aware that today's cars and lightweight trucks operate at higher temperatures than older models.

Operating temperatures have soared, due to improved aerodynamics and smaller engine compartments. Higher temperatures matched with hotter engines spell trouble for summer driving if no protective measures are taken.

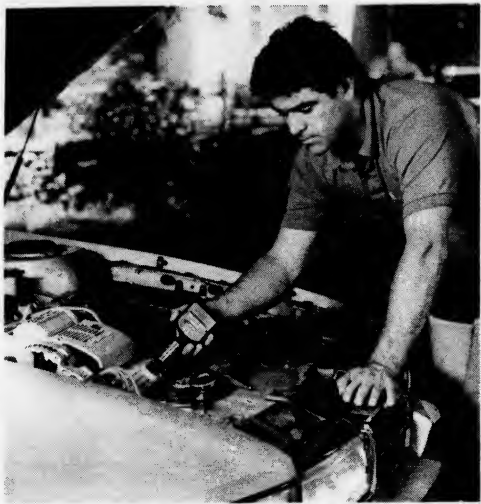

To help keep your engine running efficiently and to reduce friction that results in overheating, the makers of STP offer the following tips:

- Use a premium grade oil—Today's engines are so demanding on motor oil that a new "SG" rated oil has been formulated specifically for newer cars. "SG" oils provide the increased lubrication protection that is vital to newer vehicles.

- The more protection the better—There is no such thing as too much protection—especially with today's engines. Now, there's a new oil additive available that is formulated especially for engines up to four years old. It's called STP Supra Wear Control.

By topping off with Supra Wear Control, do-it-yourselfers can fortify existing oil with additional friction reducers, cleaning agents and anti-wear ingredients.

- Keep your oil fresh—Most experts agree that changing the oil often is the key to long engine life. Generally, most automobile manufacturers are recommending an oil change every 3,000 miles for typical stop-and-go driving situations. As a rule, it is also good practice to replace the filter with every oil change.

CARS TODAY are built differently than those of just five years ago. Today's engines are smaller, rev higher and run hotter than ever before.

- Follow a maintenance schedule—All in all, the watchword for today's vehicles is preventive maintenance. Provided motorists follow the manufacturer's service requirements and perform basic mechanical upkeep, these newer cars should enjoy a long and hearty life. SC895165

Frequent CV boot inspections can save owners money by preventing major damage to CV joints

When your favorite auto mechanic looks you straight in the eye and says, "I checked your boots and they're in good shape," don't even cast a glance toward your tennies, but rejoice in the great news!

The boots in question are flexible rubber sleeves which enclose vital moving parts of the drive shaft assemblies of front-wheel drive cars and some rear-wheel drive cars with independent rear suspensions.

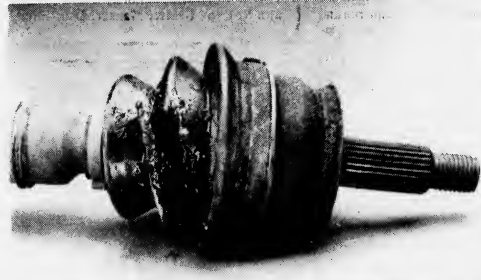

Their function is to hold in lubricants and prevent dirt, sand and water from damaging CV (constant velocity) joints which connect sections of the shafts.

During the next five years, according to industry estimates, sales of replacement CV joints are expected to increase faster than that of any other component.

To prevent damage to these parts on your car, says Car Care Council, check the condition of those protective boots frequently. Inspect for cuts, leaks or splitting, which may reveal defects that can be corrected to prevent major damage to the CV joints.

Replace the boot as soon as possible after discovering a problem. This is an important "stitch in time."

When should boots be inspected? Have it done every time you take the car in for routine maintenance, oil changes or tire repair. And, if crawling under cars really appeals to you, make your own checks for boots that leak or have been cut by road debris.

THIS DAMAGED CV BOOT allowed loss of grease and eventual destruction of the CV joint.

Morrisette Ends Milton Jinx, Makes Playoffs

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team ended the Milton jinx last weekend and made the finals of the Zone 6 playoffs for the first time in several years.

After eliminating Milton in three games, Morrisette faced undefeated Braintree (18-0) Tuesday and Wednesday nights and, if the teams split, the third and deciding game will be played tonight (Thursday) at Braintree at 7 p.m.

Milton had won five straight games and seven of the last nine over Morrisette. Last year it eliminated Morrisette in two straight games in the playoffs and this year swept both regular season games and won the opening game of the playoffs.

"This is the first time in my three years as coach we have survived the first round of the playoffs," said coach Dave Perdios. "This is great for our program."

After splitting the first two games of the playoffs, Perdios faced a big decision on his pitching selection after using his top two, Erik DeBoer and Kevin MacDougall, in the first two games.

He chose young southpaw Billy Warren, who had a 3-0 record but hadn't faced the league's iron.

As expected, Warren was nervous at the start and walked four batters in the first inning to force in a run. But he left the bases loaded and kept the Milton batters off balance with a variety of breaking pitches until the fifth inning in the 5-3 victory.

Here Milton got three straight hits for a run and scored a second on an infield out. Warren then gave way to DeBoer, who pitched the final two hitless innings, striking out two to bring his season's total to 86 and walking one. Warren got his fourth win and DeBoer the save.

Meanwhile, Morrisette finally hit the ball after being pretty well stifled in the first two games. A two-out single by Rob McDonald was followed by Kevin MacDougall's triple. Morrisette put on its best offensive show of the year in the second inning as it scored four runs.

Tony Anderionis singled MacDougall home and Morrisette had a 5-1 lead. Morrisette played errorless ball.

Bill MacDougall and McDonald had two hits apiece. McDonald went 6-for-10 in the series and raised his team-leading batting average to .448.

In the second game of the series, Kevin MacDougall pitched the finest game of his career as Morrisette took a 3-1 victory to even the series. MacDougall was 4-1 and took an ERA of under one into the game.

He allowed only two balls to be hit to the outfield, one being a run-producing double, the only Milton hit, following an error, the other a fly ball to center. The infield was superb, handling 17 chances with only one error on a throw to first that drew the first baseman off the bag.

Anderionis had seven assists and a putout at shortstop and Bayliss four assists and a putout at second. MacDougall didn't walk a batter and retired the first nine batters, seven on infield grounders.

Morrisette scored a run in the first on a walk to Anderionis, a stolen base and McDonald's single. In the second a double steal worked with Calvert scoring as Bill MacDougall stole second. In the seventh, leading 2-1, Morrisette scored an insurance run on a perfect squeeze bunt by Glynn.

McDonald had two hits and an RBI, Glynn a hit and RBI and Bill MacDougall, Calvert and Kevin MacDougall a hit apiece.

Kevin MacDougall struck out three as he improved to 5-1 with an amazing 0.50 ERA.

In the opening game, Milton continued its hex with a 3-2 victory as Morrisette's hitting problems continued and ace pitcher DeBoer was having problems. He gave up 12 hits and walked four but kept the game close as Milton led, 1-0, going into the sixth.

Morrisette had only one scratch hit in the first five innings, but in the sixth it looked like it might break the game open. Anderionis and McDonald had infield hits, Brian Taylor sacrificed them along. Anderionis scored on a throwing error on a pickoff attempt and three straight walks forced in the go-ahead run. But, with the bases loaded the next two batters went down on strikes.

In the last inning a single and two walks filled the bases with no outs for Milton. A fly to right that was lost in the lights scored the tying run and well-executed squeeze play brought in the winner.

Morrisette, for the second year in a row, finished second to Braintree in Zone 6 with a 14-4 record. Braintree was 16-0 and eliminated third place Mass Tires in two straight games to make the playoff finals.

Local 1139 Clinches First Place In N.L.

Quincy Local 1139 clinched first place in the Babe Ruth League's National League with wins over Quincy Police and Granite City Electric, improving its record to 20-2.

Local topped Police, 4-3, scored twice in the first inning when Scott Dunn walked and scored on a triple by Pat Gallagher, who went 3-for-4. Gallagher scored on Bob Fitzpatrick's sacrifice fly.

Neither team scored again until the fifth as Fitzpatrick and Police's Chris Cunio hooked up in a fine pitching duel, despite two hits each by Doug Nolan and Costa Rozinitis.

In the fifth, Dunn singled and scored on Gallagher's second triple. Police answered when Noel DiBona singled and scored, thanks to some excellent base running. Police scored again in the sixth on a walk, an error and an RBI single by Adam Calvert.

Local answered in the seventh when Gallagher singled and scored on his own fine base running. Fitzpatrick finished up strong and Pat Donaher played strong defense.

Local topped Granite City, 8-2, as Gallagher had two doubles and Fitzpatrick, three singles. Pat Shea, Florin Neamtu and Mike Sweeney had a hit each. Shea made an excellent diving catch.

Dunn held Granite City to four hits. Dan Burke pitched well for Granite City.

This has been an extraordinary season for Local 1139. The team had a .293 team batting average while opponents hit only .146 as Dunn, Gallagher and Fitzpatrick pitched well. Fitzpatrick had a no-hitter against Bank of New England, Gallagher pitched two one-hitters and Dunn had a one-hitter.

Earlier, in a 16-1 romp over

Golden Print, Gallagher hit two homers and went 3-for-4 and Rozinitis had three hits.

Local's players are Fitzpatrick, Gallagher, Dunn, Neamtu, Sweeney, Shea, Rozinitis, Donaher, Nolan, Tagney, Chris Roncaratti, Bill Stavros, Eric Kane, Taylor Ahern and John Austin.

Barry's Deli made the playoffs for the first time in several years with wins over Golden Print and Bank of New England to finish second in its division.

Barry's defeated Golden Print, 14-11, with Jeff Craig the winning pitcher. Danny Duncan drove in the winning run in the bottom of the last inning.

Dan Raftery pitched well at the start and had two key hits as did Chris Murphy, Craig and Duncan. Danny Kearns, Chris Peck, Mike Connors, Derek Thompson and Mike Kelley had one hit each. Neil Hutchinson, Chris Geary, Jeff Tirrell and Dave D'Olympio played fine defense.

Barry's topped Bank of New England, 4-1, in one of the year's best pitching duels. Kearns pitched two-hit ball for Barry's, striking out 11 and walking five. Sean Donovan had a noo-hitter for Bank of N.E. until the last inning when he walked the first three batters and Craig laid down a perfect squeeze bunt to score Murphy. Another bunt by Duncan brought in the second run and Peck took everyone by surprise, by stealing home. Both teams played excellent defense.

Mike Patch and Dennis Ross had the only Bank of N.E. hits.

Mike Kelley, Tom Geary, D'Olympio, Neil Hutchinson, Chris Geary, Tirrell, Connors and Thompson all sparked on defense for Barry's.

Beach Volleyball Newest Attraction At Pageant Field

Beach (sand) volleyball has replaced lawn bowling at Quincy's Pageant Field, thanks to coaches Tom Henderson, coach of Quincy High girls' state champions, Jim Rendle of North Quincy's 1987 state champions and Chris Prendville of the state Junior Olympics elite team and the cooperation of the Quincy Recreation Department and Park Department.

The Quincy Sand Volleyball Association plans to expand its operation to include a South Shore Sand Volleyball League which will encompass youth and adult competition for all levels of play, open to the public.

"Beach volleyball is much easier for beginners than the indoor game, there are less injuries in the sand," said Rendle. "The coed game is better, too, as the sand takes away the power and speed that can dominate on the hardwood."

Pageant Field has three courts ready for league play and they were officially opened last week. There is a court for advanced two-on-two play, intermediate for three or four-on-four and a court for beginners.

"It's also a social sport because its origin is the beach," Rendle said. "We'll set up leagues for all ages."

The sand courts can also keep rising gym rental costs down. Prendville's Elite team practices indoors for six months. Now they will have the outdoor courts for practice, or pleasure, in good weather.

"Players can work on their skills in the summer without a gym," said Henderson. "We are excited because we'll play as well as coach. We see ourselves as one after the high school season. The kids are good friends and love playing. The success of both programs just adds to it."

Rendle and Henderson first envisioned sand courts in Quincy four years ago when they attended a tournament at the University of Rhode Island.

There, students played all day and night on two courts. The sport became so popular on campus that URI dug up a parking lot and built four additional courts.

The Pageant Field courts were built with the assistance of the Recreation and Park Departments, donations and fund raising by the players from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

Recreation director Barry Welch plans to implement the courts into his regular supervised summer program.

"We'll be able to utilize the staff of playground instructors who played in high school or college," he said. "For recreation I see unlimited potential."

Parks director Ray Cattaneo said only minimal cost and two weeks of labor was put into the project.

He said after years of volunteering and meticulous greens preservation, the few older players still involved in the Quincy Lawn Bowling League moved to the Milton League and dwindling numbers and demanding maintenance finally took its toll.

This spring, through the efforts of park department employees, the bowling green was torn up and filled with about two feet of sand. Approximately 400 tons of sand were used for the three courts.

The area is complete with restroom and kitchen facilities, which will be maintained by the league through tournament entrance fees.

Home Run Road Race To Be Held Aug. 10

The 10th annual Home Run 10-kilometer road race, sponsored by the Wollaston Credit Union and Barry's Deli, will be run on Thursday, Aug. 10, not Aug. 19, as announced in last week's Quincy Sun.

The race benefits the Quincy Youth Commission, which helps hundreds of youngsters in group homes.

The race committee includes Tom Stansbury of the youth commission, Sherry Mele of the Wollaston Credit Union and Gene Healey of the Credit Union.

"In 10 years there have been many changes," said Mele.

"But, the real reason for the success of the race is because of the people coming back year after year, the volunteers, and the proceeds going to the programs for the kids."

This year's celebrity starter will be Los Angeles Kings' Jay Miller, formerly of the Bruins. Last year's starter was Red Sox scout Sam Mele of Quincy, former Red Sox star and Minnesota Twins manager.

Entry fee is $6 prior to the race and $7 the day of the race. The race will start at 7 p.m. with start and finish at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Further information can be obtained by calling Sherry Mele at 740-1089. Rain date will be Thursday, Aug. 17.

Would You Like A Mickey Mantle For $1500? The Locker Room Has Thousands Of Baseball Cards

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

You won't find dirty socks, showers or a sauna in this locker room—just baseball cards.

Plenty of them. Perhaps as many as a million, according to Joe Pacetti, Bob Dinan and Jim Dwyer, co-owners of the Locker Room, 557 Hancock St. Wollaston, a sports card collectible shop specializing in baseball cards.

The owners represent 85 years of card collecting. Bob has been collecting cards for 40 years (since he was nine) Joe for 25 years and Jim for 20 years.

Three years ago, the three friends pooled their individual collections and opened the store with $55,000 worth of wholesale cards ($110,000 retail).

"We had tons of cards. We got to talking and we said wouldn't it be nice if we opened a store," recalls Joe, a Quincy resident who retired several years ago after 32 years with the U.S. Post Office.

Bob, a Saugus resident, used to work out of flea markets in Squantum and Weymouth. Bob, a Braintree resident also did card shows and has visited the Merrymount School the past few years to teach the students about collecting.

When the Wollaston location became available, they signed a lease and within a few short weeks they were open for business.

Jim, Bob and Joe work two to three hours shifts, Tuesday through Sunday. The shop is closed Mondays. While Joe is semi-retired, both Bob and Jim work other full-time jobs.

Joe says the schedule is convenient and makes the business enjoyable.

"If I wanted to work 40 hours, I would have stayed with the Post Office," he says.

The Locker Room has old cards, new cards, those of well-known players and some obscure big leaguers. From Mickey Mantle to Don Mattingly, from Willie Mays to Kevin Mitchell. If they made it to the big leagues, chances are their card has made it to the Locker Room.

In fact, some cards date back to the 1930s. They include a 1933 Goudy and Diamond card of Ben Chapman, a star with the New York Giants who died after being beamed and a card of the "Iron Horse" Lou Gehrig, which is about 50 years old.

Not only are cards displayed in the store's three glass cases (two of which came from the former Remick's Department store in Quincy Square) there are albums of Topps cards, perhaps the best known card manufacturer, from the early 1950s to the present.

They also carry Donruss, Fleer, Score and Upper Deck cards. If you prefer to collect in bunches, the Locker Room sells entire year and some team sets.

Of the countless cards that exist, the owners agree the old cards are the mainstay of the business.

"We buy just about everything but the bread and butter of the business is the old cards," Joe points out.

Why? Because the older the card, the more valuable it is. And old cards are becoming more valuable because many collectors are reluctant to sell them.

"We all like the old cards. They retain their value and the value goes up because they're tougher to get," Bob says.

At this time, the most valuable card at the Locker Room is a 1953 Mantle which retails for $1,350. That's a lot of money for a small piece of cardboard with a picture and stats on it but they sell. In fact, a 1953 Mantle was bought in May.

However, there are collectors, mainly children and young adults, who prefer to collect cards of active players like Wade Boggs, Jose Canseco and Bo Jackson.

"Kids like cards and names they can recognize," Joe explains.

Of the collectors who frequent the Locker Room, 60 percent are children while 40 percent are adults.

Kids from all over the area invade the store daily in search of their next card conquest.

They peer through the glass display case, flip through card albums and open bubble-gum packages hoping to find their favorite players.

As many as several dozen kids visit the Locker Room at one time as long as they're good, they are welcome.

"Sometimes this place is like a day care center. The kids like a day care center. The kids stay here for two or three hours while the mothers go off shopping," Bobs says.

"As long as the kids are quiet and there's no fighting, they can stay as long as they want," Joe adds.

As many as 1,000 buyers and browsers stop in during a busy week, 750 in a normal week.

In addition, the owners get 150 phone calls a week, some from out-of-state collectors responding to Locker Room advertisements placed in two national baseball card publications.

Mail order is also picking up and lay-a-way is available.

The owners agree the business has grown steadily.

"We hoped it would go but we didn't think it would go as well as it's going," Jim says. "It's caught on. It's been successful for us."

Joe adds, "we're doing very well and we've enjoyed it immensely."

Yet, like any other business, there are off days.

Like the time a middle-aged man came in to sell a bunch of 1948, '49, '50 and '51 Bowman cards and 1954, '55 and '56 Topps cards.

If old cards are the bread and butter of the business, these cards were a seven course meal. In very good or mint condition, these cards would be worth between $20,000 and $25,000.

However, there was one problem with them.

The white borders were cut off. Perhaps that doesn't strike a novice but to an experienced collector, that's a cardinal sin.

Because of the alteration, the man's small fortune was reduced by 95 percent. Instead of $25,000, they were worth $1,000.

"I was sick," Joe recalls. "The cards were beautiful but all the borders were all cut out—that kills the cards."

"He had all the star cards—Mantle, Mays, (Yogi) Berra. Some of these go as high as $2,000."

Why were the borders cut? "He cut them because he was neat," Joe answers, shaking his head.

Needless to say, the man didn't sell the cards. "He said something about making a collage out of them."

For every horror show, there's an episode with a happy ending.

Joe can also recall the time when one young man walked in with his collection of old cards, desperate for cash.

Valued at several thousand dollars, Joe bought them for $3,200.

After the deal was made, the man informed Joe that he needed the money in order to pass papers on a house.

"That made all of us feel good because we helped him buy a house."

If there is one thing that Joe and his partners stress it's keeping the cards in mint condition. A well-kept card will always be worth more than the same card that is mishandled and not taken care of.

"We hate to see a kid put a card in his pocket," Bob says.

"To protect cards, the Locker Room sells individual plastic sleeves, sheets, binders, albums and boxes which can hold 3,200 and 5,000 cards.

"Any card worth any money should be put in plastic sheets and then into an album," Joe adds, pulling out a 1979 album which contains mint cards.

"They look like they're right out of a package," he says flipping through the pages.

The owners also recommend collecting rookie cards.

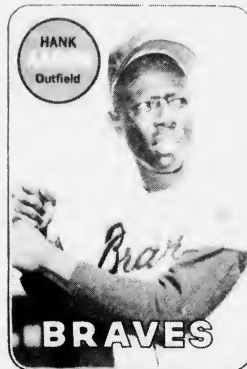

"The rookie card, that's the card that goes up (in value) the most the fastest. That's what we tell all the kids. The good rookies will go up and up," Joe says.

For example, Boggs' rookie card sold for 50 cents six years ago. It is now worth $33. After Canseco reached the 40-40 mark last year (40 home runs, 40 stolen bases), his rookie card jumped from $10 to $50—in two months.

Carl Yastrzemski's rookie card in mint condition appreciated $50, from $275 to $325 when the former Red Sox left fielder was elected to the Hall of Fame last year.

In addition, the complete 1985 Topps set consisting of more than 600 cards sold for $17.50 the year it came out.

Baseball Cards By The Thousands

The set, which includes the rookie cards for Roger Clemens, Dwight Gooden, Cory Snyder, Orel Hershiser and Eric Davis, is now worth $100.

Some complete sets sell for much more, as much as an expensive card.

Take the 1952 Topps. It's inventory reads like a Hall of Fame. Warren Spahn ($150), Duke Snider ($250), Bob Feller ($110), Yogi Berra ($300), Bill Dickey ($500), Pee Wee Reese ($600), Jackie Robins ($800), Willie Mays ($1,000), Roy Campanella ($1,250), Eddie Matthews ($1,500) and Mickey Mantle ($6,600), just to name a few.

The complete set, in mint condition, sells for $38,000. And they do exist.

Joe saw one at a recent card show in Worcester selling for $20,000.

"There aren't a lot of them but they're around," he says. Naturally, cards can also decrease in value. Take the Canseco card which started the season at $55. Because he didn't play the entire first half, it's down to $51.

"But that could pick up again," Joe observes.

And how do off-field problems affect value?

Well, in the case of Pete Rose who was a shoe-in for the Hall of Fame before gambling allegations besieged him, the jury is still out — on the card, that is.

Bob says the allegations are having no effect on his cards. And, if Rose is found guilty, there's a chance his card will go up because of notoriety.

The collector's "bible" is Beckett's Baseball Card Monthly. This national publication lists the value of literally thousands of cards, from the late 1940s to the present.

And how do off-field problems affect value?

Well, in the case of Pete Rose who was a shoe-in for the Hall of Fame before gambling allegations besieged him, the jury is still out — on the card, that is.

Bob says the allegations are having no effect on his cards. And if Rose is found guilty, there's a chance his card will go up because of notoriety.

Despite all the cards at the Locker Room, there are some the owners don't have and can only dream about.

For Jim, it's a 1954 Bowman card of Ted Williams valued at $2,100. For Joe, it's a 1954 Wilson Wiener card of Williams valued at $2,000.

Joe and Jim are partial to the Williams card because he was their favorite player growing up.

As for Bob, he would like to get his hands on a 1966 Topps card of Bobby Orr, his rookie card valued at $100.

Bob, who likes hockey cards, says anything Orr related is very hard to come by in these parts.

Besides baseball cards, the Locker Room also carries basketball, hockey and football cards as well as other sports memorabilia such as old programs and year books, posters and a new product, photo balls which are autographed baseballs with a player's photo on them.

But baseball cards are the main attraction. And the attraction keeps getting bigger.

As Joe says, "it's impossible to keep track of all the baseball cards. You can get dizzy from it."

Lisa Fitzgerald Graduates Western State With Track, Academic Honors

Lisa Fitzgerald, former North Quincy track and cross-country standout, graduated recently from Western State College, Gunnison, Colo., magna cum laude, majoring in elementary education-psychology.

Lisa, who graduated from North Quincy in 1985 after setting several school records in track and cross-country, was named to the 1989 GTE Academic All-American Women's At-Large team. She had a 3.81 GPA and was selected to the College Division's second team.

She was voted Female Scholar/Athlete in her junior and senior years and was one of the three greatest distance runners in the history of Western State College. One of the others was another former North Quincy standout, Sheila (Barret) Winegardner.

Lisa held the college championships in the 800 meters (2:09), the 400 meters (57.4) and in the 4x100, 4x400 and 4x800 relays.

She was four times Rocky

LISA FITZGERALD

Mountain Athletic Conference champion in the 800 meters and three times in the 400 meters.

She was an academic All-American in cross-country and twice was an academic All-American in track and field.

She was captain of a cross-country in her senior year, six times was All-American in track and field indoors and outdoors, four times in 800 meters.

Lisa was twice the recipient

Point Pub Runs Win Streak To 11

Point Pub defeated Luke's Lounge, 4-2, for its 11th straight victory to take over first place in the Quincy Men's Softball League, C Division.

Shortstop Dave Zuroms continued his torrid hitting (17-for-20) with a 3-for-3 performance. Pitcher Chuck Sullivan won his 13th game against three losses.

Mike Bates had a two-run double and reserve pitcher Brett Heeney (3-0) played second base and hit a long RBI triple. Bob Kane, Mark Glynn, Darren Zemp, John Burns and Joe Godfrey all had hits.

For Luke's, John Callahan hit a two-run triple and Morgan O'Shea, Scott Anson, Mike Burnes, Dave Winters and Dave Mathews all had hits.

PIP Printing knocked Granite Rail (16-4) out of first place with a rain-shortened six inning 8-4 win.

Center-fielder Al Martiel hit a bases-loaded triple and a double driving in four runs. Rich Carnali, Jeff Drew, Larry Taglieri, Ed Arcavardi, Ron Horn, Kevin Tobin and Jay DeBartolo all had hits and some fine defensive play by pitcher Dave Brolin and third baseman Taglieri helped stop Granite Rail.

For the Rail, Dave Morrocco, Mike Conlon,

Scott Mele and Mike Bellotti had hits.

Continental Cable upset third place Putnam Investments, 9-8, as Billy Wooldridge had a triple and two singles and three RBI and drove in the two winning runs with his second single.

Bruce Kannenburg, Steve Goguen, Dave Losordo, Wally Farrell, Rick Mahoney and Ron Riechert all contributed to the win as Putnam dropped out of a three-way tie for first place.

Mike O'Keefe had an inside-the-park home run to give Putnam an 8-6 lead going into the seventh when Cable scored three runs to win it.

Lou Moccia, George Reese, Lloyd Whatt, Jim Lynch and Joe Hollis all played well for Putnam.

The standings: Point Pub, 16-3; Granite Rail, 16-4; Putnam Investments, 15-4; PIP Printing, 9-8; Continental Cable, 9-9; Luke's Lounge, 7-10; Hat Rack, 7-10; Washington Tap, 6-10; Sagamore II, 3-14; Sagamore P.O., 1-15.

Jaehnig Club Upsets Kane's To Win Title

The Jaehnig Club upset Kane's Place, 85-77, to win the Jaehnig Chiopracic Men's Basketball League regular season title for the first time in five years.

The win avenged last year's loss to Kane's in the regular season championship game.

Paul Leonard led the way with 26 points, mostly on outside shooting and John Timmins had 22. Mike Keeley had 17 and Chuck Jaehnig 12. For Kane's Mark Millane scored 27 of his game-high 40 points in the second half to almost single-handedly keep his team in the game. Bill Dacey had 18 points and Paul Forbes 10. Jaehnig finished at 8-1 and Kane's at 7-2.

In earlier games, Jaehnig held off the Greymen, 83-72. Leonard again paced the attack with 24 points. Mark Jaehnig had 18, Chuck Jaehnig 14 and Paul Fornell 10. The Greymen, who finished in a tie for second place, were led by Steve Millane's 23 points. Brian Schwanke had 14. Bart Sampson 13 and Scott Higgins 12.

The Quincy Nets received 22 points from Steve Belcastro as they edged Bill's Place, 69-67.

Bill's Club, which finished at 1-8, was led by Dave McClain's season-high 33 points.

Earlier, the Nets dropped a thrilling 105-102 thriller to Kane's Place. The game set a league record for most points scored in a game. Mark Millane, who won his fifth straight scoring title, had 37 points. Bill Dacey 22, Dean Coletti 21 and Joey Russell 18. The Nets staged a remarkable comeback as they trailed, 63-42, at half-time. Brian Reale and Al Wolfe had 23 points each. Jeff Timberlake 18, Rick Stoltz 16 and Steve Belcastro 12. The Nets finished at 5-4.

Bake's Club (5-4) finished by winning five of its last six games and topped Miller A.C., 85-77, in its finale. Dan Grant had 30 points and John O'Shea 25 for Bakes. Jim Bellafato had 14 and Kent Goon 12. Miller (3-6) had 19 points from Ron Wiles. Fred Sundin had 18, John Gould 18 and Bob McNamara 12.

J.B. Heating defeated Granite Rail, 78-67 and improved to 5-4 behind Dan Murphy's 26 points. John Byers had 20, Brian Levitt 16 and Willie Weeks 10. Jim Kelley paced Granite Rail (3-6) with 19 points. Kevin White had 15 and Wink Phelan 13.

Steve Millane scored 35 points to lead th Greymen to a 79-60 win over the Bombardiers (1-7) as Bruno Giles had 14 points. Paul Keenan had 23, Rich Wicklund 21 and Dave Powers 12 for the Bombardiers.

The playoffs get under way tonight (Thursday) at St. Joseph's gym in Quincy Point. The Nets meet Bake's at 6:30, Kane's take on J.B. Heating at 7:30, the Greymen face Miller A.C. at 8:30 and Jaehnig plays Granite Rail at 9:30.

There is no admission charge and the public is welcome.

4 Qualify For Hershey National Finals

Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announces that four Quincy youngsters have qualified for the National Championship in the Hershey National Track and Field Program hosted locally by the Quincy Recreation Department.

The qualifiers are Steve Southwick, Cedar Pl.; Billy Chiu, Beale St.; Ildo Vieira, Sachem St., and Tony Licciardi, Athorp St.

The four boys, all ages 13-14, will compete in the 4x100 meter relay after winning the Massachusetts state championship with a time of 51.57. The four boys were part of a group of 28 local youngsters who competed in the state championship after winning the local qualifying meet at Veterans' Stadium. All national finalists will be flown, all expenses paid, to Hershey, P.A., Aug. 10-13, to compete with other youngsters from all 50 states.

Welch also announced that Geoff Hennessy, long-time director of the Quincy Track Club and Quincy meet director, has been selected by Bill Hedlund to be one of the Massachusetts chaperones. Hedlund is the New England co-ordinator of Hershey Track and the Director of Recreation in Braintree.

"Hennessy has put countless hours of volunteer efforts into teaching the skills of track and field to many youngsters, and I am pleased that he has been selected as a chaperone and coach for the Massachusetts delegation. It is an honor much deserved," Welch said.

Other Quincy youngsters captured state championships. However, their performances are compared to other champions in the six New England States and the national finalists are selected.

Those winning at the Massachusetts State Meet: Girls 13-14, 100M, Mekel Conway; Girls 13-14, 200 M, Mekel Conway; Boys 11-12, 800 M, James Lencki; 13-14 Boys Relay, Steve Southwick, Billy Chiu, Ildo Vieira, and Tony Licciardi; Boys 11-12, 100 M, James Lencki.

Others scoring in the state finals were Rachel Garneau 2nd G Softball throw; Tyson T. Sumpter, 3rd, 200M; Ildo Vieira, 4th, 100 M; John McCarthy, 7th, Mile; Boys Relay, Tony Lencki, Chris Klier, Cedric Douglas and Roger Smith, 3rd; Erin Barry, 2nd, 400 M; Jennifer Pratt, 2nd, 800M; Relay, Girls, Judy Wong, Danielle Hickey, Cheryl Hurley, and Barbara Scolaro; Ann Harkins, Mile; Kathy Lencki, 800 M, 8th; Relay, Girls, Jennifer Nutley, Noreen Fewer, Noreen O'Brien and Jennifer Pratt; Relay Boys, Timothy Semchenko, James Potter, Joe Barkhouse and Timothy Burke; Girls Relay, Coleen MacDougall, Kristina Evans, Dianne McGunnigle, and Erin Barry; Billy Chiu, Standing Long Jump.

The purpose of Hershey National Track and Field Youth Program is to create a form of recreation and participation for youth ages 9-14 years. It is hoped that through proper guidance and assistance that this program may positively shape the future direction of the participants in the program.

Over 160 youths took part in the preliminary competition in Quincy sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and conducted with the assistance of the volunteers from Quincy Track Club.

Quincy Girls Under 10 Third In Tourney

The Quincy Youth Soccer League travel team recently competed in two area six-on-six tournaments in the girls under 10 division.

The team, coached by Nancy Stone, Michelle Stenberg and Arthur Linehan, placed third in the Ben Brewster six-on-six event at Braintree High School. Quincy defeated Cambridge twice and Acton-Boxboro to make the semifinals. It lost in the semis to Abington.

The Quincy girls were led by forwards Angela Hogrell, Erin Flaherty, Sarah Satkevich, Christine Goff and Kristyn Stenberg. Defensive leader, Jill Picardi, led the fullbacks and Lauren Lumaghini, Brenda Linehan, Jennifer Stasiak played strong defense. Goalies Colleen Donahue and Betsy Stone played well. Donahue looked sharp with the low hard corner shots and Stone robbed Abington of two sure goals from corner kicks.

The under 10 girls also played in the John Smith six-on-six tournament at Wheaton College. Smith calls his tournament the largest two-day youth tournament in the world.

Quincy didn't fare as well there as it defeated Foxboro, tied Harvard, and lost to MAYS, leaving it one point short of making the crossovers to the semifinals.

The girls, competing on a travel basis outside the city for the first time, finished in fourth place in the South Shore League.

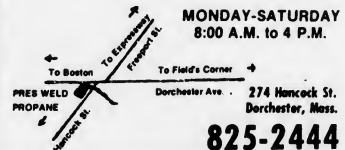

Other players include Erin Barry, Siobhan O'Connor, Diane Jordan and Eileen Sherman.

Storyteller Entertains Youngsters At Library

Diane Wolkstein, international storyteller and collector of stories, appeared recently at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

An audience of children and adults were entertained with folktales from China. During one such story, "The Magic Wings", participants from the audience were chosen to act out the characters as Wolkstein narrated it. This story is one of several retellings of folktales from many different cultures that she has published.

"The Banza," a folktale from Haiti, has been featured on the popular television show, Reading Rainbow. After her performance, Ms. Wolkstein mingled with the group to answer questions and autograph books and cassettes.

Earlier that day, 60 middle school students from Quincy participated in a morning workshop conducted at the Library by Wolkstein. She discussed the significance of story form and the process of creating each of her books. She also answered questions from the students and autographed their books.

This special day was funded by a Library Services and Construction Act grant for a project entitled "East Meets West". Those who missed the chance to see Diane Wolkstein in person can borrow an American Storytelling Series videocassette in which she appears. The Thomas Crane Library also carries many of her books and audiocassettes.

On Tuesday, June 20 at 7 p.m., Michael Zerphy, a clown and mime, will perform. Children ages 5 and older and parents are invited to the Central Children's Room at the Library in Quincy Square. This program will celebrate Summer Program Registration Day and is funded by the Massachusetts Art Lottery.

'Medea' Opens Aug. 3 At Gordon Amphitheatre

The Dionysian Stage will present a production of Euripides' tragedy "Medea" Thursday, Aug. 3 and Saturday, Aug. 5 at 7 p.m.

and again Sunday, Aug. 6 at 3 p.m. at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre, Pageant Field.

Quincy.

"Medea" will mark the first theatrical production to be presented at the theatre since its dedication to the famed Quincy-born actress.

The cast includes young adults from Quincy and the surrounding areas. It is being directed by Quincy resident Ann Carroll.

Admission is free.

Openings At Beechwood For Nature Capers Class

Beechwood Community Life Center has openings in their Nature Capers II class. The class, an outdoor program for children grades K-3, will study insect and plant life in the Center's saltwater marsh. There are two, two-week sessions available: Session I - Aug. 7 through 18 and Session II - Aug. 12 through Sept. 1.

Class hours are 9 a.m. to 12 noon daily and the cost is $70 per session. Call Beechwood at 471-5712 for more information and to register.

BARON HUGO, second from right, and his orchestra, were among the performers who entertained during the three-day Quincy Ceter Sidewalk Bazaar.

Campus Kinder Haus Raises $986 For Easter Seals

Youngsters from the Campus Kinder Haus in Quincy hoped to help people with disabilities, raising over $986 in an Easter Seal Hop-N-Ing.

The children spent the previous week learning about disabilities -- what causes them, how disabilities affect people's everyday lives, the equipment used to cope. After that, they are ready to help.

Each child secured pledges from family and friends for every hop performed during a three-minute HOP-N-ING. The funds raised help provide Easter Seal services for men, women and children with disabilities.

Easter Seal services include: summer camp, therapeutic swim programs, home health care, physical and occupational therapy, speech therapy, equipment loan, support groups for people recovering from

WEEK OF: July 27

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Your strong personality makes you a natural in the leadership department, and the coming six months see you assuming an important managerial role. Community involvement is highlighted through mid-1990; the key, however, is to share the limelight more equitably.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

The week includes a mixture of funny and improbable events; you may want to keep a diary of all the happenings. Fitness activities are on the horizon, but moderation is your keyword.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Colleagues are both more assertive and more cooperative. Planning social events is a prominent part of week's agenda. Avoid extremes in areas of diet and dress especially.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Small award or reward may be yours after the weekend; your acceptance remarks should be shaped with care. Friend may be temporarily aloof while higher-up is suddenly much more cordial.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Week is favorable for campaigning, whether for a cause or for an individual. If putting the finishing touches to a job, be sure not to either rush or slow down the process.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

You may have inadvertently offended a friend; if a relationship seems unnaturally forced, don't hesitate to speak up. You make an important contribution to an important cause.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Comparison shopping is important if setting out to make a major or minor acquisition. You may decide to initiate a reconciliation; the process may be a little rocky at first.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Week sees you blending commonsense and intuition and making important strides in your career. Education and travel blend well. Neighbor is more cooperative, thanks to your example.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

A relationship that got off to a rapid start may start to fizzle; it's largely up to you to get the bubbles going again. Week sees you completing a long and tedious project.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Prepare to spend time among opinionated types; Libra's famous diplomacy may be put to the test. Partner is calmer thanks to events at work. Community role wins you plaudits.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Your sense of justice wins the day, while your sense of adventure makes current travel especially rewarding. Monday-Wednesday are favorable for studying financial and other trends.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Combination of humorous and surprise events makes travel anything but dull. Competitive streak surfaces, and your performance at work is certainly improved. Athletic events generally are favored.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

The week may see you setting a least one record, but don't try to be the best at everything. Selectivity is the keyword in all areas. A realistic goal is within sight.

Copies may be obtained at the Department of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169 from 9 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m., upon payment of $25.00 for each set. Any unsuccessful bidder or nonbidder, upon returning such set within 30 days, Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays excluded, after the date of opening of bids and in good condition, will be refunded his payment.

Contract documents and plans will be mailed to prospective bidders upon request and receipt of a separate check for $10.00
bidders upon request and receipt of a separate check for $10.00 to cover handling and mailing fees. This amount is not refundable.

Both checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy.

All bids for this project are subject to applicable bidding laws of Massachusetts, including General Laws Chapter 30, Section 39M as amended.

Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) and Women's Business Enterprise (WBE) policies of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the City of Quincy are applicable to this Contract. The goal for this project is a minimum of five (5) percent MBE participation and five (5) percent WBE participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs. The bidder shall submit completed MBE/WBE forms (Letters of Intent) with this bid. Failure to comply with the requirements of this paragraph may be deemed to render a proposal nonresponsive.

The Bidders attention is called to the requirements and conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid under the contract as determined by the Department of Labor and Industries under the provisions of the Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 149, Section 26-27D inclusive.

The bidder agrees that this bid shall be good and may not be withdrawn for a period of 30 days, Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays excluded, after the opening of bids.

The Owner reserves the right to waive any informalities or to reject any or all bids.

MWRA Compromise In Jeopardy, Says Harold

A compromise over the siting of the MWRA future headquarters is in jeopardy because the state legislature is in recess, Senator Paul Harold said Tuesday.

"At this point, with the legislature in summer recess, the whole matter is on hold. The delay could be fatal to the Roxbury end of the compromise."

"If it is fatal, the compromise is void and our position would then be to push Quincy as the entire headquarters site," Harold said.

A delay, Harold explained, puts a financial package between the MWRA and Roxbury developers in doubt. "Roxbury has to negotiate with their finances. They can't hang in without knowing what the situation is," he said.

Last week, Quincy and Boston officials struck a compromise that would bring some of the MWRA employees to the General Dynamics shipyard.

It would also allow the authority to locate some of its administrative offices in Roxbury.

The compromise also includes a number of concessions to Quincy including:

- Distribution of surplus land.

- Location of public health and environmental protection offices at the shipyard. These agencies would provide oversight to the authority's sludge operation, activity by Clean Harbors, Inc., and the Edgar Power Station in Weymouth.

Last week, the House postponed a vote on the compromise because some members were not comfortable with the details.

Harold said Quincy negotiated out of good faith for an equitable solution to the headquarters issue.

Now that the House and Senate have recessed until September, Harold said, "Nobody is certain to what the status of the compromise is."

And it could be a "whole new ball game" when the legislature returns this fall.

"The question then will be: Do we start completely fresh or where we left off. No one knows right now," Harold said.

Even when the hospital is reimbursed, the payments do not cover 100 percent of the expenses. Sometimes, only 85 percent of a patient's bill is reimbursed.

Also, Ayres noted the shortage of nursing home beds in the state which he calls a "critical problem."

"If we have a patient who can't be transferred because of the shortage, state law mandates that the patient stay in the hospital."

Another reason for the deficit is the insurance industry which sharply discourages hospitalization as an option, Ayres said.

Although the hospital has experienced a 20 percent decline in the number of patients the past two months, Ayres said this is not a big factor.

"We do see a dip (in the number of patients) every summer. It is a traditional experience that occurs in hospitals across the state," he said.

Ayres, who called the layoffs "regrettable," said the reductions will bring Quincy Hospital more in line with the state employee-to-patient ratio.

Currently, there are five to six employees per patient at Quincy Hospital. After the cuts, there will be three to four per patient.

Most hospitals in the state operate with three to four employees per patient.

Asked what can be done to rectify the situation, Ayres said, "Generally, there's a feeling that we're over-regulated. We're looking to ways to cutting the regulations and making sure the reimbursements are paid as promised."

As the hospital prepares to cutback, Ayres stressed that the quality of care will not be impaired. "We will maintain the present quality of care at the hospital. I do not think the general public will be cognizant of the layoffs."

He also said the cutbacks should not delay the opening of the hospital's $60.2 million addition late this summer.

Asked if the hospital rehabilitation project affected the present fiscal problem, Ayres replied, "I really think that's comparing apples and oranges."

"The factors that created the layoffs are regulation and reimbursement, not the modernization of the hospital."

"The modernization was desperately needed to maintain the quality of care. It is not what brought us to this unfortunate situation we're in right now."

Once open, the new hospital will have a total of 334 beds, 234 of which will be new.

"It will be a first-class facility," McCauley said.

Permit Sought For Dredging At Squantum Point

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority are seeking permission from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to dredge 51,000 cubic yards of sand from a 4.7 acre area of the entrance channel to Squantum Point in Dorchester Bay in Quincy.

The dredged material would be transported to the Massachusetts Bay Disposal Site.

The application for the federal permit was filed with the Engineers in compliance with Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act which provides for federal regulation of any work in, under, or over navigable waters of the United States and Section 103 of the Marine Protection, Research and Sanctuaries Act which regulates the transport of dredged material for open water disposal.

To assist in evaluating the proposed work, the Engineers are soliciting public comments. Written statements should be forwarded to their office no later than Aug. 21, 1989.

Residents Urged To Attend

Old Colony RR Restoration Public Meeting Thursday

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy residents are encouraged to attend a public meeting concerning the $391 million restoration of the Old Colony commuter railroad tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy High School Methods Center.

The meeting will be run by Stephen Polechronis, the MBTA's project manager. Polechronis said resident input will be formulated into a draft environmental impact report.

The report must be approved by the state and federal government before the project can begin.

Residents will also be informed of results from a recent analysis and overview of the project. The analysis deals with potential impacts on noise and vibration, traffic, air quality and MBTA Red Line service.

"We feel very good about the project. We want people to tell us their concerns," Polechronis said Tuesday.

According to the project manager, restoring service on the Old Colony line through Quincy and the South Shore to Boston would not have any significant impact on noise and vibration and would have positive impacts on traffic reductions along Quincy streets.

Furthermore, rail service would free up seats on the MBTA's Red Line because commuters south of Quincy would take the commuter train and not the T.

The analysis concluded that:

- There would be no significant change in noise and vibration because the track would be surrounded by two existing generators of noise, the inbound and outbound tracks of the MBTA.

- Polechronis said the noise of the diesel trains would not be enough to increase the present level of noise created by MBTA.

- As presently proposed, there would be a total of 77 trains per day operating from 6:15 a.m. to 10 or 11 p.m.

- Based on ridership projections, by the year 2000 the rail service would avert 13,500 motor vehicle trips per day through Quincy. Instead of commuting through Quincy's main streets, such as Newport Ave. and Quincy Shore Dr., Polechronis said

Southeast region residents would take the rail service to Boston.

In addition, he noted that as much as one third of traffic on Quincy's local streets would be reduced.

- As for air quality, Polechronis said the train service would reduce the amount of air pollutants caused by automobiles by more than 850 tons by the year 2000. The figure includes emissions caused from the trains.

- Regarding Red Line MBTA service, Polechronis said between 1,500 and 1,600 Red Line riders would be averted to the commuter rail. "This would provide more space on the Red Line for Quincy residents," he said.

- Asked what kind of guarantee he can give residents that these figures are accurate, Polechronis said, "These are professionally-based studies. They aren't pie-in-the-sky studies."

"They are based on a (Cont'd on Page 8)

Methadone Clinic To Open In September

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Legal agreements for the establishment of a mobile methadone clinic in Quincy are expected to be finalized the first week of Sept. and the clinic should be operating later that month, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

The clinic will be located at the rear of the Quincy Public Works building on Sea St. behind the Police Station. Officials working on the agreement decided the Public Works building area was a better location than the Quincy District Courthouse because the former is a less residential area.

"There were concerns about apartments and restaurants being in close proximity to the clinic if it were located at the courthouse," McCauley said, adding the Public Works building area would be "a little further removed from any residential area."

McCauley said separate agreements between Habit

Management of Boston, the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, Survival, Inc., and the city will be finalized early next month.

Attorney David Spillane of the city's Legal Dept. is representing the city in preparing the contracts.

As presently proposed, Habit Management will operate the mobile methadone van seven days a week from 6:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. Survival would provide counseling to patients.

Program operation, which is expected to begin in mid Sept., will be overseen by a seven-member review committee.

The original contract is for a six-month period and will be subject to review and renegotiation, McCauley noted.

The committee will consist of representatives from Habit Management, the Mayor's Office, State Department of Public Health Division of Alcohol and Drug Rehabilitation, Survival, Quincy Public Health Department, City Council, and Social Health Dept. of Quincy Public Schools.

The mayor said members of the committee will be named by the time the operation begins.

McCauley said he is optimistic the program will help heroin addicts. Methadone is a synthetic drug used to wean drug users from their addictions.

He also said safeguards are being put in the agreement to protect the city and residents.

"I think the matter is doing well. We want to make sure the agreement protects the interests of the City of Quincy and that the program is properly administered."

Noting the contract is for six months, McCauley said the program would be evaluated before the agreement is renegotiated next year. By evaluating the program, the mayor said revisions could be made before the clinic is allowed to continue.

Officials Will Meet On Police Station Flooding

A group of city officials including Mayor Francis McCauley will meet later this week to discuss the pump problem at the Quincy Police Station which has been flooded three times in the past nine months.

The mayor will be joined by Public Works Commr. David Colton, Chief Francis Finn, Building Inspector Matt Mulvey, as well as the presidents of the Police Patrolman's Association and Police Superior Officers Association.

Following heavy rains last week, the station's underground parking garage was flooded with six to seven inches of water. Officials have been checking for damage to police vehicles and computer terminals which were stored in the basement.

Colton said the pump probably malfunctioned after lightning created a power surge in the pump's electrical box. He said additional power surge protection will be installed.

Colton, who called the problem minor, said officials will simulate a flood to check the system.

McCauley, who acknowledged there have been allegations of "shoddy" construction work at the soon-to-open $9 million facility, called the meeting to discuss the situation.

"We want to make sure that everything has been done properly. Before we sign off and pay any contractors and architects, we want to make sure any problem is corrected.

"These are brand new pumps which haven't been kicking in properly. When they work, the job is more than adequate."

"Obviously, there is a problem with the pumps. We'll discuss the matter in depth. We want to know if there are any major problems," McCauley said.

Officials hope renovations of the old building are completed and ready to be occupied by Sept. 19.

"The $9 million project is $300,000 under budget which McCauley said is an accomplishment."

"It's a rare thing to keep projects, especially as large as this one, within budget."

ROBERT FEDERICO, center, is sworn in as Deputy Commissioner of Public Works in Quincy by Assistant City Clerk Thomas Burke while Mayor Francis McCauley looks on. Federico, a former superintendent of the city's Highway Department, was appointed deputy commissioner after David Colton was named commissioner.

MWRA Contracts, Spending Criticized In State Audit

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

An audit issued recently by State Auditor Joseph DeNucci reveals the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority awarded no-bid contracts totaling more than $1 million, gave consultant contracts to its own advisory board and spent at least $65,000 in questionable personal benefits and services for employees and board members.

The audit, which examined 2,006 of approximately 75,000 expenditure documents from July 1, 1985 to June 30, 1988, found that among the MWRA's personal expenditures were:

- A service providing free coffee for employees ($46,077).
- Payment of motor vehicle violations for employees and board members ($6,546).
- Chauffeur service to and from board meetings as well as babysitting services for board members' children while their parents attended the board meetings ($3,076).

"The MWRA has made expenditures which are inappropriate, unnecessary and in some instances, not in compliance with the MWRA's own procurement policies and procedures," DeNucci said.

"It is unfair to ask ratepayers of the communities served by the MWRA to pay higher water and sewer bills while the agency charging them the increased money spends it on unnecessary personal and private uses."

In addition, the audit pointed out that $1.37 million in consultant contracts was awarded by the MWRA to the Anderson

Nichols Company of Boston and to Project Management Associates of Ann Arbor, Michigan, without using the competitive bid process. "This reduced the MWRA's ability to obtain the highest quality services at the lowest reasonable price," DeNucci said.

It was also found that the MWRA awarded two consultant contracts totaling $112,830 on a non-competitive bid basis to its own advisory board. One contract totaled $107,840 and the other, $6,000.

DeNucci called on the Authority to seek an advisory opinion from the State Ethics Commission to clarify the legality of this practice. "The Authority's awarding of no-bid consultant contracts to its own advisory board could give the appearance of compromising the independent nature of the board and may create a potential conflict of interest," he said.

Other findings show that the MWRA:

- Made advance payments of $100,000 to the advisory board rather than reimburse them for actual expenses.
- Did not comply with its own policies and procedures for processing business expense reimbursement requests from employees and board members.
- Was not adequately safeguarding its $3.77 million inventory of furniture and equipment.
- Has failed to repay a $16.3 million debt to the state.
- In issuing the audit, DeNucci recommended the MWRA:
 - Develop and implement clear, written policies defining allowable Authority expenses.

- Comply with its own management procedures and ensure that all consultant contracts in excess of $25,000 are awarded on the basis of an open and competitive process.

- Seek an opinion from the State Ethics Commission concerning the propriety of the Authority's awarding no-bid contracts to its own advisory board.

- Not pay its advisory board in excess of expenses.

- Review employee and board member reimbursement requests for completeness and compliance with MWRA policies and procedures.

- Develop and implement procedures for conducting periodic inventories of its office furniture and equipment.

- Comply with the law and immediately repay the $16.3 million it owes the state along with accrued interest of approximately $2.7 million.

"These are tough economic times for ratepayers as well as for the cities and towns," DeNucci said. "Every state agency should scrutinize its spending and stop wasting taxpayer dollars."

"The Office of the State Auditor will be reviewing every agency to ensure that neither taxpayers nor cities and towns have financial burdens placed on them that are inappropriate."

According to DeNucci, the MWRA has taken some measures to discontinue several of the practices when it was made aware of their existence.

Foster Care Adoption Meetings

Two August meetings for persons interested in adopting a child have been scheduled by the South Shore Foster Care and Adoption Family Resource Partnership.

Those interested in becoming a foster parent or in adopting a child are invited to attend a meeting tonight (Thursday), August 3, at 7 p.m. at the Dept. of Social Services Office, 6 Fort St., Quincy.

The second meeting will be on Wednesday, Aug. 16, at 10 a.m. at the North Quincy Library, 381 Hancock St., North Quincy.

More information may be obtained by calling the Quincy Department of Social Services Family Resource Unit at 773-8920.

Sheets Against MWRA Compromise, Wants Levy To Work Here

Mayoral candidate James Sheets, who is against a compromise on the MWRA headquarters siting issue, said any compromise worked out by the state legislature should require that the authority's director work in Quincy and that a freeze be imposed on sewer rates.

Sheets made his remarks last Saturday before approximately 375 supporters at a Workers Fundraiser at the George F. Bryan VFW post.

"It was a warm, enthusiastic crowd of just common people who believe in Jim," said Campaign Manager Tom Koch.

Addressing the crowd, Sheets said he opposes any compromise with the MWRA which does not force Executive Director Paul Levy to work on-site at the former General Dynamics shipyard in Quincy. He said the headquarters should be situated at the shipyard administrative offices, not in Roxbury.

"I don't think (Levy) cares about the people of Quincy Point. I think all he cares about is having a pristine office in Roxbury," Sheets said, adding that Levy should work in Quincy to monitor the authority's sludge operation.

Sheets also said if the legislative delegation insists on resolving the issue by compromise, one stipulation must be that sewer rates be frozen at their current level for 50 or 100 years, or until the MWRA no longer uses the shipyard site for any purpose.

He said this stipulation will save homeowners thousands of dollars in the years ahead.

According to Levy, within 10 years the average homeowner will pay a sewer bill of $1,000 or more each year. Sheets said this would make it difficult to sell homes, property values would decline, home buyers would seek to purchase homes outside Quincy and the MWRA service district.

"Under no condition," Sheets stressed, "should we compromise on the location of the MWRA headquarters."

Card Made Wise Decision, Says McCauley

The decision by Andrew Card, President George Bush's deputy chief of staff, not to seek the Republican nomination for governor in Massachusetts was a "smart move," according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

"Andy Card would have been a formidable candidate. He has the visibility and the ability to raise substantial money."

"But, I think he made the right move. To come back here and run for governor, when you have an office near the President, would not have been a wise decision for him," said McCauley, who also has been mentioned as a possible GOP candidate for governor. Card, 41, a former state representative from Holbrook, was expected to make his formal announcement Wednesday. Earlier this week, ranking state Republican officials said Card had informed them he was bowing out for several reasons, including family concerns and service to the President.

Noting Card's age, McCauley said the deputy chief of staff still has a lot of time before deciding on waging a campaign for governor.

"Card is only 41 years old. He's got a lot of time. He's gaining invaluable experience in government. He could be in Bush administration for eight years and still be young enough to run for governor."

"I think it was an excellent decision, a tough one, but it was in the best interest of his family and country," he said.

Does Card's withdrawal increase McCauley's chances of running for the nomination? "I'm keeping my options open," the mayor replied. He then added, "Card getting out is a good break for anyone because he would have been a formidable candidate."

FRANCIS McCAULEY

McCauley, who has been in touch with State Republican Chairman Ray Shamie about a possible run for state office, will speak at a state Republican seminar in October in Falmouth. The mayor said all possible GOP candidates for governor and other state offices have been invited to attend and address the gathering.

Asked what he would talk about, McCauley said with a laugh, "Why I am the best candidate for governor."

Actually, McCauley has been mentioned as a potential candidate for three other offices: treasurer, auditor and secretary of state.

Of the three, McCauley said he is most interested in the treasurer's job presently held by Democrat Robert Crane. Crane is considered a liability by some officials and that could lead to a spirited race for his job.

But, if McCauley is interested, he's not telling.

For now, he's just keeping his options open.

Delinquent Taxes Threaten Downtown Restaurant License

By JANE ARENA

Restaurant proprietor Peter Kelly withdrew without prejudice Tuesday a request for a common victualer-all alcoholic license extension due to a technical error in the license application.

Kelly requested an extension of his license at Kelly's In The Square, 15-19 Cottage Ave., to include the first floor function room. On the application, filed by Kelly's attorney, Richard W. Barry, the corporate holding company for the restaurant was listed as "Kelly's In The Square, Inc.," when it should have been listed as "P.K. Pub, Inc., doing business as Kelly's In The Square."

The listed corporation is not a legal entity in the eyes of the board.

Meanwhile Asst. City Solicitor Don Hansen was before the board to request that the license be denied because Kelly owes the city a total of $95,000 in outstanding real estate taxes on 14 properties.

According to City Ordinance the License Board has the power to "deny, revoke, or suspend any license of permit" of any party who is listed by the treasurer and collector as having "neglected or refused to pay any local taxes" Under the ordinance, the party in question must be given at least 14 days notice of a hearing to determine whether such action will be taken.

Board Chairman John Gillis sent to Kelly, by certified mail, Monday, a letter notifying him of a hearing scheduled for Sept. 5 "to determine whether licenses held by (Kelly) ... should be revoked or suspended due to non-payment of fiscal 1989 real estate taxes due the City of Quincy ..."

Conservation Hearing Aug. 8

The Quincy Conservation Commission will meet and hold a public hearing Tuesday, Aug. 8 beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room, City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy.

The public is invited. Among the items on the agenda are:

- Notice of intent filed by Clifton and Rita Sommers for the construction of an addition and deck in the flood plain zone on property at 86 Sachem St., Wollaston.

- Notice of intent filed by Pompeo Motors, Inc., for the repositioning and maintenance of floats and mooring racks for commercial use at a commercial marina, Anchor Marina, 666 Southern Artery, Quincy.

- Notice of intent filed by Massachusetts Electric for the construction of an electrical apparatus structure and metal substation building on the premises located at 79-98 Field St., Quincy, flood plain zone.

- Notice of intent filed by Kevin Ryan for the expansion of a driveway, construction of the deck and an above-ground pool on property located at 378-384 Manet Ave., Quincy, flood plain zone.

- Notice of intent filed by the Department of Environment Management and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority for the dredging material in the entrance channel to Squantum Point in Dorchester Bay.

CONTESTABLE PERIOD

In every life insurance contract, there is a "contestable clause." What does this do for the insurance company, and what does it do for you?

For the insurance company, it gives them the right to challenge a death claim within the "contestable period," which is usually two years. If the insured did not disclose information that might have prevented the issuance of his policy in its present form, the insurance company would have the right to contest the death claim for up to six months while it explores the possibility of omissions. If they find that the insured knowingly withheld information, they need not pay the claim and they return the premiums paid, to the beneficiary.

The "contestable clause" also protects the insured, in that after the period of contestability passes, the insurance company can no longer withhold payment of the death claim due to any withheld information. Because of the "contestable clause" in your present policies, that are passed the contestable period, it is advisable to consider the consequences of dropping any policy for a new one with a new "contestable period."

At Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc., our insurance professionals are happy to discuss the many protection options available today. Please give us a call at 471-8200 or stop by our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy.

The Gloves Are Off

The gloves appear to be off for two of the contenders in this year's mayoral fight.

Councillor Steve McGrath and businessman Peter O'Connell seem to have their own main event going.

McGrath untied
the gloves first with an advertising offense against O'Connell and the latter came back counterpunching.

Meanwhile, the other two major mayoral contenders, Councillor James Sheets and former mayor Joseph LaRaia have been relatively quiet.

Sheets is campaigning in his traditional low-key style knocking on doors and chatting like a next door neighbor with the folks he finds at home.

LaRaia still seems to be running more against incumbent Francis McCauley who is not a candidate for re-election than he is against McGrath, Sheets and O'Connell. His latest jabs against the administration are over the flooding at the new police station underground garage and coming layoffs at Quincy Hospital.

It's still a pretty good horse race with the four major candidates still pretty well bunched.
One recent poll reportedly shows O'Connell with a slight lead with the three other major candidates neck and neck closely behind.

The poll also reportedly shows the undecided vote which a few weeks ago was around 40 percent has now shrunk to about 20 percent. So, the voters apparently are making up their minds.

But one poll, or two, doesn't make an election. Trying to predict the outcome of the Sept. 12 preliminary election at this point is hardly a safe bet. Not yet, anyway.

Things can change from one week to the next and candidates' positions and popularity with them.

But one fact seems to be emerging: O'Connell, a political newcomer, has been coming on since getting off to a slow start last January.

His involvement in Quincy's fight to bring the headquarters of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to the Quincy Shipyard has obviously enhanced his political standing while at the same time it has irritated McGrath.

It was O'Connell who, some weeks ago requested the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries to look into the awarding of the MWRA headquarters to Roxbury on the grounds it violated the Ward Commission's rules on state contracts.

That department did take a look and agreed that the MWRA did not follow the state contracting laws in selecting the Roxbury site for the headquarters.

And, Atty. Gen. James Shannon quickly said he will enforce the decision by the Department of Labor and Industries.

Following that, a Quincy bill was introduced that would send the headquarters to the Quincy Shipyard and it sailed easily through the House and Senate.

But Governor Michael Dukakis who has lined up with Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn and Roxbury torpedoed the measure with a veto.

Support for an override of the governor's veto was jeopardized by Quincy-South Shore votes against the House tax bill and it looked like Quincy would lose on a showdown vote.

A compromise was then put together which would salvage at least half or part of the MWRA headquarters for Quincy, and eliminate composting or incineration at the sludge facility. Other considerations were talked about.

HAROLD

TOBIN

Senator Paul Harold, Reps. Michael Morrissey and Steve Tobin worked together on the compromise with O'Connell and the Chamber of Commerce having input.

The feeling was that if the veto override vote failed—and it still looks like it will—Quincy would wind up with the sludge facility and nothing else.

In other words, Quincy could lose the whole loaf as far as the MWRA headquarters and other considerations are concerned. With the compromise, Quincy could get half a loaf. And legislation could correct the Roxbury violation.

But, McGrath takes strong exception to a compromise. He says O'Connell's involvement sets "a very bad precedent because it encourages private citizens to negotiate on the city's behalf."

McGrath says the city should not compromise because the Roxbury site awarding has been found to be illegal.

In a paid newspaper advertisement, McGrath said:
"to negotiate what has been determined illegal is wrong.
My opponent Peter O'Connell and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce initiated a so-called compromise allowing the MWRA to side-step the public bidding and hurt us, the ratepayers."

O'Connell, whose initiative brought about the determination that the Roxbury site awarding was wrong countered.

He says the compromise virtually guarantees there will be MWRA employees working in Quincy near the sludge facility.

O'Connell also noted that McGrath was president of the City Council when the MWRA purchased the General Dynamics Shipyard.

"It saddens me," he says, "because the very individual who is questioning why a private citizen would be involved in this MWRA action was actually the president of the City Council who let the MWRA into the city in the first place."

Some political observers, meanwhile, have had their own reaction to the McGrath advertisement.

They zeroed in on McGrath's reference to "My opponent Peter O'Connell," noting he did not refer to "One of my opponents Peter O'Connell."

Some of those observers think by wording the advertisement as he did, could be an indication McGrath considers O'Connell his major opponent and biggest threat.

Things may heat up some more with the preliminary election now only 40 days away.

And anything can happen on any one of those 40 days to make someone a winner or someone a loser.

Morrissey Wants Sand Sanitizer At Wollaston Beach

Michael Morrissey has requested the Metropolitan District Commission to assign their sand sanitizer to Wollaston Beach as soon as possible.

Because the sanitizer has not been used at all on the beach this summer, the sand's condition is extremely poor, Morrissey said.

Glass, sharp shells and other debris contribute to the unattractive and sometimes dangerous conditions, he said. Despite the decreasing crowds of local bathers, many individuals utilize the beach for swimming, walking, jogging, volleyball and other activities, he added.

"I realize the time and transportation constraints of the beach cleaning apparatus, however, an expeditious sanitization could make the remaining weeks of summer pleasant at Wollaston Beach," Morrissey said.

I wonder why Frank Bellotti was so very much offended by the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling which gives some promise that the right to life of the innocent unborn will be recognized.

I wonder why Frank

I wonder how Frank Bellotti could even think about running for governor.

I wonder where the citizens of Massachusetts can find a Commends Park Dept. For Cooperation And Condition Of Baseball Fields

Mr. Raymond Cattaneo
Quincy Park Department
100 Southern Artery
Dear Mr. Cattaneo:

St. John's Baseball League has just concluded a most successful 1989 season in which some 85 youths participated.

The success of our season is due in large measure to the availability of city baseball fields on which we play a full schedule of games.

The coaches, players, parents, clergy and parishioners of St. John's Parish extend to you and the Park Department our deepest appreciation for making two fields at Faxon Park available to our league.

In previous years because of the large number of players who signed up to play as many as sixteen teams were able to play in league competition games at Faxon Park, Pond Street, Fore River Field, upper and lower Merrymount fields and CYO state playoffs at Adams Field.

This type of activity has been most rewarding for the young boys and girls who participated during the important formative ages 8 through 17. Many of the boys from this league went on to become standout players in the city league, high school, American Legion and college competition.

The Park Department is to be commended for not only providing us with the use of these fields but for also keeping these fields in good playing condition.

I have been associated with the St. John's baseball program for more than 25 years as a coach and a co-chairman of administration of the program.

Each year we submit an application to the Park Department for approval to use city baseball fields. We specify the months and dates when our games are to be played and we also ask permission to reserve the Faxon Park field and area for our annual all star game and picnic which winds up our season.

For more than 25 years we have received the approval of the Park and Recreation Board and each year the fields have been put in readiness by Park Department employees for our opening games. The grass is mowed and raked, foul lines are put down, backstops repaired when needed, portable bleachers put along the sidelines, debris and obstacles removed, and ruts in the fields caused by unearthing motorists who drive their vehicles over the fields are filled in and leveled.

Our opening games heralding the coming of spring after long harsh winters have always been joyous occasions eagerly awaited by the many hundreds of players who have participated over those 25 years.

It has been my experience that the Park Department has always been most responsive in taking care of any problems with the condition of the playing fields. During periods of heavy rains certain erosion of some fields has taken place but that problem was corrected without delay once our schedule of games was underway.

The safety of the players in our league has always been a top priority on the agenda when our players, coaches, umpires and officials meet to plan for each session. As a player of note yourself and as a longtime coach you are quite aware of maintaining playing fields in proper condition free from potential hazards.

St. John's Boys Baseball and Girls Softball have been open to all boys and girls in the various age groups.

Once again in behalf of our league thank you and the Park Department for your assistance in our youth program of longstanding. Without your playing facilities hundreds of youth would not have been able to play baseball or softball.

Sincerely yours,
John D. Noonan
Co-Chairman
St. John's Baseball League

Young Widows And Widowers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to introduce you to Young Widows and Widowers, Ltd. We are a non-profit organization which was formed in 1983 to provide emotional support to widowed people between the ages of 20 and 50.

The Norwell Chapter of YW&W services the South Shore area and meets weekly on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the James Library (located on West St. off of Rte. 123 in Norwell Center, just two bunnings past the State Police Barracks).

Our meetings make possible the sharing of experience and concerns in an understanding, confidential, and supportive environment. Participation in the conversation is optional, and the feelings of those who choose to remain silent are respected. We seek to ease the feelings of isolation that are often felt by the newly widowed. Each member is free to determine the frequency of his/her attendance and is welcome to return as often as need dictates - even after long absences.

The emphasis of the meetings is on mutual assistance. However, a facilitator is present to maintain order and make it easier for the participants to share ideas in an organized manner.

In addition to the weekly meetings, both the Norwell chapter and the statewide YW&W organization sponsor a variety of social activities.

Occasionally, a guest lecturer is invited to address the group.

If you know anyone who may be interested in finding out about YW&W and/or the Norwell chapter, please feel free to give them my telephone number - (617) 834-3692. Likewise, if I can furnish you with additional information or answer any questions, please do not hesitate to call me.

Quincy's Yesterdays

'No Fix' Parking Goes Into Effect

The new "no fix" parking ticket went into effect in downtown Quincy and at noon of the first day Police Chief John J. Avery called it a success.

"I have sent for another batch of tags," he said. "The initial order of 200 has been exhausted."

"I have traveled through the retail section of the city and I noticed a decided improvement in conditions. A shopper now has a good chance to park his or her car."

There were, however, occasional problems.

A motorist who parked his car on the rounded corner of Temple St., where there was no parking restriction, and Hancock St., where there was, protested his tag on grounds he was parked on Temple St.

And State Rep. Eddie Carson was miffed when he found a ticket on his windshield, placed there by Patrolman James A.D. MacKay.

SHIPYARD PETITION

President Thomas C. Johnson of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce petitioned Congress to change the wording of a law so that at least 50 percent of all naval shipbuilding would be done in private yards.

If successful, the Fore River Shipyard would be in line for an $11 million contract to build two of eight new destroyers. Two would go to Bath, Maine, and four to government shipyards.

Nancy Flaherty Graduates From Newman Prep With Honors

Nancy L. Flaherty, daughter of Joseph Flaherty, 41 Shelton Rd., Quincy, and Mary Flaherty of North Quincy, was recently awarded her high school diploma "with honors" from Newman Preparatory School, Boston.

The diploma was presented to Miss Flaherty by Dr. John Gianoulis, Chairman of the Newman School Board of Trustees.

During her years at Newman, Miss Flaherty was continually recognized for her leadership in academics. She was named to the Dean's List

NANCY L. FLAHERTY and was the recipient of the Trustees Awards for Excellence in Latin (1987), French and Art (1988), and Humanities (1989).

"As a student leader, Miss Flaherty was outstanding in her dedication to the school's Peer Leadership Group, Sailing Team and Cheerleading Squad," said Dean Francis L. Donelan. "As a result of this leadership in both activities and academics, Miss Flaherty was elected to the Cardinal John Henry Newman Chapter of the National Honor Society."

Miss Flaherty plans to attend Southeastern Massachusetts University where she has been accepted for the coming school year.

Mary E. Moreschi, daughter of John and Nancy Moreschi of Wollaston and Dennis, recently became the bride of Thomas A. Dixon, son of Harold and Helen Dixon of Derwood Md., at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

The Rev. Charles Collins officiated at the ceremony. A reception followed at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Anne Morrison of Hanson, the bride's sister, was her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Amelia Dixon of Fairfax, Va., the bridegroom's sister; Kathy Moreschi of Hull, the bride's sister-in-law, and Kathleen Bambrick of Quincy.

Joseph Dixon of Greenbelt Md. was best man for his brother. Ushers included Peter Moreschi of Hull and Jay Moreschi of Quincy, both brothers of the bride; Kevin Morrison of Hanson, the bride's brother-in-law, and Mark Ciarrocca of Fairfax, Va., the bridegroom's future brother-in-law.

The bride, a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Braintree and Framingham State College, is a computer consultant at American Management Systems at Arlington Va.

Mr. Dixon is a graduate of Magruder High School, Rockville, Md., University of Maryland, and Marymount University, Va. He is a quality analyst at Planning Research Corporation, McLean, Va.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the newlyweds are living in Derwood, Md.

6 NQHS Peer Educators Attend Substance Abuse Conference

Six North Quincy High School peer educators participated in the fourth annual Peer Education Conference sponsored by the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs recently at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy. The conference provided additional training for senior peer educators who are currently working with elementary and middle school students. They were accompanied to the conference by Dr. Mary C. Lydon, director of physical education in the Quincy Public Schools. Three seniors - Jane Amendolare, Carol Steeves and Anthony Rignetta - collaborated with peer educators from Cathedral High School in Boston to present a one-hour program called "Bridges" in which the problems of racial discrimination were presented in a series of sketches.

Three junior peer educators - Chrystal Moffatt, Michael Doherty and Rignetta - received advanced training in several diverse areas - refusal skills; depression and suicide; eating disorders, dealing with differences, violence and racism; and children of war. These students, along with about twenty other peer educators, will begin teaching Substance Abuse Prevention to sixth grade students at Atlantic Middle School this September.

Chrystal Moffatt, who will be a senior at NQHS this fall, was elected to the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs Peer Education Advisory Council. She is the daughter of Frank Moffatt, a member of the English Department at NQHS.

The other North Quincy student in attendance at the conference was Paul Murphy. Also attending were Janice Vincente, Ronald Menard, Tai Walsh, Okey Mbauike, Kate Walsh and Joseph Walsh of Cathedral High.

Old Colony RR Restoration Public Meeting Thursday

system that's worked every day for many years now. We have tried and true technology. (Commuter rail) operates in every region in the state except the South Shore," he said.

The project has met with mixed reaction in Quincy. Last November, 59 percent of voters in the first Norfolk District favored the restoration project. The voters were responding to a non-binding referendum which was placed on the ballot.

However, several weeks later, city councillors expressed their opposition at a meeting of the council's Transportation Committee. Among the concerns they raised were air quality, noise, vibrations and freight service on the rail.

Polechronis did not rule out freight service on the line, but added that it is unlikely since no company has sought permission for it. He also said the proposed rebuilding of the Neponset River Bridge would be too steep to make freight service feasible.

Project plans do not include a stop in Quincy. However, if enough residents say they want one, Polechronis said that "could be considered."

Possible station sites include the Quincy Adams and Quincy Center MBTA stations. Polechronis said potential traffic impact in those two areas would have to be studied before a station is approved.

Already, two environmental impact reports have been rejected. Polechronis said he hopes the third will be completed this fall. If it is approved and federal and state funding comes through, construction would begin late next year. If that occurs, service could start by the end of 1994.

The $391.7 million has received state approval for half the funding. Polechronis is confident the other half will be approved by the federal government.

"We're confident that we'll get the federal funding now that it's been classified a rail modernization project," he said. This classification is important because it indicates the state is committed to the project and therefore is more likely to receive federal assistance.

The restoration project is second only to the combined Central Artery depression and third harbor tunnel construction in importance to the current state administration, so funds will not be cut despite the budget crisis.

The project includes restoring three rails from South Station in Boston as far south as Middleborough, Plymouth and Greenbush. All three lines would meet and turn into one line in the Braintree-Quincy area.

One Quincy legislator who supports the project is Sen. Paul Harold. Harold said he believes the project will provide some benefit to the region by giving commuters an alternative to the Southeast Expressway and Quincy's main streets.

"The only way we can prevent gridlock is to have as many alternate routes to, not only, Boston, but the South Shore."

However, Harold said low-noise and low-pollution equipment must be used.

"Quincy is justified in saying there must be proper equipment to cut down on the noise and pollution. This equipment does exist," said Harold, an 11-year member of the Transportation Committee.

The senator also supports a railroad station in Quincy, preferably at the Quincy Adams MBTA station in South Quincy.

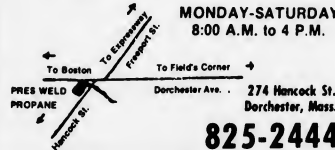

"By having a station, it would provide a direct benefit to the citizens of Quincy," said Harold, noting there is a station at Bridgewater State College which many Quincy residents use. Harold estimated that 500 residents attend BSC.

New Co-Pastors To Be Installed At Covenant Congregational

A service celebrating the installation of new co-pastors, Rev. Kathleen Graves and Rev. Kirk Johnson, will be held at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Granite and Whitwell Sts.

The congregation, for the first time in its history, has called husband and wife co-pastors.

Leading the installation will be the Rev. George Elia, East Coast Conference Superintendent of the Evangelical Covenant Church.

The choir will be directed by Richard Smith.

Immediately following, a reception will be held in Person Hall to welcome the new pastors.

Both Rev. Graves and Rev. Johnson have received their Master of Divinity from North Park Theological Seminary in Chicago Ill. Rev. Graves is originally from Bemidji, Minn. and attended North Park College before majority in Ministry and Counseling at the seminary. She served as a short term missionary in Ecuador and as a chaplain intern at Prairie View Mental Health Center in Newton, Kansas for two years.

Rev. Johnson is from Mason City, Iowa and also attended North Park College. He served a year as short term missionary in Ecuador and served as intern pastor at the Covenant Church in Marquette, Kan. for two years. He has also served as chaplain intern in Children's Hospital in Milwaukee, Wis. The pastoral couple and their young son, Seth, will be residing in Quincy.

The Vacation Day Camp will come to a close for this summer next Wednesday morning at 10 a.m. with an outing to the Mass. Audubon Society's Drumlin Farm. For more information about the church and its programs, please call 479-5728.

Rev. Linda Roberts Guest Minister At Bethany

There will be one service of worship Sunday, Aug. 6, at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary of Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center. Holy Communion will be celebrated.

The Rev. Ms. Linda H. Roberts will be the guest minister. She served as the student minister at Bethany in 1980 and was pastor of the First Congregational Church of Billerica. Presently, she is on the staff of the Congregational Library in Boston.

Rev. Roberts' sermon topic will be "The Family Name" based on scriptural texts from Leviticus and from First John 3:1-24. The lay scripture reader will be Vivian Miller.

The guest organist will be Jay Janel, a recent graduate of Simmons College. Carol R. Massey, soprano soloist, will sing Dufford's composition, "Be Not Afraid."

The worship service will be broadcast "live" direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 a.m. on radio station WJDA, 1300 k.c.

The Sunday School is closed during the summer months, however child care is provided for children from birth through kindergarten during the worship service.

A fellowship hour will be held in the Allen Parlor beginning at 11 a.m. immediately following the service. Individuals and families from the area are invited to come and share in both the worship and fellowship time.

For additional information concerning Bethany's ministries and programs, please contact the church office between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays at 479-7300.

ENC Selected For Sears Foundation Teaching Excellence Award Program

President Stephen Nease announces that Eastern Nazarene College has been selected to participate in The Sears-Roebuck Foundation's 1989-90 "Teaching Excellence and Campus Leadership Award Program."

"At Eastern Nazarene College, our primary emphasis is on quality teaching with the student as our central focus. We are especially pleased that The Sears-Roebuck Foundation has expanded its long-standing partnership with independent higher education through this new teacher recognition program," said Nease.

The awards to more than 700 of the nation's leading private liberal arts colleges and universities will recognize top educators on each campus for their resourcefulness and leadership. Each winning faculty member will receive $1,000 and the institution will receive a grant ranging from $500 to $1,500 based on student enrollment. Institutional grants can be used to encourage campus leadership, faculty enrichment and improved teaching. Winners will be selected by independent committees on each campus.

The program is administered nationally by the Stamford, Conn. based Foundation for Independent Higher Education and regionally by Harry K. Herrick, Executive Director for the New England Colleges Fund in Boston.

"We salute Sears in recognizing one of society's most fundamental needs, excellence in teaching," said John P. Blessington, president of the Foundation for Independent Higher Education. "These awards will honor some of our nation's best educators and encourage others to emulate them."

"With this new program," said Paula A. Banks, president of The Sears-Roebuck Foundation, "we are recognizing the importance of teacher competence as a critical element in strengthening undergraduate teaching and learning."

Over the past 25 years The Sears-Roebuck Foundation has provided more than $30 million in annual unrestricted grants to private higher education.

'God Loves You' Squantum Church Topic

The congregation of the First Church of Squantum Sunday heard a sermon entitled "God Loves You," preached by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin. The text for the sermon was taken from Psalm 8.

The congregation was accompanied by organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson.

Greeters were Minnie Langevin, Patti Hurd and Mari Hurd. The ushers were Richard Hendry and Harry Holmes. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Cliff and Shirley Mason.

This Sunday, as usual during the summer, the Sunday morning service begins at 9:30.

Rev. Richard Malmquist To Be Installed Kiwanis Lt. Governor

Rev. Richard C. Malmquist, immediate past president of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy, will be installed as Lieutenant Governor of Division 8 at the New England District Convention in Burlington, Vt., Aug. 17-19.

Malmquist will have the responsibility of nine clubs in District 8. He will be the seventh member of Quincy Kiwanis to hold this position. Others who have served in the past are Frank Foy, George Briggs, Gus Maertins, Dick O'Brien, Paul Ricciardi and Walter Martinson.

RSVP Seeking Volunteers

The Quincy Community Action Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) a program to help retired seniors keep active and busy, is seeking volunteers.

If you can spare a few hours a week and are interested in volunteering, call Valaree or Pat at the RSVP office at 479-8181.

Volunteer opportunities now available include:

Nutrition sites in North Quincy and Quincy Square need volunteers to assist in preparation of meals for senior citizens. Drivers are also needed to help housebound seniors receive a hot lunch. Lunch and mileage reimbursement are provided to all volunteers.

The Second Time Around Thrift Shop needs new staff members for the new store. Hours and days are flexible. Duties include sorting, folding and pricing clothes, keep the shop neat, and waiting on customers.

Fiona Moore On Dean's List

Fiona Moore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Adam G.N.

Moore of Crabtree Rd., Squantum, has been named to the Dean's List at Simmons College in Boston for the spring semester.

While at Simmons, Miss Moore has served as treasurer of the English Liaison. She is a graduate of Thayer Academy in Braintree.

Santoro Seeks Second Term On School Committee

School Committeeman Frank Santoro announces his candidacy for re-election to another four-year term. He turned in his nomination papers Monday.

Santoro said "The last four years have been both exciting and frustrating."

He said that although there has been movement to improve the school system, there is much more to be done.

He is seeking a second term as a parents' voice on the committee, he said. His teaching experience and parent involvement have given him an insight on the students' needs when facing today's budget problems, he said. Santoro said he would like to have further opportunity to express his budgetary views to a changing committee.

Santoro said that "thanks to a united effort from parents and teachers, the Quincy community is becoming aware of the many needs facing our children. Quincy will become Number One in education; not only by parents and teachers working together, but also by involving the entire community. I look forward to continued involvement in that process."

Santoro and his wife, Linda, have two children, Lori and Michael attending the Quincy Public Schools. He is currently teaching in the Brookline Public Schools.

MWRA Headquarters Siting QCA Topic

The Quincy Citizens Association was scheduled to take a stand on the MWRA headquarters siting issue at its meeting Wednesday, Aug. 2 at 8 p.m. at the Montclair Men's Club.

QCA members will decide whether they feel the MWRA should move their complete staff office to the Quincy shipyard office building which the Authority bought for $49 million, or feel the Boston Harbor cleanup project should finance a complex of new buildings in Roxbury.

Quincy Commissioner of Public Works David Colton was the featured guest speaker. He was to discuss the Public Works Department's recent successes in locating and correcting water leaks involving 20 percent of the city's water supply.

Colton was also expected to speak on other city-wide problems the department is working on, and the kind of public works problems that affect us all.

A question and answer period was planned.

HN Legion, Auxiliary Installation Saturday

A joint installation of Houghton Neck Legion Post and Auxiliary officers is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 5 at 8 p.m. at the post home, 1116 Sea St.

At that time, a final figure will be announced for signatures on petitions circulated by post members for an amendment to the U.S. Constitution stipulating the desertion of the flag of the United States shall be a crime. To date, more than 500 signatures have been sent to the American Legion State House office by the Houghton Neck Post. These will be brought to the National Convention in Baltimore MD, Sept. 3-8.

Post officers headed by Commander Raymond LaRue will be installed by Norfolk County District 6 Commander Henry "Hank" Bradley and his suite.

District 6 Director Betty Thomas will install Auxiliary officers headed by Marjorie Laing, president.

Wollaston Legion Presents Scholarships To Two

Two 1989 North Quincy High School graduates were presented scholarship awards by Wollaston Legion Post at the annual post banquet at Walsh's Restaurant, North Quincy.

Tanya A. Duclos of Wollaston plans to attend either Massasoit or Quincy Junior College and to major in social work and law enforcement.

Kipp Caldwell, also of Wollaston, plans to be a math teacher and to be involved in youth activities. He will attend Eastern Nazarene College.

Candidates were selected from 17 applicants by the scholarship committee which includes Edward H. Roberts, chairman; Laura Asci, North Quincy High guidance counselor; Wade Burnhouse, Post Commander and Joseph Cunniff, Past Commander.

WOLLASTON LEGION SCHOLARSHIPS were awarded to North Quincy High School graduates Kipp Caldwell and Tanya A. Duclos, both of Wollaston, shown with Edward H. Roberts, chairman of the scholarship committee.

7 Quincy Students On Bosco Honor Roll

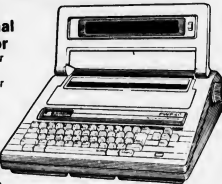

Seven Quincy residents are listed on the fourth quarter honor roll at Don Bosco Technical High School.

They are:
Juniors: Brian Hegarty,

145 Wilson Ave.; John M. Grennon, 43 Pontiac Rd.; Michael S. Dunning, 289

Beach St.; and James M. Collins, 90 Bromfield St.; all second honors.

Freshmen: Thomas M. Leonard, 55 Fenno St., first honors; and Jaka Claiborne, 91 Ruskindale Rd. and Matthew J. Collins, 90 Bromfield St., both second honors.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A radio announcer once said when predicting good weather, "Of course, when it is good weather, there is nothing much to say."

Unfortunately, many people think this way and it represents their common attitude toward life... When the "weather" in their personal lives is good, when their situation is fortunate they take it for granted and say nothing. There is no gratitude.

Couldn't it be said that we need more of the spirit of the psalmist who wrote, "This is the day which the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it!" Let us think how many days we have had for which there is reason to rejoice and be thankful.

Someone once said that one habit that may fasten on us if we are not watchful is that of magnifying our miseries and minimizing our blessings.

Oh, yes, attitudes are so important! Rather than feeding on miseries, let us follow the pattern of Paul, "Giving thanks always for all things unto God."

Let us remember that nothing brightens life... our own and others'... so much as the spirit of thanksgiving.

We are always most appreciative of any comments on the thoughts you read here. We look forward to hearing from you...

Real Estate A Stable Investment

By Larry J. Biederman
Merrill Lynch Realty

Your financial picture consists of more than just investments in stocks and bonds; it also includes real estate.

Real estate has been considered a good way to acquire wealth because, historically, it has been a stable investment. And as the saying goes, they're not making any more of it.

Your primary residence is one form of real estate investment—in fact, it's probably the single largest financial asset in your investment portfolio. It can appreciate in value and you can earn capital gains upon resale. As a real estate investor, you can remodel historic properties and benefit from tax advantages. Other properties generate income, including multifamily units, single-family homes, or a combination of commercial and residential property.

There are several advantages that make real estate an attractive choice for many investors.

Real estate can help diversify your investment portfolio.

Real estate is a tangible asset.

Real estate investment can provide you with tax advantages.

Your Investment Portfolio

Investing in real estate can diversify and potentially reduce the volatility of your overall portfolio. Since price movements in the real estate market and stock and bond markets do not necessarily move in tandem, investing in the two provides balance and diversity to your portfolio. It is important to measure the increase in value of your investment because, like stocks and bonds, real estate can appreciate in value. For example, assume you bought a house for $200,000 and made an initial down payment of $20,000. If the market value of your property increases to $210,000, your property has appreciated five percent, but your original $20,000 investment has appreciated 50 percent ($20,000 plus $10,000 in equity-$30,000).

A Second Income

Rental properties can be a good source of income. The total rent you charge is based on several factors, such as the market value of your property (it will vary from one area of the country to the next), supply and demand in your area, rents on comparable properties, and local laws. So you may want to discuss the amount of rent you charge with your local real estate professional.

Keep in mind that, like any investment, your time is a cost associated with real estate investing. Exactly how much time is related to the type of investment you make—renting a three-family house, for example, demands much more management time than buying and re-selling undeveloped land. One way to minimize your personal time involvement in your investment is to hire a professional property manager. Your manager will attend to such details as maintenance, collecting rent and finding new tenants. Condos may make a viable investment property if there are management and maintenance agreements already in place.

Favorable Tax Treatment

Even after tax reform, real estate investments are still eligible for favorable tax treatment. But before you invest, talk with your real estate professional or the IRS to see what special tax breaks may be available.

For example, you can deduct interest on money borrowed to buy real estate, in effect, lowering your borrowing cost. Local real estate taxes are also deductible. Even more important, most repair, operating and maintenance costs, and depreciation are legitimately expensed against your rental property's gross income. Keep in mind that good appearance and improvements tend to increase the property's value.

Profits and losses from the sale of rental property are treated differently depending on your situation. Please consult a tax expert for advice on this matter.

Also, if you are planning to restore historic properties, you may be eligible for investment tax credits. For example, you may receive a 25 percent investment credit on nonresidential or income-producing residential certified historic structures. Check with the National Register of Historic Places, Department of the Interior, Washington, DC, 20543 to see if you qualify.

Learn The Ropes

Exploring the marketplace is the best way to learn about investing in real estate. Talk with your real estate professional and inspect properties that are for sale. Even if you're not ready to invest now, collect income and expense figures, learn about financing, and decide what type of property will best suit your needs.

Some points to keep in mind are:

Location—it is still the key factor in potential appreciation.

Financing—look for the best arrangements; look for lower interest rates, fewer points; you might also consider the seller as a financing resource.

Cash Flow—compare how much income the property produces to its annual operating expenses and interest expense.

Vacancy Rate—consider the financial burden if a portion of your property does not produce the expected income for several months.

Tax Advantages—real estate investments bring tax benefits.

Time—how much are you willing to devote to your real estate investment?

Before deciding to buy a property, you should consider not only the investment fundamentals, but also how such a choice compares with other possible investments. How does it fit in with your long range goals? Whether residential real estate-like any other investment—turns out to be lucrative for you depends on when to buy, what you pay, where the property is located, how long you plan to hold it, and how carefully you study the real estate market.

Lincoln Heights

Construction Starts On Luxury Apartments

Construction has started on Lincoln Heights, a 336-unit luxury apartment complex located on Centre St., in Quincy.

Co-developed by Lincoln Property Company of Dallas, Texas and RJB Management Corporation of Quincy, the complex, when completed, will contain 17 garden-style buildings of one and two-bedroom apartments. Amenities for residents will include a multi-use recreational building with full health and exercise facilities and an adjacent outdoor pool.

Apartment units will have fully-applianced kitchens with frost-free refrigerators, dishwashers, disposals and microwave ovens. Nearly all the units have individuals washer/dryers, with fireplaces in the second and third floor apartments. Each unit is air conditioned and comes with a private balcony or patio.

Sited on 16 acres of the former Greylock Quarry with origins dating back to the estate of John Adams, Lincoln Heights will be heavily landscaped and include ample parking for residents and guests.

Located adjacent to Crown Colony Office Park in South Quincy, Lincoln Heights residents will have easy access to Routes 3, 128 and public transportation with the Quincy T station a quarter of a mile from the complex.

Co-developers Robert Conrad, local managing partner from Dallas-based Lincoln Property Co. and Richard Bucheri of RJB Management Corp., Quincy, expect the project to be completed next June.

Rents for the one and two bedroom units are expected to range from $750 to $1,200.

Architect for Lincoln Heights is BGA Architects, Inc. of Dallas; General Contractor is Lincoln Property Co. and Landscape architect is Mary Smith Associates of Quincy.

GROUNDBREAKING CEREMONIES were recently held at the site of Lincoln Heights, a 336-unit luxury apartment complex that will feature many amenities for residents including a recreational facility and outdoor pool. INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Finishing Touches

There could be good news for the more than ten million Americans who live in manufactured housing—and for their neighbors. These homes can now look better than ever with such finishing touches as vinyl siding and skirting.

Vinyl is one of the most durable materials made by man. It can give a home a fresh look that lasts a lifetime, yet requires little maintenance. The kind made by Mastic, called T-lok, comes in rich deep colors and:

- can withstand all kinds of weather
- won't scratch, rust, dent or corrode
- won't blister, chip, peel or rot
- can't be affected by salt air or chemical pollutants

- doesn't conduct electricity
- won't interfere with TV and radio reception
- cleans easily with soap and water.

The company's skirting is known for consistent quality, beauty, reliable performance and maintenance simplicity.

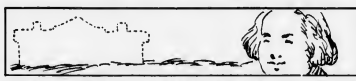

Skirting not only adds to the overall beauty of the home but provides a protected storage area for boxes, lawn equipment, bicycles, tools and other things. Skirting also helps protect gas, electrical and plumbing connections from vandalism or accidental damage. A home with skirting provides a protective barrier against wind, rain and snow. It also offers easy access. You can simply slide the panels up to get out whatever's behind them. T-lok

VinylSkirt from Mastic comes with a transferable 15 year limited warranty.

It's easy to say that with vinyl siding and skirting on your side, you can appreciate your home more—and it can appreciate in value faster.

For free brochures on T-lok Vinyl Siding and T-lok Vinyl Skirt, write Mastic Information Center, Dept. VS, P.O. Box 213, St. Joseph, MI 49085-0213.

WEEK OF: August 3

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Everyone is familiar with your leadership skills, but few are aware of your artistic capabilities. These are waiting to be explored over the coming year--and a profitable angle is featured. Regarding leadership, make an effort to see that it's okay to be a follower, too.

AQUARIUS -- January 21 - February 19

Lively week, especially if traveling or arranging a party. Your talent lies in bringing together people from diverse backgrounds. Recent upsetting incident at last is put to rest.

PISCES -- February 20 - March 20

Acquaintance may be surprisingly touchy. Work hard at maintaining your sense of objectivity. Status at work may be enhanced thanks to a recent accomplishment. Musical talents sparkle.

ARIES -- March 21 - April 20

Good week for becoming involved in public speaking or political activities. Your charismatic approach wins devotees to your ideas. Expect some communication snags after the week.

TAURUS -- April 21 - May 22

Expect some communication snags before the weekend; then, starting Monday, all systems go. Especially noteworthy is the ease with which you and partner convey your special thoughts.

GEMINI -- May 23 - June 21

Good week for plotting medium-range and long-range goals; be sure to include others in the planning stage. Physical fitness program is highlighted. At work, you get boost of self-confidence.

CANCER -- June 22 - July 22

Compliments coming your way are sincere; avoid false modesty. Week sees you bridging the generation gap. Organizational skills are at an all-time high during this period.

LEO -- July 23 - August 22

Thursday-Saturday favor sorting through old papers and reviewing financial accounts. The weekend highlights creative jobs. Monday-Wednesday find you learning more about financial matters.

VIRGO -- August 23 - September 22

Arrangements involving shared finances require clarification. Good week for combining your talents with those of a new friend. Brainstorming pays off nicely on the jobfront.

LIBRA -- September 23 - October 22

Improvements in lifestyle gradually begin during this period; regardless, caution is all-important. Workload is lightened thanks to your willingness to delegate tasks to responsible individuals.

SCORPIO -- October 23 - November 21

The week has a delightfully exotic flavor as you try new foods or meet people from foreign locales. If contemplating a major purchase, this is a good time for doing research.

SAGITTARIUS -- November 22 - December 22

Detective work pays off as you unravel a recent mystery or two. Home improvements are highlighted at this time, although you and partner may disagree on decorating matters.

CAPRICORN -- December 23 - January 20

Partner seems stubborn but really has your best interests at heart. Patience on your part is a vital virtue. Think about pampering a friend who very much needs a shower of affection.

52nd Year

Bigger Boat Turnout Seen For QBRW

By TOM SULLIVAN

The 52nd edition of Quincy Bay Race Week is under way and, according to Race Week Association President Ted Johnson of the Quincy Yacht Club, there should be more boats than a year ago.

"We had the largest number of boats in some time last year and this year we sent applications to a number of boating clubs and associations which will be entering boats for the first time, so we should have more than last year," Johnson said.

Last year Race Week survived some of the trickiest winds in years but the only cancellations were the Turnabout races on opening day and closing day due to winds.

"These races are for young people eight and nine years old and we couldn't take chances with them," said Johnson. "Otherwise it was an excellent week of racing with some of the best competition in some time."

There will be an additional trophy this year. "The Co-Operative Bank has donated the Co-Op trophy for Thunderbirds," Johnson said. "There will be three perpetual trophies for the first three finishers and each skipper will receive a keeper trophy for his permanent possession."

Johnson is hoping for cooler weather than was experienced last year when the extreme heat made sailing difficult.

"The number of boats has increased the last few years after some lulls through the years and, with the addition of several first-year clubs and associations, this should be our largest number in years," Johnson said.

Two years ago, Al Shaughnessy stepped down as Marine Parade Marshall after many years and last year, Bernie Reisberg, a longtime member of the Race Week committee, succeeded him.

Also retiring two years ago was Ray Regan, who had been chairman of the outside line committee for 18 years. He was succeeded by Norman McCormick.

The Quincy Bay Race Week Association was formed in 1937 with the Quincy, Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs the original members.

The first Race Week was held in 1938 when 29 classes of boats competed in the racing program.

The regatta was so successful that plans were made immediately for a bigger Race Week the following year.

Later the Town River, Wessagussett, Braintree,

South Shore and Metropolitan clubs joined and those eight currently make up the Race Week Association.

The regatta is open to all clubs and many other clubs around the state have sent boats to compete.

Marblehead Race Week had been the main attraction in interclub sailboat racing for years and Quincy Bay Race Week has grown steadily until it is now challenging Marblehead as the most popular race week in the area.

Juniors are the backbone of Race Week. There were no junior sailing programs in the early years of Race Week. Now all clubs have outstanding junior programs. Town River has a particularly excellent program with more than 80 young people involved.

All clubs in the association donate and participate in the racing. Any money raised during the year is spent in one year, mostly for trophies.

To keep Race Week in the forefront every year, the association enters a float in the annual Christmas Parade. Three years ago the association won the Mayor's trophy.

"The weather is always a major concern and races can be cancelled due to no wind and also because of too much wind," Johnson said.

QUINCY BAY RACE WEEK Association officers, from left, Jack White, treasurer, Dick Hendry, vice president, Ted Johnson, president, and George Jackson, secretary.

Trophy Day this year will be Sunday, Oct. 15 at 3 p.m. At this time trophies will be awarded for the racing winners and for the top boats in the Marine Parade.

Quincy Yacht Club In 115th Year

The Quincy Yacht Club is the grand-daddy of the clubs involved in Race Week and is still going strong while celebrating its 115th birthday this year. Squantum is 99 years old and Wessagussett is 86.

Trophies Lure Sailors Of All Ages

Several handsome trophies will be up for competition among hundreds of sailors — men, women, boys and girls — this week during the 52nd edition of Quincy Bay Race Week.

They include:

Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy: Presented to the Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Albert W. Finlay, his father, for competition during Race Week. Presented in loving memory of a son, who, during his lifetime, did much to advance the sport of yachting on Massachusetts Bay. The trophy is presented annually to the yachtsman considered to have made the most outstanding record or to have performed some single act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

Fred Hunt Memorial Trophy: A perpetual trophy presented annually since 1966 by The Patriot Ledger in memory of the man who served the newspaper for more than three decades as yachting writer and yachting editor. A deep-water sailor and a racing enthusiast, Hunt played a major role in the success and growth of Quincy Bay Race Week and the sport itself.

The trophy is awarded annually to a person who has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship and a willingness to help others in the advancement of the yacht racing sport and who has contributed to the success of Race Week. The trophy is held until the succeeding Race Week by the home club of the winner, who is awarded a keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Pepsi Trophy: Presented by the Pepsi-Cola Company to stimulate interest in overall competition.

1300 Trophy: Presented each year since 1960 to the QBRWA by radio station WJDA to demonstrate its interest in Race Week and to aid in the stimulation of racing interest among the junior class.

This trophy is awarded annually to the winning skipper in the Turnabout Class and becomes his permanent possession.

Commodore Isadore Bromfield Trophy: Presented in 1976 to the QBRWA by the Metropolitan Yacht Club. The trophy is awarded annually to the Race Week winner according to the deed of gift. The winner is presented an engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Commodore Charles Wing Memorial Trophy: Presented to the QBRWA in 1981 by his friends and family as a perpetual trophy to be awarded annually to the winner of the Red Fleet on Town River Yacht Club's Day of Race Week.

City of Boston Bermuda Cup: This beautiful and historic silver punch bowl has been in the custody of the Quincy Y.C. for over 50 years. It was presented by the City of Boston around 1905 for a race from Boston to Bermuda.

This race was never held and in 1911 the city again put the cup up for an ocean race to be held on Labor Day 1911 to become the permanent possession of the winner. The race was won by Hollis Burgess, Quincy Y.C. member, in his sloop Marie I.

Mr. Burgess generously made the Quincy Y.C. trustee of the cup which was to be placed in annual competition as a perpetual trophy. In 1968 the QYC presented the trophy to the QBRWA for Race Week competition. This valuable trophy is to be presented to the annual winner to be held by him until the succeeding Race Week. The winner is to be presented a suitably engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Harry Warner Memorial Trophy: Presented to QBRWA in 1968 by the Warner family and the Town River Y.C. as a perpetual trophy to be raced for by cruising-type trimarans. It is to be annually engraved and is to be held by the inner until the succeeding Race Week. A suitably engraved keeper trophy is to be presented the winner for his permanent possession.

Co-op Trophy: Presented this year for the first time by The Co-Operative Bank for Thunderbirds. Three perpetual trophies will be presented for the first three finishers, with the skippers receiving keeper trophies for their permanent possession.

Corning Last Year's Marine Parade Winner

Fred Corning of Town River won the prize for best decorated boat in last year's Marine Parade with his boat, Mel-o-die.

The Germantown Yacht Club's Boxer V, skippered by Louise O'Neil, was second and Lee Bennoit of Braintree, in Dunakin, was third. Braintree Y.C. had the most boats; Town River, the most decorated; Vincent Currier of Metropolitan, the most original; with Seiacca and Doug Kent of Wessagusset, the best-decorated auxiliary with Firebrand.

Garvie B Fleet Winner

B. Garvie was the winner of the Wells Trophy (B Fleet) last year in Shooter, followed by F. Manning in Mirage and D. Cleverly in Wind's Free.

O'Hara Blue Fleet Champ

Jim O'Hara of Hingham won the Blue Fleet championship a year ago.

Jake Faul of Hingham was second, David Devine of Hingham, third, and Keith Garland and Colby Burrow, also of Hingham, fourth.

Drohan

420 Winner

Courtney Drohan of Hingham took the 420 Class championship last year and was followed by Ned Thompson of Cohasset and Tara Callahan of Hingham.

Sprague

C Fleet Winner

The Wells Trophy (C Fleet) was won by B. Sprague last year in Sun Path, followed by K. Pilczak in Reverie II and S. Wagner in Spirit 2.

Braintree Eliminates Morrisette In Zone 6 Playoffs

By TOM SULLIVAN

Another successful season for the Morrisette Legion baseball team ended in disappointing fashion last week as it lost two straight to Braintree's undefeated Zone 6 champions in the finals of the zone playoffs.

Braintree, 16-0 during the regular season, advanced to the state playoffs and moved into the quarterfinals by winning two out of three from Medfield.

Morrisette, which finished 14-4 during the regular season, had ended the Milton jinx by winning two out of three to advance to the playoff finals against Braintree.

Braintree, which had beaten Mass Tire two straight in the opening round of the zone playoffs to improve to 18-0, just had too much for Morrisette in the finals.

Morrisette coach Erik DeBoer started on the mound in the opener but didn't have it, as Braintree rolled to a 10-1 victory.

Billy MacDougall gave Morrisette a quick 1-0 lead in the top of the first with a home run over the centerfield fence at Braintree, but in the bottom half, Bob Kearney hit a three-run homer over the centerfield fence.

Rob McDonald, who had pitched only one inning all year, relieved DeBoer in the second and was hit hard and he gave way to Billy MacDougall and Gary Rawdon finished up. It made no difference to Braintree which pitcher worked for Morrisette.

Billy MacDougall also had a double and the only other hits off Tom Molloy were a double by Jimmy Glynn and a single by Kevin MacDougall. DeBoer finished the season at 5-4, but pitched extremely well during the regular season.

Braintree won the second game, 6-2, with Kevin MacDougall starting on the mound for Morrisette. The game was scoreless until Braintree's third inning when it sent nine men to the plate and scored five runs on four hits, including a triple and two doubles. MacDougall finished with a 5-2 record.

Billy MacDougall was the only Morrisette batter to solve Braintree pitching in the series as he went 4-for-6 including two doubles and a home run, raising his average to .395, trailing only McDonald, who batted .441.

Jeff Calvert had an RBI single in the second game and George Rozanitis, Gary Rawdon and Ron Boudreau had singles.

Morrisette finished up with an overall 16-7 record.

Bryan Defeats Barry's As Loud Hurls 3-Hitter

Bryan VFW Post's American League regular season champions, defeated Barry's Deli, 7-1, behind Steven Loud's three-hit, eight-strikeout pitching in the first game of the Babe Ruth League's second round of playoffs.

Barry's, in the playoffs for the first time in many years, had survived the first round with two straight wins over the Firemen.

Loud is having an outstanding season with 77 strikeouts in 63 innings and an impressive 1.56 ERA.

Bryan jumped off to a 3-0 lead in the first inning with Michael Malvesti driving in two runs with a single and Mark Kelleher having an RBI single.

Barry's scored its lone run in the second on hits by Jeff Craig and Mike Conner.

Bryan added a run in the second with Kelleher driving in Todd Portesi and scored again in the fourth on Pal Murphy's double and Rob Kane's single. It increased the lead to 6-1 in the sixth, thanks to fine base-running by George Wirtz. Kelleher singled and scored the final run in the seventh.

Malvesti made a fine play in center field, throwing out a runner at the plate to complete a double play and later doubled a runner off first. Shortstop Kane anchored a solid infield along with Wirtz, Tom Nutley and Joe Marnikovic. Portesi made an excellent catch in left field.

Kelleher went 3-for-3 with a walk, three stolen bases, scored twice and drove in two runs. Phillip Bell, Jeff Breslin, Rich Gorman, Bill Morrissey, Terry Sheehan and Sean Skahan all contributed to the win.

Conners had two hits and Craig played a fine game at third base for Barry's.

Barry's defeated Firemen, 7-5, in the first game of their first-round playoffs.

The game was halted with the score 7-5 by darkness and when it resumed the next day, Barry's got the last three outs for the win.

Danny Kearns pitched all the way for Barry's, allowing four hits, striking out 10 and walking five. He also helped his own cause with a key single. Mike Kelly, who had been on a tear, went 4-for-4 and made several fine plays in center field.

Craig had a double and single, Chris Geary and Chris Peck a single each and rookie Jeff Tirrell contributed a key single and also played a strong defense game. Mike Conners, Chris Murphy, Derek Thompson, Danny Duncan, Tom Geary, Neil Hutchinson and Dave D'Olympio also played excellent defense.

For the Firemen, Duane Holmes pitched well and Serge Wassilage, Mark Courtney, Mike Wood and Steve DesRoche had the only hits.

Barry's swept the series, 14-8, with Thompson pitching well, but leaving with the score tied at 8-8. Conners relieved and shut the door to get the win.

Barry's, which collected 22 hits, exploded for six runs in the top of the eighth with the help of four hits and four walks.

Peck had four singles and five RBI, Mike Kelley, Tirrell and Thompson, three hits each, and Danny Kearns, Murphy and Duncan two apiece. Duncan, a rookie, who has played as many as three positions in a game, started the game at first base, moved to catcher when Conners pitched and threw out Courtney trying to steal third base to end the game.

Murphy made several fine plays at second base and D'Olympio, Hutchinson and Chris and Tom Geary all played key roles.

Timberlake Working Out With Celtics

Quincy's Jeff Timberlake, who broke the all-time Boston University assist record, is hoping to hook on with an NBA team and currently is working out with the Celtics.

Timberlake, who recently attended the Denver Nuggets' camp, and will attend several other NBA camps, found himself in the middle of things last week when he made the pass that resulted in Larry Bird being knocked to the floor, fracturing two vertebrae.

Celtics coach Jimmy Rodgers has liked what he has seen of the Quincy product and his college coach, Mike Jarvis, feels several NBA teams can use a player like Jeff.

Storyteller At Main Library

Storyteller Doug Lipman will present a program at the Thomas Crane Public Library Tuesday, Aug. 8 at 7 p.m. for children age five and older, and adults.

Lipman, a nationally known storyteller, tells stories for all ages with music and with participation. Family concerts, like the one on Tuesday, are a specialty. Many of his stories are available on cassettes in the children's room.

An active member of Storytellers in Concert, Lipman has told stories at schools, libraries and museums and has participated in the National Storytelling Festival. He also conducts storytelling workshops.

"Hats" will be the theme of the Aug. 8 program, in keeping with the Library's summer theme. "Hats off to Young Readers."

Lipman's appearance at the Library is funded by the Quincy Arts Council. The summer storytelling series will conclude Aug. 15.

Quincy Residents In 'Anything Goes'

Five Quincy residents will appear in the Company Theatre's production of the Cole Porter classic, "Anything Goes," to be presented at the South Junior High School, Pleasant St., Weymouth, on Aug. 11-12 and Aug. 18-19, at 8 p.m. and Aug. 20 at 7 p.m. Kervyn Dowling of Quincy plays Reno Sweeney, the evangelist turned night club singer who is on her way to London on a luxury ocean liner in the 1930's. Richard Carey of Quincy plays Public Enemy No. 13, Moonface Martin, fleeing to Europe disguised as a clergyman.

The cast also includes Quincy residents Cheri Condon, Jack Garrity and Melinda Joseph.

Tickets are $8 in advance and $9 at the door. For further information, call 337-1423 or 843-3191.

Neil Borden In 'Annie Get Your Gun'

Neil Borden of Quincy will have a leading role in the 8 p.m., Aug. 24-25-26 production of "Annie Get Your Gun," the Irving Berlin classic being staged by the Young at Heart Theatre at Hingham High School.

Borden plays Frank Butler, a rival of Annie (played by Lisa McColgan of Hingham). Forty young people, aged 12 to 23, are included in the cast.

MDC Programs At Wollaston Beach

Weekly programs in August at Wollaston Beach provided by the Metropolitan District Commission include:

"Children's Magic Circle Storyhouse Series" for children from 4 to 8 years, held each Tuesday and Thursday from 10 to 11 a.m. at the tower in Caddy Memorial Park. Children are introduced to the wonders of nature, along with a craft or game.

"Arts in the Park", appropriate for children ages

4 through 12, meets each Thursday from 1 to 2 p.m. in the interior of Caddy Memorial Park. All necessary materials will be provided and parking is available at marked spaces.

Junior Rangers meet each Wednesday from 1 to 3 p.m. Junior Rangers learn about the plants and animals that inhabit the park as well as the history of the people and groups that have used the land, and what is required to run and maintain this urban reservation. The program requires registration for each participant. More information may be obtained by calling 727-5293, or by picking up a Junior Ranger information packet from the Wollaston beach Bathhouse or the Thomas Crane Library in Quincy.

Jean Cristiani Receives NCSP Designation

Jean T. Cristiani, 39 Sturtevant Rd., Quincy, a school psychologist with the Boston Public School system, has been designated a Nationally Certified School Psychologist (NCSP) by the National School Psychology Certification Board.

The NCSP is a professional designation conferred in recognition of professional training and experience, compliance with ethical standards, and successful completion of the National School Psychology Examination.

The NCSP system was created in 1988 for credentialing school psychologists who meet nationally recognized standards adopted by the National Association of School Psychologists. The NCSP encourages commitment to the highest degree of professionalism, continuing professional education, and service delivery by school psychologists. Certification ensures a consistent level of training and experience across the country; it also facilitates credentialing across state lines and among various agencies. NCSP has been established and the auspices of the National Association of School Psychologists, a professional association of school psychologists representing 14,000 men and women serving mental health and educational needs for all children and youth.

TICKETS FOR THE second annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader Aug. 17 at Adams Field are now on sale at several locations in the city, including the Mayor's Office at City Hall and the Quincy Sun office, 1372 Hancock St. Above, Tom Koch, co-chairman of the event, sells a ticket to Mayor Francis McCauley while Administrative Secretary Peter Kenney looks on.

Dick Koch MDA Softball Doubleheader Aug. 17

The annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Benefit Softball Doubleheader will be played Thursday, Aug. 17 at Adams Field, Quincy.

The first game between the Quincy Fire Department and Quincy Police will begin at 6:30 p.m. The second game, featuring Quincy City Officials versus the News Media All-Stars, will start at 8 p.m.

Tickets, which are $2 each, include price of admission for both games and entry into a prize drawing. Among the prizes to be awarded are a brand new baseball glove donated by Colman's Sporting Goods of Quincy, Red Sox tickets, gift certificates from area restaurants and other items.

The Red Sox tickets are for the Thursday, Aug. 31 game against the California Angels.

All proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Co-chairmen of the event are Tom Koch, Quincy Council on Aging Chairman, and Robert Bosworth, Assistant Editor of The Quincy Sun.

Tickets for the twin-bill and drawing are available at the Council on Aging Office, 1120 Hancock St., The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., the Mayor's Office at City Hall, Radio Station WJDA, 29 Brackett St., Quincy Community Television, 81 School St., Handshakes Cafe, 1354 Hancock St., and The Patriot Ledger, 400 Crown Colony Dr.

Tickets for the game-drawing will also be sold at the Adams Field Gate before the doubleheader.

Two years ago, the game was dedicated to the memory of Richard J. Koch, Sr., who organized the special fundraising event. Mr. Koch, who served with Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth as co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon Committee for 11 years, died in August, 1987.

To date, the committee has raised more than $1 million.

This is the 13th year of the benefit doubleheader. The event has raised more than $16,500, including $1,500 last year.

This year, the Quincy Fire will be looking to snap the Police's four-game winning streak. Last year, the Police downed the Fire 6-1 in a well-played game by both sides.

In the nightcap, the City Officials and News Media will be trying to take control of the series lead. The series is tied at six games apiece.

Last year, the City Officials held off a dramatic comeback by the News Media to win, 9-8.

For the second year in a row, Continental Cablevision of Quincy, Channel 3, will set up a broadcasting booth at Adams Field. The broadcast, to include play-by-play announcers and on-air guests, will be shown in its entirety at a later date.

Rosters for the four teams will be published in next week's Quincy Sun.

Rain date for the game is Thursday, Aug. 24.

Point Pub Runs Win Streak To 13

Point Pub ran its winning streak to 13 straight games to hold its slim lead in the C division of the Quincy Men's Softball League.

The Pub edged Hat Rack, 6-5, with third baseman Steve Conatas, playing with a badly bruised heel, having two RBI singles and turning in the defensive gem of the month, with a diving catch of a bases-loaded, two-out line drive that saved the game.

Conatas came in batting .560. All Freeham tripled and singled driving in two runs, pitcher Brett Heeney, improving to 4-0, had two hits, Paul Ratti, two, and Bob Kane, Mike Sullivan, John Koceniak, Brian Beliveau, Joe Bomback, Chuck Sullivan and P.J. Hussey, one each.

For Hat Rack, pitcher Bobby Henley kept the Pub batters off-balance. Jim Kozlowski had three hits, Chris Chevalier, two, and Dan Obert, Dave McKay, Jim Hatfield and Ed Tinney all played well.

Point Pub blanked Continental Cable, 10-0, as Chuck Sullivan pitched his first career shutout, allowing six hits. He also had two hits against his old team. Conatas and Darin Zemp also had two hits each and Bob Tenello, Koceniak, Mary Glynn and Freeman, one each.

For Cable, Dave Losordo and Dave Angelos had two hits apiece and Ron Beichert and Joe DiSantis, one each. Wally Farrell and Bruce Kanneburg played well.

Second place Granite Rail came from behind to top Putnam Investing, 12-10.

Bob Cosby and Brian Cosby had four hits each, and, along with Mo Morris, led Granite Rail to the win. Mike Conlon hit a solo homerun in the seventh to spark a five-run rally. Mike Bellotti, Scott Mele, Bill Radzik, John McKay and Brian Hubbard all had hits.

Putnam's defense faltered in the last inning after leading all the way. Lloyd Whatt, George Reese, Lou Moccia and Joe Luciano had hits for the losers.

The standings: Point Pub, 18-3; Granite Rail, 18-4; Putnam, 15-5; Cable, 11-11; PIP, 10-9; Luke's, 8-12; Washington Tap, 7-11; Hat Rack, 7-12; Sagamore II, 3-15; Sagamore P.O., 1-17.

Lots more Mr. Nice Guy

The old adage says nice guys finish last. But Peter O'Connell has never finished last. From the days when he stood on the corner selling newspapers, to the day he became the biggest taxpayer in the City of Quincy, Peter O'Connell has proven that you can be a nice guy, and still make it all work.

And he made it work for Quincy when he took on the MWRA. Peter O'Connell saw nothing being done, and did something -- without shouting. Just old-fashioned hard work, determination and leadership, the same way he ran his business.

And talk about results!

While his opponents made speeches, Peter O'Connell took action. Even the Governor and the Mayor of Boston -- both strong opponents of the Roxbury site -- are now forced to give Quincy a fair shake -- thanks to Peter O'Connell. He took action. He forced them to the table. He made them negotiate. Now, that's leadership.

Nice guys can finish first, if they know what they're doing. Peter O'Connell has proven that he does know what he's doing -- and he can do the same for Quincy.

Nice guy? Yes, and a very effective leader. Just think of what he could do as Mayor.

Now, that's leadership. Elect

Peter O'Connell

Mayor of Quincy

Mayoral Field Down To 4 28 Candidates File

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Twenty-eight residents have filed nomination papers for this fall's city election which will feature only a mayoral and school committee preliminary election Sept. 12.

The mayoral race which looked like a five candidate field, and possibly six, was narrowed to four when William Jensen and Joseph Mucci, who had nomination papers out, failed to file them. There will be no preliminary contests for city councillor at-large or for any ward council seats.

Those who filed papers before Tuesday's 5 p.m. deadline included candidates for mayor: former mayor Joseph LaRaia, 38 Russell Park; city councillor Stephen McGrath, 45 Oval Rd.; businessman Peter O'Connell, 40 Hatherly Rd.; and city councillor James Sheets, 926 Furnace Brook Pkwy.

The four mayoral candidates will face each other in the preliminary election. The two highest vote getters will square off in the final election Tuesday, Nov. 7.

Also on preliminary day, voters will choose from among nine candidates running for the three four-year seats on the School Committee. The six highest vote getters will be on the Nov. ballot.

Candidates running for the three four-year School Committee terms are:

Incumbents Mary Collins, 116 Lansdowne St. and Frank Santoro, 40 Haviland St.; Judith Brams, 107 Atlantic St.; Richard Crespi, 73 Ruggles St.; Gary Fine, 88 Lancaster St.; Michael Jovanovic, 62 Town Hill St.; Ronald Mariano, 57 Presidential Dr.; John McDuff, 216 South St.; and Michael Preble, 27 Crosby St.

Joel Davidson and Sal Giarratani took papers out for the four-year term but did not return them.

There will also be a contested race for the two-year School Committee seat created by the death of former member Christopher Kennedy.

Running for that seat are Mary "Jane" Powers, 16 Roberta Ln. and former school committeeman Charles Sweeney, 49 Ames St.

Richard Jacobucci took papers out for the two-year term but failed to return them. If he had, there would have been a preliminary for the seat.

Other contested races are councillor-at-large, Ward 1 councillor and Ward 4 councillor.

Councillor-at-large candidates who filed are incumbents Timothy Cahill, 23 Summer St. and Patricia Toland, 82 Cedar St.; Ward 1 councillor Michael Cheney, 94 Rock Island Rd.; Susan Gallagher, 21 Willow St. and Denis Tardo, 141 Sea St.

Cheney gave up his ward seat to run for councillor-at-large.

$13.8 Million In Construction

One hundred and sixty-nine permits totaling $13,840,021 were approved by the Quincy Building Department in July.

The amount is slightly down from last July's total when 143 permits totaling $15,891,046 were approved: The breakdown is:

- One family dwelling permit, $90,000.
- Seventeen multi-family dwellings, $11,827,100.
- One mercantile, $172,600.
- One garage, $2,000.
- One hundred residential alterations, $835,757.
- Fifteen other alterations, $490,820.

- Two removals, $1,100.
- Ten signs, $11,320.
- Twenty-two miscellaneous permits, $409,324.

Total receipts for July amount to $281,294. There were $210 worth of public inspection fees.

Baby Photo Contest To Help Jerry's Kids

Is there a beautiful baby in your house?

Would you like to show him or her off a little to readers of The Quincy Sun?

And, at the same time help Jerry Lewis fight muscular dystrophy, that cruel disease that afflicts too many youngsters.

The Quincy Sun is sponsoring a Beautiful Baby Photo Contest in association with McIntire's Studio, 679 Hancock St., Wollaston and the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The winning baby will receive an 11-by-14 inch mounted color portrait donated by McIntire's Studio, one of the South Shore's leading photography studios.

There will be other prizes for the winner and runners-up.

There is no cost to enter. In fact, you can receive a prize just for entering your baby: a free photo of the baby taken by McIntire's Studio for entry in the contest.

All you have to do is contact McIntire's Studio (479-6888) and make an appointment to have your baby's photo taken. The photo will be entered in the contest. There is no cost or obligation.

If you already have a favorite photo you can enter that one instead.

Children from the age of newborn to five years are eligible to enter.

The names and addresses of the babies will not be given or used during the voting process. The identities of the winner and runners-up will be given after the contest but only with parental consent.

The photographs will be numbered for the contest and the voting will be by those numbers.

Anyone can vote for a baby by simply making a donation to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, in care of The Quincy Sun.

Those entering a baby's photo may also vote by making a donation to MDA.

The baby receiving the most votes (donations) will be judged the winner. All donations will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Pictures may be submitted to The Quincy Sun now through Friday, Sept. 15. They will be numbered and displayed in the window of The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Anyone can come by the office and vote.

The pictures will also be published in the Thursday, Sept. 28th issue of The Sun. A ballot will appear in The Sun for voting.

Deadline for voting is Thursday, Oct. 12.

Facility To Open Sept. 19

Colton Confident Police Station Problems Will Be Resolved

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy Public Works Commr. David Colton told city councillors Monday that he is confident all major problems connected with the $9 million Quincy police station project will be repaired by the scheduled Sept. 19 opening.

Colton, called before the council for an update on the project, said each problem, especially flood-related problems, is being addressed and should be resolved by the time the new facility opens next month.

Councillors questioned

Colton about the project and why the facility has flooded on numerous occasions the past nine months. In discussing the work and payment scheduled for the contractors, Councillor Stephen McGrath said the city should strongly consider withholding payment until all work is done to satisfaction.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley suggested that "a substantial amount of money" be withheld until after the winter months. He said that would allow the city to see if the roof over the vehicle maintenance garage holds up to the wet, wintry weather.

Colton said he would explore the options with City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie.

Speaking before the council at its special meeting, Colton said he wanted to "dispel some myths" regarding the flooding incidents at the station.

"The garage doesn't flood everytime it rains. It only floods when there is a sudden, fast downpour.

"We have taken steps to solve the problem. We're doing one thing at a time. We've made progress," he said.

Colton said there was never waist-deep water in the garage and said there was never a problem with the pumps.

According to Colton, one flood was caused by a surge in electricity which blew some fuses in the pump's control box. The surge was probably caused by lightning.

Because the pumps didn't kick on, six to seven inches flooded the garage.

Another flood occurred because the parking lot was not completely paved and therefore, the water could not run off into the drain. Colton noted that the pumps did go on during this incident.

After the garage was paved, the garage flooded again with one-inch of water following extensive downpours. Since that time, a catch basin was added. "That should solve the problem," Colton said, adding that the flooding problems are decreasing as the causes are identified and subsequently repaired.

Besides the garage, a section of the new addition's roof was found to leak. After the leak was identified, it was repaired.

In addition, the locks for all the cells except the holding cell have been corrected and the cell drains have been lowered, Colton said. The holding cell lock will be repaired soon, he said.

For the past 10 days, the roofing contractor has been working on the roof trying to identify leak holes. Colton said he will not be paid in full until "it is tight" and "everybody's satisfied."

The commissioner noted that the roofer has not been paid in about six months and the city still owes him $50,000, about half of his contract.

The roofer is a filed subcontractor paid through the general contractor. The city owes the general contractor about $500,000.

In discussing payment, McGrath said "I think we should take a hard line down there" and withhold payment until the project is completed to the city's satisfaction and the problems are corrected.

As chairman of the city's Finance Committee, McGrath also said he would strongly consider notifying Auditor Robert Foy and request that payment be stopped.

"The last time we did that the mayor went bananas, but that's too bad," McGrath.

Colton said the roof in the new building has been leaking "off and on" since it opened last August. Any damage to the building or police equipment has been paid for by the contractor, he noted.

The commissioner admitted that the building may have some flaws in it now but they will be corrected in time for the opening. Moreover, because people have worked in the facility while it was being constructed, problems have been noticed.

"This construction is not complete. We're not building a building in a vacant lot. We've got a building that's being rehabilitated. People work in it 24 hours a day," he said.

Asked if the roof is guaranteed, Colton said the construction material is guaranteed for 20 years while the workmanship is guaranteed for 10 years.

The guarantee begins when the city accepts the work and the contractor is liable for damage caused by faulty work.

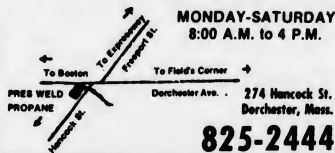

Colton was also asked if the station's emergency generator works adequately. He replied that the system has been tested twice without informing employees and for the most part they "didn't recognize the difference."

Freeze Police, Fire Depts. Hiring Surplus Rescues Shortfall But Tight Times Ahead

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

There was both good news and bad news surrounding Mayor Francis McCauley's recent disclosure the city has an estimated surplus of $8.2 million.

On the positive side, the surplus is enough to wipe out an estimated 1990 budget shortfall of $7.3 million and still leave $900,000 in the city's "free-cash" account.

However, McCauley has ordered the directors of the city's three largest departments -- police, fire and public works -- to be "extremely cautious" with their money management.

Furthermore, the mayor has put a freeze on police and fire department hiring and has also informed Police Chief Francis Finn and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell that they cannot fill any jobs that become vacant between now and the day his term expires next January.

In addition, McCauley said Tuesday he will not be able to restore reductions in overtime. When he drafted the fiscal 1990 budget in March, the mayor cut $400,000 in police and fire department overtime spending and $486,000 in school department requests.

But because of Gov.

Michael Dukakis' local aid cuts, restoring the overtime and appropriating the school requests "is impossible to do at this time," McCauley said.

The mayor has told Chief Finn and Chief O'Connell that they should limit overtime. "They're going to have to be extremely cautious in their management of money."

The mayor has also informed Public Works Commr. David Colton not to hire any new employees unless he can prove it is essential.

The mayor has also decided to ask the council to rescind a previous appropriation order of $375,000 for traffic and street improvements in Quincy Square. He will ask the council to put the order on file in the fall.

The fact that Quincy will continue to run in the black this year and faces no layoffs sets the city apart from other communities struggling to balance budgets because of lower-than-expected local aid payments.

"It's a tight situation but I think we're going to make it," McCauley said, adding there are no plans to layoff employees on the city budget. He noted Quincy Hospital, which expects to layoff 200 employees by October, operates on a separate account.

The city, which faces a $7.3 million shortfall next year, will be able to wipe out that deficit with this year's estimated $8.2 million surplus. After that, Quincy will still have $900,000 in free cash available in case budget projects are too low or if new spending becomes necessary.

The free cash, which has not been certified yet, should be certified within the next few weeks, McCauley said.

Besides the free cash, the city has about $850,000 in the UDAG account which can fund only certain projects and services.

Quincy will receive $35.5 million in local aid this year, a decrease of $3.1 million or 8.2 percent over last year.

That reduction, coupled with a 7.5 percent increase in charges for services, like sewer, water, the Metropolitan District Commission and the MBTA, made the actual reduction in state aid closer to $3.4 million.

McCauley's announcement of the "free cash" figure marks the fourth year in a row the city has posted a major surplus.

COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS BANK President Mary Reilly, left, presents a $100 U.S. Savings Bond to Dorothy McGee of Quincy whose name was chosen as winner of the Bank's $100 Savings Bond drawing held recently, and will be included in a future grand prize drawing. Colonial Federal Savings Bank, with offices in Quincy, Holbrook, Weymouth and Wareham is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

18-Year-Old Named To Voter Registrar Board

Michael J. Cronin of 33 Bromfield St., Wollaston, has been appointed to fill an unexpired term on the city's Registrar of Voters board by Mayor Francis McCauley.

Cronin, who is 18 years old, is believed to be one of the youngest registrars in the state.

He succeeds Charles T. Sweeney who resigned recently after announcing his candidacy for a two-year term on the School Committee.

Cronin's appointment is in effect and expires the first Monday in February, 1992.

The son of Dennis and Margaret Cronin, he is a graduate of North Quincy High School and former NQHS representative on the School Committee.

This fall, he will enter Boston College and pursue a degree in political science.

The Board of Registrars is comprised of two registered Democrats and two registered Republicans. City Clerk John Gillis is chairman of the board.

MDC Halts Weekend Blue Hills Road Closures

Because of insufficient funding and staff, the Metropolitan District Commission has temporarily halted the weekend road closure program it has operated at the Blue Hills Reservation in recent years.

An MDC spokesman said the agency currently lacks the funds needed to repair several damaged gates that close the roadways to vehicles. In addition, the MDC no longer possesses the staffing at the Blue Hills to operate the gates.

The weekend road closure program uses "breakaway" gates that give way upon impact for greater motorist safety. The following three gates have been closed to vehicles from Friday at 8 p.m. to Monday at dawn:

- Gate at Wampatuck Rd. and Furnace Brook Parkway in Quincy.
- Gate at Chickatawbut Rd. and Wood Rd. in Braintree.
- Gate at Chickatawbut Rd. and the Chickatawbut overlook near Route 28 in Milton.

By eliminating traffic on these roadways, the MDC reserved the eastern end of the Blue Hills Reservation for joggers, hikers, cyclists and nature enthusiasts.

The weekend road closure program at the Blue Hills, which utilizes traditional non-breakaway gates, remains in effect. Gates near the areas listed above are closed nightly from approximately 8 p.m. until dawn.

For more information on the Blue Hills road closure program, call the Blue Hills Reservation at 698-1802.

MEDICARE PROTECTION ACT

Recently, legislation passed regarding edicare protection for the elderly. Unfortunately, the bill falls short of offering truly adequate protection.

When an individual reaches age 65, or is close to it, he or she would like to know that their entire life savings won't be eaten up in the event of catastrophic illness. The passage of this bill did not fully guard against such depletion.

In the past, it fell to the private health insurance sector (insurance companies) to offer the public the type of protection it needs, and today is no different. There are many varied plans that are available to supplement current medicare programs, and we would be happy to discuss them with you.

For professional advice on all of your insurance needs

Dirty Tricks

It's something you would like to think just couldn't happen here.

Dirty tricks and smear tactics have no place in a mayoral campaign or in anything else for that matter.
But they are here in Quincy this election year.

Someone is out to try to keep Peter O'Connell from becoming mayor and apparently doesn't care how vicious he has to go to do it.

If that someone isn't a sickie he definitely is a political sneak, injecting his poison into the mayoral campaign through anonymous smear fliers.

There have been three fliers so far. The third, distributed last week, was at least three levels below the gutter.

It, like the first two, apparently came off a small home — or office — computer. But this one reads like it came out of a toilet bowl.

It falsely accuses O'Connell of keeping his nephew out of jail and allowing him to walk the streets free even though he is charged with the stabbing death of a Baintree woman in August, 1987.

The flier claims O'Connell, as a successful businessman, used his influence over the court system to "keep a murder from coming to trial for two years."

The truth of the matter is that the nephew, Matthew O'Connell, 28, of Baintree has been held in custody at Bridgewater State Hospital since his arraignment two years ago. He has had no freedom.

He was in court a little over two months ago as the Norfolk County District Attorney's office sought a third expert's opinion on his mental condition. Two other experts have disagreed in their opinions.

Meanwhile, his attorney, Richard W. Barry is building a defense based on his client's mental condition.

Dist. Atty. William Delahunt says Peter O'Connell has made no contact and has had no discussion with him regarding the case.

What Matthew O'Connell is charged with has nothing to do with his uncle, Peter O'Connell, or his desire to be mayor of Quincy.

But out there somewhere lurks a character assassin taking pot shots with his poison fliers. Anonymous campaign literature is against the law. And those who distribute it are committing a crime, too.

The fact that the person or group responsible for these fliers won't identify themselves should tell you the fliers aren't worth the paper they are printed on.

But if the fliers are designed to hurt Peter O'Connell — as they certainly are — they aren't really helping the other mayoral candidates: Joseph LaRaia, Stephen McGrath and James Sheets.

The candidates have denounced the fliers and 28 Candidates File Nomination Papers

(Cont'd from Page 1)

were Peter Kolson, 215
Palmer St. and Marcia Olinto, 8 Bayview Ave., who will not be on the ballot until Nov. 7.

Ward 4 council contenders who filed are Thomas Fabrizio, 36 Reardon St. and Joseph Shea, 55 Tinson Rd.
As in Ward 1, there will be no preliminary contest.

Four incumbent ward councillors have no opposition.
They are:

Ward 2, Ted DeCristofaro,
17 Murdock Ave.; Ward 3,
Lawrence Chretien, 51 North Central Ave.; Ward 5, Charles Phelan Jr., 26 Kemper St.; and Ward 6, Thomas Nutley, 235 Billings St.

disavow any connection with them.

But some voters may feel the fliers are being produced not only to harm O'Connell but to help one of the other candidates. And that is unfortunate.

The fliers could very well boomerang by stirring sympathy for O'Connell among voters who are still undecided who they will vote for Sept. 12.

And, in a close election as this one promises to be,
those votes could be very crucial.

The vast majority of people believe in fair play. These fliers are anything but fair play.

TWO OF THIS year's School Committee candidates have connections to past mayoral campaigns.

Michael Jovanovic, who took out nomination papers for a two year term just before the deadline Friday, ran for mayor in 1975. He finished fourth in a four-candidate field in the preliminary election that year behind Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, and Grace Saphir.

And, Michael Preble's father, Robert, ran against James McIntyre in 1969 and lost. (As did a few others down through the years).

QUINCY GIRLS SEEMED to dominate the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant for years, but not lately. In fact it has been seven years since a Quincy girl has worn the crown. Last Quincy winner was Christine McGrath in 1982. This year's winner, Pamela Hall, 21, is from Baintree.

Most of the recent winners have been from Weymouth and Baintree.

ELECTION — TUESDAY — NOVEMBER 6, 1994

SMALL WORLD: Mrs. Christine Graham, wife of the late Quincy police officer, Robert Graham, received a letter the other day from an old Army friend of his,
Buster Simmons of Greensboro, N.C.

Simmons wrote he had been browsing in a used book shop in Greensboro and while examining a book, a Quincy political campaign card fell out. He thought he might be interested in it and sent it along.

It turned out to be a 1934 card for Charles Hedges, who was running for state representative in Wards 4, 5, 6.

Hedges, of course, went on to become state senator and Norfolk County Sheriff.

Mrs. Graham and her husband knew Hedges personally.

DENIS TARDO wants you to know that the newspapers are not mispelling his first name. That's right, there's only one "n" in Denis.

And why only one "n"? Simple says Tardo. He was named for Msgr. Denis Francis Murphy of Gate of Heaven Parish in South Boston.

And, if one "n" was good enough for the monsignor it's good enough for Tardo.

Disturbed Over Hazardous Waste Incinerator

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I am disturbed to think a hazardous waste incinerator will be located in our community. I am actually disturbed to think that such an incinerator would be sited anywhere in Massachusetts.

Heavy metals are not destroyed by incineration. Other toxins are created when hazardous waste is burned.

One of the most toxic are dioxins. Dioxins are not a single chemical but an entire family consisting of 75 different members, varying in their degree of toxicity. Dioxins cause cancer, birth defects, reproductive failure, and immune system disorders along with other "less serious" disorders. Dioxins are considered so toxic that a safe level of exposure cannot be determined. Factors controlling dioxin formation during incineration are not fully understood and therefore it may be impossible to eliminate them.

Our society is so concerned with air pollution caused by cigarette smoking and so concerned about the dangers of passive cigarette smoke.

How can we possibly consider hazardous waste incineration? This really does not make sense to me. Surely, we can spend the time and creative energy to come up with solutions that do not contaminate our environment more than it is already.

Criticizes Management Of Quincy Hospital

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The emperor has no clothes. The Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) has proven itself unable or unwilling to manage Quincy Hospital in the best interests of the residents of Quincy and vicinity. Its excuses for this month's projected layoff of 20% of the workforce have raised more questions than they have answered.

Why such extreme cuts?

What relationship does all this have to the Massachusetts Hospital Association (MHA) and its "Campaign to Save Our Health Care System"? Does the timing of this decision have anything to do with the current funding debates on Beacon Hill? Mark J. Mundy, Hospital

Director, was just elected secretary of the MHA.

Many are asking whether this reorganization has anything to do with some strategic plan of HCA's? The Hospital's excuses make prominent mention of the fact that nurses and other healthcare professionals are paid huge sums of money. It must be pointed out that the Hospital approached the nurses in May, 1988, with an economic reopening in order to attain the prevailing wage for nurses in our area so as to bring staffing at the hospital up to an adequate level.

The time has come for the political and moral leadership of our community to review and revoke HCA's mandate to serve.

Responds To Ledger Article On School Committee Candidates TV Forum

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Since I was unavailable for comment regarding the "Fountain-Fine relationship unmentioned on TV Forum" article which appeared in The Patriot Ledger, I would like to respond to the citizens of Quincy. On Aug. 4, 1989 Continental Cable Systems presented a School Committee Candidates forum in which I participated.

The winner of the evening was education. Forums such as these provide an opportunity for the citizens of Quincy to learn more about the Quincy Schools and how the candidates (for the school committee) want to improve the current system.

Several callers raised the concern that not only was Herb Fontaine's appearance as one of the three panelists unfair, but that it went unmentioned that I was his son. Herb Fontaine has been a political panelist on Quincy Cable Television for the past nine years.

Herb Fontaine has been the news director of WJDA radio for the past 34 years. His community involvements are many and his love for Quincy is well-known to his family, friends and peers. I, like Herb Fontaine, want to make a positive and everlasting contribution to Quincy - especially its school system.

When I formally announced my candidacy on the steps of Merrymount School, I spoke at length of my concerns for education in Quincy. I also introduced for the record, before a crowd of approximately 100 people, and the viewers of Continental Cablevision, my father, Herb Fontaine.

Throughout his career

Herb Fontaine has practiced the journalists' creed "To be fair, impartial and accurate". Still I felt it necessary to discuss our relationship during the campaign. The conversation lasted 60 seconds. We both knew that our media-political relationship would always be separate from our father-son relationship. My campaign has been and will continue to be about quality education in our Quincy Schools.

A 'Thank You' From The Peter Family

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Peter family would like to thank you, the "Quincy Sun" and Sun Channel 26 for the publicity you gave the 5th Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive. As usual Bob Gohi did an excellent job, and it did make a difference as some people said they saw us on Sun Channel 26 or saw it in the "Sun."

You contributed to making this our best blood drive ever. We had 147 prospective donors walk through the door and collected 118 pints of blood. For a summer drive this is outstanding.

So again, thank you, and we look forward to your continued support.

Comments On Proper Display Of U.S. Flag

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am responding to several letters printed in The Quincy Sun these past weeks, regarding the National Colors of the United States.

Messrs. Tardo, Stein and Hines speak of displaying the yacht club burgee in relation to our National Colors. There is no provision in the National Flag Code or the Massachusetts Flag Arms & Seal specifications, allowing for any banner of colors to fly higher or over the National Colors.

The prescription does state while at sea Church Service or a burial the Navy Colors are aloft while the National Colors are in the place of honor flying from the Gaff.

Regulation document

Massachusetts 950 CMR 34.11 (1) /a/ makes no provision for pennants of any description to fly or be placed above our National Colors.

Chapman's book titled Piloting Seaman and Small Boat Handling does make reference to this provision, which pertains to on shore. Chapman does not regulate Flag Code. Merchant Vessels may display the Merchants Flag above the place of Honor while burial at sea.

The 77th Congress Public Law 829 Chapter 806 2nd Session 1942 Sec. 3. No other flag or pennant should be placed above, or in the same level to the right of the United States of America except during church services conducted by a Naval Chaplain at sea when the church pennant may be flown above the Flag during church services for Naval personnel.

Public Law 107 83rd Congress addressed the display of the National Colors along with the Flag of the United Nations amends Sec. 3 (c) No person shall display the flag of the United Nations or any other flag (National or International) above or in a position of superior prominence or honor to, or in place of, the flag of the United States. The suggestion goes that all National Flags receive equal setting. Not as stated by one of the writers the United Nations Colors fly's above the American Flag.

I am in accord with Mr. Tardo. I may suggest to the interested parties to petition the Attorney General of the Commonwealth on this matter. Messrs. Stein and Hines are correct it is subject to interpretation because of suggestion or opinion that has been around for a long time. Congress and in this case the Attorney General of Massachusetts makes the rules and regulations of Flag Code etiquette.

Sincerely,
Francis J. Derwin, President

Wollaston Beach Plan Protested

A hundred Wollaston homeowners alternately hooting and cheering, jammed a City Council Chamber hearing to show their disapproval of a business zoning plan for Wollaston Beach.

The beach already was zoned for business and the plan under study would change it to a stricter business zoning, but the residents were in favor of Residential A and B zoning for beachfront property. "We don't want this to be another Revere Beach," said one angry resident.

Three people spoke out against the business zoning plan and 97 others registered their opposition while four spoke up for it but only five signified they were in favor.

Quincy Man Helps Rescue 2 Men, Dog Off North Carolina

By TIM MORSE

The story of three men and a dog who went out for a summer sail could have had a tragic ending if a Navy destroyer had not come along to rescue them from their sinking pleasure boat.

Navy Petty Officer Kevin J. LaFleur, son of Lillian McLean of Quincy, is deck department's leading petty officer aboard the USS Briscoe, the ship which executed the nighttime rescue mission 55 miles off the coast of North Carolina.

According to LaFleur the three men pulled from the chilly water that night seemed to be more concerned with the dog's safety than with their own.

"They wouldn't come out of the boat until the dog was safe, so we hoisted the dog aboard, using the swimmer's harness. Then the first man climbed up using the cargo nets," LaFleur said. "The other two guys had to be hoisted aboard though, because they were just too weak to climb."

The men and the dog had been in the water for several hours.

En route to the waters off South Carolina to take part in routine naval exercises, the Briscoe was steaming when the Coast Guard, relaying a distress call from a private vessel, requested the Navy's assistance.

A Coast Guard plane first picked up the distress signal and located the stricken vessel, dropping life rafts into the rescue area. Briscoe then received location coordinates from the plane which guided her to the bobbing spec in the dark.

LaFleur said that the rescue came at the end of the crew's day.

"They got to me around 10

p.m. Most of the guys were getting ready to hit their racks for the night. My guys made all the arrangements and we got to the people around 11 p.m.," he said.

Little was known about the condition or the number of boaters at that time. According to LaFleur, there were a few different plans for the rescue.

"We made preparations for a deck evolution, readied the motor whale boat and the helo. We also had our rescue swimmer standing by."

Certainly no one expected that one of the victims would be able to dog paddle.

The three men, who had set out earlier that day on a fishing trip, abandoned their craft when the skipper of the boat discovered water on the deck of the engine room. The three men took the dog, inflated their life raft and quickly climbed in.

What they didn't know was that when they inflated the raft, they also automatically activated a transponder which sent out an alert signal. That transponder proved to be a lifesaver for them.

Still, even with an accurate fix on the sinking vessel's location, the Briscoe's rescue efforts were hampered by two factors—darkness and rough seas. According to LaFleur, the swells in the area that night were peaking between eight and ten feet.

As the ship approached the scene, one third of Briscoe's crew was on deck, prepared to take action. LaFleur says the men responded quickly. "The only people alerted to the situation were the men in deck department," said Briscoe's deck leading petty officer. "But the word spread and everyone wanted to lend a hand," he added.

Searchlights revealed that the pleasure boat, nearly 55 feet in length, was quickly sinking. Just eight feet of her bow remained above water when the Briscoe steamed into view.

According to Cmdr. Jim Morin, Briscoe's commanding officer, due to the rough sea condition, the ship's executive officer (XO) had taken over the helm during the rescue.

"The XO doesn't normally steer the ship, but when we took a look at the size of the waves, I decided we needed as much experience at the helm as possible. If we missed the life boat the first time, it would mean having to make another pass. That would mean valuable time lost."

Briscoe's executive officer, responding to Morin's commands, carefully maneuvered the ship, nearly 11 times the size of the sinking pleasure craft, to within fifteen feet of the boat. A lookout spotted the men in their life raft which was bobbing close to the wreck, making the rescue effort even more dangerous.

If the ship got too close, there was a chance of crushing the raft and the men; if she couldn't get close enough, the men couldn't be taken aboard.

Once in position, Briscoe's crew lowered her cargo nets over the side. After retrieving the men and the dog from the water, the ship's crew collected the life rafts while the men were examined in the ship's sick bay, given dry clothes and fed.

Later that morning, Briscoe rendezvoused with Coast Guard units near Cape Hatteras and the men and the dog left the warship.

Morin says that this was the second rescue his ship has performed in two months. He says he feels Briscoe and her crew performed in an outstanding manner.

LaFleur agreed with his captain's assessment of the rescue. He said the entire crew worked as a team in the evolution.

"We all know our jobs. I had confidence in my men," he added.

LaFleur had reported to Briscoe only five days before the rescue. He attributes his preparedness to prior Navy training and experience.

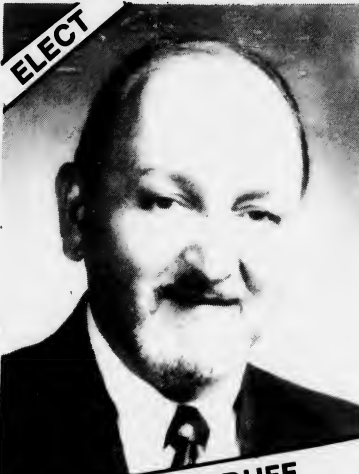

"I feel that in my 12 years of service, the Navy has given me opportunities to excel that I probably wouldn't see in the civilian world."

USS Briscoe recently departed its Norfolk homeport to take part in a cruise known as UNITAS. The ship will participate in exercises and maneuvers with the navies of allied South American countries in what is an annually scheduled event.

Henry Bradley Installed Norfolk County Legion Commander

Nine Legionnaires from Quincy are among the new slate of officers for Norfolk County American Legion District 6 installed in recent ceremonies at the Cyril P. Morrisette Post in Quincy.

Henry "Hank" Bradley of Quincy, Department Executive Committeeman, was installed as Commander; Robert Watson of Medway, senior vice commander; Mary Timcoe of Quincy, junior vice commander; Paul O'Neill of Mansfield, adjutant; Grace Peard of Wrentham, chaplain.

John Duran of Quincy, historian; Alice Scribner of Quincy, finance officer; Paul A.M. Hunt of Quincy, judge advocate; Lawrence Connors and Robert LaFleur, both of Quincy, sergeant and assistant sergeant at arms; Howard Mayers of Holbrook, second assistant sergeant at arms.

Executive committee members installed were Charles Brooks of Quincy, Robert Crandlemere of Holbrook, Raymond Peard of Wrentham, James Sabin of Needham, Timothy Sullivan of Dedham, Richard Walsh of Quincy, and immediate past county commander Lee DeSorgher of Medfield.

Norfolk County District 6 consists of 32 American Legion posts, with a membership of more than 7,000 men and women.

Its Veteran and Children and Youth programs are the two programs emphasized by the Legion with many other areas of concern represented by various committees.

A HUSBAND AND WIFE were recently installed as co-pastors of Covenant Congregational Church for the first in the church's history. They are Rev. Kirk E. Johnson, left, and Rev. Kathleen J. Graves. In the center is Rev. George Elia, East Coast Conference Superintendent, who read the service of installation.

Heliport Ordinance Passed By Council

An ordinance requiring heliport operators to receive city permission before being allowed to build and operate such a facility passed the City Council 8-0 Monday night.

The ordinance, drafted by Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets, requires operators to receive a special permit before a heliport can be used in any part of Quincy.

Because of the ordinance, potential operators will have to go through a public hearing and notification process. After those processes, the city's Zoning Board of Appeals will decide whether or not an application for a facility should be granted.

Previously, there was no provision requiring city permission; operators and developers simply needed to apply for state permits, Sheets said.

Sheets said he and other residents became aware of this simple process after learning that the developer of Crown Colony planned to construct a heliport facility on the site.

The councillor said the ordinance would protect people from potential dangers and provide "an additional layer of safety for residents throughout Quincy."

At a public hearing before Monday's special council meeting, 42 residents, many from South and West Quincy, were recorded in favor of the ordinance. No one was recorded against the ordinance.

About a dozen residents vocally supported the ordinance, with several citizens recalling the December 1977 news traffic helicopter crash in West Quincy in which three people died after the helicopter crashed into an apartment building on Station St.

Also speaking in favor were Rep. Steve Tobin, Civil Defense Deputy Director Tony Siciliano, Democratic State Committeewoman Bernice Mader and Ward 4 Councillor candidate Joseph Shea who was present at the 1977 accident.

During the hearing, several residents complained of the noise and vibrations generated by one helicopter that flew once last week. They also said a helicopter landed near their homes three weeks ago.

After the hearing, Sheets thanked the residents who testified in favor of the ordinance. "I think they've made it very clear that they are concerned about all the people of Quincy," he said.

Prior to the vote, Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney asked if an ordinance could be passed eliminating the use of heliports throughout the city.

Sheets said that possibility had been discussed with City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie who indicated such a provision could be challenged in court.

MacRitchie was not present at Monday's special council meeting.

In the meantime, Cheney said he would pursue the matter further.

D. Scott Deware,

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Nearly everyone at one time or another has been caught in a horrible storm while driving a car ... There were times when your windshield wiper could hardly clear your window to give you a clear view of the road. At such times the yellow and white lines on the road were certainly helpful. Without them you probably would not have been able to continue driving. The yellow and white lines kept you out of trouble and protected your safety.

There is a parallel here that can be drawn for use in our day by day living ... Safety lines have been given to us and no one can dispute it ... The lines are safety guides and common sense should tell us how important they are ... Yet, some people continually ignore them, sadly and foolishly.

The basic guides are in the Bible such as the Beatitudes, the Lord's Prayer and, of course, the all important Ten Commandments. It is not true that if we follow these white lines carefully, we would avoid many ditches of difficulty in our daily living?

John F. Doble, 75

Descendant Of Colonial Families

A private service for John F. Doble, 75, of Hanover, a descendant of families prominent in commerce in colonial Quincy and Boston, was held at the family tomb at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Mr. Doble died of bone cancer Aug. 6.

Mr. Doble was proud of the accomplishments of his forebears, according to his son, Paul Frederick Spear Doble of Hanover.

John Doble was the son of the late Charles French and Grace Frederick (Spear) Doble, descendants of the Adams, Baxter and Spear families, and others of the earliest Pilgrim and Puritan settlers.

The Spear family came to what is now Quincy in 1623 and became prominent land owners, Paul Doble said. Seth Spear served as an Army lieutenant under Gen. George Washington in the Revolutionary War, he said.

The Spears were instrumental in founding the Quincy Stone Bank, now the South Shore Bank. John Doble's grandfather, Horace Frederick Spear, and great-grandfather, Horace Baxter Spear, were involved in the Mount Wollaston National Bank, Quincy Trust Co. and Quincy Savings Bank.

Eleazer Frederick was owner of the Frederick and Field Co., which operated many of the Quincy quarries.

The Doble family came to Boston in the 1660's, Mr. Doble said, and were merchants on King St. in Boston, now State St., under the company name, Two Sugarloafs. As Tories during the Revolution, they left for Northern Massachusetts, now Maine. When they returned to the Quincy area in the 1830's, William H. Doble Sr. founded Pneumatic Scale Corp.

John Doble lived on Long Island N.Y. and in Hanover for many years.

He was a graduate of Great Neck High School on Long Island and attended Phillips Exeter Academy in Andover and Brown University in Providence.

Mr. Doble is also survived by his wife, Ann Martica (Saunders) Doble of Hanover; three other sons, Charles Tenney Doble of Duxbury, Neil French Doble of Lincoln, Neb., and Malcolm Saunders Doble of Pittsfield; a sister, Priscilla Alden Channing of Harwich; and two grandchildren. He was the grandson of the late Horace Frederick and Grace (Adams) Spear and William Henry Doble Sr. and Henrietta (French) Doble, all of Quincy.

Donations may be made to the Cranberry Hospice, Washington St., Duxbury 02332.

Mary 'Jane' Powers School Committee Candidate

Mary "Jane" Powers, 16 Roberta Ln., Wollaston, announces her candidacy for the two-year term on the Quincy School Committee.

Powers, 37, said there is a need for leadership to secure strong fiscal and administrative support for education. She also said there must be creative problem solving in light of budget restrictions.

"We must get the most for our educational dollars and explore other sources of funding such as linkage and partnerships with business and professional organizations. She also calls for:

- Planning a detailed demographic survey of present and projected student populations. "This is needed before decisions can be made regarding school districts, class size and school building use."

- Recruitment, retention and recognition of teachers. "We must support innovative teaching methods, continuing education programs, teacher workshops and explore the creation of perceptor/mentor programs."

- Centralization of educational and curriculum materials, math and science kits, computer software, etc. to avoid and minimize duplication of materials that could benefit more students across school lines.

- Restoration and maintenance of school buildings and busses. "There are health and safety issues that need to be addressed."

- Expansion of the Quincy After School Day Care program to all elementary schools. Assess the need/support for "before school" programs. Investigate self-supporting program models.

MARY J. POWERS

- Foster school and community pride. Seek alternative sources for providing extra curricular activities and athletic programs. Promote the philosophy that good schools make good neighbors.

In addition, Powers said she is particularly interested in health curriculum, class size, school bus safety, before and after school care, early childhood curriculum and Quincy Heritage program.

Powers has served on the Beechwood Community Life Center's Board of Directors.

Mosquito Number

Quincy residents interested in learning when their area is to be sprayed for mosquito control now have a telephone number to call.

Pension Fund Investment In Mortgages

Pension fund investment in mortgages can generate competitive returns for plan beneficiaries, while providing an additional source of financing for home buyers, concluded participants in a real estate finance roundtable recently sponsored by the National Association of Realtors.

A viable plan for encouraging public pension fund investment in mortgages was examined at the fifth annual Real Estate Finance Roundtable, held recently at the Drake Hotel in Chicago. About 50 representatives from the housing, banking and real estate industry attended.

NAR estimates that over the next 15 years, the demand for mortgage capital will exceed $1 trillion. This expected increase in demand for mortgage capital necessitates that the housing and real estate industry seek new sources of funding for home loans, such as pension funds, according to NAR President-elect Norman D. Flynn.

"The worst time to ask for a loan is when you don't have any money," Flynn said. "We need to be looking now at where mortgage money for the future is going to come from, and whether it will be affordable."

The current insolvency of the savings and loan industry, and the likelihood that thrifts will occupy a diminished future role in housing finance, underscore the need for additional sources of mortgage capital, Flynn noted.

"If the gate to the quiet, patient capital of pension funds could be opened to mortgages, it could help fill the need for capital for home loans," said Flynn.

According to NAR research, pension and profit sharing funds total about $3 trillion, with less than four percent of that amount invested in real estate of any form, including mortgages.

A model investment plan, developed by a project team assembled by NAR, was presented at the roundtable. The plan acknowledged impediments to mortgage investments by pension funds, including legal and psychological barriers.

"Our (the real estate industry's) job is to find ways to overcome these impediments," Flynn said.

For instance, many states lack enabling legislation that expressly permits state pension funds to invest in mortgage products. Although few directly prohibit investment in mortgage products, some states have imposed caps on such activity by pension funds, and others have enacted legislation that effectively bars pension funds from investing in mortgage products.

Aside from the legislative obstacles, pension funds historically have been reluctant to invest in home loans because of concerns over borrower default and prepayment.

The plan notes that the risks of default and prepayment have been significantly reduced by mortgage securitization, which provides diversification. Through securitization, lenders pool mortgages and issue a security based on the collateral in the mortgage pool.

Mortgage-backed securities guaranteed by the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. (Freddie Mac) have received high investment quality ratings and can offer a yield premium exceeding other investments with the same rating.

"Mortgage-backed securities are a safe, simple, profitable investment for funds that can be easily liquidated," said Michael Buchanan executive vice president of Citizens & Southern National Bank in Atlanta.

Proponents of the roundtable investment model sought to develop a generic plan, based on existing state programs, which would build on their success in localizing financing mechanisms through which pension funds are able to invest in residential mortgages and mortgage-backed securities in their own states and regions.

A thumbnail sketch of the model plan starts with the public pension fund issuing a commitment of mortgage funds to the program administrator, which might be a consortium of lenders, a master lender or state housing authority. The program administrator then makes the funds available to mortgage originators, who offer the funds to borrowers.

As yet, most Yankee Mac loans have a 20 percent down payment and carry stiff prepayment penalties. However, Ferrell-Jones noted that the fund is considering investment in a security product structured in a manner that will allow the prepayment penalties to be removed.

Yankee Mac is not in direct competition for borrowers with the Connecticut State Housing Authority, which makes mortgage loans to lower-income borrowers, she noted. "We meet the needs of those above the income requirements of the housing authority, but who don't qualify for conventional loans," she said.

Roundtable participant Amy Anthony, secretary of housing for the Massachusetts executive office of community development, pointed out that proposals for greater participation in mortgage investments by pension funds are not new. However, the climate for such investments probably would prove more favorable than in the past, she said.

"What has changed since the idea first came up is that pension funds are more sophisticated investors, and there is a much greater concern for housing at the state level," Anthony said. "Pension fund investments (in mortgages) are an important way for the private sector and states to work together to make housing available."

NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo said the association plans to offer its model for testing in three to five states where public pension funds have the legislative authority to invest in mortgage products. If the model is successful, it might be extended to public pension funds in other states. In the future, a parallel proposal might be developed for use by private pension funds, Tuccillo said.

According to an outline of the model plan, the state programs on which it was based "point the way toward a grass roots solution to mortgage financing that marries the best advantage of the primary mortgage market—local investment in homeownership—with the resources of technology of today's secondary mortgage markets, especially the mortgage-backed securities investment instruments that are now available."

QUESTION: My home is getting too small for my family. We need extra bedrooms, a larger kitchen and a bigger garage. Would it make more sense to put all these improvements or sell as-is and buy another home that fits our present and future needs?

ANSWER: Get estimates from contractors (then, for safety's sake increase the cost and time estimate by 50%). Don't forget to crank in the stress factor that goes with remodeling. With this information in hand, compare the value of your present home vs. that of homes for sale which are already in move-in condition to meet your family's needs.

Lung Cancer High In Germantown

Officials Recommend Stop Smoking Programs, Close Scrutiny Of Fore River Basin

Responding to a recent study which shows a significant increase and a possible cluster of lung cancer cases in one area of Quincy, health officials are recommending that smoking cessation programs be considered and targeted where the incidence is elevated.

The report, released by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, covers the Braintree-Weymouth-Quincy - Fore River basin area from 1982-1986. Overall, considering each town as a whole, lung cancer occurred at approximately the rate expected for the four-year period.

Suzanne Condon, who helped write the 33-page report and a Quincy resident, said while men show a high incidence of lung cancer near the basin, many female population groups in the area have normal cancer rates.

In Quincy, the study shows there were 226 observed cases for males and 127 observed cases for females overall. Two hundred and eleven male cases and 107 female cases were expected.

However, a statistically significant elevation in the rate of lung cancer was observed for both males and females in Houghs Neck and Germantown. There were 30 observed cases in males and 18 observed female cases in this area. Nineteen male cases and 11 female cases were expected.

The cluster of these cases can be explained, the study states, by residents in a senior citizen housing complex in that section of Quincy.

Given the age restrictions for residence in these complexes, it is unlikely these cases resided there during the latency period of their cancers. Moreover, the cases are probably indicative of exposures which occurred approximately 20 to 40 years ago, the study said.

Cigarette smoking appears to be the major factor in these cancers, researchers believe. Furthermore, occupational exposure to lung carcinogens probably also played a role, but the contribution of adverse occupational exposures could not be quantified, researchers concluded.

Researchers also said the role in the environment in the development of lung cancer in the tri-town area is unclear. But because the area studied is within close proximity to the Fore River industrial basin, officials recommend that existing and future operations there should be closely scrutinized.

Among the industries located along the basin are Clean Harbors, Inc., Citgo Petroleum Corp., Boston Edison, Procter and Gamble and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

According to M. Jane Gallahue, Quincy's Public Health Commissioner, the study shows that residents living near the basin, especially in Germantown and Houghs Neck, are more vulnerable to any additional air pollution.

"These people need to be watched closely. Their systems can't take adverse (health) conditions. They're vulnerable," Gallahue said.

Because of this vulnerability, Gallahue said new industrial operations in the Fore River must be closely scrutinized.

"Whatever goes into the Fore River basin must be scrutinized to make sure the particular industry is not emitting emissions that could result in adverse health conditions."

"We have to closely monitor the entire Fore River basin. We have people who have health problems and they're far more vulnerable because of the stress on their systems," Gallahue said.

Review environmental impact reports for any project in the Fore River should be very closely scrutinized in terms of air emissions prior to any permitting," added Cyndi DeCristofaro of the Quincy Health Department.

Both Gallahue and DeCristofaro advocate establishing an oversight body which could monitor all industrial activity in the area.

"We feel, from a public health point of view, that someone has to look at that. Only then can we get a total picture of the air quality and its impact on public health," Gallahue said.

For example, a proposal by Clean Harbors for a hazardous waste rotary kiln incinerator should be reviewed and judged not as a separate entity but rather as an addition to the present industrial activities along the Fore River, she explained.

"Only an environmental impact report taken collectively, not in isolation, can determine whether or not to allow an industry to operate (new activities)," Gallahue said.

She suggested that the board could be comprised of federal and state officials from agencies such as the EPA as well as local health department members.

The board could conduct further research on pollution and its impact on lung cancer. By doing more studies of factors such as wind conditions, better conclusions could be drawn, Gallahue said.

"The information and data is out there. We hope the right people are looking at it," she said, adding that future findings could be used to make stricter pollution policies and revisions to the Clean Air Act.

In the long run, Gallahue said this type of thorough review process would save communities and companies time and money. Some reviews go through several environmental impact report processes while being challenged by communities.

"If an area was deemed as poor for industry, then the permit process wouldn't begin and thus a lot of time and money would be saved. It would help determine what sites are appropriate for a rotary kiln incinerator or a sludge treatment operation," Gallahue said.

The commissioner said residents should not be alarmed by the recent lung cancer findings but rather concerned. Moreover, she advises people who smoke to stop and those who don't to avoid the habit and those who do light up.

"People should not smoke. Even passive smoke is considered a real concern. If you're smoking, you're harming yourself."

Harold Seeks Halt To Incinerator Application Process

Senator Paul Harold (D-Quincy) has written a letter to the Site Safety Council asking them to suspend the application process for a permit filed by Clean Harbors, Inc., for a hazardous waste rotary kiln incinerator in the Fore River industrial basin.

Harold wrote the letter after learning about a recent state Department of Public Health letter which shows a statistically significant elevation in the level of lung cancer cases for both males and females in the Houghs Neck-Germantown area.

The area is located downwind from the Fore River basin. Clean Harbors is one of several industries presently working in the area.

Harold noted the study did not conclude there was a link between place of residence and lung cancer. In fact, researchers believe cigarette smoking is the primary factor in the cases.

However, local health officials are calling for closer scrutiny of present and future operations in the Fore River basin.

"Before we compound the toxicity of the air, we need to study the air quality in the Fore River," Harold said.

An air monitoring study is being done in the area and findings are pending. Once that study is complete, officials should have a better understanding as to how the industrial operations affect the air quality and thus the residents who live near the basin.

Harold noted that the Department of Public Health has recommended that there be no additional industrial operations in the Fore River basin.

And Havlicek stole the ball...

Remember when Havlicek stole the ball, and brought them to their feet in the stands? Why did he do that? To WIN, that's why.

Well, Peter O'Connell 'grabbed the spotlight' on the MWRA issue, according to The Patriot Ledger. Why did he do that? To WIN, just like Havlicek.

Some of Peter O'Connell's opponents downplayed his accomplishments in bringing the issue to the forefront, making the Governor and Mayor of Boston negotiate, and give Quincy a fair shake. But less thin-skinned officials saw Peter O'Connell's efforts for what they are -- the sincere efforts of a leader concerned about his native city.

"The city was operating from a position of weakness," observed Councillor Joseph LaRaia in the Ledger report. "It's better to get this (O'Connell's compromise) than go for a knockout punch because I think the city would have been the loser on that."

Yes, Quincy would have been a big loser, just like every other time our officials have played to the crowd, accomplishing nothing. So, Peter O'Connell stole the ball -- and he ran with it, just like Havlicek.

"He went to Labor and Industries and he won the battle in there," observed Mayor McCauley. "Had that not happened we would have probably lost the override vote and had no leverage." Right again.

"He played an important role that helped contribute to the overall momentum we were able to build," said Senator Paul Harold, another leader in Quincy's MWRA fight. Right again.

Leadership? Yes. Sincere concern for his hometown? Absolutely. And effective? You bet.

... Now, that's leadership

WEEK OF: August 10

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You adore the limelight, and this year sees you experimenting with various artistic media, including especially the dramatic arts. Travel is highlighted in a major way early in 1990. Family ties tighten over the next twelve months.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Entertainment is the week's theme--you excel in the roles of spectator and participant. Academic interests are highlighted; this is a fine week for considering a skills-upgrading program.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

A seemingly uneventful week, yet one filled with personal and professional rewards. Important that you maintain your sense of humor when dealing with neighbors--especially noisy ones.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Small risks may pay off; this is a good week for experimenting with new approaches. Travel is unusually hectic but so lively that it would be a pity if you didn't keep a diary.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Week has a calming effect on you and loved ones. You make steady progress as you pursue a long-term goal. Intuition is unusually strong, but combine it with logic for the best results possible.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Partner is more sensitive to your wishes; this is a good week to make a special request. Spontaneous travel is highlighted at this time. Prepare for a slew of surprise visitors.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

A week sprinkled with happy coincidences and delightful moments, especially if traveling. Educational horizons are broadening, but be sure that your plans are practical as well as interesting.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Partner may be surprisingly emotional and eager to pamper you. Older relatives are unusually practical. Children, meanwhile, are thrilled to have you as their favorite role model.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

First impressions are not necessarily accurate, so don't be too hasty when making judgments this week. Delayed project is reactivated and takes off at a most accelerated pace.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Mini-vacations are particularly rewarding at this time, but be warned of a streak to be a little too extravagant for your budget. Time spent with ailing friend is meaningful to both parties.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Thoroughness is the keyword at this time. Leave no chore unfinished, and double check all work that includes figures of any kind.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Educational interests and travel blend favorably throughout week. Avoid shortcuts in the health department. If traveling, prepare for changing conditions and the odd detour.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

New destinations may greet you during this week. Invitations arrive in pairs, and guests show up in droves. This period may find you willing at last to delegate tasks.

BORN THIS WEEK

August 10th, singer Eddie Fisher; 11th, host Mike Douglas; 12th, actor George Hamilton; 13th, actor Neville Brand; 14th, actress Susan St. James; 15th, actress Janice Rule; 16th, actor Fess Parker.

Quincy Race Week A Thundering Success

By TOM SULLIVAN

The 52nd edition of Quincy Bay Race Week was a big success despite heavy thundershowers on opening day and the threat of thunder showers almost every night.

"We were fortunate that we completed all the races before the heavy squalls on opening day that overturned many boats," said Race Week president Ted Johnson. "The boats were safely home or on the way by then, saving potential heavy damage and injury."

"There were thunder showers or the threat of them nearly every night, but we had no problems at all, all races went off as scheduled and we had some of the best competition in years. We cancelled only one race, that for the youngsters, when the weather became ominous on Saturday, but we made up for it by scheduling two races for the younger kinds on Sunday."

Although the number of boats was less than Johnson expected, especially since he sent applications to several clubs and organizations for the first time, the turnout was excellent.

"I expected more boats, but was satisfied with the turnout," said Johnson of the Quincy Yacht Club.

One of the highlights of Race Week was the record of Wessagusett's Jack Willy, who had a perfect 5-for-5 weeks to win the Laser Class.

The five straight wins gave Willy a perfect 3 3/4 winning score for the second straight year.

In the Blue Fleet, Keith Garland of the Hingham Yacht Club came back after a seventh-place finish on opening day to win the title.

It has been a banner season for Garland, who took first place at Squantum in the Lipton Cup regatta and took the overall title in the New England Junior Championships in Medford.

Matt Devine of the Hingham Y.C. was another who had an outstanding week as he won four of his five races to score an easy victory in the Red Fleet.

The annual Marine Parade was colorful as usual with many gaily-decorated boats.

For the second straight year Bernie Reisberg was the parade marshal. He succeeded Al Shaughnessy, who retired after the 1987 parade after many years at the job.

Trophy Day will be held Sunday, Oct. 15, at 3 p.m., at Quincy Yacht Club when all prizes will be given for racing and the marina parade.

Randall Adds Another Hustler Crown

Hingham Yacht Club's Alex Randall, who won the Marblehead Race Week Hustler title for the second year in a row, added the Quincy Bay Race Week crown last week.

Harry Carleton of Willy Laser Winner

Jack Willy of Wessagusett won the Laser Class, completing a perfect 5-for-5 week. Joey Hanrahan of Wessagusett finished second and Squantum was second and Joe Carven Jr. of Weymouth finished third.

John McShane of Wessagusett was third.

Hingham Has Lock On 210s

The 210 Class was an all-Hingham Yacht Club event as Bob Reis won, followed by clubmates Doug MacGregor and Linda Partridge.

A Big Month Of Racing For SYC

PAT ROLLER of Indianapolis, known as the Flag Lady, is crossing the country protesting the burning of the flag. Her boat was entered in the Marine Parade and drew a lot of attention. (Quincy Sun photo by Charles Flogg)

When the Squantum Yacht Club hosted the final day of racing in Quincy Bay Race Week last Sunday, it climaxed a month of outstanding racing at the club.

First, Squantum hosted the annual Lipton Cup Regatta, which has doubled in size to nearly 300 boats, including vessels from around the country, Canada and Bermuda. It is now recognized as one of the top five yachting events in New England.

Then, the SYC hosted the Bliss Trophy race, a national championship for lasers, extremely popular with junior sailors.

Last year Squantum received the U.S. One-Designer Club of the Year Award in recognition of its outstanding contributions to sailing in 1988. It also received Club of the Year honors from the Mass. Bay Yacht Racing Union.

Next year the club will host the National Championship for the Tornado Class, drawing boats from the U.S., Canada, Bermuda and Europe.

"It's been a banner year for the club," said Commodore Tom Glennon. "And it's really contrary to what the national racing bodies have seen. They have seen a drop in interclub racing, but we have increased it."

Dave Lewis, Squantum's

senior race officer and Lipton Cup race committee chairman, rates the Lipton Cup "far and away one of the racing season's highlights."

He has noticed a big difference in enthusiasm, attitude and direction at Squantum in recent years.

"The sailing program is headed in a positive direction," he said, "so the club is in demand and membership is at a maximum. Our goal now is not to become bigger, but to be the best. Our primary objective is to be known as the best race organizers and managers of regattas that provide the most fun."

Perry Tornado Winner

Steve Perry of the Squantum Yacht Club, who finished second a year ago, won the Tornado Class this year. It was all-Squantum as David Lewis finished second and Mike Marcel third.

Hingham Y.C. Sweeps In 420 Class

Hingham Yacht Club swept the 420 Class with Jake Gaul the winner.

Clubmates Jim O'Hare and Peter Goulding finished second and third respectively.

Special Tribute To Indian Class Sailors Closes QBRW

The 52nd edition of Quincy Bay Race Week ended with a special feature after the five days of racing finished last Sunday.

A lone boat sailed the race course honoring the week, its founders and one of its most popular class of sailboat, the Indians.

Katchini, a replica of the famed Indian Class, sailed the memorial cruise with a skipper and four crewmen honoring the Squantum Yacht Club members who competed in that famous class.

When Quincy Bay Race Week was born in 1938, the most popular racing class of that era was the Indian. Fleets of 30 were common at Quincy and Marblehead Race Weeks and the Indians competed for the Lipton Cup.

Two outstanding sailors in the Indian Class and lifetime members of the Squantum Yacht Club died this year and last Sunday's memorial cruise honored Edward J. Gallagher Sr., Paul Castonguay and other Indian skippers.

Lee VanGeimert, a top Indian skipper and member of the SYC, who was at the helm Sunday, and Edward Gallagher Jr., a member of the crew along with Jonathan Alberti, Joe Alberti and Hugh Goodwin, organized the idea of the memorial cruise.

THE YACHT Sciaccia from the Metropolitan Yacht Club won the prize for best decorated boat in the Marine Parade and, for the second year in a row, won the prize for most original. On board with owner and skipper Vincent Curreri, retired Quincy fire captain, were his son, Vincent, and his grandson, Paul Rooney, both members of the Coast Guard Reserve. The theme of the winning design was "Salute to the U.S. Coast Guard, guardians of the sea, Semper Paratus 1790-1990."

Garland Blue Fleet Champ

Keith Garland of Hingham Yacht Club rebounded from a seventh place finish on opening day to win the Blue Fleet championship.

Garland has had an outstanding summer, having won the Lipton Cup Regatta at Squantum, then winning the New England Junior Championship at Medford.

Devine Red Fleet Winner

Matt Devine of Hingham took four of five races to win the Red Fleet honors. Squantum's Terrence Roach took second place.

● Babe Ruth Baseball

Bryan Eliminates Barry's In Playoffs

Bryan VFW Post eliminated Barry's Deli from the Babe Ruth League playoffs with a 3-2 victory and now meets Local 1139 for the city championship.

Bryan, the American League winner, was sparked by the four-hit pitching of Michael Malvesti, who struck out 10 and walked only one. Dan Kearns and Mike Connors pitched well for Barry's.

Bryan took a 1-0 lead in the first when Rob Kane led off with a double and scored on Mark Kelleher's single. Tom Nutley and Malvesti followed with singles but Barry's prevented further damage with some fine defense.

In the bottom of the first Kearns singled for Barry's, but was erased on a double play started by George Wirtz.

Bryan scored twice in the fourth on Malvesti's single, a walk to Wirtz and Paul Murphy's double. In the fifth Kelleher singled and moved up but was left stranded as third baseman Jeff Craig made two fine plays to retire the side.

Trailing 3-0, Barry's rallied for two runs in the bottom of the fifth. Connors doubled and scored as Chris Murphy reached on an error. Murphy scored on Dan Duncan's single.

Connors led off with a base hit in the last of the seventh, but was out on a fine play by Wirtz and Kane. With the tying run on base, Malvesti struck out two to end the game.

In the two-game series, Kelleher paced the Bryan attack with five hits and three walks.

Steve Loud, Joe Mamikovic, Todd Portesi, Terry Sheehan, Philip Bell, Bill Morrissey, Rich Gorman and Jeff Breslin all contributed to the win.

PIP Pops Point's Win Streak

PIP Printing ended the Point Pub's win streak at 14 games with a 16-5 victory in Class C of the Quincy Men's Softball League.

Point Pub still leads the league by one point.

Al Martel drove in four runs, had three singles and a triple and scored four runs to power PIP to its upset win.

Also sharing in the 18-hit attack were Jay DeBarolo with three hits, Jeff Drew, Joe Nardone, Dave Brolin and Rich Carnali, with two each, and Matt Norton, Kevin Tobin and Dennis Bergstrom, with one apiece.

Larry Taglieri made the defensive play of the game, throwing out a Pub runner with a throw from deep right field.

Mike Bates led the Pub with two triples and a single and P.J. Hussey, Bob Ienello, Al Freeman and Bob Kane all had hits.

Point Pub bombed Sagamore II, 11-0, for its 14th win in a row, as Chuck Sullivan pitched a one-hitter for his second shutout in eight days and also hit an inside the park homer and a double.

Dave Zurows and Mike Bates also had home runs, Kane had three hits and Scott McArthur, Joe Godfrey, Hussey, Ienello and Mike Sullivan had hits. Tom Burke and Matt Ostiguy played well for Sagamore.

Washington Tap upset second place Granite Rail, 7-6, for its sixth win in the last eight games.

Bill Finegan and Bob St. John had two hits each and Paul Moriarty drove in the game-winning run. John Ohman, Dean Vanelli, Spike Fitzsimmons, Don Jones, Gary Sheridan and Joe Chitock all had hits. Pitcher Steve Hopkins kept the Rail's home run bats quiet and Mike Conlon, Scott Mele, Bri Cosby and Bob Cosby all had hits.

The standings: Point Pub, 20-4; Granite Rail, 19-5; Putnam Investing, 18-5; PIP Printing, 12-9; Continental Cable, 11-12; Washington Tap, 8-11; Hat Rack, 7-13; Luke's Lounge, 7-14; Sagamore II, 3-18; Sagamore P.O., 2-19.

Quincy Rotary Little League Champs

The Quincy Rotary team won the Little League Championship with a 5-3 victory over Keohane's.

The team was sparked by fine pitching of ace right-hander Steve MacDougall, who earlier had pitched a no-hitter against VFW.

The hitting star of the championship game was Mike Santoro, whose two-run homer over the centerfield fence broke a 3-3 deadlock. The defensive play of the game came in the fourth inning when centerfielder Jason Downey raced back to the fence and leaped high to rob Keohane's Bob Varney of a three-run homer.

During the regular season Rotary posted a 16-6 record and won the National League title.

The squad included Jason

Downey, Shawn Hoy, Brendan Ridge, Brad Gray, Steve MacDougall, Mike Santoro, Matthew Boston, David Gunther, Malachi Higgins, Jon Farrell, John Richards, Mike Adams, Christopher Erler and Erik Goodrich.

The players will be honored at a banquet held by the Rotary Club.

Granite Bank To Sponsor Tennis Tournament

Recreation Director, Barry Welch, announces that the Quincy Park and Recreation Bank has once again reached an agreement with the Granite Bank to act as the sponsor for the annual all-city tennis tournament.

This is the 19th year that the Recreation Department has conducted this tournament to crown Quincy residents as All-City champions. It is the 11th year that the Granite Bank (formerly Granite Cooperative Bank) has been the sponsor of the tournament.

This year's tournament will begin Sept. 6 and applications will be available shortly. There are 10 divisions of play with a special consolation in the men's single division.

The funding from the Granite Bank will once again make the tournament possible.

Welch said "The citizens of Quincy are fortunate to have such a community-minded business that looks so favorably on our recreation programs. I am also pleased that long-time tournament director John Franceschini will be back to oversee this year's competition."

Additional information on the 1989 tournament can be obtained by calling the Recreation Department at 773-1380, ext. 204.

● Jaehnig League

4 Top Seeded Teams Advance In Playoffs

The four top-seeded teams in the Jaehnig Chiopractic Men's Basketball League advanced in the league playoffs, but not without a few close calls.

The Jaehnig Club, the regular season champion, struggled to defeat scrappy Granite Rail, 50-39.

Both teams seemed to feel the oppressive heat and couldn't mount consistent attacks. Mark Jaehnig had 15 points, Paul Leonard eight, Mike Keeley and Paul Cornell seven each and Marty Connolly six. Wink Phelan kept Granite Rail close, scoring 10 of his 14 points in the first half. His brother, John, added 10.

Granite Rail had advanced from the qualifying round with a decisive 70-37 win over the Bombardiers. Wink Phelan exploded for a career-high 34 points and Jim Kelly had 21. Rick Wicklund had 10 for the Bombardiers.

The second-seeded Greymen bounced back from a seven-point halftime deficit to eliminate the Miller A.C., 78-57.

Ray Baltz led the Greymen with 21 points and Brian Schwanke scored all 10 of his points in the second half. Steve Millane had 18 points, Scott Higgins 12 and Kevin Lottermilk, 11.

Fred Sundins had 19 and Mike Cohen 13 for Miller. Miller had advanced from the qualifying round by pounding Bill's Club, 63-47, as Cohen scored 21, Bob McNamara 17 and Ron Wilkes 11. Jim Tandler had 18 for Bill's.

Defending champion Kane's Place got the scare of its life as it barely got by J.B. Heating, 77-75. Kane's is the third-seeded team. Kane's, playing without league scoring champion Mark Millane, sidelined with an ankle injury, got 24 points from Dean Coletti, 21 from Bill Dacey, 11 each from John Bradley and Peter Forbes and 10 from Paul Forbes. John Byers, who had a game-high 28 points, saw his potential game-winning jump shot go in and out with four seconds to play. Danny Murphy added 21 points. Paul Todesca 14 and Willie Weeks 12 for Heating.

The dynamic duo of Jeff Timberlake and Brian Reale combined for 48 points to lead the Quincy Nets over Bake's Club, 87-71. Al Wolfe had 13 points and Steve Belcastro 10. Dan Grant had 25, Marty Bernarzonni 15 and Jim Fellaante 10 for Bake's.

Quincy Legion Banquet

Coach Ed Spring announces that the annual Quincy Legion Baseball banquet will be held Monday, Aug. 28, at 7 p.m. at the post home.

The guest speaker will be Boston College baseball coach Richard Mahoney.

Spring will announce a new coaching staff for next year and awards will be made to the players.

Tickets are $8.50 each and further information can be obtained by calling Spring at 773-3249.

• Volleyball Patriot Whites Return From 18-Day Trip

The Mass. Patriot White 16 and under volleyball team, coached by Quincy's Chris Prendiville, recently returned from an 18-day, two-tournament trip.

At Festival 89, held at the University of California in Davis, the Patriots placed 37th out of 143 teams in their age bracket.

On the opening day, the Patriots faced Kern River CA, the eventual tournament champion, and lost, 15-5, 15-6. They bounced back to defeat 2nd City Chicago, 15-12, 15-5, and San Diego II, 15-7, 15-6.

Capt. Keri Gibson and Lori Loureiro sparked the Patriots.

On the second day, the Patriots won three matches, topping Alamo TX, 15-11, 12-15, 15-9; Pacific Coast Juniors, 15-9, 15-10, and 2nd City again, 15-5, 15-5. Quincy's Jennifer Richmond had almost flawless serving and sparked on defense.

As the competition got tougher, the Patriots lost a little ground, coming in third in the pool, losing to Reverse X, CA, 15-13, 15-11, and to Cowitz, CA, 15-7, 10-15, 16-14.

The Patriots defeated Valley Red, CA, 12-15, 15-10, 15-0, as Christine Barrett of Quincy had an outstanding day hitting and serving and Lori Novak of Quincy and Khoun Ta served and set well.

On the final day, the Patriots were eliminated by the California Juniors, 15-3, 3-15, 15-11.

Festival 89, has been determined to be the largest sporting event in the country for girls with over 4000 girls and 400 teams competing.

After a two-day break, the Patriots competed in the USVBA Junior Olympic national championships in Toledo Ohio.

The teams had to win their regional championships, as the Patriots did, or win a qualifying tournament to qualify for the nationals.

On the first day the Patriots lost to Houston, 15-11, 15-10, and defeated North Kentucky, 15-11, 15-11, and Colorado Foothills, 15-6, 7-15, 15-12.

Quincy's Melanie Sullivan contributed to the second place pool finish with tremendous defense and serving.

The second day gave the Patriots the sweep they needed to put them into the top 32 in the championship round, the first time a New England team has made the championship round.

They defeated Lakeland FL, 15-6, 15-4; Katz OH, 16-14, 15-12 and the Illinois Spikettes, 13-15, 15-12, 15-11.

The next day the Patriots lost to San Diego, the eventual third place finisher, 15-7, 15-8; lost to Florida Gold Coast, 15-12, 12-14, 15-4; and bowed to Topgun, IL, 15-12, 15-11.

On the final day they lost to Stockton CA, 15-4, 9-15, 15-13; defeated Rising Stars KN, 15-11, 10-15, 15-12; lost to Austin TX, 15-9, 16-14; and lost to San Gabriel CA, 15-9, 15-9, to finish 19th in the country.

Aimee LeConte finished the tournament with 64 kills, Loureiro had 58 and Barrett 44. The highest scoring percentages were held by Richmond at 98 percent, Barrett 93, Gibson 91 and Novak 90.

McLaughlin To Speak At Morrisette Banquet

In recent years the Morrisette Legion Post has made it a practice of having one of its former players speak at the Post's annual baseball banquet.

Marty McLaughlin will be the speaker at this year's banquet Aug. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the post home.

Two-Out Innings Would Have Helped Quincy

If baseball games consisted of two-out innings instead of three, the Quincy Legion team would have had a much better record this year than its final 7-11 mark.

"We probably would have gone undefeated if there were only two outs," said coach Ed Spring. "Unfortunately, you still need three and we gave up numerous runs with two outs this season."

Quincy had only a 7-11 record despite averaging six runs a game and having its five top batters combine for a .353 average.

Mike Toland led the team with a .427 average, drove in 19 runs and scored 12 times himself.

"Mike did everything but pass the bat for us and there wasn't a better catcher in our zone," said Spring.

Jim Kearns, who led off, had a .327 average and scored 14 runs. He has been a standout for three years.

"Jim is a true competitor who tried pitching with arm problems, but refused to use it as an excuse if he didn't have a good outing," Spring added.

Paul McLellan in left field had his best year by batting .345 and scoring 11 runs. "Paul came to life this year even though he missed three games due to other commitments," said Spring.

Dick Dragone, who led the team in batting last year, had another fine year batting .351, driving in 16 runs and scoring 12. He was the team's power hitter and cleanup batter.

Mike Connor, who struggled at the plate after having a fine high school season, turned out to be a fine first baseman and, according to his coach, was the team's most improved player defensively. He also had two outstanding catches in right field.

Jim Gordon, who played his only year of eligibility this year, filled the need for a starting southpaw and had a .650 on-base average.

Tim Baker did a fine job after moving from second to shortstop and proved he could play anywhere in the infield without hurting the defense.

PETER McLOUGHLIN pitched well and hit well for the Quincy Legion baseball team.

"These are players who would have started for any Legion team and any coach would be happy to have them," Spring said. "The nicest thing is they are all going to college this fall, which says something about the type of kids they are."

Peter McLoughlin pitched well, had a .345 batting average and an on-base average of .625.

Kevin Daly, another player like Baker, can play anywhere and play well.

Chris Beatrice batted .347 had above average speed in right field and may try pitching next year.

Greg Clifford showed signs that he could become a dangerous power hitter and can play the outfield as well as second base.

Rich Burns, who pitched a three-hit shutout against a good Randolph team, will be counted upon heavily both pitching and at third base next year.

Steve McInnis showed he could throw well and will be looked at at first base.

Wayne McUlley, Jim Maloney, Don Anderson, Steven Waas and Barry Glynn all played well when given the opportunity.

"Dick Laracy, who has coached Quincy with me for the past four years, is retiring and I will sorely miss him," said Spring.

"Dick has been involved with Quincy youth baseball for the past 20 years but, due to his job commitment and his feeling that it is time for the city to go to a one-Legion team format, he feels it is time to step down. He has put an awful lot of time into youth baseball and there are not many people who have enjoyed it as much as he has."

"I would have to think where this program would be without his help both on the field and as a fund raiser. People don't realize how much time goes into running a Legion program. People like Dick, who involve themselves, don't get enough credit. I know I will still be able to turn to Dick for support even though he has left the program. I am sure I will be seeing him at the games."

A Review

'Parenthood' Takes You On A Roller Coaster Ride

"PARENTHOOD"
DIRECTED BY RON HOWARD
STARRING STEVE MARTIN

(Now playing at Entertainment Cinemas, Quincy Fair Mall)

By JANE ARENA

Life, says the matriarch of Ron Howard's "Parenthood," is like a roller coaster ride.

It can frighten you and make you sick, but thrill you at the same times. Some people don't like it, some prefer the merry-go-round. But, all that does, she says, is go around and around. You get much more out of the roller coaster.

And, although this is just about the only thing the utters through the whole film, Howard must have kept the analogy in his mind the entire time he was directing "Parenthood."

He gives the viewer the ups and downs almost simultaneously (or so close together that it seems that way) so the viewer gets knots in the stomach, tears in the eye and shivers in the spine along with the laughter. At the end we're exhilarated. This is no merry-go-round, even though the story is basically cyclical in nature.

Following, for a brief time, the lives of the extended family of Gil Buchman (Steve Martin), we are privy to a period before the family tree is about to sprout several new branches.

Although the title suggests a film about raising children, the most interesting relationships in "Parenthood" are those between adults.

All of the primary characters are somehow connected and related, other than merely by blood, and following these similarities is what makes the film so enjoyable.

In the whimsical opening, for instance, we learn that Gil's father (Jason Robards) was not exactly cut out for parenthood, much preferring to leave his children under the watchful eye of a total stranger at times. Gil, on the other hand, is a wonderful father, sometimes facing the doubts and struggles of parenthood with too much responsibility.

These, though, are but surface characteristics, and it is not until later in the film that we are led, gently, to understand the similarities between father and son.

Gil's brother, Larry (Tom Hule), the prodigal son, returns home after three years, in some sort of trouble and toting a small black boy named "Cool" whom he introduces as his son. While Gil can't stand Larry, his father embraces him, seemingly preferring him to Gil.

Larry is the antithesis of his brother, taking no responsibility for anything, even when it's a matter of his own life or death. He'd rather steal, lie and cheat his way out of everything, leaving someone else to clean up his mess. At first, his father seems to admire these qualities, seems even to have instilled them to some extent. We see things differently later.

On the other side, we are also introduced to Gil's sisters and their children. One is married to a man (Rick Moranus) who takes parenthood so seriously that he has his three year old daughter reading Kafka and speaking several languages. While she's studying flashcards on geometric symbols and metric conversions, Gil's three-year old is busy getting his head stuck in a bucket.

Gil's other sister is divorced from a man who, although we never see him (except briefly in a photograph), comes to represent the epitome of the bad father. Although his mistakes may be similar to those of other fathers in the film, we are made to hate him without once seeing his face. He is the only character that we can't forgive.

Steve Martin is right at home in the role of Gil. His antics and general silliness are perfect in scenes with the children. He's funny and endearing, and obviously having fun. But, when it calls for it, he uses this role to show that he has depth as an actor. Somehow, early in the film we stop wanting to laugh every time we see him in close-up and begin to take him seriously. There are moments when he's actually moving. No kidding!

And, that sort of balance is exactly what "Parenthood" is all about. The film examines being both a child and a parent. It is about being playful while still accepting responsibility.

Ron Howard catches us and suspends us somewhere between giddiness and seriousness, between laughter and tears, and sometimes mingles the two so that we understand the balance, not just in our minds, but in our guts.

At the end, when a whole new generation of the family is born, it is with a sense that everything will work out fine. For although we have just witnessed these characters struggling with the trials of parenthood, we have come to understand that each of them, in their own manner, has found his trick to balancing on their own roller coaster.

JUDITH O'HARE

Puppeteer To Appear At Main Library Aug. 15

Puppeteer Judith O'Hare concludes the summer storytelling series at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Sq. Tuesday, Aug. 15, at 7 p.m.

Children age five and older and adults are invited to attend.

O'Hare bills herself as the "You and Me Puppets" since children, the "You" of the title, actively participate in the puppet shows. Tuesday's performance, "Memories of a Chinese Grandmother," presents a view of Chinese culture through a variety of puppets in an original tale which includes two Chinese folk tales.

The production is preceded by a workshop/rehearsal during which children use shadow puppets, life-size rod puppets, and a fifteen foot dragon recreating the two folk tales. Children in the upper elementary grades are urged to sign up for this workshop by registering in person at the central children's room or by phone at 984-1950. The workshop begins at 5:15 p.m. Aug. 15.

Funding for this program comes from a federal grant for a project entitled "East Meets West." During the year the Library has sponsored several programs under this grant that have provided a cultural forum for the City's Asian and non-Asian residents.

Spends $6 Million In 18 Months

P&G Trying To Protect Environment

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

You might think that a world-wide corporation like Proctor and Gamble is not concerned about its impact on the local community.

Think again. Proctor and Gamble, which has one plant located along the Fore River basin in Quincy, has spent approximately $6 million on environmental protection and pollution control the past 18 months at that site alone.

According to James Bove, P&G's environmental manager at the Quincy plant, the company backs its environmental policy with time and money.

P&G's commitment in protecting the environment and controlling pollution is good news for local residents concerned about the air they breathe.

Last week, a report was released showing a statistically significant elevation in lung cancer cases for both males and females from 1982-86 in the Houghs Neck-Germantown area.

Cigarette smoking appears to be the major factor in these cases researchers concluded. They also said the environment's role in the lung cancer is unclear.

However, because the area is within close proximity to the Fore River industrial basin, health officials recommend that existing and future operations there be closely scrutinized.

Proctor and Gamble, which is among the industries located in the basin, spends millions of dollars on pollution control and environmental protection annually, Bove said.

Bove, who has been employed by P&G for 10 years, is a certified environmental manager. He holds a degree in mechanical engineering.

Proctor and Gamble, which operates in the United States and 48 countries, employs 45,000 throughout the U.S. and 77,000 worldwide. The Quincy plant is among 50 operations in the U.S. and employs about 300, many of whom live in the Quincy-Shore area.

"We work and live in the community. We're very concerned about the environment. We want to minimize any impact to the environment," Bove said.

In Quincy, P&G produces personal care, laundry and cleaning and food service and lodging products. In fact, Quincy makes every bar of Safeguard soap and Spic and Span box sold in the country as well as all Tide and Cream Suds products used by food service and lodging places.

In addition, 85 percent of Ivory Snow and one-third of Ivory soap bars are made in Quincy.

In all, about 10,000 cases of soap and related products are produced annually here.

P&G's Quincy plant began operation in 1940 and its present annual contribution at the local economy is estimated at $40 million. The plant employs local residents and buys local raw materials.

For almost 40 years, P&G has strived to be a good neighbor in Quincy. Bove wants local residents to understand that P&G is doing everything it can to protect the environment.

The company has a four-pronged approach to minimizing waste: generation prevention, recycle, treatment and contained disposal.

Bove is quick to cite examples of each component. An example of generation prevention is when the company stopped using 55-gallon metal drums filled with perfume and installed large storage tanks.

Trucks with the perfume, used to scent products, now directly fill the tanks. As a result, drums are no longer used and therefore spared from the waste cycle.

Proctor and Gamble is very high on recycling. Cardboard wrappings used for packaging used to be dumped. Now it is compacted and shredded for reuse. Scrap wood, which was also previously dumped, is also recycled.

Furthermore, for the past 18 months, P&G has initiated several extensive environmental projects, seven of which have been completed.

They include:

- Automatic pH control system which monitors waste water leaving the plant and neutralizes any water which is too acidic or basic. About 70 gallons a minute are monitored and if a problem occurs, the system goes into automatic recirculation until the water is neutralized.

- Stormwater recovery/ use system which recovers all rain water on site. The water is then used for manufacturing processes.

Bove notes this $1 million system reduces the company's use of city water.

In addition, Proctor and Gamble has installed systems to eliminate the use of zinc oxide and remove phenol which is found naturally in raw materials. The company has also improved its spill protection by installing a new dike system around the plant.

A few years ago, P & G removed its transformers which contained PCB, an agent which has been found to cause cancer.

Presently, P&G is in the process of installing a $900,000 ultra-filtration system. Scheduled to start this October, the system will reduce the amount of soap components from eventually going into the sewer.

It's a simple process but a sophisticated system," Bove said, adding the system uses clear plastic tubes filled with filtering material.

Dust detection systems will also be installed on manufacturing stacks. Hooked up to a control panel run by an operator, the system will provide an early warning if something goes wrong.

Twelve of these dust detectors are being installed at a cost of $100,000.

Besides the equipment, Bove said he is hiring several more people to work in his environmental service department. Beside P & G personnel, the company utilizes several environmental firms and experts who assist several operations, including sewer, odor and internal processes.

"These experts are out there and we've made use of these firms," Bove said.

Proctor and Gamble spends $1 million each year on environmental protection; a half of million comes from Bove's budget and another half million is spent on environmental control equipment costs.

Another $50,000 has been spent on odor assessments, Bove points out.

In addition, on a weekly basis the roof and stacks are inspected and employees drive throughout the community to see how the operation is impacting neighbors.

In all, Proctor and Gamble has spent millions of dollars to ensure its presence in Quincy does not adversely affect the community it shares with thousands of people.

Bove said the company has made tremendous progress. Local health officials such as M. Jane Gallhue, Quincy's Public Health Commissioner, have praised P&G's efforts.

The company is considered a role model for other companies dealing with pollution control.

Bove admits the company's policy is only as good as the people and commitment behind it.

"We really take the time and effort to protect the environment," he said.

Red Cross Has 'Kids Safety Seats'

The American Red Cross has a child car safety seat loan program, "Kids In Safety Seats," (KISS).

The program offers either short or long term rental of child car safety seats which meet all Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards.

Long-term rental is for newborns just going home from a hospital. The maximum rental period is eight months.

Short-term rentals are intended for infants visiting out of state whose parents did not want to bring a car seat on commercial transportation. The maximum rental period for short term is three weeks.

The seats can be rented for a nominal fee plus refundable deposit. For further information call the American Red Cross at 331-6999.

Public Safety Meeting Aug. 21

Fire Chief To Discuss Manning Levels With Council

By JANE ARENA
and ROBERT BOSWORTH

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell will appear before the City Council's Public Safety Committee Monday, Aug. 21 at 8 p.m. for "further explanation on the manning levels with the Quincy Fire Department."

O'Connell was requested to appear before the committee by Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, chairman of the Public Safety Committee.

Because of budget constraints, the fire department faces probable reductions in staff and apparatus. O'Connell has suggested a moratorium on all new building development while the city reviews its firefighting requirements.

One possible reduction includes deactivating Engine 6 in Houghs Neck. "I have conferred with Councillor Michael Cheney in regards to taking Engine 6 out of service and understandably, he's upset," O'Connell said Tuesday.

"Hopefully, I'll get a chance to inform the council as a whole exactly what a decrease in staffing will mean to the City of Quincy," the chief said.

"I'll continue to look into alternatives to my proposed plan of deactivating Engine 6, but at this point, I have found no other alternative to keep me from having to decrease the number of apparatus in service," O'Connell said.

Commenting on the chief's moratorium proposal, Mayor Francis X. McCauley said, "I don't think a moratorium is necessary in Quincy."

The mayor noted that new construction in areas like Crown Colony and Marina Bay has generated additional revenue for the city.

"New development has brought in an additional $8 million in the last four years. If the city hadn't received it, we would have been in serious financial difficulty," McCauley said.

The mayor also pointed out that new development has somewhat diminished over the past several years because of changes made in the city's zoning ordinances.

Rally Against Clean Harbors Hazardous Waste Incinerator Today

A coalition of local civic organizations and national environmental groups will rally outside the gates of Clean Harbors, Inc. near the Quincy-Braintree line today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m.

Among the groups participating are the National Toxics Campaign, East Braintree Civic Association, MASSPIRG and C.O.D.E. Public officials from Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth and state legislators representing the tri-town area have been invited to attend.

The rally will focus on state and federal attempts to force the siting of hazardous waste incinerators under the guise of the Chafee Amendment/Capacity Assurance Plan section of the 1986 Superfund Act (SARA). The Chafee Amendment stipulates that each state must file a Capacity Assurance Plan (CAP) outlining how the state will handle the toxic waste it generates in the coming years.

Massachusetts and other states are attempting to comply with the CAP requirements by siting hazardous waste incinerators rather than by implementing meaningful toxics use reduction programs.

At the rally, the National Toxics Campaign will release a major new report entitled "From Poison to Prevention: Replacing Hazardous Waste Facility Siting With Toxics Reduction." In addition, representatives from the National Toxics Campaign and the East Braintree Civic Association will unveil a new resource that will help residents of the Fore River basin protect themselves from the threat posed by the Clean Harbors' hazardous waste incinerator plan.

Clean Harbors is currently seeking state and federal permits to build a hazardous waste incinerator in Braintree on a site bordered by heavily-populated neighborhoods in Braintree, Quincy and Weymouth. The proposed incinerator would burn up to 45,000 tons a year of deadly chemical wastes and pesticides.

Sewage Forces All City Beaches To Stay Closed

By JANE ARENA

All Quincy beaches were scheduled to remain closed until at least Wednesday afternoon, according to the City Health Department, as a precaution due to a vast amount of sewage discharge into the harbor after the weekend's heavy rainfall.

According to City Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue a total of 247 million gallons of partially-treated (chlorinated) sewage was discharged into the harbor between Saturday and Tuesday morning.

Last year, from June 1 to Sept. 5, a total of 92,232 million gallons were discharged, noting that 247 million gallons in a few days is "an awful lot of sewage in a very short period of time."

One hundred and thirty million gallons were reported discharged from Nut Island on Monday this week, with an additional 13 million gallons from Calf pastures.

On Tuesday morning, there was a report of another 104 million gallons discharged from two outlets on Nut Island between 8 a.m. Monday and 1:30 a.m.

Tuesday.

"(Closing the beaches) is a necessary precaution," Gallahue said, "the water samples tests could be perfectly acceptable, but it's a precautionary measure."

The department performed special water sample tests of the three "representative beaches" on Monday, Gallahue said. Rhoda Beach and Chickatawbut Beach reflect the Nut Island discharge and Orchard Beach reflects the discharge from the Calf pasture, she explained.

Those results were returned Monday with Rhoda and Chickatawbut Beaches having fecal coliform readings of over 200 (considered by the Health Department to be unswimmable) and Orchard Beach having a reading of under 200. However, Orchard and other beaches remained closed after the results of Monday's tests because they did not take into account the additional discharge reported Tuesday morning.

The Health Department's routine weekly water sample tests were conducted on all 11 city-operated beaches on Tuesday, Gallahue said. Those results were expected back by Wednesday afternoon, and will reflect the additional reported discharge, she said.

Gallahue said the heavy rainfall and sewage discharge over the weekend provided the Health Department with a good opportunity to conduct the special tests, which may provide information which could be helpful in the future. The data collected after such significant discharge, she said, could provide the basis for future predictions.

"These two separate water samples should help us gather the data that we want to predict the effect of such significant discharge in the water quality of our beaches," she said, adding that other factors must be analyzed along with the water samples, including wind direction at the time of the tides and other variables.

Gallahue said that other South Shore communities, including Hull, Scituate, Braintree, Milton and Cohasset have expressed

LaRaia, Jovanovic Receive Top Ballot Positions For Preliminary Election

By the luck of the draw, mayoral candidate Joseph LaRaia and four-year school committee candidate Michael Jovanovic will have their names on the top of their respective ballots in the preliminary election Sept. 12.

LaRaia's and Jovanovic's names were drawn first during Monday's drawing for position in the Council Chamber of City Hall.

The names were drawn by City Clerk John Gillis.

Rounding out the ballot for the mayoral preliminary are: James Sheets, second; Peter O'Connell, third; and Stephen McGrath, fourth.

The two top vote getters will face each other in the November election.

The other four-year school committee candidates and their positions on the preliminary election ballot are:

Michael C. Preble, second; Richard Crespi, third; Ronald Mariano, fourth; Mary Collins, fifth; Gary Fine, sixth; Judith Braams, seventh; John McDuff, eighth; and Frank Santoro, ninth.

The six top vote getters will vie for three four-year seats in the November election.

Conservation Commission To Meet Aug. 22

The Quincy Conservation Commission will meet Tuesday, Aug. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room, City Hall annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy.

The public is invited to attend.

Among the items on the agenda are:

- Notice of intent filed by James Zero for the construction of an addition, second story, to the existing dwelling, and deck, on the premises located at 6 Doane St., Quincy. Flood plain zone.

- Notice of intent filed by James Kyle for the construction of a garage on the premises at 18 Deerfield St., Quincy, in the buffer zone.

- Notice of intent filed by Valerie Johnson for the construction of a single-family dwelling on the premises at 82-84 Watkins St., Quincy. Flood plain zone.

- Notice of intent filed by Massachusetts Electric for the Quincy Hospital Employees Say Staff Cuts 'A Poor Move'

By JANE ARENA

A meeting of the Quincy City Council Public Health and Hospital Committee was planned for Tuesday night at City Hall to allow union leaders and hospital employees to express their concerns on the impending layoff of hospital employees.

Quincy Hospital, predicting a $4 million deficit this fiscal year, due partly to cutbacks in federal and state support to the hospital, plans to layoff some 200 employees, nearly 20 percent of the staff.

The hospital, although owned by the city, is operated by the Hospital Corporation of America (HCA), and receives no funding from the City. It operates on an enterprise account, meaning that revenue generated by the hospital goes to run the facility.

Many employees are outraged over the issue of layoffs, feeling that the action is harsh and unwarranted. About 50 Quincy Hospital nurses picketed in front of the hospital last Friday.

"We are concerned that the overall nurse-to-patient ratio will be less than adequate," said Sandy Eaton, secretary of the Staff Nurse Bargaining Unit of the Massachusetts Nurses Association. "In my opinion it will be a poor business move on the part of the hospital to have a 20 percent layoff of staff."

Eaton, a staff nurse in the hospital's Progressive Care Unit, said Tuesday he planned to speak at the City Hall meeting.

"No where in the state has there been layoffs like these," he said. "All the hospitals in the state are experiencing (financial) difficulties, but this (action by Quincy Hospital) is beyond what is happening elsewhere."

Eaton spoke before the City Council two years ago on the issue of the facility's nursing contract.

"Through that negotiation," he said, "the nurses took a step toward achieving comparable wage scales with other area nurses ... our other goal was that two years from then, we would be entering the finest city hospital in the state."

That second goal, Eaton feels, has been jeopardized by the planned layoffs.

"There must be easier ways," he said, adding that he feels the layoff action decision was made too early.

"Who knows at this point what the next fiscal year will bring to the new hospital?" he said. "The new facility, with an excellent staff may well attract more physicians, more patients, and more services. There are still too many unknowns in what the state and federal disbursements will look like in the coming months."

"The hospital's response is premature and excessive," he said.

Heavy Rains Cause Police Station Boiler Room Backup

The new parking garage at the Quincy Police Station stood the test of Sunday's heavy rains, but officials did have to cope with one problem, a sewage backup in the boilerroom.

According to Public Works Commissioner David Colton, the garage, which had come under scrutiny because of leaking and flooding problems recently, did not flood over the weekend.

"The garage did not flood. If it were going to flood, it would have flooded Sunday," Colton said.

However, officials were busy cleaning up the station's boiler room after a sewage backup flooded half the room. Colton said there does not appear to be any damage.

The commissioner said the cause of the backup is being investigated. A valve which prevents water from backing up either failed or a drain was clogged, Colton explained.

The valve, which is under warranty, will be replaced if found defective, he said.

The boiler room is located in an unoccupied section of the building. ("The backup) didn't affect anyone in the building. As far as we can tell, there was no damage," Colton said.

The commissioner noted that the heating and air conditioning subcontractor is checking out the boiler room to find out the cause of the backup.

Mayoral candidate Joseph LaRaia was at the police station while the Quincy Fire Department pumped out the boiler room. LaRaia has been critical of the drainage system of the station.

LaRaia said the flooding appeared to be caused by heavy rains and high tides which prevent normal drainage. He also said the city "took a miscalculated risk" by building the new station 14 feet above sea level instead of 17 feet.

Close to seven inches of rain fell on the city over the weekend.

The city's Department of Public Works received calls from 35 to 40 residents needing flood pumping assistance. Most of the calls were from the Faxon Park-South Quincy area where 6.7 inches of rain fell.

About 5.7 inches of rain fell in the Wollaston Hill section of the city.

Commenting on the different rain totals, Colton said, "That tells us a lot why we had more problems with the Town Brook than the Furnace Brook."

Colton said some homes were still being pumped out Monday night.

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Civil Defense, said 30 volunteers were busy Sunday assisting police, fire and DPW personnel in flood-related problems.

About 15 people pumped out the Quincy Nursing Home on McGrath Highway which had several feet of water in its backyard.

Volunteers Sought For Wollaston Beach Cleanup Aug. 27

The World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) is seeking volunteers for a Wollaston Beach clean-up to be held Sunday, Aug. 27 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The event will initiate the group's international campaign to protect wildlife from persistent marine debris. Similar cleanups will begin that day in WSPA offices throughout the world.

Persistent marine debris includes plastic six-pack rings, cups and straws, fishing line and nets, rope, bottles, bottle caps and cigarette butts.

Plastics in the marine environment kill an estimated three million animals every year, according to WSPA.

A press conference will be held at the clean-up to explain in detail the hazards of persistent debris.

Each participant will receive WSPA T-shirt.

For further information call WSPA at 522-7000.

An Open Letter To the Communities Served By Quincy Hospital

These are hard times for hospitals in Massachusetts. Cutbacks in both state and federal funding, shortened hospital stays mandated by Medicare and insurance companies, competition for fewer hospitalized patients, not enough nursing home beds, and skyrocketing costs of providing service all combine to threaten the very existence of community hospitals in the next few years.

Quincy Hospital is a fiscally independent institution and must chart a financially responsible course. We must learn to provide the same and better quality care with a leaner, more efficient operation. We empathize with those who will lose their jobs during the current workforce reductions. The unfortunate reality in the current negative climate in Massachusetts is that such cuts are necessary to ensure continued patient care at Quincy Hospital into the 1990s.

The Medical Staff of Quincy Hospital is committed to quality patient care. We will continue to work with both the administration and nursing staff to assure quality nursing care. We, the more than 300 doctors of Quincy Hospital, are looking forward to treating you, our patients, in the new facility that will open its doors in October of this year. Combining the new, state-of-the-art physical plant with our dedicated Medical Staff and experienced nursing personnel will allow us the opportunity to provide for you the best in health care in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

The Medical Staff

Sheets, On Polls

Jim Sheets hasn't taken a mayoral opinion poll yet and has no plans to do so.

He doesn't take much stock in polls conducted by candidates or by someone in a candidate's camp.

"They just don't give a true picture," he says. "If such a poll showed a particular candidate running behind or with a high negative factor or with some other problem, you're not going to hear about it."

"And, say, if two such polls were taken over a two month period. And in the first, a particular candidate appears to be running ahead. In the second one he is still supposedly ahead but is showing signs of slipping. You may hear he is leading, but you won't hear that he's slipping."

Sheets thinks the news media should be careful how it handles such polls because they aren't as accurate as a candidate for whom they are taken might have you believe.

The candidate will accent the positive in releasing the results and eliminate the negative, he says.

However, an independent, scientific poll is another matter.

"If an independent poll was taken scientifically and not for any one candidate, I would have no fault with the results of that one being published, providing all the results were made public."

Sheets says he wouldn't mind one being taken before the Sept. 12 preliminary election. And, in fact, he would help finance it.

"I'd be willing to put up $300 or so to help pay for it,"
he says.

Any takers?

Frank is for O'Connell and Erlinda for McGrath.
Frank says he plans to vote for O'Connell because he believes he will run the city in a business-like manner which would be good for the city and Quincy taxpayers.

He also believes O'Connell has taken the right stand in trying to get the best deal for Quincy regarding the MWRA headquarters at the Quincy Shipyard.

Erlinda, who is from the Philippines, has lived in this country 10 years, the last five in Quincy.

She is interested in her new home city's government and keeps an eye on what is going on at City Hall.

She likes how McGrath has served as a city councillor and thinks he would make a good mayor based on his performance in the City Council.

McGrath Takes Exception To Sunbeams Column

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on your recent Sunbeams column, and to correct a few misconceptions stated therein.

You state that "it was O'Connell who, some weeks ago, requested the Mass. Department of Labor and Industries to look into the awarding of the MWRA headquarters to Quincy."

In fact, Inspector General Joseph Barresi initiated this inquiry on May 25, 1989, and Peter joined in that effort on May 31, 1989.

You state that "following that" (decision by Labor and Industries) a Quincy bill was introduced that would send the headquarters to the shipyard and sailed easily through the House and Senate.

In fact, this bill was introduced many months ago, in February 1989 and while it may have sailed through the house, it got through the Senate only after an extensive and effective lobbying effort by Senator Paul Harold.

The "compromise" you refer to after the Governor's veto does, as the Patriot Ledger accurately put it, "stink."

Nothing in the compromise, as reported in the media, was not already obtained by the City of Quincy.

You note that "at least half or part" of the MWRA headquarters would be at Quincy as a result of the compromise.

In fact, 200-300 employees were always slated to go to Quincy, to tend to the plant which is planned there. We had that anyway.

Also, composting and incineration had already been eliminated.

The Ledger was right - the compromise stinks - Quincy would get nothing it didn't already have!

Luckily, it appears for the sake of us, the ratepayers, that the compromise is falling apart.

The facts are these:

1. No private citizens should be permitted to negotiate for the city.

2. The Labor and Industries decision said that the MWRA selection of Roxbury was illegal, so why are we compromising at all?

Lastly, I suggest Peter review the City Charter, a copy which I enclose under separate cover, so that hisilly statement that I, a Council President, permitted "the MWRA into the city in the first place" can be corrected.

Upon review, I'm sure he will conclude that the Mayor is the Chief Executive Officer of the city, not the Council President.

That is why I am running for mayor - to deal with the problems that face our city and solve them as only the city's Chief Executive can.

For example, contrary to what Peter has said, when it became known that the MWRA was negotiating to purchase the General Dynamics shipyard, I proposed that the city take the shipyard by eminent domain. Frank McCauley, the mayor, thought that ideas too expensive.

This example underlines the power of the mayor, as it was Frank McCauley who permitted the MWRA into Quincy by agreeing to site the interim plant here.

In addition, a review of my file at this time shows that before Peter was running for mayor he failed to elicit one constructive suggestion to help Quincy, but I'll keep looking.

Thank you for the opportunity to review these facts with you.

Very truly yours,
Steve McGrath

A Response From The O'Connell Camp

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Steve McGrath should know better.

For the past several weeks, McGrath, an incumbent city councillor, has run a campaign of desperation, attacking what others in the city are on the verge of accomplishing at the shipyard.

His distortions cannot be allowed to obscure those accomplishments or demean the virtues of the legislation crafted by area law-makers, city officials and his mayoral opponent, Peter O'Connell.

First, Peter O'Connell initiated the protest at the State's Department of Labor and Industries dealing with the MWRA's headquarters; he did not join in proceedings already under way. Although the Inspector General had previously criticized the selection of Parcel 18 and informed Labor and Industries of the selection, O'Connell alone filed a protest letter with the agency.

It triggered an immediate hearing at which O'Connell and the Inspector General argued side by side against Parcel 18 - and won.

Second, there is nothing illegal about the compromise legislation. O'Connell's suit contends that the method used to choose Parcel 18 is not the method prescribed by the Ward Commission's omnibus building reform legislation and therefore, as the Ward Commission specified, needs legislative approval. What the South Shore legislators and O'Connell have done with the compromise is extract concessions for that approval.

McGrath says in paid advertising he supports the Attorney General's position and opposes the illegal compromise legislation. The simple truth is the Attorney General supports the legislation and has consistently said so.

Third, O'Connell's opponent seems miffed that O'Connell, a private citizen, negotiated for Quincy. If McGrath cared about the city's interests, he would have been at the negotiations, the way Arthur Foley from the Mayor's office and City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro were there arguing for the city's interests. O'Connell was there. He was there as a private citizen with leverage from his lawsuit that only he could exercise, but he exercised that private right in the public interest. That is what civic leadership is about.

Fourth, and most important, the "deal" of which McGrath is so critical is not an amalgam of concessions already made. Senator Harold and Representatives Morrissey, Cerasoli and Tobin did an outstanding job in wringing concessions from the administration. Consider just the environmental benefits they and O'Connell fought for and gained from the administration. If the bill passes a "mini-environmental Secretariat," to quote Secretary of Environmental Affairs John DeVillars, will be placed in the vacant office building and the shipyard. It will oversee not just the MWRA's sludge processing, but also address the environmental concerns of other highly sensitive activities in the Fore River basin. The compromise bill guarantees effective monitoring and regular reports from the MWRA to municipal boards of health, and it etches in stone the prior vague statements that maybe incineration and composting won't occur at the shipyard.

This is not the forum to debate the merits of the legislation, but from an environmental perspective, the worst thing that could happen is that the compromise should fail. From every perspective, Peter O'Connell's aggressive use of his private citizen status to benefit the City is a breath of fresh air.

Very truly yours,
Thomas R. Kiley, Esq.
Editor's Note: Mr. Kiley is an attorney representing Peter O'Connell in his proceedings against the MWRA.

U.S. Should Honor Women Veterans

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On July 26, the U.S. Senate voted to name a grassy plot in Washington "Tian An Men Square Park." The proposal expressed the sense of Congress that a statue should be constructed to honor fallen students. A check with several legislative offices revealed that federal funds are contemplated.

While the galaxy of the Chinese students is to be applauded, our legislators do not see fit to appropriate federal funds for the proposed "Women in Military Service to America Memorial" to be constructed in Washington. The Memorial Foundation, established for this purpose, depends upon the $25 fee woman veterans must pay to have their names appear on the Monument's computer register and upon donations. Over 400,000 women responded to the nation's call for help during World War II, out of a genuine desire to serve their country. They did not have to do so.

Women are actively recruited during times of national emergency. They are expected to do the job and fade into the sunset - never to be heard from again. Indeed, women veterans are the "forgotten warriors." It is tragic that among the stone and marble memorials in our nation's capitol, there are none to honor military women.

They were the nurses and other female medical technicians who tended injured military personnel behind front lines under extremely dangerous situations, and those who were killed or maimed when their hospital tent was blown up.

They were the Women Airforce Service Pilots who risked (and some lost) their lives testing and ferrying aircraft, and the female military mechanics who kept aircraft and other equipment in top notch operating condition.

They were the 81 Army nurses who were held prisoners of war for 3 1/2 years in the Philippines and the other women who filled a wide variety of jobs in all the branches of the military and in all theaters of operation.

They have seen more than 40 years come and go - with nary an accolade or recognition. The absence of a memorial to women in the military in our nation's capitol has told them that male casualties are more precious than female casualties and that masculine valor is more honorable than female valor.

Now our legislators are rushing to honor the galaxy of Chinese students, at taxpayer expense, while women veterans who served the U.S. gallantly go begging for donations to focus attention on their contribution toward the preservation of our own democratic institutions.

What kind of message does this send to our young people? And, how are they to interpret the frenetic rush, day after day, to glorify galaxy of foreign nationals of foreign lands, while American heroines have so long been ignored?

Several of our members recently had occasion to meet City Councillor Michael J. Cheney.

We were impressed by his concern for coastal conservation, clean harbor programs, and the respect and concern he demonstrated for his constituency.

Councillor Cheney is well

Near Conflagration At Houghs Neck

Fire destroyed the Centerville, a cottage on Sea St. occupied by James F. Burns and his family of Readville, and only the absence of wind prevented a conflagration in the Houghs Neck summer community.

Aug. 17-23
1905
84 Years Ago

Also damaged slightly were the Blanche, owned by Albert Gustafson on Bird St.; the Celestine, occupied by W. T. Tilley on Sea St.; and Albert Acorn's cottage, also on Sea St.

The local fire company, it was reported, had trouble getting water onto the fire.

"First, the hydrant wrench could not be found. Then there was a fracas between two firemen on the nozzle which resulted in blows," said the report.

The problem of fires in the resort community was such that a Boston insurance company notified homeowners: "We are not writing any business at Houghs Neck believing that locality is not desirable."

BATTLESHIP LAUNCHING

The Fore River Shipbuilding Co. was preparing to launch the USS Vermont, the third battleship to be sent down the ways since the shipyard moved to Quincy from Braintree in 1900.

Some 3,500 tickets were issued and protection from 18 police officers was asked for the launching, which was to feature christening by Miss Jennie Bell, daughter of the governor of Vermont.

Also on the guest list were Gov. William L. Douglas of Massachusetts, Asst. Secretary of the Navy Charles B. Darling, and Cmdr. A.G. Boutakoff, the Russian naval attache in Washington.

Entries Coming In For Beautiful Baby Photo Contest

The Quincy Sun Beautiful Baby Photo Contest is off to a good start with entries already coming in.

The Sun is sponsoring the contest in association with McIntire's Studio, 679 Hancock St., Wollaston and the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Anyone can vote for a baby simply by making a $1 donation or more to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Your vote and donation will help Jerry Lewis continue the fight against Muscular Dystrophy. Each $1 donation will count as one vote.

The baby receiving the most votes (donations) will be judged the winner and will receive an 11x14 inch mounted color wall portrait donated by McIntire's Studio, one of the South Shore's leading photography studios.

There will be other prizes for the winner and runners-up.

Donations should be made out to MDA and mailed to or left at The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

Those entering a baby's photo may also vote by making a $1 donation or more to MDA.

There is no fee or cost to enter the contest.

McIntire's Studio will furnish you with a free photo of the baby, if you wish. All you have to do is contact McIntire's Studio, 679 Hancock St., Wollaston, and make an appointment to have your baby's photo taken. The photo will be entered in the contest. There is no cost or obligation.

If you already have a favorite photo you can enter that one instead. Fill out the form below and take it to McIntire's Studio.

Children from newborn to five years old are eligible to enter.

Paul McIntire of McIntire's Studio said that the day after the photo contest was announced in last week's Sun, "the phones were ringing off the wall," and he booked a number of appointments.

The names and addresses of the babies will not be given out or used during the voting process. The identities of the winner and runners-up will be given after the contest but only with parental consent.

The photographs will be numbered for the contest and the voting will be done by those numbers.

Pictures may be submitted to The Quincy Sun now through Friday, Sept. 15. They will be numbered and displayed in the window of The Sun. Anyone can come by the office and vote.

The pictures will also be published in The Sun, Sept. 28th issue of The Sun. A ballot will appear soon in The Sun for voting.

Deadline for voting is Thursday, Oct. 12.

Here's a chance to show off your beautiful baby with Sun readers and at the same time help Jerry's Kids and the fight against Muscular Dystrophy, a cruel disease that afflicts too many youngsters.

Retired Senior Volunteer Program Volunteer Opportunities Available

The following volunteer opportunities are available with the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) to help retired seniors keep active and busy.

Quincy: North Quincy library staff needs volunteers to help any time on Friday. Duties include straightening books and magazines. If you would like to work in a quiet atmosphere, the library is the place for you.

Quincy/Braintree: New parent aide program is beginning in the area. Parent aides are special friends who show they care about the parent as a person. Parent aides help the parent cope with the day-to-day pressures and this makes more relaxed atmosphere for the children.

If you can spare a few hours and are interested in volunteering, call Valerie or Pat at the RSVP office, 479-8181.

MR. and MRS. PAUL REARDON

Katie Morrissey Wed To Paul Reardon

A trip to Negril, Jamaica and Cape Cod followed the recent wedding of Katie Morrissey and Paul Reardon, both of Quincy, in St. Ann's Church, Wollaston. The Rev. James F. Hawker officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Morrissey of Andover and the late Marion (Myers) Morrissey, while the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Reardon of Quincy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Ellie Morrissey, a cousin, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Joanne Morrissey and Deborah Morrissey, sisters-in-law of the bride; Maureen Brady, sister of the bridegroom; Tracy Sayers, Debbie Alessi and Tracy Welch.

Flower girls were Colby

Morrissey and Meachan Brady, nieces of the bride and bridegroom.

Richard Reardon was best man for his brother. Ushers were Michael Reardon and John Reardon, brothers of the bride; Kevin Norton, Pat McKenna and Tom Monahan. A reception at Florian Hall in Dorchester followed the ceremony.

The bride, a graduate of North Quincy High School and Framingham State College, is a food distribution specialist employed by the Massachusetts Department of Education.

Mr. Reardon, also a North Quincy High School graduate, is a member of the Plumbers Union Local 12 and is employed by Commonwealth Plumbing in Weymouth.

The couple are living in Braintree.

Fabrizio Petition Would Give Residents Deciding Vote On Summit View Bond Issue

Tom Fabrizio, candidate for Ward 4 councillor, has announced the formation of a petition drive that would place a referendum question on the November ballot to give residents the deciding vote on the Summit View bond issue.

"If the Quincy Housing Authority approves the bond issue for the Summit View construction project, then I will begin a petition drive to put the final decision on the bond issue before the residents. It is about time that the residents in the area and the citizens of Quincy have a say about what goes on in their neighborhood," said Fabrizio.

According to Fabrizio, there has been a very positive response to the petition drive from the residents in the neighborhood. "In July there was a public hearing regarding the Quincy Housing Authority issuing this Bond order. The people from the neighborhood were overwhelmingly opposed to the Quincy Housing Authority issuing this Bond. People are concerned about the impact this project will have on the neighborhood, the school system and the anticipated sewerage, drainage and traffic problems," said Fabrizio. "I hope we will not have to go forward with this petition drive. I would prefer that the Quincy Housing Authority and the Mayor listen to what the people in the neighborhood have to say and act accordingly. This is an important opportunity for the Quincy Housing Authority and the Mayor to demonstrate that public hearings are important and that input from the residents makes a difference," said Fabrizio.

The initiative petition process is a fundamental democratic right that the people have to affect decisions that impact on them directly, said Fabrizio. The petition process if successful will place the question of approving the bond issue for Summit View on the November ballot so that the voters of Quincy can decide.

Friday, Sept. 8 will also be a full day for grades 9-12. This will be day one of a six-day cycle in the high schools.

Sept. 8 is also the final day of kindergarten orientation. Kindergarten will begin Monday, Sept. 11.

North Quincy High School students taking shop courses only in Quincy Vocational-Technical School will begin their program Sept. 11.

Regular school hours are:

- High schools, 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
- Middle schools, 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
- Elementary schools (early), 8:15 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.
- Elementary schools

(late), 8:45 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. Students who are new to the Quincy Public School system should complete their registration at their school the week of Monday, Aug. 28.

Registration for all non-English-speaking students will be conducted in a central location at Quincy High School from 9 a.m. until noon starting Monday, Aug. 28 and continuing through Friday, Sept. 1.

Registration of non-English speaking students will continue in a central location in Quincy High School each Monday and Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. beginning Thursday, Sept. 7 and continuing throughout the school year.

There is no transportation provided by the Quincy Public Schools for regular day-school students attending the middle and high schools, with the exception of students attending Sterling Middle School from the former Quincy Point Middle School district.

The transportation schedule for Sterling students from Quincy Point Middle School will be announced separately.

All other regular day school transportation to middle schools and high schools should be privately arranged by students and their families or via MBTA. MBTA badges may be obtained at all schools.

All MBTA transportation is scheduled and supervised by the MBTA.

Certain elementary school regular day transportation is provided on Quincy public school buses. Information as to schedules and stops will be published separately and may be obtained from elementary school principals.

St. Joseph's School To Reopen Sept. 6

St. Joseph School in Quincy Point will reopen Wednesday, Sept. 6 at 8:10 a.m.

The first three days will be half day sessions with dismissal at 12 noon. Full day sessions will begin Sept. 11.

St. Joseph's School offers a quality education. In addition to the regular academic program, courses are given in alcohol and drug education, human development, human sexuality, computer literacy, art, music, physical education and Junior High French, the foreign language studied.

Extra curricula opportunities are offered in sports and the students have a school basketball team and cheerleading squads which participate in the parochial school league. Volleyball is also offered. A student Council is in place and students in Grades 5-8 are also invited to participate in the Junior Beta Club. There are also opportunities during the year for students to participate in dramatic productions and to enjoy field trips in keeping with their studies.

Mary Collins Announces Bid For Fourth School Committee Term

Mary Collins, Vice-Chairwoman of the Quincy School Committee, has announced she will be seeking a fourth term.

"In the twelve years during which I have served," says Mrs. Collins, "the school system has endured and survived its most troubled times. I feel that my experience and commitment will prove an asset in the very possibly difficult years ahead. Leadership and a firm dedication to education are most important for the future."

Having twice served as Vice-Chairwoman of the school committee, Mrs. Collins initiated the formation of sub-committees of the school committee and the various unions engaged in collective bargaining so that ongoing dialogue can take place, and problems can be worked on continuously, not merely at times of contract negotiation. She was a member of the school committee search team which was engaged in the selection of the current superintendent. The clinical supervision process of employee evaluation was initiated and finalized during her tenure of office.

Because of financial concerns in city and state government, some extensive efforts to obtain funding in creative and innovative ways have also taken place in the last two or three years. Several of the schools in Quincy are engaged in business partnerships with local firms which have been most fruitful in terms of working together to help to solve problems in education. "A wonderful spirit of cooperation and caring has begun to grow, and there is much more to these partnerships that a simple financial approach to problems," says Mrs. Collins. The school system has also received extensive grants from Massachusetts Electric Company for energy-saving school improvements plans which have helped to free school budget money for other much-needed expenditures.

Mrs. Collins sees one of the tasks of the school committee in the future to be that of continuing to pursue alternative and non-traditional sources of help for the school system.

In November of 1988, Mrs. Collins was elected Norfolk County Commissioner. "The reason I wanted to announce my candidacy for school committee is because I wanted to see exactly how demanding my new responsibilities would be, and if I could, in fact, continue to serve in both capacities well, and in the way I feel I should," she said. "I have found that, even during budget-time on both bodies, I have been able to fulfill all of my obligations. In twelve years on the school committee, my attendance is near perfect, and it will remain so. Any additional obligations I incur as a school committee woman will be met as conscientiously as in the past."

Mary Collins and her husband, Thomas, have four children, Christine, Caroline and Deirdre who have graduated from the Quincy Public Schools and a son, Timothy, who is a junior at North Quincy High School. The family resides at 116 Lansdowne St.

D. Scott Deware,

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

This is probably an old story, but it was new to us and may be to you... One of our readers sent it to us and we would like to share it with you...

It is about a farmer who bought a new car and was surprised by the cost of the 'extras.' Later, the farmer quoted him this price list:

Basic car	$100
Two-tone finish	$45
Four-barrel stomach	$75
Genuine cowhide upholstery	$125
Product storage & dispensing device	$60
Four spigots @ $10 each	$40
Dual horn	$15
Automatic fly swatter	$35
Field fertilizing device	$45
Total price	$540

Hope you enjoy this as much as we did. Again, we are always glad to hear from our readers... pro or con... funny or serious... All comments are welcomed and appreciated...

Donnelly Bill Would Repeal Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act

After receiving thousands of letters and telephone calls from irate senior citizens, U.S. Rep. Brian Donnelly (D-MA) has introduced legislation to repeal the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act.

Donnelly said the program is in deep trouble because of bitter protests from senior citizens who do not want to pay exorbitant premiums and taxes to fund the program.

"America's seniors do not support the Catastrophic Coverage Act," Donnelly, a Ways and Means Committee member said. "They have made their point very clear and I don't blame them one bit. Why should they pay outrageous premiums for similar benefits that some already have, often at no cost, through government or private retiree health programs?"

Recent action by the Ways and Means Committee cut the current income-related premium in half, while increasing the "flat" premium paid by all senior citizens. Donnelly believes the costs are way too high and regressive.

"It's time to scrap this program and go back to square one. The real needs of the elderly are long term care benefits - which the current Catastrophic Coverage Act does not provide," Donnelly said.

"When this legislation was enacted, the elderly did not understand how much this program was going to cost them. What senior citizens need and what they want most is coverage for nursing home care."

"What Congress must do is fully review the Medicare program for both long and short term care and come to a feasible solution to both problems," Donnelly said.

In detail, the Catastrophic Coverage Repeal Act of 1989 will:

- Repeal all Medicare benefit expansions enacted as part of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act. The legislation's Medicaid expansions, such as spousal impoverishment, will not be repealed and will remain in effect. Beneficiaries will continue to be shielded from Part B premium increases which exceed the Social Security COLA.

- Repeal the supplemental premium as well as the Part B premium increase.

- Re-impose certification of Medicaid policies. Policies would have to be consistent with the Medicare program's benefits (as amended by this legislation) within a specified time period.

Volunteer Drivers Needed To Transport Cancer Patients To Hospitals For Treatment

An urgent appeal for volunteer drivers to take cancer patients to hospitals for treatment has been extended to cover Quincy and Milton which are now again a part of the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Headquartered in the Milton Council on Aging, the Help-Line provides free transportation for cancer patients, many of whom have to go to hospitals daily for periods as long as seven weeks.

Volunteers are asked to pledge one trip a month. They are covered by blanket insurance and may be reimbursed on a mileage basis if necessary. Drivers find their service rewarding and much appreciated by the patients, most of whom have no other way to get to the hospitals

For further information, call the Milton Council on Aging, 698-2535, or the office of the South Shore Unit, ACS, 341-4210.

South Shore VNA Seeking Volunteers For Hospice Team

The Visiting Nurse Association of the South Shore Inc. is looking for mature people interested in working with people who have chosen to keep a seriously ill family member or friend at home while he or she dies.

Volunteers will be working with a Hospice Team, consisting of a medical director, nurses, home health aides, a social worker, pastoral counselor and over 40 other volunteers. The goal is to make each patient's dying process as painless and smooth as possible.

Volunteers are asked to do a number of things - offer respite by sitting with a patient while caretakers are allowed a few hours rest; run errands for the patient and his or her family; befriend the patient and his or her caretaker; spend time listening to issues in their lives; take the patient and/or caretakers out for a drive or a cup of coffee; and cook dinner once a week.

Volunteers meet in support groups every other week. Accessibility to the Volunteer Coordinator and office staff is always available.

For further information, contact Beth Loomis, Volunteer Coordinator, 843-0947.

Frank Nota Wins Frist Humanitarian Award

Frank Nota, pulmonary technologist for Quincy Hospital, has been named the 1989 Thomas F. Frist Humanitarian Award winner and has been nominated for Hospital Corporation of America's (HCA) national employee of the year program.

The Thomas F. Frist Humanitarian award program is held each year to honor HCA-affiliated employees who have exhibited exemplary service beyond their job responsibilities. The award program is named for chief medical officer and one of the founders of HCA, Thomas F. Frist.

Since 1972, the award has recognized hospital employees whose caring and dedication serve as an inspiration to others. From individual hospital winners, three national award winners will be selected.

Nota joined Quincy Hospital in 1967. He was nominated on the basis of his great dedication and dependability and his caring attitude toward patients and coworkers.

National award winners will be selected by HCA in September.

Appraisal Standards & Practices Booklet Available

The National Association of Real Estate Appraisers, the nation's largest real estate appraisal organization with over 21,000 CREA's

(Certified Real Estate Appraiser) has published a booklet entitled Uniform Professional Appraisal

Standards & Practices.

The Standards and Practices have been adopted by many states and introduced in Appraisal Legislation throughout the United States. The Standards and Practices are considered typical for the appraisal profession as the consumer expects a professional standard when hiring a professional appraiser.

The publication is available free of charge by writing the National Association of Real Estate Appraisal-8383 East Evans Road, Scottsdale, Ariz. 85260.

Higher Interest Rates Make Condos More Affordable For Some Home Buyers

Sales of existing condominiums and cooperatives rose in the spring, led by a surge in the Northeast, as higher mortgage interest rates forced buyers out of the single-family housing market, the National Association of Realtors reported today.

The national seasonally adjusted annual sales rate of previously-owned apartment condominiums and co-ops was 386,000 units, rising 8.1 percent from the rate of 357,000 units posted for the first quarter. Last quarter's rate fell 6.8 percent from the first quarter of 1988.

In the Northeast, the condo resale pace shot up 34.0 percent from the first quarter's rate to 150,000 units to 201,000 units. The pace was 3.4 percent lower than one year ago.

The strong rally in condo/co-op sales in the Northeast pushed up the overall existing-home sales pace 1.3 percent from the first to second quarter. One out of four home sales in the Northeast during the second quarter was a condo/co-op. This region median condo/co-op price of $111,500 was 30.9 percent below the corresponding median single-family home price of $145,900 for the first quarter. The Northeast condo price was 1.1 percent above that of a year ago.

NAR president Ira Gribin explained that as interest rates rose during the spring and housing conditions remained soft in the Northeast, an increasing number of buyers opted for condos and co-ops over more expensive single-family homes.

"Although a single-family home may be the more attractive and ideal choice, many first-time buyers are forced to look at condos and co-ops as a viable alternative in order to initially move into the housing market," Gribin said. "When affordability conditions are tough due to higher interest rates, choosing a multifamily unit over no purchase at all is a smart move."

John A. Tuccillo, NAR's chief economist, said because the Northeast continues to suffer from a glut in the multifamily housing market, buyers have taken advantage of a soft market in which many good deals on condos and co-ops can be found.

Mortgage interest rates, which rose from 9.77 percent during the first quarter to 10.38 percent in the second quarter, particularly cut into first-time home buyer's purchasing power. The additional charge of private mortgage insurance raised the interest rate to 10.63 percent. The national median price for existing condominiums and co-operatives was $84,800 for the second quarter, 9.6 percent below the second quarter national median price of $92,900 for existing single family-homes.

The Midwest experienced a decline in condo/co-op sales volume and an increase in the median price from the first quarter to the second quarter. In that region, the sales rate was 62,000 units, down 11.2 percent from the first quarter, and 16.2 percent from a year ago. The median condo/co-op price was $65,900, up 8.7 percent from a year ago. That price was 7.6 percent below the median price of $70,900 recorded for single-family homes in the Midwest last quarter.

The South recorded a condo/co-op resale pace of 83,000 units, down 11.7 percent from the previous quarter, and unchanged from a year ago. The median condo/co-op price was $68,000, up 5.2 percent from a year ago. The South's condo price was 23.1 percent lower than the median price of $84,700 for single-family homes posted there last quarter.

In the West, the region with the smallest multifamily market, the condo sales rate was 39,000 units, dropping 11.4 percent from the first quarter and 18.8 percent from a year ago. The West recorded a median condo price of $107,700, up less than 1.0 percent from last year's median of $107,500. That price was 23.0 percent lower than the median single-family home price of $139,700 recorded for the West last quarter.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for real estate, representing nearly 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

O'Connell Announces MWRA Deferring Headquarters Decision

Peter O'Connell, a mayoral candidate, has announced that The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has formally pledged not to enter into any agreement which will relocate the Headquarters of the MWRA until the Massachusetts State Legislature has reconvened and has had an opportunity to consider pending legislation.

According to O'Connell, this pledge offers the City of Quincy and its legislative delegation more time to solidify and gain support for legislation that will mandate several important state environmental and public health operations as well as a portion of the MWRA Headquarters to locate in Quincy at the former General Dynamics Shipyard.

Catherine L. Farrell, general counsel to the MWRA informed O'Connell that, "The authority will not enter any agreement with (any site developers) until the Legislature has had an opportunity to consider the veto override vote and the proposed legislation."

The pledge was given to Thomas R. Kiley, Esq., the attorney who represented O'Connell in a recent legal bid to prevent the MWRA from moving its headquarters to Roxbury. Earlier this summer, O'Connell appeared before the Massachusetts Board of Labor and Industries on his belief that the MWRA siting process was a violation of state anti-corruption laws. The board concluded that O'Connell and the Inspector General were incorrect and ruled that the authority's proposed contract with the Roxbury developers was invalid.

Said O'Connell of the MWRA's pledge, "Democracy demands accountability and I am happy to see that the MWRA is beginning to recognize that fact. This postponement by the authority will enable us to better prove our point. The MWRA owes the City of Quincy something for all it has done and what better way to pay off that debt than to site a significant number of its staff, and other important environmental agencies and public health units here at General Dynamics Shipyard."

Peter O'Connell supports legislation before the House, (Bill 6206), which will in addition to relocating up to 1,000 state employees to the shipyard, will require economic development of those portions of the shipyard found to be surplus by the MWRA, will honor the agreements with the former shipyard workers, and will not permit composting of incineration of sludge of the shipyard. The Bill further requires the Authority to compensate the City of Quincy for any fiscal impact, and will establish an environmental monitoring system to protect area residents. O'Connell said the legislative delegation from Quincy, the Mayor's office, and Councillor Ted DeCristofaro should be commended for their tireless efforts to protect Quincy and force a compromise in the best interests of Quincy Point and the City.

Bryan Post Takes Babe Ruth Crown By Winning 3 Straight

By TOM SULLIVAN

Bryan VFW Post 613 won the Quincy Babe Ruth League championship by defeating Local 1139 in four games, thus avenging last year's championship loss to Local which ousted Bryan Post in four games.

Both teams have remarkable records over the past two years. Local 1139 at 47-9-1 and Bryan Post at 42-16.

Local won the first game but lost the next three in four well-played games.

Local won the opener, 7-4, with Bob Fitzpatrick turning in a fine pitching effort, scattering nine hits and striking out 10. Local had only four hits, two by Patrick Gallagher, as Rob Kane pitched excellent relief and also led the attack with three hits.

Local jumped off to a 5-0 lead in the second, sparked by hits by Kosta Rozanitis and Doug Nolan and added single runs in the third and fourth.

Trailing, 7-0, Bryan battled back to score its four runs in the sixth inning on singles by Kane, Mark Kelleher and George Wirtz and a double by Tom Nutley. Eric Kane made a great play in left field for Local to hold Nutley to a double.

Kelleher and Michael Malvesti singled for Bryan in the seventh, but Fitzpatrick put out the fire with the tying run at the plate.

Bryan came back to tie the series with a 4-2 win in the second game as Malvesti pitched a one-hitter and struck out nine. Scott Dunn pitched well for Local, aided by outstanding defense by right fielder Mike Sweeney, Kelleher and Joe Marnikovic had two hits each for Bryan.

Patrick Shea scored for Local in the first but Bryan took a 2-1 lead in the second on Marnikovic's single and infield hits by Wirtz, Paul Murphy and Rob Kane. Marnikovic drove in Malvesti to make it 3-1 in the third.

Fitzpatrick doubled to break up Malvesti's no-hit bid and Local closed to 3-2 as Eric Kane scored in the fourth. Bryan threatened in the fourth on a single by Steven Loud and a double by Kelleher but Sweeney robbed Nutley to end the inning. Bryan picked up an insurance run in the sixth on hits by Todd Portesi and Kelleher.

Local threatened in the seventh but Wirtz, Kane and Marnikovic teamed up on a fine 4-6-3 double play and Malvesti struck out the next batter to end the game.

Bryan won the third game, 4-1, behind the two-hit, six-strikeout pitching of Loud. Gallagher pitched strong relief for Local. He also had both hits.

Murphy led the Bryan attack with two hits. Both shortstops, Rob Kane of Bryan and Fitzpatrick of Local, were outstanding on defense.

Bryan took a 1-0 lead in the second on hits by Nutley and Murphy and added three in the third on hits by Loud, Malvesti and Marnikovic and Kelleher's sacrifice fly. Fine base running by Gallagher gave Local its lone run in the fourth.

Bryan won the deciding game, 5-2, as Malvesti pitched a five-hitter and struck out nine. Dunn struck out six in a losing cause. Kelleher had two hits and three RBI for Bryan.

Bryan took a 1-0 lead in the first on a hit by Rob Kane and Kelleher's sacrifice fly and scored another run in the second as Wirtz doubled home Marnikovic.

Local scored a run in the fifth as Nolan singled home Dunn but Bryan broke it open in the sixth with three runs as Wirtz walked, Portesi (two hits) singled, Portesi (two hits) singled, Kane walked, Loud reached on an infield hit and Kelleher hit a towering double to the fence.

Local's seventh inning rally fell short as Malvesti held on after a double by Fitzpatrick and a single by Shea (two hits). Nutley of Bryan and Sweeney of Local also had hits.

Also playing for Bryan were Philip Bell, Jeff Breslin, Rich Gorman, Bill Morrissey, Terry Sheehan and Sean Skahan. Playing for Local were John Austin, Patrick Donaher, Floren Neamtu, Taylor O'Hearn, Chris Roncarati, Billy Stavros and Paul Tanney.

The 15-year-old all-star game is scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 23 at 8 p.m. at Adams Field.

and Erik DeBoer and Wollaston by Scott Logan, Chris Higgins, Bill Bellew and Mike Noonan.

Also playing are Mike Mignosa, Peter Kwilinski, Greg Boudreau and Mike Feeley of Milton and Jim Hartnett, Jay Miller and Jim O'Connor of Mass. Tire.

Kane's Place To Meet Quincy Nets In Championship Game

Kane's Place will attempt to duplicate last summer's championship when it faces the Quincy Nets in the title game of the Jaehnig Chiropactic Men's Basketball League.

Kane's rallied behind a 39-point effort by Dean Coletti to hold off the Greymen, 73-63, in the semi-finals.

In the other semifinal the high-flying Nets bounced back from a bad start to upset the top-seeded Jaehnig Club, first place finishers during the regular season, 71-69.

Coletti scored 23 of his points in the second half for Kane's on a variety of jump shots and twisting layups.

Kane's, playing without league-scoring champion Mark Millane and smooth-shooting Billy Dacey, received strong performances from P.J. Fay with 12 points and Peter Forbes with 10. The Greymen, who finished at 8-3, were led by Ray Baltz with 25 points, Steve Millane with 14 and Scott Higgins with 10.

The Nets trailed by 14 points early but rallied behind Steve Belcastro's 21 points. Brian Reale had 15 and Jeff Timberlake 13. The Jaehnig Club came out fast and had an eight-point halftime lead, but went stone cold against the Nets' zone defense in the second half.

The Nets grabbed a 12-point lead behind Timberlake and Reale, who starred for Boston University and Holy Cross respectively. They scored all but one of their combined 28 points in the second half. Jaehnig closed the gap but ran out of gas and time. Paul Leonard had 19 points for Jaehnig, Mark and Chuck Jaehnig 14 apiece and John Timmins had 12. Jaehnig finished the season at 9-2.

Owens Memorial Baseball Tournament Underway

The Tom Owens Memorial Double Elimination Baseball Tournament got under way Monday night at Adams Field, where all games will be played.

Sunday's scheduled opening games were rained out and have been rescheduled for Friday night with Somerville facing Andrea Realty at 5:30 and Chelmsford meeting the Conley Club of Sharon at 8:30.

In Monday's openers, the Whitman VFW rolled over the Quincy Legion All-Stars, 11-2, and the Andrea Club edged the Rockland Royals, 4-3.

Last night (Wednesday) the Quincy Legion stars were scheduled to play Somerville and Whitman met Rockland.

No games will be played tonight because of the annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA softball doubleheader, but games will continue Friday, Saturday and Sunday and, because of the rainouts, the tournament may extend to Monday.

The Legion all-stars are made up of players from the Quincy, Morrisette and Wollaston teams as well as Mass Tire and Milton. Ed Spring of Quincy Legion is the coach and is assisted by Dick Laracy of Quincy, Ray Cattaneo of Morrisette, Mikre Gormley of Wollaston and John Davis of Milton.

Representing Quincy Legion are Mike Toland, Nick Dragone and Jim Kearns, Morrisette by Rob McDonald, Rob Cinquegrano

St. Joseph's School Hosts National Cheerleading Camp

By MAUREEN FLYNN
St. Joseph's School recently hosted the National Cheerleaders Association Youth Camp for the second year. Eighty cheerleaders ages eight and older participated along with 13 coaches and 11 instructors. The cheerleaders came from Quincy, North Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Canton, Dedham, Hyde Park, Abington, Rockland, Whitman, Marshfield and Somerville. Many of the girls came individually, but nine squads participated. They were the North Quincy High School junior varsity, St. Ann's basketball cheerleaders, Weymouth Pop Warner, Hyde Park J.V., Holy Family School in Rockland and the Xavierian High School cheerleaders.

The National Cheerleaders Association, the largest cheerleading organization in America, sent three professional instructors from its Dallas, Texas office. The instructors are currently collegiate cheerleaders at Penn State University, Providence College and the University of Lowell.

The camp counselors were selected from members of last year's award-winning Quincy Point Panthers squad who attended the National Championships in December. The counselors acted as "buddy" cheerleaders to a squad for the three-day camp.

Counselors were Lynne Feeley, Maureen Mancuso, Michelle Minichello and Karen Curran from Archbishop Williams, Jennifer Walsh, Maureen Wood and Kelley Dyer of Quincy public schools and Amy Gallagher of Fontbonne Academy in Milton.

Local coaches participating in the coaches clinic held during the camp were: Mary Fasoli of St. Ann's, Rose D'Olympio of the Elks, Patti and Kathy Myers from the Panthers and Anita Curran of St. Joseph's. Nancy and Amanda Peduzzi of North Quincy High School also attended.

The cheerleaders learned cheers, sideline chants and spirit chants for all sports, along with a dance routine. They were taught proper warm-up and exercise technique, jump performance, motions and partner stunts.

The highlight of the camp was the last day when each squad or group of individuals which were teamed together performed a cheer in front of invited parents and spectators. No competition is held to keep the NCA philosophy of a young camp, but some squads were awarded Terrific Team ribbons, Award of Excellence ribbons, or Superior Squad ribbons.

The four Quincy-based teams fared well, each receiving superior excellence or spirit awards.

The Quincy Point Panthers were voted the "most spirited" squad by their peers and received the prestigious NCA Spirit Stick for the second year.

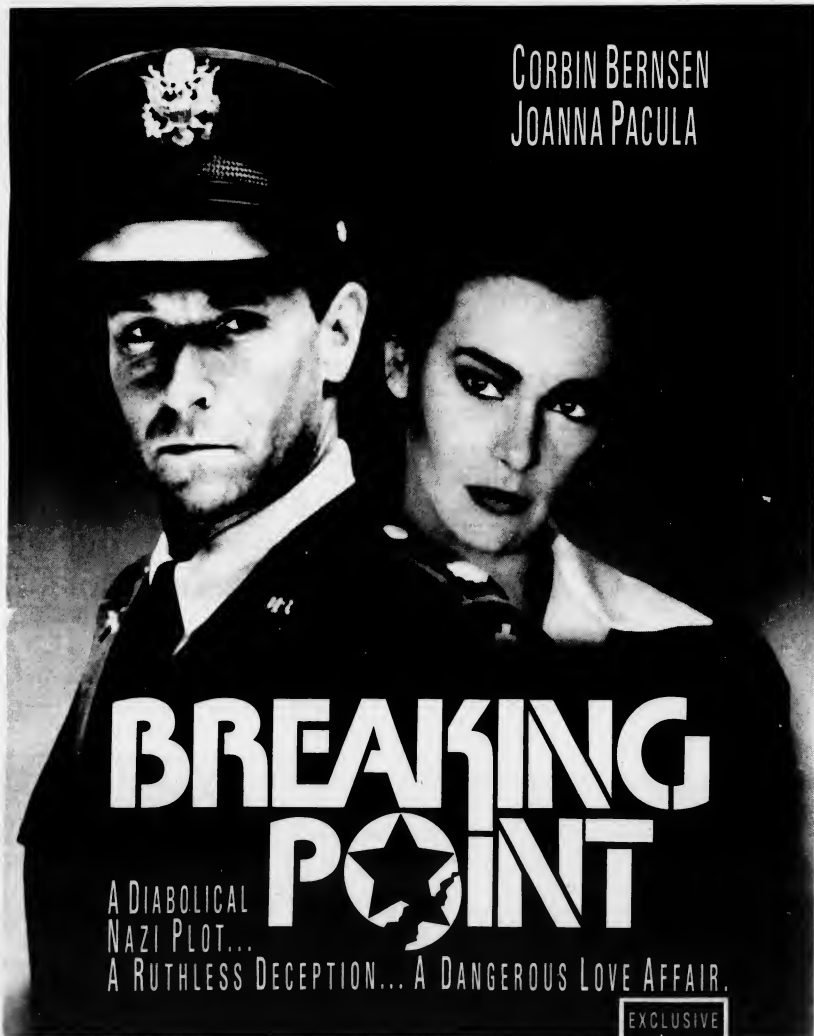

Quincy girls who participated in the clinic were: Nicole, Mary B. and Dawn M. Kalafatas, Tiffany and Shannon McAdam, Susan Deskins, Olivia Chamberland, Susan Sheehan, Rachel Repoff, Anne M. Swan, Joanne Casey, Cheryl Henault, Kelli Gott, Tricia Stanton, Lisa Reese, Shannon Craig, Nichole and Chrissy Fasoli, Christine Sullivan, Jennifer Phipps, Kerry DesRoche, Kim Sheehan, Kara Hogan, Karen Caiewski, Louise Mahoney, Lisa Skayne, Lisa Robertson, Elizabeth Kelley, Christine Caporale, Christine Pollara, Elizaeth Daley, Lalita Silva, Elizabeth Flynn, Kerry Connolly, Leah Robertson, Pam Walsh, Cindy Cedrone, Kara Bagen, Jenn Kelley, Amy Murphy, Christine Curran, Vicky Comeau, Samantha Perry, and Debbie Russell.

Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader Tonight

The annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Benefit Softball Doubleheader will be played tonight (Thursday) at Adams Field on Southern Artery, Quincy.

Game one, featuring the Quincy Fire Department against the Quincy Police, will begin at 6:30 p.m. The second game between the Quincy City Officials and News Media All-Stars will get underway at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $2 each and will be available at Adams Field prior to the games. The cost covers admission to both games and entry into a prize drawing.

Among the prizes to be awarded are a new baseball glove donated by Colman's Sporting Goods of Quincy, Red Sox tickets, gift certificates from area restaurants and other items.

The Red Sox tickets are for the Thursday, Aug. 31 game against the California Angels.

All proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Co-chairmen of the event are Tom Koch, Quincy Council on Aging Chairman, and Bob Bosworth, Assistant Editor of The Quincy Sun.

Those wishing to purchase tickets before the doubleheader may do so at the Council on Aging Office, 1120 Hancock St., The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., the Mayor's Office at City Hall, Radio Station WJDA, 29 Brackett St., Quincy Community Television, 81 School St., Handshakes Cafe, 1354 Hancock St., and the Patriot Ledger, 400 Crown Colony Drive.

Two years ago, the game was dedicated to the memory of Richard J. Koch Sr., who organized the special fundraising event. Mr. Koch, who served with Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth as co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon Committee for 11 years, died in August, 1987.

To date, the committee has raised more than $1 million. This is the 13th year of the benefit doubleheader. The event has raised more than $16,500, including $1,500 last year.

This year, the Quincy Fire will be looking to end the Police's four-game winning streak. Last year, the Police downed the Fire 6-1 in a well-played game by both sides.

In the nightcap, the City Officials and News Media will be trying to take control of the series lead. The series is tied at six games.

Last year, the City Officials scored a come-from-behind victory to edge the News Media, 9-8.

For the second year in a row, Continental Cablevision of Quincy, Channel 3, will set up a broadcasting booth at Adams Field. The broadcast, to include play-by-play by Quincy High School football coach Jack Raymer, will be shown in its entirety Thursday night on a tape delay.

The first game between the Police and Fire will be shown on Channel 3 once that game is completed at approximately 8 p.m. The second game between the City Officials and News Media will be shown after that game is completed.

Following the games, there will be a trophy presentation. Each winning team will receive a trophy which will be awarded annually.

Besides Channel 3, Sun Channel 26 will tape the doubleheader and show highlights during Friday's Quincy Sun Channel 26-Video News and Features Report at 5:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Among the city officials expected to play are: Kevin Shea, city planner; Arthur Foley, Mayor's office; David Kinnecon, traffic engineer; Tom Koch, Council on Aging; Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro; Councillor Tim Cahill; Brian Buckley, park department; Ray Cattaneo, park department; Mike Shaheen, health department; Bob Foy, auditor; Frank Santoro, school committee; Dana Childs, treasurer; Richie Meade, planning; Helene Walsh, planning; Peggy Nigro, school committee; and Richard McNeese, cemetery.

The lineup roster for the News Media squad includes: John Amato, Bill Coleman, Bob Cusack, Herb Fontaine, Rob Gilman, Peter Markakos and John Nicholson from WJDA; Earl LaChance, Bill Ketter, Seth Livingstone, Eric Schwarz and Dick Trust from the Patriot Ledger; Steve Farquar and Ed Fiddler from Quincy Continental Cablevision; and Bob Bosworth, Steve Kavanagh, Bob Noble and Brian O'Neill from The Quincy Sun.

Rosters for the police and fire teams were unavailable at press time. Rain date is Thursday, Aug. 24.

"This was just awesome, our biggest turnout ever," said race committee member Sherry Mele. "I'm so pleased and grateful to everyone who made this such a great race."

Many of the runners took advantage of pre-race and post-race massage offered by the Quincy Sportsmassage team. Pre-race massage is effective in loosening runners up and stimulating their nervous systems. Post-race massage is effective in relaxation, relieving soreness and helping to remove the lactic acid buildup caused by heavy physical activity.

The massage team was headed by Ed Lamb of Quincy, assisted by Anne Lewis of Quincy and Deborah Arak of Dorchester.

This was the first time massage was offered at an event in Quincy. The response was enthusiastic.

The team thanks Tom Stansburg of the Quincy Recreation Dept. for giving it the opportunity to offer the service.

Further information on massage and sportsmassage can be obtained by calling Lamb at 1-800-202-7854.

Dudek's NFL Chances Slim

Joe Dudek's last chance of making an NFL team may have ended last week when he was waived by the New York Jets.

The former North Quincy star who broke the NCAA touchdown record at Plymouth State College and set several collegiate records including most points scored and average yards per rush, was invited to the Jets' training camp after being cut loose by the Denver Broncos.

Dudek set 23 NCAA Division 3 records in his four years at Plymouth State, where he led the Panthers to four straight New England Conference titles.

Dudek signed as a free agent with the Denver Broncos, who later waived him. He returned as a replacement player during the 1987 players' strike and ran for 132 yards and two touchdowns on a nationally-televised Monday night game.

He was on injured reserve when the Broncos played in the Super Bowl and has a Super Bowl ring to show for it.

QHS Ninth Graders Finish First In State Math Competition

Quincy High School ninth grade math students finished first place in Massachusetts and fifth place in New England, after a total of five competitions in the Continental Mathematics League Euclidean Division.

Top student scorers were John Daley, Louise Wang, Susan McCole, Holly McDonough, Mealy Ou, Henry Cheng and Kathy McLoughlin. In one competition, the QHS team scored first in Massachusetts, third in New England and ninth nationally, with 114 schools competing.

Grade 10, 11 and 12 students competed in the New England Mathematics League. After six competitions, the QHS team finished fifth in Norfolk County, 21st in Massachusetts with 111 schools competing, and 35th in New England with 263 schools competing.

Top scorers were Benvic Leung, Yi Ping Ou, Beth Weixler, Hao Zeng, John Brady, Sean Gannon, Rodney Spear, Penny Chen, Ennio Eleuteri, Wayne Deng, Jimmy Iorio, and Dean Tantillo.

Grades 10, 11 and 12 computer students who competed in the Continental Mathematics League Computer Science Contest in the BASIC computer language. Finished 2nd in Massachusetts and 3rd in New England. Top scorers were Susan Crispo, Benvic Leung, Shannon Evans, Dean Tantillo, Joseph DiStasio and Glen Sherriff.

In the Continental Mathematics League Computer Science Contest in the Pascal computer language, Grade 11 and 12 students finished second in Massachusetts, and third in New England. Top scorers included Yong Fang, Dan Piccini, Penny Chen, Dan Timmons, Lawrence Chan, Deanne DeSantis, Jason Mackay and Thomas Gleason.

Joan Chrusciel is Mathematics Department Head at Quincy High School.

interest in analyzing the special test results. She said that after the swimming season closes on Sept. 5, South Shore communities will get together to review the "whole water testing program."

"We'll get together and give them our figures to see if we can come up with a pattern of when our beaches had high (coliform) readings or when other communities' beaches were high ... all the rain provides a good opportunity to get some hard data to aid in future predictions," she said.

"But it takes time to come up with any sound conclusions for absolute predictions," she said. "It's very difficult, and there are a lot of variables involved, a lot of other factors."

Joe Hajjar Inducted Into Bartender's Hall Of Fame

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Of all the honors which can be bestowed upon a person, recognition from one's peers is perhaps the highest.

Joe Hajjar of Quincy can attest to that.

Hajjar, proprietor of Joe's Pub in Quincy Point, was inducted into the National Bartenders' Hall of Fame recently, along with two other bartenders, Bernie Wielock and Tommy Leonard.

Wielock has tended bar for 16 years at Rainbow Gardens in Dudley, while Leonard is known for his bartending at the Eliot Lounge in Boston over the past 25 years.

The induction was held at Joe's Pub, which is another honor for Hajjar, since it was the site for the only Hall of Fame ceremony in Massachusetts this year.

Hajjar, Leonard and Wielock are the only Massachusetts bartenders to be inducted into the Hall of Fame this year by Bartenders Magazine. Nationwide, 50 bartenders representing 28 states are being inducted from some 5,200 nominations.

For their induction, the threesome were presented gold "Hall of Fame" rings by Ray Foley, publisher of Bartenders Magazine. This year, the Hall of Fame is supported by the House of Seagram.

In presenting Hajjar with his ring, Foley described him as someone who "sticks with something" and praised him for promoting the right things and caring about the pub and bar industry.

"He is certainly a gentleman," Foley said.

With nearly 75 people clapping and cheering, Hajjar humbly accepted his ring. "Obviously, it can't happen unless you have a lot of hardworking and nice people behind you," he told the crowd.

Hajjar and the others were inducted for being professional, responsible and exemplifying the "standards of the art and science of bartending."

Moreover, they were recognized for their outstanding personal achievements and community service.

That theme should ring a bell for those who know Joe Hajjar. He has practically made a career out of helping and serving the Quincy community.

And that is precisely why Hajjar was nominated by Peter Renzi, a part-time bartender at Joe's Pub, and Frank Vallier, a comptroller and chef at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

"I know a lot of bartenders," says Renzi, "and Joe has done more than anyone else in terms of outstanding personal achievement."

Renzi noted Hajjar's involvement in the St. Joseph's Church Athletic Fund. It was set up a few years ago to raise money specifically for athletic equipment for the children of the church and Quincy Point.

"Joe felt there was a need for that type of commitment in the community," Renzi said, adding it is unique for someone in the pub business "to do something like that."

"People in the bar business are supposedly doing something wrong. But, we're not doing anything wrong.

We have a license (to serve liquor).

"Now we just want to put something back into the community," he added.

As another example, Renzi pointed out that Hajjar has been donating bar receipts to help pay the medical expenses of a Quincy mother who was hit by a drunk driver and is now paralyzed.

For the past three months, Hajjar has donated receipts from Sunday's business to help the mother and her three children.

Renzi said it's ironic that a pub is helping her, given the fact that she was hit by someone driving drunk. However, Joe's is not a typical pub and Hajjar is not a typical bartender/proprietor.

"Joe cares about the community and his customer. You have to care for the customer or you won't get a quality customer," Renzi says. "Joe really cares about Quincy," he added.

Vallier echoed Renzi's sentiments. "I nominated Joe for the job he does, for the time he spends with people and what he does for the community."

Hajjar is a member of many organizations geared toward promoting responsible drinking, alcohol education and saying no to serious, illicit drugs such as cocaine.

He has served as president of the Quincy On-Premise Beverage Commission and sits on the board of the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services as a volunteer.

Hajjar has been instrumental in setting up clean-up days in Quincy Point and influential in fostering good relations between Proctor and Gamble and Quincy Point residents.

THREE MASSACHUSETTS BARTENDERS, including Joe Hajjar, middle, proprietor of Joe's Pub in Quincy, were inducted into the National Bartenders Hall of Fame at a ceremony held in his pub. On hand for the event were, from left, Steven Braverman, state manager for the House of Seagram; Tommy Leonard, a bartender at the Eliot Lounge in Boston; Bernie Wielock, bartender at Rainbow Gardens, Dudley; and Ray Foley, publisher of Bartender's Magazine.

He was part of the Quincy Veterans' Stadium Lighting Committee and has served on several Massachusetts Restaurant Association committees, including one which established scholarships for high school students.

Hajjar was also the only non-Boston representative to be appointed to a liquor panel set up by Mayor Ray Flynn.

"I've been very influential in getting new programs kicked up and kicked off," he says.

In a sense, Hajjar could also have been honored for sticking with his business when the shipyard closed several years ago. Instead of packing up and leaving, he stayed in Quincy Point.

Known as Joe's Lunch during the heydays of the shipyard, Hajjar transformed the place into Joe's Pub when General Dynamics left.

It is now a virtual sports shrine with many banners, photos and other items, boasting the Celtics, Bruins, Red Sox and Patriots.

Although it's primarily a sports bar now, the pub still pays tribute to the shipyard. Above the entrance on the wall are some 15 multicolored hard helmets with the sign "Don't Give Up The Ship."

Various news clippings on the wall remind patrons of the shipyard's proud past.

Hajjar's friends say it was a difficult transition for him but things are working out now.

WEEK OF: August 17

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Romance is highlighted in a large way this year; it's important, however, to learn when to take a supporting role. Some important decisions related to career are expected early in 1990. Travel is highlighted, but careful planning is all important.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19

Multiple choices face you through the week. Be super careful before making final decisions. Avoid conflict with supervisor or co-worker. Friend ends his silent treatment.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20

You finally find out what you did to irk a friend; making amends is the easy part. Experiment with new solutions. Puzzles at work are solved at long last.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20

Good week for a major housecleaning; look forward to unearthing a couple of minor treasures. Auctions and antique sales capture your fancy. There may be a bargain for the offing.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22

Keeping a low profile is a good approach on the workfront. Socially, however, you are very much in the limelight. Travel opportunity includes some unanticipated pleasures.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21

Good week for coordinating activities requiring the participation of an assortment of individuals. If traveling, prepare for changing conditions. News from overseas is encouraging.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22

Correspondence from an old friend or admirer may arrive during this period. Work assignment includes an unexpected bonus. Financial decisions require a careful and logical approach.

LEO — July 23 - August 22

Long sought-after goal may appear in view. Chances are favorable that you'll be reconciling with a relative or friend. Trends at work point to new assignments and possible promotion.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22

Invitation to a gala event arrives by the weekend. Distant relative becomes closer, thanks to your recent initiatives. Comparison shopping pays off handsomely during this period.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22

Competitive stress surfaces, and may lead to an attractive new position on the workfront. Take time off for relaxation and physical fitness. This is a fine time for launching a sensible diet.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21

Creative energies are peaking; this is the right time to commit yourself to a new hobby. Best friends now are of the opposite sex. Travel and business are mixing surprisingly well.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22

Cool co-worker or neighbor is suddenly much more cordial, and skeptical relative is easier to live with. Your more relaxed stance plays a large part in these happenings. Financial picture seems brighter.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20

You're easily coaxed into taking a trip you've been dreaming about for some time. Relatives provide key support in an understated manner. Good week for catching up on your paperwork.

which pushed through 34 zoning recommendations, McCauley said. "This has diminished the amount of development (in Quincy)."

Instead of a moratorium, McCauley said he recommends closing the Wollaston Fire Station which would save taxpayers $1.2 million in renovation costs.

McCauley, who said the station is not unsafe, does not plan to close it before he leaves office in January. However, he said he would recommend the idea to the next mayor who will be elected in November.

According to McCauley, closing the station would be a way to "beef up" manpower at the city's other fire stations. The mayor made his recommendation based on a $15,000 study which examined the costs associated with refurbishing the station.

Meanwhile, O'Connell has discussed his moratorium proposal with Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey and he indicated some support.

"He said I raised a legitimate point," O'Connell said.

"I'm trying to ensure that the fire department grows as the city grows. I'm not trying to prevent growth in the city."

"I'm just trying to make sure that we grow with it," he said.

Mulvey said he understands both McCauley's and O'Connell's point of view.

"We try to make sure that all the new buildings going up in the city are up to the new fire codes and safety standards, which hopefully negates the need for more fire department service."

"But if you look at it from the other respect, the more building in the city means more tax dollars coming in and that is money that could be funneled into the fire department."

"It's sort of a damned if you do, damned if you don't situation," Mulvey said.

"I understand (O'Connell's) needs. We're all hurting. We need more bodies down here (in the building department) too."

"I just want enough so that my people don't have to work themselves silly anymore. You could go to every department in the city and see the same thing."

"We're all hurting," Mulvey added.

Cheney, who backs O'Connell's moratorium proposal, said he strongly opposes the chief's plan to cut the Houghs Neck fire station from two trucks to one.

Last week, O'Connell said that a $150,000 cut in his $400,000 overtime budget will force Engine 6 out of service, leaving only the jumbo Tower 1 aerial trucks there.

Overtime cuts, the chief explained, make it challenging to provide fire protection, especially during summer vacations. He said coverage will suffer if hundreds of housing units are added.

Furthermore, O'Connell has already removed the newly refurbished Ladder 2 truck from the Wollaston station and raised the prospect that one of the city's other stations would close.

McCauley has maintained that the fire department can provide adequate protection, even as new developments are added.

Mass Electric Seeks 5 Percent Rate Increase

Massachusetts Electric Company has notified the state Department of Public Utilities (DPU) of its request for a general rate increase of about $55 million, or five percent, to cover the company's increased cost of providing electricity.

If approved by the DPU, it would be the first general rate increase for Mass. Electric in seven years.

Under DPU rules, the formal filing will be made by Mass. Electric by Sept. 15. If approved, the new rates will become effective in April 1990, and will result in an increase of about $2 in the monthly bill of an average residential customer using 500 kilowatt hours per month.

"During the last several years, Mass. Electric has made significant improvements to its electrical system to meet the needs of our customers and improve reliability," said Edward Mulligan, president of the company.

"Since our last rate increase on June 1, 1982, we have connected more than 120,000 new customers to the system and improved service to our other customers as well. These service improvements are not requiring investments of about $100 million per year."

"The new rates are designed to reflect these additional costs," Mulligan said.

The company's wholesale affiliate has filed with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, a request to pass approximately $40 million of conservation and load management (C & LM) expenditures to Mass. Electric through its purchased power cost adjustment rate, effective Jan. 1, 1990.

In addition to its general rate filing, Mass. Electric intends to file a proposal to bring the C & LM expenditures into retail rates, in which case they would not be charged at the wholesale level.

During the past seven years, Mass. Electric has implemented three rate decreases totaling more than $30 million per year.

A retail subsidiary of New England Electric System, Mass. Electric serves approximately 900,000 customers in 146 communities in the state.

DeVanna Center To Start Parent Aide Program Here

The Dianne DeVanna Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect Inc., located in Braintree, will begin a new Parent Aide Program to serve the communities of Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

Parent Aides are special friends who consistently show that they care about the parent as a person. Through informal visits to the home and by offering the parent the opportunity to get out and participate in enjoyable activities, Parent Aides help the parents cope with some of the day-to-day pressures.

To establish the program, the Center will soon begin recruiting volunteers for a Parent Aide training session to be given in the fall. After completion of training, the volunteers will be matched with family referrals provided by the Massachusetts Department of Social Services in Quincy.

For further details, call the Dianne DeVanna Center at 617/843-7010.

WHERE ARE THE LEADERS?

Our city government seems to stumble from crisis to crisis, patching up here and there, but never really dealing with the problems.

- With education under attack from all sides -- our school buildings are dilapidated and parents have to picket City Hall to demand school books.
- With drugs rampant on our streets and in our schools, our city discusses cutting under-cover narcotics investigations.
- Despite constant demands for better open spaces, we can't maintain what we have. Faxon Park is crumbling, and our playgrounds are a mess.
- When the MWRA was deciding whether to take its sludge to Stoughton, Spectacle Island or Quincy, our city failed to keep sludge out. When the agency decided to build its new headquarters in Roxbury instead of at the Quincy shipyard, no one in our city government stood up to fight for Quincy.

Each of the other candidates for Mayor has been on the city council while these problems developed.

Government simply cannot fall asleep at the switch ... and Quincy government is a $118 million per year business, using your money to provide you with the services you need -- like public safety, good schools and attractive and useful recreational areas. It's a business, and it ought to be run like one -- by a man who has proven he knows how to manage a business.

We need leadership in Quincy - not Government by crisis.

... Now, that's leadership

Four Beaches Still Closed

The Quincy Health Department Tuesday announced that four city-operated beaches would remain closed at least until Thursday afternoon due to high levels of fecal coliform in the water.

The Health Department considers counts over 200 to be unsuitable for swimming.

Avalon Mound, Germantown Fire Station, Rock Island (Rhoda) and Chickatawbut Rd. beaches, which were closed by the department last week, were retested Tuesday. The results of those tests will be in on Thursday, said Health Commissioner M. John Gallagher.

Gallagher said that the MDC had also reported high coliform readings for four Wollaston beaches on Monday of this week.

According to an MDC spokesman, the Wollaston beaches were still posted as closed as of Tuesday.

Council Rezoning Hearing Sept. 5

The City Council will hold a public hearing Tuesday evening, Sept. 5 in accordance with two orders relative to proposed rezoning of land.

They are:
• Westerly side of Willard St. from number 591 to street number 591, from Residence C to Residence A. 6:45 p.m.

• Parcel located in West Quincy, off Ricciuti Dr., owned by the City of Quincy, from Industrial B to Open Space. 7 p.m.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Because of budget restrictions brought on by a $3.4 million cut in state local aid, the city's fire department will lose an engine and its three-men complement Sept. 1.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell told councillors of the reduction Monday during a Public Safety Committee meeting. The chief, struggling financially because of a sharp cut in overtime spending, said the city would lose Engine 6 in Houghs Neck and subsequently, three on-duty men, unless the department receives $150,000 within the next two weeks.

After listening to O'Connell's presentation which traced the recent history of the department's budget, manning and operation, several councillors suggested ways to generate revenue for the department. They also called on Mayor Francis McCauley to appropriate some of $900,000 in the city's free cash account to keep the engine in service.

On Tuesday, McCauley said he would not restore the lost overtime money because the $900,000 is needed "for real emergencies," such as the situation with the Central Middle School when approximately $1 million was spent to correct a structural hazard in the school's roof.

"Each year there are additional appropriations for emergency situations. I share the concern of the councillors regarding fire protection and I wish I could restore the $150,000 but given the (financial) restrictions caused by a reduction in net state aid of $3.4 million, I can't," McCauley said.

In March, McCauley informed councillors and department heads that since costs for essential city services are rising while revenue is leveling off, he was being forced to cut spending, including $400,000 in the police and fire overtime accounts. He stressed that if local aid was above level funding, he would give fire, police and the schools more money.

However, this was not the case. The state, in allocating its local aid to cities and towns, cut Quincy's share by $3.4 million over last year.

Because of the cut, O'Connell was forced to operate with an overtime

Survey Finds Schools In 'Extreme Disrepair'

The Quincy School Committee was scheduled to respond Wednesday night to a survey conducted by the Marriott Corporation which shows the physical condition of the Quincy school system "in a state of extreme disrepair."

Among the conditions discovered by the company are poor classroom air quality, a potential asbestos hazard to students and violations to fire and safety codes.

In all, the survey listed 15 conditions ranging from boiler neglect to inadequate long-range maintenance planning. For each condition, Marriott said it could correct the deficiency but did not go into detail.

The survey findings were made public by John McCarthy, management representative for Marriott.

According to Mayor Francis McCauley, Marriott is one of two companies the school department is reviewing as a potential manager of custodial, maintenance and grounds programs.

Marriott was scheduled to make their presentation before the School Committee at its meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Quincy High School Method Center.

Another firm, Service Master, will make a presentation in September. A recommendation for one of the two firms could be forthcoming by Sept. 20, said McCauley, who is also chairman of the school committee.

The union which represents the current custodians and maintenance workers will also make a presentation, the mayor noted.

The school department is considering hiring a professional management

Eileen Cohen New QCBPA Executive Director

Eileen Cohen is the new executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods, president of the QCBPA, who made the announcement, said Cohen will assume her duties Sept. 1.

He said Cohen, owner of the Sweets 'n Things Shop on Hancock St., Quincy Center, was elected to the post at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors. She succeeds George Riley who recently resigned.

Cohen has been an active member of the QCBPA for seven years and a member of the board since 1987.

She was selected as the QCBPA's "Member of the Year" in 1986.

She is a member of the QCBPA's Sidewalk Sale committee, the QCBPA Promotions Committee and serves as co-chairman of the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant.

Cohen is also a member of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

DeCristofaro Hits Tobacco Company Meeting

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said he is very unhappy about a scheduled meeting by the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company of Winston-Salem, North Carolina regarding Smokers' Rights.

The meeting, set for last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St., West Quincy.

The meeting was an attempt to "try to manufacture the appearance of a grassroots uprising against laws and policies that restrict public smoking," said Edward Sweda Jr., an attorney and lobbyist for the Group Against Smoking Pollution of Massachusetts.

DeCristofaro said with the cancer rate in Quincy as high as it is, it does not seem prudent to encourage people to continue a habit that is detrimental to their health.

He also said the city is doing all that it possibly can to decrease the rates of cancer in this area and it is to be commended for its concern about the upcoming meeting.

Representatives of GASP were to distribute leaflets to those entering the hall, detailing the Smokers Bill of Rights. Among the rights supported by GASP and the other pro-health groups are:

- The right to sue tobacco companies in product liability lawsuits to compensate for the premature deaths and injuries caused by smoking-related disease.

- The right to hear the truth from tobacco companies about the ingredients contained in tobacco products.

- The right for the 85 percent of smokers who wish to stop smoking to receive third-party payments for quit-smoking programs.

Sweda emphasized that smokers do not have the right to smoke in public places.

In addition to the meeting, a press conference was scheduled for 3 p.m. Wednesday in the second floor conference room in City Hall.

The conference was to be held by GASP, the American Lung Association and the Massachusetts Medical Society. Details of a "Smokers' Bill of Rights" were to be announced and endorsed by the health organizations.

Public Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue was to address the issue of the high lung cancer rates found in certain parts of Quincy and how tobacco companies exacerbate that situation.

Sweda said, "The Massachusetts pro-health organizations, not R.J. Reynolds, will be accurately speaking up for smokers' rights on Wednesday night."

Copies of the Smokers' Bill of Rights were to be distributed to people as they entered the Sons of Italy Hall.

In its biannual filing of lobbying reports with the Secretary of State's office, R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. reported spending $26,000 during the first six months of 1989 on "smokers' rights" meetings held in various parts of Massachusetts.

School Committee Candidates Give Budget Top Billing

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

The Quincy school budget was considered the prime factor in determining Quincy's educational needs by nearly all the ten School Committee candidates at Monday night's forum sponsored by the Houghs Neck Community Council and the Houghs Neck Legion Post at the Post Home.

Taking part was the entire slate of candidates for the three four-year terms in the Sept. 12 preliminary election: Michael Jovanovic, Michael C. Preble, Richard Crespi, Ronald Mariano, incumbent Mary Collins, Gary Fine, Judith Brams, John McDuff and incumbent Frank Santoro.

Mary Jane Powers, seeking to fill the two-year unexpired term of the late Christopher Kennedy, is running against former School Committeeman Charles Sweeney, who was not present. There is no preliminary contest for the two-year term.

After outlining their backgrounds, each candidate replied to a question posed by Martin Gordon, Houghs Neck Community Council president, who presided: "Money is going to get tight. What do you consider the most important issue, the one item that you will fight for, what item do you consider most important in education as it affects our children and the Quincy public schools?"

Santoro said, "The budget is the most important part of our consideration. Over 80 percent of that is in salaries."

He said he felt that state funds should be secured to help with special education classes which the state insists upon, and, "we have to have the whole community all pitch in and help us."

"The budget is inadequate," Brams said. "We need volunteers... we must listen to community input."

Pointing out that the school budget is the largest item in the city budget, Crespi, a police officer, added that the crime correction budget has grown 15 percent or 20 percent a year. "People in jail will receive more than children in school," he said. "The whole community has to be involved."

Preble, predicting that money will not come in from the state, said, "We have to learn to do with what we have... we have to learn to be fiscally responsible."

"We are facing a budget crisis," Mariano said. "A lot of good programs are in jeopardy." Calling teachers "the most important resource in the school system," he said, "the first thing to do is maintain adequate staffing. It is my one priority."

McDuff, agreeing that the budget is the top priority, said, "We must maintain the corps of teachers we have now. We will not see an increase in funding in the years ahead."

Collins, present School Committee Chairwoman, said, "We must maintain the quality of education that we have."

She spoke of additional money needed for Asians and others coming into Quincy and asked for additional support from the City Government. Also, "the sewer user tax will help." She deplored the $2 million dollar payments being made to General Dynamics by the City for the next 10 years.

Jovanovic agreed with the previous speakers, but said, "Money is not the main problem. It is our attitude. Americans have money. The greatest problem is the lack of spiritual achievement. Americans cannot go back to their roots."

"We can't always say money is the answer," Fine said. "We need experienced people who know how to look at a budget to make the best of a poor situation." He felt that "asking the business community for their help is one way to keep quality education in Quincy."

Powers said, "I should like to say I am in favor of small business partnerships" to aid the budget. She described a Wollaston School project where businesses were asked to contribute books in return for a printed acknowledgement.

Candidates were given the opportunity to reply to questions from those attending.

A North Quincy High School student complained about the "waste of time" for students when extra explanations were required for newcomers to this country.

Fine suggested a "buddy system" between the native-born and newcomers to take place after school hours.

Crespi said he felt that the Federal Government should handle the problem when they send large masses of foreigners to Quincy. "The Federal Government should lend a hand, put some money in, try to help."

The evening closed with each candidate outlining his reasons for seeking election.

Mary Lam assisted in preparing the program.

Readers Forum Rally Against Hazardous Waste Incinerator 'Tremendous Success'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
On Aug. 17, scores of citizens and elected officials from Braintree, Quincy, and Weymouth gathered at the gates of Clean Harbors Inc. to oppose that company's hazardous waste incinerator proposal and to call for a five-year nationwide moratorium on hazardous waste incineration.

The rally — which was organized by the National Toxics Campaign, the East Braintree Civic Association, and Citizens Organized to Defend the Environment (C.O.D.E.) — was a tremendous success.

Together, we sent a clear message to state officials and industry executives. We let them know that incineration is not an acceptable method for dealing with hazardous waste, and we put them on notice that they cannot turn our community into an "environmental combat zone" with an inordinately high concentration of noxious facilities.

It was gratifying to see so many people stand up for themselves, for their neighbors, and for the future of their community. Thank you to all the hard-working people who sacrificed a day's pay to attend the rally, and thank you to all the parents who showed up with children in tow. It's an honor and a privilege to count you as friends and neighbors.

"Thank you" to Paul Harold, Suzanne Bump, Frank Toland, Mike Cheney, Ted DeCristofaro, Peter Kolson, and Brian McDonald for being there when your community needed you. Cynics are fond of saying that "all politicians are alike." You proved the cynics wrong.

Thank you to the representatives from National Toxics Campaign, Greenpeace, Clean Water Action Project, and the Massachusetts Campaign to Clean up Hazardous Waste. You traveled to our community to stand with us and we are grateful.

Finally, thank you to the "sign man" who spent many hours making posters to advertise the rally.

APARTMENT DWELLERS NEED SPECIAL INSURANCE PROTECTION, TOO

If you rent an apartment you need specific coverage to insure yourself and the contents of your home. Your furniture and personal possessions such as jewelry, silverware, furs, clothing, and coin, gun and stamp collections should be insured against loss or damage by a Personal Property Policy. Such a policy protects against hazards like fire, vandalism, plumbing leakage, hail, windstorm or smoke anywhere in the world.

In addition, you should consider a Personal Liability Policy which provides financial protection against liability claims and suits brought by others for financial protection against liability claims and suits brought by others for accidental bodily injury or damage to their property.

A good renter's policy will also include medical payments coverage, additional living expenses allowances, legal liability, and credit card and check forgery protection. As you can see, a renter has just as much to lose as a homeowner.

'Church Of Mayors,' Too

United First Parish Church which is celebrating its 350th anniversary this year is well known as the "Church Of The Presidents."

Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives, of course, are buried in a crypt in the church.

And the Adams family worshipped there. But, you might say, First Parish could also be called the "Church of the Mayors."

Since Quincy became a city 100 years ago 27 men have served as mayor.

Of these, 10 — or more than one third — were members of United First Parish Church.

It has given Quincy more mayors than any other church in the city.

Including Quincy's very first mayor, Civil War veteran, Charles H. Porter, who took office in 1889, the year Quincy moved from a town to city government. He served from 1889-1890.

Charles Francis Adams, a direct descendant of the Adams family, served from 1896-97 and then went on to become Secretary of the Navy under President Herbert Hoover.

Russell Sears (1898) was elected to a one-year term at age 27 — the youngest Quincy mayor ever elected.

John O. Hall (1900-1901), and Eugene R. Stone (1912-13) followed in this period when Quincy was governed under what was called the "Homemade Charter."

During that period 14 men served as mayor, averaging out to a new mayor every two years.

Joseph Whiton, another member of United First Parish Church, was elected in 1917, the first under the Plan A form of government in existence today.

He served until 1920.

Free Admission Friday To Adams Historic Site

The National Park Service has designated Friday, Aug. 25 as "National Parks Day," allowing visitors free admission to all of the National Park Service's fee-charging units.

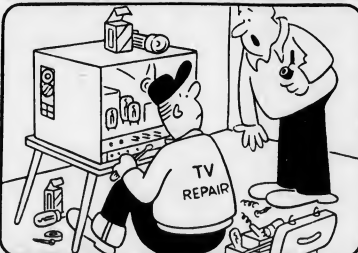

The Adams National Historic Site includes the birthplaces of John Adams, second President of the United States and John Quincy Adams, sixth President; and the "Old House" on Adams St. where four generations of the Adams family lived.

Park Rangers at the site provide tours through the homes, recognizing the public lives of the Adamses, and, in addition, provide a more personal view of this distinguished family.

The site is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., from Apr. 19 through Nov. 10. Reservations are required for groups of eight or more.

William A. Bradford (1921-22), Perley E. Barbour (1925-26) and Thomas S. Burgin (1935-1942) were also members of First Parish Church.

Burgin was also elected Quincy's first Plan E mayor in 1950 when Quincy tried out that form of government but ended it after a five-year stormy marriage and returned to Plan A.

Burgin was the last member of First Parish to serve as mayor.

Under Plan E a seven-member City Council — all serving at large — elected a city manager to run the city as chief executive.

The council also elected one of its own to serve as mayor. He presided over the council meetings like today's city council president, chaired the School Committee and represented the city at ceremonial and other functions.

In addition to Burgin, two others were Plan E mayors: David S. McIntosh (1952-53) and Amelio Della Chiesa (1954-57).

There were three city managers: William J. Deegan (1950-55), Donald Blatt (1955-56) and Edward T. Lewis (1956-58).

After five years of Plan E, Quincy became disenfranchised with that form of government and in 1955 voted to return to Plan A.

Della Chiesa became Quincy's mayoral longevity champ serving 12 years: four under Plan E and eight under Plan A.

There were children in Quincy who grew up knowing him as their only mayor. He was in office when they started first grade and was there Della Chiesa handing out diplomas with his name on them when they graduated from high school.

Fire Dept. To Lose Engine

budget of $250,000 compared to $531,000 last year. On Monday, he told councillors that because he will have run out of overtime money by Sept. 1 he will have to take Engine 6 and its complement of 3 men out of service.

In his presentation, O'Connell said the overtime reduction has bothered him since he was sworn in this spring.

"It's bothered me since the day I took this job. There is no cut in service or manpower which is going to be easy. I'm not guaranteeing that this plan will work.

"I'm sort of like an insurance salesman and a gambler. I roll the dice and hope we're right," he said.

With the loss of Engine 6 and its three men, the present manning level of 10 officers and 34 firefighters will drop to 10 officers and 31 firefighters. O'Connell described this level as "deficient" since operations on the fireground, even when they get done, do not get done safely.

Furthermore, the department's minimum manning level for each piece of equipment is three men, below the National Fire Protection Association's guideline for safety, O'Connell pointed out. The NFPA advises there be at least four men, preferably five or six, for each piece of equipment.

Although not a direct loss since no one would lose their jobs, but rather would be reassigned, O'Connell likened the deactivation of Engine 6 to a loss because there will be less men on the street fighting fires.

"Unless there's a change in funding now until Sept. 1, (Engine 6) will be put out of service. The money is not there," the chief said following the meeting.

In his detailed presentation, O'Connell said the city has reduced the number of firefighters over the past 15 to 20 years while trying to maintain the same amount of equipment.

In the early part of 1970, there were more than 200 firefighters on the department with a manning level of 10 officers and 40 firefighters. For equipment, there were eight engines, five ladders and one rescue truck.

After Proposition 2½ was passed in the early 1980s, the department's manpower dropped to 173 firefighters, manning level of 10 officers and 32 firefighters for nine engines, five ladders and one rescue.

Today, there are 180 firefighters, manning level of 10 officers and 34 firefighters, eight engines, four ladders and one rescue. As of Sept. 1, there will be 10 officers and 31 firefighters each shift for seven engines, four ladders and one rescue.

"We have been reducing manpower while trying to maintain the same protection. We might have the same number of equipment (now) but the number of men has decreased," O'Connell said.

The chief then turned slightly to the rear of the Council Chamber where some 25 firefighters were seated.

"You can't say the men are not doing their job. They are short-handed. We're over-extending ourselves."

Responding to O'Connell's call for assistance, several councillors proposed plans designed to generate revenue for the fire department and to add fire protection safety to city structures at a time when manpower is dwindling.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, upset by the mayor's suggestion last week to close the Wollaston station as a way to save money and beef up manpower at other stations, said he would "cut many, many things to make room for the Wollaston fire station."

Other councillors also went on record against closing the station.

Chretien noted that the station is centrally located, the second busiest station in the city and the only station in Ward 3, Quincy's largest ward. He added that he was willing to vote for a sewer use fee to increase the city's cash flow and thus boost funding for service.

O'Connell said he wants the Wollaston fire station to be refurbished and remain open. The chief noted that since July 4, the station has had 149 calls.

Because it is so active, O'Connell said it is imperative that the Wollaston station stay open.

"Closing a fire house means we'll be playing around with response or reflex time," the chief said, referring to the time it takes the department to respond and arrive at a fire.

This period is crucial because if fire personnel get to a fire scene within five minutes, the chances are good that the blaze will not escalate into a major fire.

"Closing the Wollaston fire station would mean jeopardizing that five minutes it takes the department to respond and arrive at a fire."

Furthermore, the chief said he would prefer to deactivate equipment than close an entire station. "I'd rather have an adequate crew of three (men) than an inadequate crew of zero. Other options must be pursued."

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney said the city should adopt an ordinance requiring sprinkler systems in all structures, including new residential dwellings.

Not only would it increase fire safety, Cheney said the systems would result in insurance reductions for dwelling owners.

Cheney also said he supports a sewer use fee if it used to fund city services such as public safety.

"We've got to get back to a comfortable level of service before someone gets killed. The bottom line is, you pay one way or the other," he said.

O'Connell added, "If we're going to have a fire department, we're going to need funds."

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said the city should look into assessing a fee for fire calls caused by faulty sprinklers or alarm. Such a system could raise several thousand dollars, perhaps as much as $100,000.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley agreed with the fee system and suggested reducing through attrition. He also pointed out the city will receive $2.8 million as mitigation for the interim sludge facility in 1991 and said he was "vehemently opposed" to a sewer tax.

"We're all struggling. We don't need another $5 million tax. I will fight to the death against a sewer user fee."

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, chairman of the Public Safety Committee, also agreed with the fee system and added the city should press the state government to restore lost local aid.

"What will happen in September when the overtime runs out? I'm frightened. I think we should exhaust every means to prevent coming to that point," Phelan said.

Councillor Stephen McGrath, who called McCauley's suggestion to close the Wollaston station "ludicrous," said the local aid issue is important.

"State government has basically screwed up. They haven't been watching when they should have been. And we're bearing the brunt of this," he said.

"We should be putting pressure on our (state) delegation to make sure these funds are restored," McGrath added.

Council President Patricia Toland told O'Connell, "We share your agony because nobody wins here. The idea of closing a station is unacceptable."

Several councillors dismissed O'Connell's idea of a moratorium on new building construction in Quincy.

Cheney did say he supports a moratorium on new buildings without sprinklers.

Caddy Awarded Congressional Medal

Gov. Maurice J. Tobin was scheduled to be one of the guests at the posthumous presentation of a Congressional Medal of Honor to the family of Marine Pfc. William R. Caddy of 252

Holbrook Rd., Wollaston. Aug. 24-30 1946 43 Years Ago
Caddy, 19, was killed March 3, 1945 on the Pacific island of Iwo Jima when he threw himself on a live hand grenade to save the lives of two comrades during hand-to-hand fighting with the Japanese.

Joseph E. Brett, chairman of the dedication of a memorial plaque to veterans in Montclair, said Rear Adm. Morton L. Deyo, commandant of the First Naval District would make the presentation.

Meanwhile, Adm. Deyo presented a bronze star to Navy Lt. William H. Collins Jr. of 54 Sturtevant Rd., Quincy, for heroism when the destroyer Bates was sunk by a Japanese kamikaze plane May 25, 1945.

Guest at the presentation was William H. Collins Sr., the hero's father who was general manager of the Bethlehem Fore River Shipyard when the Bates was built there in 1943.

Two Quincy Students Awarded John Caporale Scholarships

Two high school students from Quincy have been awarded the John A. Caporale Sr. Memorial Scholarships from the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, announces Sheriff Clifford Marshall of Quincy.

The scholarship was instituted two years ago in memory of Mr. Caporale, or "Cappy", a founding father of the Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriff's Association.

The recipients, Brendan J. Barr and Robert D. Roche, were awarded $500 for the pursuance of their college education. The scholarships were awarded during the NCHDSA's recent "Night At The Track", at Raynham/Taunton Greyhound Park.

Sheriff Marshall also presented the award winners with a plaque enlisting them as members of the association.

Barr, 18, is a graduate of Thayer Academy in Braintree. Hoping to pursue a career in broadcast journalism, his goal is to "return something to his community through his work."

An honor roll student, Barr has been involved in various community theatre productions and literary pursuits outside of school. He also worked at a graphic arts shop for two years where he learned typesetting, paste-up and photography.

At New York University this fall, he will pursue his studies in the communications field.

Roche, 19, is a graduate of Boston College High School. The youngest of five children, he attributes much of his academic and athletic accomplishments to his close family ties and supportive parents.

Recognized by "Who's Who Among American High School Students," Roche has received the "Coaches Award" for hockey and has been a conference all-star. Besides being an assistant captain on the B.C. High's varsity hockey team, he was a member of the Student Council and the school chapter of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving).

At Northwood College Preparatory School in Lake Placid, N.Y., Roche was captain of the varsity hockey team. While at Northwood, he received the Headmaster's award for attempting to make the most of Northwood and its environment through character and enthusiasm.

Roche, whose dream is to attend an Ivy League college and continue to play hockey, will enter Brown University this fall.

Thomas Feenan Installed Rotary Club President

Thomas G. Feenan, of Squantum was recently installed as president of the Quincy Rotary Club at ceremonies at The Neighborhood Club.

In his opening remarks to those in attendance, Feenan challenged Rotarians to double their effort by contributing more time for local civic and charitable causes.

Serving with him are James L. Chiccino of Quincy, President-Elect; Thomas J. Smyth of Abington, vice president; Thomas E. Cote, Weymouth, secretary and Paul N. Baharian, also of Weymouth as treasurer.

Board of Directors include immediate past president Robert Guarnieri, Steven J. Gilling, Dr. John J. Pasciucco Jr., Stephen D. Marini, Paul Ricca, Joseph J. Hennessey and David G. Montani Sr.

Quincy Rotary is comprised of women and men who are business and community leaders. Throughout the year they participate and contribute financially to local events such as special programs for the elderly, scholarships for local students as well as outdoor programs for children.

O'Connell Calls For Citizens Advisory Committee On Old Colony Railroad

Peter F. O'Connell, Quincy mayoral candidate, has called upon the MBTA to maintain an "open dialogue" with Quincy's residents regarding the proposed Old Colony Railroad.

He said such an effort will result in a "well thought out program that benefits the city" and helps meet the needs of the transportation authority if, in fact, the line is built.

O'Connell called for a "citizens advisory committee similar to that which existed in the planning stage of the Red Line project." Such an action must be taken, according to O'Connell, because the proposal is clearly beyond the discussion stage.

Among other steps that O'Connell suggested the MBTA consider, should the train line be built, were the following:

Restrict the hours of operation to commuting-travel hours during the work week and restrict all freight train traffic through the city;

Construct noise absorption barriers the length of the Quincy track-bed;

Build train stations in Quincy for Quincy residents; Assist in traffic control around areas that the train line impacts;

Commit to maintaining security and the grounds where the train takes on or discharges passengers;

Plant dense landscaping along the railbed particularly in residential area;

Develop a graduated fare structure so that those who ride it from one end to the other pay their fare share versus those who use only a small part of the route.

Senate Drug Report Available At Library

A recently released drug report entitled "Drugs, Law Enforcement and Foreign Policy" is now available at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy, announces Senator John Kerry.

The report was submitted by the Senate Subcommittee on Narcotics, Terrorism and International Operations. It is a culmination of two years of hearings conducted by Kerry's subcommittee and provides the details of the hearings, hundreds of hours of investigation and numerous policy discussions.

Testimony heard by Kerry and other members of the subcommittee reveals the staggering size of the international narcotics trafficking network and the power narcotics traffickers hold over some governments in the Western Hemisphere.

The report makes recommendations for policy planners and for legislation to reform the way future foreign policy decisions are made with respect to areas involving narcotics trafficking and law enforcement.

Kerry has also introduced legislation designed "to reduce conflicts between foreign policy and law enforcement interests," which the senator says "have done so much in recent years to make our government its own worst enemy in the war on drugs."

The legislation, the International Narcotics and Terrorism Control Act of 1989, is a by-product of this report.

The report is more than 1,150 pages long and thus it is impractical to send copies to the many Massachusetts citizens who have requested it.

And if Quincy residents have to put up with the odor, Jim doesn't think MWRA Executive Director Paul Levy should come off smelling like a rose. Jim believes that the MWRA headquarters and Paul Levy should be located in Quincy. There should be no compromise. Jim has also called on the MWRA to freeze Quincy sewer and water rates for the next 50 years. As your Mayor, Jim Sheets will fight the MWRA. Spotlight On HEALTH AND FITNESS

Wholesome at-your-desk snacks

A large percentage of food products in the United States are now in single-serve or small-size convenience packs, reflecting the mobile, fast-paced lifestyles of today.

The growing number of interesting single-serve snacks and foods means you no longer need to pack carrot and celery sticks when you want a healthy and wholesome at-your-desk snack.

An apple or banana is, of course, perfect. However, sometimes you want a snack that's a bit more interesting and satisfying, but still wholesome.

Here are some new desk snack ideas that are now available in single-serve packs and containers:

- For those cold afternoons, when nothing suits you like soup, there are ready-to-eat cups of soup. The soups come in their own plastic foam cups, and require only hot water. Many varieties are available, from Chicken to Oriental

Noodle:

- Already a big hit with kids, new Mott's Fruit Paks—chunky apple sauce with pieces of strawberries, pineapples, peaches or cherries—have a chunky texture and delicious taste that also appeal to adults;

- A new twist on an old theme: Crackers and cheese are now available in vacuum-packed containers that even come with their own knives;

- For that mid-afternoon pick-me-up, fruit juices come in boxes that need no refrigeration. Exciting variations on old fruit juice themes: Apple Raspberry juice, Apple Cranberry juice, Apple Grape juice;

- Nuts are a high-fiber, high-energy snack that never outgrow their fun. A large variety of nuts are available now—and most come in single-serve packs, either alone or combined with dried fruits.

Start Now To Control Weight Through Fall And Winter

As summer draws to a close, it's time to think about ways to keep from gaining extra weight during the coming seasons.

Fall and winter typically mean heartier, calorie-rich meals and a decrease in outdoor activity and exercise. Diet Center offers the following tips for keeping your waistline "in line" during the coming months:

- Decrease the amount of beef in your diet. Replace it with leaner meats, such as chicken or fish.

- Increase foods in your diet that are high in fiber, such as fresh raw fruits and vegetables (this is easy and a pleasure as fresh summer harvest is available in grocery stores, road-side stands and our own gardens). Other high fiber foods are whole-grain breads, crackers and bran, both oat bran and wheat bran. These foods take longer to digest and provide "staying power" to get you from one meal to the next without hunger and it's accompanying temptation to snack.

- Drink eight eight-ounce glasses of water every day. Water itself is filling and is a healthful alternative to beverages containing caffeine, alcohol or sugar. When selecting some of the new seltzer waters on the market, be sure to read the label and pass up those containing sugar, sucrose or fructose.

- Do not skip meals. Hunger encourages impulsive food choices, not usually wise choices. You may consume even more calories when hunger catches up with you than if you had eaten at mealtime in the first place.

- Shop on a regular basis to make sure you always have plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables available when you go to the refrigerator looking for "a little something to eat." Vegetable salads can be prepared ahead of time and provide the basis for quick nutritious meals. However, whenever you shop, be sure to do so with a list. Planning your meals ahead and only buying what is needed from your prepared shopping list will keep you "out of trouble."

- Reduce the amount of fatty extras in your diet. Each time you butter your bread, add dressing to a salad, or sour cream to a baked potato, make a conscious effort to use less than you're accustomed to.

also, try using herbs or lemon juice on cooked vegetables in place of butter or low-fat cottage cheese or yogurt in place of sour cream on baked potato.

- Last and very important, become more physically active. Walk whenever possible, take stairs instead of elevators, park your car at the end of the parking lot, and, instead of visiting over coffee and donuts, ask a friend to join you for a walk at break time. If you like more structured exercise, you'll find a lot of exercise programs start in the fall.

For more tips on ways to control your weight and improve your diet, contact your local Diet Center today.

NEW AGE NUTRITION

MAKE IT HEALTHY—BUT FAST AND EASY™

Health Hints From The American Dietetic Association

Only a decade ago, wholesome and healthful foods were equated with "made from scratch" recipes. Now, people want both quick and easy nutritious meals.

Typical consumer Mary Lewis looks at convenience and calories when making food choices. A long-time member of a weight control group, Lewis knows cutting fat is the best way to reduce calories.

It's the key to preventing some other health problems, too, ADA emphasizes. Here are a few fat-cutting ideas from the Association's supplement.

- Use fresh ground turkey instead of ground beef.

- Buy frozen dinners with less than 15 grams of fat.

- Try ice-milk or low-fat frozen yogurt instead of ice cream.

- Select lean, trimmed meat cuts such as flank or round steak or loin pork chops.

- Substitute evaporated skim, low-fat or whole milk for non-dairy creamer.

- Use sharp cheese with more flavor and less fat than a larger amount of milder cheese.

- Enjoy reduced-fat salad dressings, dips and sauces.

Go against the grain.

Cut down on salt.

Ricciardi Company Tops-Off Two Granite Avenue

The Ricciardi Company has announced the topping-off of Two Granite Ave. in Milton.

Codman Associates is serving as exclusive leasing agent for the project.

According to Paul Ricciardi Jr. of the Ricciardi Company, "Two Granite Avenue is a unique four-story, polished granite and tinted glass office building situated at the historic wharf location on the banks of the Neponset River - through which Quincy's granite was once shipped. The facility offers 96,000 sf of first-class office space with 22,000 sf floor plates."

Stephen J. Murphy, Executive Vice President of Codman Associates, is highly optimistic about the prospects for leasing Two Granite Avenue.

"Projects like this don't come along every day. Two Granite is on an historic site and the new building's polished granite exterior will be a lasting testament to its past. In addition, the building has a fabulous location for new offices."

This location includes:

- Immediate access to Boston by the Southeast Expressway and access to other major highways
- Accessible by the Red Line MBTA and bus service, convenient to downtown
- Over 330 parking spaces
- Sky-lit atriums
- Neponset River views
- Highway visibility

The very unique granite structure has been developed by the Ricciardi Company, Inc. whose other projects include Mercantile Wharf Building; the Quincy Market and South Market buildings at Faneuil Hall; and the Union Wharf Condominiums. Ricciardi, which originally manufactured granite products such as cemetery memorials, expanded into building restoration and development in 1970.

Codman Associates is one of New England's largest brokers of office and industrial/R&D space with offices in Boston MA, Providence RI and Nashua NH.

First-Time Buyer 'Still Alive And Buying'

Rising home prices and higher mortgage interest rates have not significantly reduced the percentage of first-time home buyers during the last five years according to statistics compiled by Century 21 Real Estate Corporation.

The national percentage of first-time buyers has remained steady at approximately 40 percent for this period, based on more than 150,000 sale per year to first-time buyers by the Century 21 system.

"It is a myth that the first-time home buyer is out of the market," noted Monte Helme, vice president of public information for Century 21 Real Estate Corporation, at a recently concluded seminar of the National Association of Real Estate Editors.

"In some areas of the country, such as the Chicago area, first-time buyers purchased 45 percent of the homes in the first quarter of 1989.

"The profile of the average first-time buyer is certainly changing," Helme noted. "Spot surveys of our brokers indicate the average first-time buyer is a few years older, buying a smaller house or purchasing a townhouse or condominium instead of a single family home. The first-time buyer may also be purchasing farther out and in less expensive neighborhoods."

The percentage of first-time buyers has remained basically stable for the last five years despite a rise in the average price of a starter home to $77,800 in March, 1989 from $63,000 at the beginning of 1985.* Effective interest rates have fluctuated between 9.3 percent and 12.4 percent during this time period according to NAR.

"There seems to be a general perception that rising prices and interest rates have squeezed the first-time buyer out of the real estate market," Helme noted. "We see no direct correlation between interest rates, home prices and the activity level of first-time buyers during the last five years."

"Each local market is different," Helme observed. "But in a vast majority of the country, the first-time buyer is alive and buying."

Century 21 Real Estate Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, is the largest real estate organization in the world.

Susan Adams, 80

Former Women's Club President

A funeral service for Susan (Acker) Adams, 80, of Squantum, formerly of Dorchester, past president of the Squantum Women's Club, was held Wednesday at the First Church of Squantum.

Mrs. Adams died Aug. 19 at Quincy Hospital.

She was active at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Dorchester and at the First Church of Squantum.

Born in Shelbourne Falls,

Nova Scotia, she lived in Squantum 50 years.

Wife of the late Percy A. Adams, she is survived by a son, Allen G. Adams of Framingham; a daughter, Eve M. Spiers of Rockland; six grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Leyland A. Hurshman, 83

A graveside service for Leyland A. Hurshman, 83, of Quincy, was held Aug. 16 in Cambridge City Cemetery.

Mr. Hurshman died Aug. 13 at Quincy Hospital after a brief illness.

A former maintenance supervisor for the Myerson Corp. in Cambridge, he worked for the company for 50 years.

He was born in Nova Scotia and lived 40 years in Quincy.

Mr. Hurshman is survived by his wife, Ruth I. (Tucker) Hurshman; a daughter, Grace

R. Lorimer of Hilton Head, S.C.; a sister, Belle Winkler of South Yarmouth; two grandchildren, G. Blair Lorimer of Davison, Mich. and Janice R. Lorimer of Hilton Head; and two great-grandchildren. He was the brother of the late Jennie Christie.

Arrangements were by Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Fund, 1105 Dorchester St., South Boston.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SOME THOUGHTS ON MONEY MATTERS ...

If you were to die tomorrow, would your family know what to do? Too many times over the years we have encountered families who did not know what to do and where to start, especially in money matters. Here is a general checklist for you to consider ...

1. IS YOUR WILL UP-TO-DATE AND DOES YOUR FAMILY KNOW WHERE IT IS?
2. ARE THE PREMIUMS PAID ON YOUR INSURANCE AND IS YOUR BENEFICIARY UP-TO-DATE?
3. ARE YOUR IMPORTANT PAPERS SUCH AS BANKBOOKS, SOCIAL SECURITY, V.A. AND OTHER IMPORTANT DOCUMENTS ALL TOGETHER AND DOES YOUR FAMILY KNOW WHERE THEY ARE?
4. DO YOU HAVE A LIST OF NAMES, ADDRESSES, PHONE NUMBERS OF YOUR INSURANCE AGENCIES, ACCOUNTANTS, LAWYERS, ETC?

We mention this checklist because we think it is something "To think upon."

Robert H. Martinson, 66 Ran For City Council, Congress

A private funeral service was held for Robert H. Martinson, 66, of Quincy, a retired salesman and an Army Air Corps veteran of World War II who ran for the Quincy City Council and Congress.

Mr. Martinson died Aug. 12 at Quincy Hospital after being ill for two years.

He was a gunner on B-24 bombers during the war and served in the Pacific during the invasion of Iwo Jima and the air offensive against the Japanese mainland.

He also flew on weather reconnaissance missions.

His awards included the Air Medal, the Asiatic Pacific Campaign Medal and the American Theater Campaign Medal.

Mr. Martinson attended North Quincy High School and entered the Army in 1942.

In 1975, he made an unsuccessful bid for a seat on the City Council. A strong law and order candidate, he urged placing foot patrolmen in the neighborhoods.

Mr. Martinson also ran for Congress in 1976. He spoke out against providing aid to other countries when Americans, especially elder people, are in dire need. He also advocated an end to forced busing.

Born in Avon, he moved with his family to Quincy when he was a child.

Four QJC Administrative App

Quincy Junior College announces four academic administrative appointments for the upcoming school year.

Patricia Ryan of Hanson has been named Associate Dean for Allied Health. Frank Perkins of Newton was reappointed chairperson of the Humanities and Communication division. Susan Somers of Quincy has been reappointed chairperson of the Business and Administrative Services division and Elaine Beaupre of Marshfield was appointed coordinator for the QJC Registered Nursing program.

Ryan's duties will include administration of all allied health programs as well as outreach efforts in the field. Last year, she began a collaboration with Brigham and Women's Hospital for QJC to educate licensed practical nurses on their staff to be eligible to take the registered nurse licensing examination.

The program is one of the first of its kind in the country and addresses the need for more educated registered nurses.

Ryan was also instrumental in moving the college's surgical technology program into facilities at the New England Medical Center.

She has been associated with QJC 15 years, first as a practical nursing program faculty member, and subsequently as a member of the registered nurse faculty, coordinator of the R.N. program, chairperson of the R.N. and acting associate dean.

Ryan is currently finishing up her doctorate program at the University of Massachusetts, having earned a bachelors degree from Fitchburg State College and masters of education at Bridgewater State College.

Perkins has been an English instructor at the college 25 years and chairperson of the Humanities division since 1985. He received a bachelors and masters degree in teaching at Harvard College and a master of arts from Boston College.

Perkins has been active on the college senate and also was involved in the establishment of the core curriculum.

Somers has taught at QJC three years and has been chairperson of Business and Administrative Services since she came to the college. She earned her bachelors from Northeastern and her MBA from Utah State University.

Somers is currently working on her doctors degree at Boston University where she received a full tuition scholarship for an excellent academic record.

Beaupre has taught in the QJC registered nursing program 10 years. Her specialty is in advanced medical surgical nursing.

This past year, Beaupre revised the R.N. curriculum and developed the curriculum for the college's advanced placement R.N. program in which LPNs are able to earn their associate degree in registered nursing in one year.

Finn Requests No Soliciting By Retired Police Chiefs Assn.

Quincy Police Chief Francis Finn has requested that the Association of Retired Police Chiefs, Inc., based in Holbrook do no soliciting of monies in Quincy.

In a letter to the association's field secretary, Sam Farrell, Finn said, "Speaking for myself and also on behalf of the officers of the Quincy Police Department, I respectfully request that you do no soliciting of monies in the City of Quincy.

"We have enough worthy causes of our own and I thank you for your compliance in this request," the chief said.

Finn's letter, dated Aug. 18, was in response to a form letter written Aug. 14 by Farrell.

Farrell's letter, delivered to all heads of police departments including Finn, said the Association of Retired Police Chiefs, Inc., is legitimate.

"In the past, there have been questions regarding this problem and this is for your personal edification," Farrell wrote.

Accompanying the letter was a notice written by

Secretary of State Michael Connolly stating the association "appears by the records of this office to have been incorporated under the General Laws of this Commonwealth on April 10, 1978.

"I further certify that so far as appears of record here, said corporation still has legal existence," Connolly said.

O'Connell Committee Plans Aug. 29 Luau

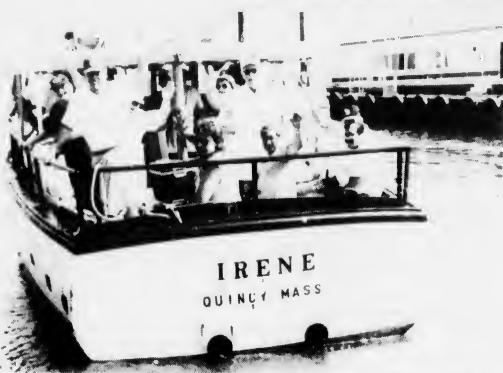

The O'Connell for Mayor Committee is planning an authentic Hawaiian Luau for Tuesday, August 29 at the Ocean Terrace at Marina Bay, North Quincy.

The O'Connell Committee is planning to attract more participants than the 1,000 who attended the Red Sox "Fun-Raiser" held in the spring.

The authentic "Luau" will feature a complete Hawaiian dinner. The entertainment will include a Polynesian Review with Polynesian and Hawaiian dancers in traditional "Island" costume.

Tickets may be purchased by visiting or calling O'Connell for Mayor Headquarters at 1620 Hancock St. Quincy Center. The telephone number is 472-8800.

Quincy Elks Treat Veterans To Cruise, Cook-Out

The Quincy Lodge of Elks recently treated 25 hospitalized veterans from the Jamaica Plain V.A. Hospital to the 35th annual harbor cruise and cookout on George's Island.

The cruise was aboard the ship "Irene", skippered by Captain Dick Sutherland. The Sutherland family has provided the boat cruise for 25 years. The tradition was started by Dick Sutherland's father.

In addition to the annual summer cookout and harbor cruise, the Quincy Lodge of Elks has been visiting the V.A. Hospital since it was first built, providing refreshments and professional variety shows as well as other events.

Heather Roche Finishes First In Superkids Mini-Olympics

Heather Roche of Quincy was a first place winner in the 11th annual Superkids Mini-Olympics held recently at YMCA locations in Quincy, Weymouth and Milton.

Heather won a scooter. Jenny McGee of Wollaston was a second place winner and received a transistor radio.

A sports watch, third place prize, went to Thomas Zangla of Quincy.

The Superkids event was sponsored by the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association and the South Shore YMCA.

Dialogue Sermon By Co-Pastors At Covenant Congregational

At the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., co-pastors Rev. Kathleen Graves and Rev. Kirk Johnson will both preach.

The sermon, entitled "Which One Is You?" will be in the form of a dialogue.

Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude. Anna Day and Thyra Nelson will sing a duet.

A nursery is available for children age five and younger. The attendant will be Robert Purpora. Immediately following the service, there will be a coffee hour in Person Hall.

Members of the church board will travel to West Swansy, NH for a retreat to plan church activities for the coming year. Rally Day, the kick-off of fall programs, will be Sept. 10.

Events at Pilgrim Pines in N.H. include the Labor Day weekend celebration of the East Coast Conference Centennial, a Womens Retreat Sept. 8-10, 12-14 and 15-17, and a Mens Retreat Oct. 6-8.

For more information about any of the church's activities, please call the church office at 479-5728.

'The Way Up' To Celebrate 25th Anniversary

The Reunion Committee of "The Way Up" is seeking current addresses and telephone numbers of people who have participated in "The Way Up" in any way during the past 25 years.

The addresses are being collected so that such persons can be sent personal invitations to the anniversary celebration.

"The Way Up" is a special youth ministry based at the First Church of Squantum and sponsored by a number of churches on the South Shore to provide chaplaincy services to young people referred by Quincy Juvenile Court, those in various youth institutions in the area and teenagers in the community presently unrelated to any other church.

Until 1981, the group was called "The Way." The name was changed that year to avoid any confusion of the Quincy-based group with "The Way International" (based in Ohio), with which the Quincy group has no connection. The founder and pastor of the ministry since its inception has been the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, an American Baptist minister and the pastor of the First Church of Squantum.

On Oct. 1, "The Way Up" will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a special church service at the First Church of Squantum, a reception after the service and a display of "Way Up" memorabilia. The highlight of the occasion will be the reunion of former participants, members, workers, parents, contributors and members of the board of directors.

The addresses and telephone numbers of former participants can be sent to the Reunion Committee of "The Way Up," 176 Bellevue Rd., North Quincy 02171 or telephoned directly to the pastor of The Way Up, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin at 328-6649. Chairman of the Reunion Committee is Mrs. Jean A. Phinney.

'Being Too Good A Neighbor' Sermon Topic At Bethany

During the summer months at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., there is one worship service held at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon Sunday on the topic, "Being Too Good A Neighbor." Joan P. Arnold will be the lay scripture reader.

Tammy Vozzella, soprano, will be the soloist, with Charles J. Blue, Sr. at the organ console. She will sing two selections: "They Could Not" composed by Ron Harris and Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

The Sunday School is closed during the summer. However, child care is provided for children from birth through kindergarten. The worship service will be broadcast "live" direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 a.m. over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

A fellowship hour will be held in the Allen Parlor at 11 a.m., immediately following the worship service.

Individuals and families from the area are invited to come and share in both the worship and fellowship.

For information concerning the ministries and programs of Bethany Church, please contact the church office weekdays 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 479-7300.

Final Suburban League Season Quincy, North Start Workouts Aug. 28

By TOM SULLIVAN

It's that time of year again. The Quincy and North Quincy High football squads will begin full-scale workouts for their final season in the Suburban League next Monday morning, Aug. 28, with double sessions.

Actually, the teams reported yesterday (Wednesday) for three days of conditioning without pads.

Sixth-year Quincy coach Jack Rayner will greet the Presidents for the start of full-scale drills Monday at 8:30 a.m. and the squad will practice until 11:30 at Faxon Field.

The players will return for an afternoon workout from 1 to 3 p.m.

Rayner has a new freshman coach in Bob Keucher, a teacher in the high school who replaces Earl Metzler, who moves over to North Quincy.

His other assistants will be returning. John Taglieri, who has done a fine job with the defense, is back as are John Sullivan and Bob Noble. Steve Spencer is also back as a volunteer coach.

Quincy was winless in 1987 but salvaged a 14-14 tie with North Quincy on Thanksgiving.

Last year, the Presidents won four of their last five games and finished at 5-5 with a big 29-21 victory over North.

Quincy will open the season Friday night, Sept. 15, against Suburban League rival Cambridge Rindge and Latin at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 7 p.m.

North Quincy, under eighth-year coach Ken McPhee, will report Monday morning at 8:15 and work out at Kavanagh Stadium until 11:30. After a lunch break, the squad will meet from 12:30 to 1 and return for an afternoon session from 1:15 to 3:45.

Both schools will follow these practice schedules until the opening of school.

McPhee's team last year had a four-game winning streak snapped by Quincy and finished with a 6-4 record.

North lost a hard-working veteran volunteer coach when John Muldowney died last February of a heart attack at his winter home in Florida.

"We will miss John, who had coached in the Quincy Youth League for many years and really knew his football," McPhee said. "He worked well with the boys and was an excellent coach and an outstanding gentleman."

Also gone is Mark Mulvaney, who has stepped down for the second time as a North aide. He will be replaced by Earl Metzler, who last fall led the Quincy freshmen to an outstanding season.

Returning are Peter Chisolm, Pete Zoia, Tom Carter and Kevin Kelly. Kelly again will coach the freshmen. Also back is trainer Dean Merlin.

Next fall, Quincy and North will join the revamped Old Colony League, facing Plymouth, Silver Lake, Barnstable, Taunton, Falmouth, Weymouth-North and Bridgewater-Raynham.

The Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving rivalry will continue.

This fall, both teams will play five Suburban League games, against each other as well as Cambridge, Waltham, Brookline and Newton North.

Quincy will also meet Peabody, Malden and Revere of the Greater Boston League, future Old Colony League rival Weymouth North and Weymouth South, which will be moving into the South Shore League next year.

North will meet Revere and Medford of the Greater Boston League, future Old Colony League rival Silver Lake, oldtime rival Milton of the Bay State League and Weymouth South.

North Quincy will be the smallest school in the new league while Quincy will be number five in enrollment.

However, Quincy's enrollment includes the Vo-Tech School.

Most of the other schools in the Suburban League have grown much bigger than Quincy and North and both schools have sought admittance into the Old Colony League for two years.

Weymouth North and South moved out of the Suburban League several years ago and have enjoyed much more success since joining the Old Colony League.

North Quincy will open the season at Milton Saturday, Sept. 16, at 1:30 and will play its first league game at Newton North on Sept. 23 at 1:30.

ED FLAVIN of Quincy, a freshman outfielder, has won a varsity letter at Bentley College. Flavin, a 1988 graduate of Quincy High, led the Falcons in hitting with a .354 average and came within three of the single season Bentley record for hits in a season. Included in his 45 hits were eight doubles, two triples and two home runs. He scored a team-leading 24 runs, drove in nine and stole eight bases. He was selected for the Division 2 all-star second team.

Kane's Wins Second Jaehnig League Title In Row

Kane's Place won the championship of the Jaehnig Chiropactic Men's Summer Basketball League for the second year in a row, defeating the Quincy Nets, 91-82, in the championship game.

As was the case all year, Kane's was led by the offensive firepower of Mark Millane, Billy Dacey and Dean Coletti. Millane, who has been a member of all five Jaehnig League championships teams, scored 30 points. Dacey, recently inducted into the Quincy High Basketball Hall of Fame, had his best game with 29 points and Coletti scored 18 and was instrumental in getting Kane's into the championship game, scoring 39 points in the semifinals in which Millane and Dacey were out with injuries.

Lost in the shuffle was Brian Reale for the Nets. The 6-4 swingman, who starred for B.C. High and Holy Cross, scored 40 points to almost singlehandedly keep the Nets in the game.

The Nets, who led with five minutes left to play before running out of gas, received strong contributions from Kurt MacDonald with 15 points, Steve Belcastro with 14 and Rick Stoltz with 13.

The Nets were without one of their top players, Jeff Timberlake, who, after tryouts with the Celtics and Denver Nuggets, was trying out for the Golden State Warriors.

The Jaehnig roster included Coletti, Millane, Dacey, Peter and Paul Forbes, Tom Henry, John Bradley, P.J. Fay and Joey Russell.

Playing for the Nets were Brian Cox, Reale, Belcastro, Stoltz, MacDonald, Timberlake, Al Wolfe, Arturo Russell, Rich and Roger Homan and Kevin Moore.

Point Sweeps Doubleheader

Needing two wins to stay in the hunt for first place in Division C of the Quincy Men's Softball League, the Point Pub rose to the occasion and swept a doubleheader from Washington Tap, 19-6 and 11-8.

The Pub and Granite Rail are virtually tied for first place. Rail at 21-4 and Pub at 22-5.

Right fielder Al Freeman had five hits, scored three runs and drove home five for the Pub in the twin bill and Mike Bates also had five hits including a towering home run.

Chuck Sullivan had three doubles and a triple. Bob Kane four hits, Brian Beliveau, Mike Sullivan, Bob Ienello, Dave Zuroms and Darin Zemp three each, Mark Glynn two and Joe Bomback, Joe Godfrey, Stu Coull, John Koceniack, P.J. Hussey and Steve Constan one each.

For Washington Tap, Spike Fitzsimmons had five hits. Steve Sherlock four and Dean Vanelli three, while Bob St. John, Paul Moriarty and pitcher Steve Hopkins played well.

Fourth place PIP Printing edged Luke's Lounge, 11-10, on designated hitter Gary McNeil's two-out two-strike single to cap a seven-run rally with two outs in the seventh inning.

Trailing, 10-4, pitcher Dave Brofin hit a bases-clearing double. With the bases loaded again, McNeil came through with his game-winning hit.

Larry Taglieri, Matt Norton, Jeff Drew and Ed Arcavardi all had hits.

Leading Luke's were Joe Callahan, Kurt McDonald, Mike Burnes and Morgan O'Shea.

The standings: Granite Rail, 21-4; Point Pub, 22-5; Putman Investments, 19-6; PIP Printing, 14-10; Continental Cable, 13-13; Washington Tap, 11-15; Hat Rack, 10-14; Luke's Lounge, 9-15; Sagamore II, 4-21; Sagamore P.O., 2-23.

Police, City Officials Win

Koch Doubleheader Raises $1,600 For MDA

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Benefit Softball Doubleheader was the most successful ever in 1989 raising over $1,600 so far with more contributions still coming in.

The Quincy Police Department handcuffed the Quincy Fire Department, 21-4, and the City Officials overcame the News Media, 21-15, during the fun-filled doubleheader last week at Adams Field which made Jerry's Kids the big winners.

Co-chairmen of the event, Tom Koch of the Quincy Council on Aging, and Bob Bosworth, assistant editor of The Quincy Sun, were aided by local businesses in making this year's event an even bigger success.

Winners of the raffle are Dick Curran, gift certificate to Walsh's Restaurant, Rita Ellis, gift certificate to Walsh's Restaurant, Helen Gohl, gift certificate to Handshake's Cafe, Barbara Smith, gift certificate to The Common Market Restaurant, Mrs. Simone Koch, pair of Red Sox tickets donated by The Quincy Sun, and Erin Obert, a new baseball glove donated by Colman's Sporting Goods. Among the winners of three T-shirts donated by Quincy Cablevision was Mayor Francis McCauley.

The event was originally organized by the late Richard J. Koch, Sr. who served with Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth as co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon Committee for 11 years. To date the committee has raised more than $1 million to help fight muscular dystrophy.

This is the 13th year of the benefit doubleheader which has now raised over $18,000. Mr. Koch died in 1987 and the game was named in his memory last year.

The Police made it five wins in a row over the Fire Dept. Dick Tapper set the tone with a lead-off homer for the winners. Pete Gallagher, Bill Brabazon and Ed Kusser followed with consecutive doubles.

Brabazon, Kusser, Rich Brabazon and Steve Kring also homered for the Police. Steve Igo had three hits and pitched well in relief of winning pitcher Jim Buhl.

John Ryan, Gerry O'Rourke, Wayne MacDonald, Brian Tobin, John Mulligan and Gallagher also contributed to the offensive attack.

Paul Leonard, Luis Ruiz, John Moran and Darren DeCoste were bright spots at the plate for the Fire Dept.

Other members of the QPD who played were Jim Silcox, Barry DeFranco, and Dick Churchill. The Police team participated in a national tournament in Detroit this past week.

The rest of the QFD roster included, Mike Butts, Fred Baldock, Gary Smyth, Chuck Walters, Steve Mahoney, Kevin Unger, Brian Summerling, Jimmy Kelly, Dom Conso, Ed Fenby, Dave

SAFE! -- Firefighter Luiz Ruiz slides safely under the tag of John Mulligan of the Police Department in a close play at third base. Ruiz had two hits and scored a run for the Fire Department.

Anderson, Ed Ellis, Mike Davis and Kevin Bythrow and Bob Pettinelli.

The second game was a wild affair which saw the Media build a 13-9 lead through seven innings only to blow it by allowing six runs in both the eighth and ninth innings.

Bill Ketter, editor of the Patriot Ledger, and John McKay, of Thompson & McKay Publishing Co., blasted back-to-back homers in a five run second inning for the Media. Eric Schwarz of the Patriot Ledger had four hits, Mark Knowlton, of the Ledger, Bosworth and Steve Kavanagh of the Quincy Sun had three hits each and Earl LaChance of the Ledger and John Nicholson of WJDA had two each.

The City Officials were paced by MVP Ray Cattaneo who pitched, had two hits and scored twice. Cattaneo is the head of the Parks and Cemetery Depts.

The key hit for the City Officials was delivered by traffic engineer David Kinnecom who blasted a grand slam in the eighth. City Planner, Kevin Shea also hit a home run and city councilman Tim Cahill had three hits. Other key offensive stars for the City Officials were Mike Shaheen, Health Department, Koch, Brian Buckley, Parks Department, Dana Childs, treasurer, Rich Meade, Planning Department, Rich McNease, Cemetery Department, Helene Walls, Planning Department, Steve Durkin, School Committee, and City Councillor Chuck Phelan.

Rounding out the Media squad were Steve Farquhar and Ed Fiddler of Continental Cablevision, Dick Trust of the Patriot Ledger, and John Amato, Rob Gilman, Herb Fontaine and Bob Cusack of WJDA. Henry Bosworth managed the team.

Also participating for the City Officials were Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, School Committeeman Frank Santoro, Arthur Foley, mayor's office, City Councillor Jim Sheets, City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie, and state Rep. Steve Tobin.

Quincy High School coaches John Franchessini and Jack Raymer served as play-by-play announcers for the Cablevision Broadcast and Recreation Director Barry Welch was the public address announcer.

Braintree In Legion World Series In Tennessee

The Braintree Legion baseball team, which beat out Morrisette for the Zone 6 championship, won the Northeast Regional title for the first time Sunday and will represent Massachusetts and the Northeast in the Legion World Series in Tennessee this week.

Despite a remarkable high school and Legion record, Braintree coach Don Fredericks' teams have never won the regional title.

Braintree takes a brilliant 33-3 record into the national championship series. It won the Zone 6 regular season title at 16-0, swept by Mass Tire and Morrisette in four straight games, and, after winning the state crown, won its first three games in the Regionals, topping Endicott

N.Y., 14-1; Bennington Vt. 4-0; and Aldenville Ma. 8-4. It lost to Woonsocket R.I. 7-0, but, after Hamden Ct. defeated Woonsocket, 5-4, Braintree won the championship game, 7-1, over Hamden.

Applications Available For Tennis Tourney

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that applications are now available for the 18th annual City of Quincy Tennis Tournament.

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch said this year's tournament will once again be co-sponsored by the Granite Bank.

"This makes the 11th year of our association with Granite Bank. Their commitment to our city, by each year providing awards, refreshments and printing for this event, helps to provide a positive recreational activity for young and old as well as men and women. We are pleased that they continue to support our All City Tournament," said Welch.

This year, John Franceschini will return as tournament director and will oversee action in 10 separate events. There will also be a special consolation in the largest event that we have registered entries.

This year's events are:

Men's 50 and over, men's 35 and over, men's singles, men's doubles, mixed doubles, women's 35 and over, women's singles, women's doubles, boys 16 and under and girls 16 and under.

Applications are available at the Quincy Recreation Department, City Hall, and both branches of the Granite Bank. All participants must be residents of Quincy and the deadline for applications is Friday, Sept. 1. The matches will be played nights and weekends at the Vo-Tech tennis courts beginning Thursday, Sept. 7, and will continue until champions are crowned in all divisions.

Application fee is $8 for the first event and $1 for each additional event. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Quincy Recreation Department at 773-1380, ext. 204.

Weymouth, Medford Owens Memorial Tourney Finalists

The Tom Owens Memorial Baseball Tournament at Adams Field, which was expected to be over Monday or Tuesday, is still on and the championship will be decided either tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock or Friday, at the same time.

The two remaining teams are the Weymouth Elks, the only unbeaten team, and Andre Realty of Medford. If the Elks win tonight, they are the champions. A win for Andre will mean the title game Friday night.

The Quincy Legion All-Stars, who were walloped by Whitman VFW in their first game, turned in an excellent effort in their second game but were eliminated by Somerville, 3-2.

Somerville scored the winning run in the seventh inning on an RBI single by Joe Rizzo.

Bill Hartnett pitched an excellent game for Quincy.

In the sixth, Quincy's Chris Higgins and Jim O'Connor singled and moved up on a wild pitch but Joe Saugate struck out the next two batters to end the threat.

Quincy opened the scoring in the second, Higgins led off with a single, stole second and scored on Rob McDonald's single. Greg Boudreau followed with a single but Saugate struck out the next batter.

The results of the other tournament games through Monday night:

Weymouth Elks 4, Connelly Club 1; Boston Club 5, Chelmsford 3; Rockland Royals 14, Whitman VFW 1; Andre Realty 15, Somerville 4; Chelmsford 9, Connelly 1; Weymouth 7, Boston Club 5; Whitman 7, Boston Club 6; Rockland 7, Somerville 2; Andre 4, Chelmsford 3; Rockland 7, Whitman 3; Weymouth 6, Andre 5; Andre 11, Rockland 9.

McLoughlin Praises Morrisette Cattaneo Again Urges One Legion Team

Marty McLoughlin, a catcher-third baseman for the Morrisette Legion baseball team in 1981-82-83, was the speaker at the annual baseball dinner held at the post home.

McLoughlin said the three years he played for Morrisette led to a scholarship to Tufts University and played a big part in achieving his goal of becoming an engineer. He is currently a computer engineer.

Morrisette always has had a winning tradition and has always been first or second in Zone 6, he said. "It was really enjoyable to play for Morrisette and I hope you boys realize how fortunate you are playing for such an excellent organization."

Manager Ray Cattaneo, who coached Morrisette for 17 years, was the toastmaster and introduced those at the head table: Post Comdr. Tom Eames, who brought the greetings of the post; chaplain Edward Boland, who gave the invocation; athletic officer Frank Osborne; coach Dave Perdios; McLoughlin; scorer-statistician Richard 'Berger' Ryan and Tom Sullivan of The Quincy Sun.

Cattaneo repeated his opinion that, unless Quincy has only one Legion team, the city will not have a state or regional champion. "You can't expect to have a championship team when the talent is so spread around," he said. "Baintree beat us out for the zone title this year, won the state championship and I think will win the Northeast Regional and go to the Legion World Series in Tennessee. Don Fredericks, who has an outstanding coach, has had his players since grammar school, as Baintree has only one team.

"Every one of the eight teams in the Northeast Regionals is the only Legion team in its respective community. This means a lot and if there was one team in Quincy, considering the outstanding players on each of the Morrisette Quincy and Wollaston teams, we would have a truly outstanding team that could probably make the World Series."

Morrisette was the last Zone 6 team to make the World Series, playing in South Dakota in 1975.

"It is surprising to me that Fredericks, who has a fantastic high school and Legion record, has never made the World Series," Cattaneo said.

Perdios was more optimistic than Cattaneo on Morrisette's future.

"We have 12 of our 15 players returning next year and, with the addition of a few good players, I honestly feel we have a good chance of unseating Baintree as the zone champion," he said. "Our kids did a terrific job this year and went further than a lot of people felt they could."

"With three teams in the city, it is up to me to recruit the best players available. You have to really recruit these kids as there are three teams trying to get the best."

Perdios announced that a Morrisette Alumni Club is being formed and the former players will help raise funds to keep the program going. Osborne is responsible for most of the funds now, getting ads for the program book.

Cattaneo introduced his longtime pitching coach, Billy Cochrane, and Ray Dunn, who coached the Firemen's Babe Ruth League team for many years. "Ray did a great job and we have benefited by getting many of his players for Morrisette, including several this year," he said.

A letter was read from former National Commander Jake Comer of Quincy, who had planned to attend the dinner but was attending the Northeast Regionals in Chicopee.

Players receiving jackets, team photos and packages of gum from Osborne were Billy McDougall, Gary Rawdon, Mike Bayliss, Jeff Calvert, Tony Andersonis, Brian Taylor, Dan Ryan, Rob McDonald, Ronnie Boudreau, Erik DeBoer, Billy Warren, George Rozanitis, Kevin McDougall, Jim Glynn and Rob Cinegrano.

Osborne has given out gum to the players for 36 years.

Boston College baseball coach Richard "Moe" Mahoney will be the speaker at the annual Quincy Legion baseball banquet Monday, Aug. 28, at 7 p.m. at the post home.

Coach Ed Spring will announce a new coaching staff for next year and awards will be made to the players.

Tickets are $8.50 each. Further information can be obtained by calling Spring at 773-3249.

Golf Clinics Sept. 8-9

The Baintree Hospital Sports Medicine and Therapeutic Recreation Departments have scheduled two half-day golf clinics Sept. 8 and 9 to teach former golfers who have suffered a stroke, head or back injury, or who have arthritis, how to get back into the swing of things.

The clinics will take place at Iyanough Golf Course in Hyannis on Friday, Sept. 8, and at Baintree Municipal Golf Club on Saturday, Sept. 9, from 9 a.m. to noon.

The hospital has engaged Gus Bernardoni of Chicago, a gold pro and author of the book "Golf God's Way," written for people with disabilities who have learned how to resume their favorite sport.

Because he will provide individualized instruction, pre-registration is required and participants should bring a No. 5 iron with them.

Those wishing to register for either program are asked to call the hospital's Therapeutic Recreation Department at 848-5353, Ext. 2318.

There is no charge for the program.

Following the tournament an awards luncheon was served at La Casa Biana in Canton with 75 ladies attending. The chairpersons were Stephanie Rizza, Edna Pinkham and Charlotte Dickie.

Cadet Donald Greenwood Attends ROTC Camp

Cadet Donald G. Greenwood received practical work in military leadership at the U.S. Army ROTC advanced camp, Fort Bragg, N.C.

The six-week camp, attended by cadets normally between their third and fourth year of college, includes instruction in communications, management and survival training.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in either the U.S. Army, Army Reserve or National Guard for the cadet.

Greenwood is the son of Donald H. and Dorothy E. Greenwood of 60 Alvin Ave., Quincy.

He is a 1986 graduate of North Quincy High School, Quincy.

St. Ann's Student 'One Of A Kind' Winner

Eleven year old Linda Hennessy of Quincy has won the grand prize in Filene's WNEV-TV's recent "One-of-a-Kind" kids contest.

The contest required girls and boys 6 to 16 to write a song, poem or rap in 100 words or less describing "Why I Feel Good About Me."

A seventh-grade student at St. Ann's School in Wollaston, Linda's song was selected the grand prize winner from among hundreds of entries received from throughout the New England region.

Filene's and WNEV-TV have joined forces for the second year to sponsor the store's 1989 "Ready To Go Back To School" campaign featuring the television's popular morning children's program.

As grand prize winner, Linda will have her song professionally arranged and performed by "Ready To Go!" co-hosts Liz Callaway and Scott Reese, as the pair entertains at selected Filene's stores from Aug. 14-19 in the Greater Boston area.

Linda, who spent four days writing the winning entry, will also appear live on a special prime-time "Ready To Go!" with Callaway and Reese in September. In addition, she will receive a $200 Filene's back-to-school wardrobe as well as a black "Ready to Go" jacket.

The lyrics to Linda's song are:

"I think I'm unique and one of a kind cause in life I follow my own mind.

"I like action and adventures too and I always like to try something new.

"I have good grades and that's okay cause getting A's means in the future getting your way.

"I like to listen to music, classical and rock and I like to read, write and just to talk.

"I collect things from all around such as stamps, stickers and keys, whatever can be found.

"I have a lot of friends and they're just fine. I like to hang around them and have a good time.

"I feel good about myself from my head to my toes ... and I think I'm full of life and that's the way it goes."

Laurel McCloskey In Perfect Teen Pageant

Laurel McCloskey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCloskey of Quincy, has been selected as a contestant in the America's Perfect Teen Pageant for Massachusetts, to be held at the Sheraton Lincoln Inn in Worcester, Sept. 2 and 3.

The state pageant will select the Massachusetts representative to the America's Perfect Teen National Pageant to be held in October in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Miss McCloskey, who was selected as an entrant-at-large, will be competing with girls from all over the state.

She will be a junior at North Quincy High School in Sept. and works part-time at Bradlee's in Quincy. She participated in the Miss Merrymount Pageant, 1988 and was first runner-up.

A registered model with Cameo Teens in Boston, her hobbies include reading, painting and drawing, listening to music and being with friends.

The America's Perfect Teen Pageant system is dedicated to the high ideals of sportsmanship, competition and Americanism.

Fore River Wins Arts, Crafts Top Honors

Recreation Director Barry Welch announces that Fore River Park's "The Recreator," a crepe paper and paper mache mode of a boat and water skier was the top vote getter in the Quincy Recreation Department's annual Arts and Crafts display.

The display, which features a project from each of the city's 26 summer playgrounds, was held on McIntyre Mall for two days. During that period the public voted on their favorite exhibit.

There were more than 400 voters in this year's balloting.

In second place was a model of Russell Park made by Russell Park.

Third place was an alligator of paper mache by Palmer Park.

Fourth place was Batman head by Faxon Park and in fifth place a model of Freddy Kreuger from A Nightmare on Elm St.

Prizes were donated to the top three entries by Pizza Hut, Handshakes, Papa Gino's, Brigham's in Quincy and Wollaston, and McDonald's on Southern Artery.

The event was coordinated by Arts and Crafts Specialists, Colleen Carney, Tina Calabro, Julie Croke, and Sue Cullen.

Participants in the project from Fore River were Nicolette Martinson, Daniel Robertson, Jamie McCarthy, Michael McCarthy, John Bitetti, Dean Morris, Beth Perry, Kristen Perry, and Quincy Recreation Leaders Michelle Drury and Joe D'Angelo.

Participants from Russell Park were Maryellen Eddy, Mike Eddy, Chris Delfuto, Charles Landry, Marybeth

Feeney, Bob Delfuto, Chris Roncarati, Han Tai, and Quincy Recreation Leaders Kathie Feeney and John Grennon.

Participants in the project from Palmer Park were Tommy Nochen, Michelle Mochen, Mike Bartlett, Joey Kelley and Quincy Recreation Leaders Maureen G. Shea, Nicole Manton and Mark Molloy.

Participants from Faxon Park were Chris Cunro, P.J. Shea, Jen Santry, Jeff Daignault, D.J. Carinin, Susan Sweeney and Quincy Recreation Leaders Andrea Contrino and Bill Santry.

Participants in the project from Elm Street were Josh Dolen, Heather Dolen, Jonathan Dolen, Frank Rubino, Alicia Schmock and Quincy Recreation Leaders Shana Cobban and Jim Glynn.

'Casualties Of War' Good Vietnam War Film But Fox Out Of Place

"CASUALTIES OF WAR"
DIRECTED BY BRIAN DEPALMA

STARRING MICHAEL J.
FOX AND SEAN PENN

(Now playing at Entertainment
Cinemas, Quincy Fair Mall)

By JANE ARENA

As films about the war in Vietnam go, Brian DePalma's "Casualties of War" is a good one. Sadly though, it's a good film with a casting problem.

Michael J. Fox does not fit the role of a soldier in Vietnam, even if he does play one of the good guys. He's too young-looking, too short and still too easily recognizable as his 'Family Ties' character to be believable in the part.

Asking the viewer to make him fit the role, by the sheer forces of imagination (a difficult task, but possible, perhaps), is unfair. Intellectual energies are much better spent on other elements of the film. DePalma offers a lot to ponder on.

It's better then, to simply accept the casting mistake at the outset and try to forget about it. The film is good enough and intense enough to allow it.

Based on an actual incident of the Vietnam war, first reported in New Yorker magazine in 1969, the film examines, from several levels and several angles, the kidnapping, rape and murder of a young Vietnamese farm girl at the hands of a squadron of American soldiers.

DePalma doesn't need blood and guts tactics here, and doesn't use them. He relies instead on showing the moral horror, which is so complete that it alone is enough to make one turn from the screen and cringe. And it is a type of horror more in line with Vietnam.

Sean Penn plays the 20-year old sergeant who instigates the kidnapping and rape, and he plays the part well. There is a cool madness in his eyes and a calculated hatred in his manner.

Penn's character is in his last 30 days of duty and he freely admits that he doesn't care anymore. A soldier in his first 30 days, he says, gets killed because of ignorance and fear, while a soldier in his last 30 days might get killed because he just doesn't care anymore.

Herein lies the focus of the film.

Penn's character is seasoned. He has come to see the Vietnamese, not as people, but, as things. They have no value to him, no worth in his eyes. He doesn't trust them and he doesn't like them.

The sergeant sees even his own men as nothing more than tools: to use until they are spent. When one of his men dies, even one who has been around long enough to become a friend, it serves only to fuel his hatred and anger at being in Vietnam. There are no tears, no time spent on mourning the loss. He gets a replacement and moves on.

For him there is no real meaning to the war. It's only a nightmare he has been forced to get used to. There is no pride, no honor, and no heroism in Vietnam. There is only getting through, no matter what the cost.

To Fox's character, in his first 30 days of duty, things are different. He fights in the field, but aims to befriend the Vietnamese in the villages, never suspecting that the old men and children may harbor VC spies, never thinking not to trust them. To him, the Vietnamese are people, and, furthermore, they are the people Americans were sent to help.

This, the film shows, is only because he has not yet learned to view them as things to be despised and killed. He has not been trained to dehumanize the enemy. To him, there is still such a thing as honor and still a difference between right and wrong.

And it is from these two distinct points of view that DePalma shows the rape and murder of an innocent girl.

To Fox's character, it is unbelievable and unforgivable. He fights against it even at the risk of alienating the soldiers he must rely on in the field.

To Penn's character, and to the superiors who learn about the incident, it is simply unfortunate, more because it was revealed than because it happened. The fact is, when it is reported, no one cares.

This, then, is the focus of the film. The true casualties of war are not only the soldiers who died in the field, not only the innocent victims of the atrocities of war, but the soldiers who come to commit those atrocities. The most devastating casualty of all is the demoralized American boy who is sacrificed in the course of fighting without honor.

The crime, to DePalma, is not the rape and murder itself, but the fact that it was possible. In the end, Penn's character is seen to be as much a victim as the girl.

Rotarians Seek 4 To Visit India Next Year

Rotarians of Rotary International District 795 which includes Quincy are seeking four outstanding young business and professional women to visit India next year under the Group Study Exchange Program of The Rotary Foundation.

The program strives to improve international understanding by enabling young people from different countries to learn from each other. The awards involve exchanging teams of business and professional persons between 25 and 35 years of age for four to six-week visits.

While abroad, team members will visit their professional counterparts, observe their hosts' way of life, and study the nation's economic, social and cultural characteristics through travel and discussions within participating Rotary districts.

Those interested should contact Thomas Feenan, 40 Willard St., Quincy, at 773-3800, no later than Sept. 15.

Nearly 15,000 persons from some 100 countries have participated in the program since its inception in 1965, at a cost of more than $24 million.

The Rotary Foundation is supported by Rotarians and others in 164 countries and geographical regions in which some 24,000 Rotary clubs are located. The Foundation's objective is to further international understanding and friendly relations among peoples of different nations through projects of an educational or charitable nature.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Working arrangements show signs of improvement, thanks to your own influence. Financial news-brightener may arrive after the weekend. Spend more time improving communications.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Network of friends provides valuable support for your latest plans. Some friction on the work scene; best bet is probably to keep a low profile. Partner is preoccupied.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Home life is more blissful thanks to more cooperation from family members. A socially lively time; be careful to enter all events on your calendar. Relative is more responsible.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Relative proves loyalty beyond a doubt. Family functions require more of your time—and perhaps more of your cash—than first expected. Love life perks up.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Your gift this week is helping gloomy friends cheer up. Your own positive approach helps get things moving on the workfront. If traveling, prepare for surprise expenses.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Surprise announcement at the workplace may throw you off guard. Home life is generally quiet; this is a fine period for catching up on those tasks you've been postponing.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
Avoid procrastinating, especially where money matters are involved. Influential person is impressed by your skills and your manner. Work extra hard at staying on schedule.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Cooperation from unexpected source helps you catch up on a long-delayed project. Academic interests are on tap. You excel this week in the role of teacher, whether formally or informally.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Travel companions may have trouble keeping up with you—your energy level is at an all-time high. Watch tendency to leave jobs uncompleted. Real estate negotiations may be spoiled.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Way may find you signing on the dotted line, but it's essential that you read all the fine print and seek the advice of an authority. Romance emphasizes it's sentimental side.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Good week for hosting intimate functions. Artistic sensibilities are noteworthy; you excel in the role of decorator. Platonic relationship thrives through this period.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
A new friendship may be lauded at this time. Your generally assertive approach may land a plum assignment at work. Community events capture your interest but be careful in apportioning your time.

Survey Finds Schools In 'Extreme Disrepair'

company which would be in charge of upgrading custodial and maintenance programs. "This is not a device to lay off employees," McCauley said. The mayor, who did say how much the program would cost, said the city might hire a company on a trial basis.

The mayor, who did not say how much the program would cost, said the city might hire a company on a trial basis.

"We want to take everything into consideration," he said.

According to McCarthy, "The physical condition of the school system is in a state of extreme disrepair. Much of this can be attributed to age and in recent years, a lack of funds.

"However, it's evident that inconsistent and ineffective maintenance and custodial programs are a significant factor in the building deterioration and poor cleaning quality seen throughout the system."

McCarthy also said the quality of school facilities and grounds programs can be improved "dramatically without any additional cost to the existing budget."

"This will be accomplished through experienced management, proven management systems, extensive engineering support and the provision of new equipment and supplies," he said.

After a request from the School Committee, the schools were surveyed during a two-week period in July.

The survey was also to determine proper staffing levels and specific recommendations for improvements of existing school programs.

Marriott, in conjunction with Landis & Gyr. Powers, a control and energy management company, spent more than 130 man days surveying the school department.

Among the conditions found during the survey are:

- Boilers are "suffering from years of neglect" and substantial corrosion is present.

- Poor air quality conditions are present due to neglected maintenance and adjustment of the unit ventilators. Marriott engineers found many units with blocked air intakes and inoperative controls.

- Oil leaks from the air compressors into the pneumatic control system are causing severe damage to these components.

- Custodians are using improper methods and equipment to clean the schools, resulting in an unhealthy environment for students.

- School floors are not maintained properly, contributing to increased floor wear, slippery floor conditions and a potential asbestos hazard to students. "A lack of custodial expertise has caused this condition," the survey stated.

- Many school areas receive irregular custodial cleaning attention. Some areas, such as windows, window sills, stairways, walls, ceilings and heating equipment within the classroom show signs of neglect.

- The grounds throughout the school department show signs of neglect. Trees and shrubs require trimming. Weed growth needs to be checked and playgrounds inspected for safety. "A formal grounds program will contribute to improving the image and character of the entire school department."

- Custodians are using the wrong type for many procedures and in some cases lack the proper chemicals. Marriott noted that this results in poor quality conditions and is an unproductive use of labor.

- As for roof inspection, Marriott found that the 20-year average life expectancy of a roof can be extended with proper care.

- The majority of custodial equipment "is obsolete and custodians are not trained to properly use the equipment." Many types of equipment necessary for a good custodial program were not found in the school system.

- Maintenance and custodial staff receive no formal on-going continuing education. "The lack of such a program impairs the skill level of the employee and the quality of work."

- Marriott found the maintenance staff "slightly overstuffed" and lacking some of the "appropriate skills required" for maintenance of the school department.

- As for the custodial staff, Marriott recommended that there be a slight increase in the existing workforce.

- Flammable materials and chemicals were found stored in electrical distribution and mechanical rooms which violate fire and safety codes.

- The maintenance department is focused on short-term repair of the school system. "Inadequate time and expertise is applied to long-range capital planning and improvement."

To correct this, Marriott said it could provide the school department with a five-year capital improvement plan within nine months of contract start-up.

Subsidized Rental Units Dominate Summit View Project Tardo Claims

Denis Tardo, candidate for city councilor-at-large says the comprehensive permit granted to Summit View Associates Limited Partnership should be rescinded because of changes that will affect the community. Tardo responded to a recent public hearing by the Quincy Housing Authority. At the hearing, he said it was noted that previously defined affordable housing had a different meaning than that presented at numerous public hearings.

According to Tardo, original application of Summit View Associates described in detail that home ownership would be a reality for low and moderate income families. This, he said, was to be achieved through the use of three state housing assistance programs: (1) The Homeownership Opportunity Program, known as HOP; (2) State Housing Assistance for Rental Production, known as SHARP; (3) Tax Exempt Local Loans to Encourage Rental Housing, known as Teller.

Tardo said, "The apparent intent to limit the affordable housing units to income eligible subsidized rental units, is an enormous difference from selling and renting units below the market rate."

"I have no exception to subsidized rental units, I have a problem being deceived," Tardo said. "At the ZBA public hearings it was made very clear to the abutters and general public, that subsidized rental units would not be a part of this project. The rental units were to be subsidized at the time of purchase so that the owner could charge a reduced rent."

At the public hearing held by the Quincy Housing Authority July 26, Tardo said it was learned that the developer would not sell any affordable housing units, but would only rent subsidized units.

Tardo said "Some low and moderate income residents testified in favor of this project because they were led to believe they could purchase these units. It seems to me there is the possibility that some of these very neighbors may, in fact, oppose subsidized rental units."

"It changes everything," Tardo said "a family making $40,000 a year thinking they can realize the American dream are now told 'sorry, now that we have the comprehensive permit we are going to forget what we said and apply for funds to subsidize these units as rentals and let government pick up the tab so our profits are maximized'."

Tardo said "it is now, my personal belief everyone involved has been very careful to continue to use the terminology of affordable housing even after the developer decided to alter his very definition."

Tardo said "Subsidized rental units should be a temporary solution to inflation and bad times, affordable home ownership programs should be implemented by anyone that has received permits with that stipulation."

Quincy Students Receive Bosco Sports Award

Kevin Burke, soccer, and Dan Flaherty, soccer and swimming, both of North Quincy.

Quincy Squadron Receives Gift From Telephone Co.

The Quincy Composite Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol recently received a corporate gift of $100 from the New England Telephone Company.

The gift was accepted for the Quincy Squadron by Squadron Commander, 1st Lt. Paul D. Eldridge, a Quincy resident.

The New England Telephone Company awarded the gift in the name of Major Daniel R. McEeney, CAP, a company employee who also serves as Personnel Officer of the Quincy Squadron.

The gift is made in recognition of company employees who provide generously of their time to civic and charitable organizations.

Major McEeney was selected for his contributions through the Civil Air Patrol and the Knights of Columbus. A resident of South Boston, he has worked for years with CAP Cadets from the south shore area.

Letter Carriers Recognized For Work With MDA

Carl Soderstrom of Quincy, recently accepted a plaque on behalf of the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) at the Muscular Dystrophy Association's (MDA) research allocation ceremony.

The award recognized NALC for its outstanding support and honored Boston University Hospital for its research and clinical services. Chairpersons and Telethon Co-hosts Chet Curtis and Natalie Jacobson of WCVB TV, presented the plaque.

At the ceremony, $1.5 million in research grants was awarded to 19 Massachusetts medical universities, independent research organizations and hospitals.

The grants will fund further investigations into recent breakthroughs and potential treatments such as muscle cell transplants for neuromuscular diseases.

MDA provides comprehensive medical services to local children and adults and supports worldwide research into 40 neuromuscular diseases.

39 NQHS Students Inducted Into Foreign Language Honor Society

Thirty-nine North Quincy High School students were recently inducted into the school's Foreign Language Honor Society for having achieved outstanding excellence in language studies.

To be eligible for membership a student must have studied three years of the same language and must have maintained a 90 average.

Students honored in their respective languages were:

French: Sandra Ames, Sandra Beattie, Kipp Caldwell, William Chu, George Gavros, Stacie Kane, Ann Kesaris, Grace Kesaris, Crystal Moffett, Michelle Sardo, Jennifer Sullivan.

Italian: Sherrin Quintiliani.

Latin: Erik Gustafson, Renee LaForest, Laura Sabadini, Chung Wong.

Spanish: Anthony Anderton, Jason Baldock, Jennifer Bellanich, Teresa Blasetti, Heather Cady, Albert Chan, LaiKuen Choi, Jeffrey Cluett, Laura Dawson, Kerry Desroche, Kimberly Galvin, Gina Golden, Angelo Kyranis, William Lee, Farceza Mazir, Mei Ng, Daniel Pike, Matthew Price, Jonathan Rork, Jason Rowland, Heather Stuart, William Warren, Susan Williams.

The induction ceremony, under the direction of Foreign Language Department Head Nan Martyak and Spanish teacher Maria D'Arcangelo, included a variety of international music and a tribute to the three foreign exchange students who spent this year at North Quincy High.

Principal Peter Chrimos and Assistant Principal Eileen Feeney congratulated the new members of Honor Society and presented them certificates of achievement.

The NQHS Concert Choir, under the direction of Catherine Carnabuci, entertained the students and guests with selections of international music. A French solo was performed by Senior Julie Detwiler and a Spanish solo by Spanish Exchange student David Lopez.

Erik Gustafson, a North Quincy High junior, played several selections on the piano.

Guest speakers were three exchange students, Malin

Henrikson from Sweden, Inge Ruigrok, the Netherlands and David Lopez from Spain. They talked about their experiences this year as NQHS students.

Chrimos presented the exchange student certificates of honorary citizens of Quincy.

Refreshments were served by the present Foreign Language Honor Society under the direction of President Dawn McPhee.

The National Honor Society, through homeroom donations and door donations at a school Christmas Musical Concert, sent bags and boxes of non-perishable foods, food gift certificates and a check for $253.60 to the Quincy Crisis Center for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Another 128 pounds of food was collected by NQHS Child Care Center and child development classes.

In a thank-you letter, Carolyn Remy, coordinator of The Quincy Community Action Programs' Emergency Food Center, said, "We hope you will be pleased to know that the 128 pounds of food collected went to serve the nearly 300 families who came to us for help with their holiday needs. We couldn't have done it without you."

Through the involvement of students and faculty members at North, both organizations were able to offer community assistance and holiday cheer to the needy.

QJC Surgical Tech Program At N.E. Medical

Quincy Junior College has moved its site for the Surgical Technology Program to the New England Medical Center, announced Richard J. Pessin, Dean of Enrollment and Student Services.

One day of class per week will be held at Quincy Junior College during the fall semester. All other classes and laboratories will be held at NEMC with state-of-the-art equipment.

Clinical practice will continue at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Brockton Hospital, University Hospital, Faulkner Hospital, Milton Hospital, Goodard Hospital and Norwood Hospital, as well as at NEMC.

"Both Quincy Junior College and New England Medical Center believe through this unique collaboration the Surgical Technology Program will be greatly enhanced. As Quincy Junior College remains the sponsoring agency responsible for faculty, curriculum and clinical affiliating agencies, the continuation of the accreditation of the program by the American Medical Association is all but assured," Pessin said.

Upon completion of this two-semester program, students will be qualified to work in the operating rooms of a major medical center or in a community hospital close to home.

For more information on the program, contact the Admissions Office, at 984-1700 or 1-800-698-1700.

New Fitness Center At Quincy Vo-Tech

When Quincy High School-Vocational Technical High School opens Sept. 6, for the new school year, a new physical fitness facility will be available to students.

The fitness center will be a vital component of the physical education program. Classroom space, adjacent to the center, is being developed so that classes can include cognitive as well as psychomotor experiences in fitness and wellness.

"Marty Finnegan and I have been working on the development of this center for three years," said Dr. Mary C. Lydon, City-Wide Department Head for Physical Education. "Bob Sylvia and Ed Miller, physical education teachers assigned to the MacLean Gymnasium, have been instrumental in its evolution, as has been John Taglieri, weight trainer for the Athletic Department. Students helped to move the equipment from the old, crowded area and they also painted the walls."

The fitness center will be under the direction of Dr. Lydon during the school day when it is being used by the Physical Education Department. After 3 p.m., it will be under the direction of Martin Finnegan, athletic director, and will be utilized by all athletic teams for training and conditioning during their season of play. By collaborating and sharing in the development of the center and in the use of equipment, both the physical education and the athletic departments will benefit from the one facility.

"We still have a need for equipment, especially cardiovascular equipment. We will add bicycle ergometers and rowing machines as money becomes available to purchase them," said Dr. Lydon. "Students need to work on improving their cardio-vascular respiratory endurance as well as the development of muscle strength and endurance."

A significant improvement in the fitness level of students should be evident by the end of next year.

Registration Underway For St. Chrisostom's Day Care

Registrations are now being accepted for the fall and winter session of St. Chrisostom's Day Care Center (a non-profit preschool).

The Center is open three mornings a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday from

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the requirements of G.L. c.30A §2, that the Division of Water Pollution Control, Department of Environmental Protection (pursuant to Stat. 1989, c.240, §101, "...the department of environmental quality engineering shall be known as the department of environmental protection") will hold a public hearing on proposed amendments to existing regulations, 314 CMR 2.06, governing the public notice requirements for certain discharge permit proceedings under 314 CMR 3.00, 5.00 and 7.00.

The proposed amendments to 314 CMR 2.06 will require public notice of the following permit proceedings to be published at the permit applicant or permittee's expense: the preparation of draft permit and tentative determination to issue the permit; permit modification when requested by the permittee; and notice of public hearing of a tentative determination to issue a permit, a permit renewal if a public hearing is requested by the applicant or permittee, and a permit modification when modification is requested by the permittee. The proposed amendments also set forth the procedure for publication of public notice in the above permit proceedings. Finally, the Division proposes to add language to the existing certification provision in the Permit Application Forms for the Surface Water, Ground Water and Sewer Extension and Connection Permit Programs under 314 CMR 3.00, 5.00 and 7.00 respectively concerning a permit applicant's responsibility for publishing public notice under 314 CMR 2.06.

The public hearing will be held as follows:
September 24, 1989 at 1:00 pm
Division of Water Pollution Control
Department of Environmental Protection
One Winter Street, 10th Floor Conference Room
Boston, MA 02108

Persons planning to give oral testimony at the hearing are requested to provide a written summary thereof at or before the hearing. Requests for copies of the proposed amendments should be directed to: Dave Hayward, Division of Water Pollution Control, Department of Environmental Protection, One Winter Street, 7th Floor, Boston, Massachusetts 02108. Telephone No. (617) 292-5639. 03031

The Division of Water Pollution Control (the "Division"), the Department of Environmental Protection (pursuant to Stat. 1989, c.240, §101, "...the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering shall be known as the Department of Environmental Protection," hereinafter in this document referred to as the "Department"), proposes to amend its Discharge Permit Regulations under 314 CMR 2.00 as follows:

I. 314 CMR 2.06 Public Notice

Amendment No. 1

The Division intends to delete the present language in 314 CMR 2.06 (1) and insert in place thereof the following language:

"(1) The Director shall require public notice of the following permit proceedings to be published at the applicant's or permittee's expense in accordance with the requirements of 314 CMR 2.06:

- The preparation of a draft permit and tentative determination to issue the permit under 314 CMR 2.04;
- The renewal of a permit under 314 CMR 2.10;
- The modification of a permit under 314 CMR 2.10, when the modification is at the request of the permittee and when public notice is required under 314 CMR 2.10;
- A public hearing under 314 CMR 2.07 on the Director's tentative determination to issue permit under 314 CMR 2.04, and on the renewal of a permit under 314 CMR 2.10, if such public hearing is requested by an applicant or permittee, and on the modification of a permit under 314 CMR 2.10 when the modification is at the request of the permittee.

For all other permit proceedings requiring public notice under 314 CMR 2.06, including, but not limited to, a tentative determination to deny a permit, or a determination to suspend or revoke an existing permit under 314 CMR 2.04 and 314 CMR 2.10, or to modify a permit when the modification is not at the request of the permittee and when public notice is required under 314 CMR 2.10, the Director shall give public notice of such permit proceedings in accordance with 314 CMR 2.06. Public notices may describe more than one permit or permit proceedings."

Amendment No. 2

The Division intends to delete the present language in 314 CMR 2.06 (3) (a) and the present language in the first paragraph of 314 CMR 2.06 (3) (b), and insert in place thereof the following language:

"(3) Copies of the public notice shall be published and mailed as follows:

- Notice shall be published in at least one newspaper of general circulation in the area of the facility or discharge and a copy of the notice shall be filed with the State Secretary as provided in M.G.L. c. 30A, §3 for publication in the Central Register. For those permit proceedings requiring publication of public notice by the applicant or permittee under 314 CMR 2.06 (1) (a) through (d), the applicant or permittee shall submit a copy of the public notice as published in the newspaper to the Director of the Division within seven (7) days of the date of publication along with the name and address of the newspaper and the date(s) the notice appeared in the newspaper.
- When published by the Director, notice shall be mailed to the applicant. Notice also shall be mailed to any person filing written request for notice of specific permit proceedings, such request to be renewed annually.

II. 314 CMR 3.00, 5.00 and 7.00 - Permit Application Forms

The Division intends to add the following statement to the existing certification provision in the Permit Application Forms for the Surface Water Discharge Permit Program (314 CMR 3.20, 3.22, 3.24 and 3.26), the Ground Water Discharge Permit Program (314 CMR 5.20, 5.22, 5.24 and 5.26), and the Sewer Extension and Connection Permit Program (314 CMR 7.20):

"I will be responsible for publication of public notice of the applicable permit proceedings identified under 314 CMR 2.06 (1) (a) through (d)."

THE QUIET MAN

There's so much waiting and gnashing of teeth in politics today that some people can't understand Peter O'Connell, The Quiet Man.

While others criticize, Peter O'Connell solves problems. While others bemoan the sorry state of affairs, Peter O'Connell works to correct it. While others loudly proclaim their abilities, Peter O'Connell demonstrates his.

It's a question of maturity, experience and quiet determination. It's a result of being a self-made man, who has experienced the hard knocks and unfairness of life, and prospered despite it all.

Peter O'Connell knows what it means to work three jobs to make ends meet. He knows what struggle can mean for young families. And, he knows you get further --- whether in business, in politics or in life --- working hard instead of criticizing.

There were no silver spoons when Peter O'Connell was born. The son of a Quincy milkman, he worked his way up from newspaper boy to Quincy's largest taxpayer by hard work, fair dealing --- and quiet, honest effort.

When no one else stood up to take on the MWRA, Peter O'Connell did.

He's always been that way. He always will be. A quiet, effective person --- who gets things done.

... Now, that's leadership

QUINCY FIREFIGHTERS WORK to contain three-alarm fire at 139 Atlantic St., North Quincy. Eleven people were left homeless but no one was injured in the blaze. The three-story, nine-unit apartment building sustained $125,000 in damage.

3-Alarm N. Quincy Blaze Leaves 11 Homeless

Eleven people were left homeless when a three-alarm fire heavily damaged a three-story, nine-unit apartment building at 139 Atlantic St., North Quincy, last Friday.

No one was injured in the blaze.

Three of the apartments were vacant at the time of the fire, officials said.

The fire began at about 9:30 p.m. in the southeast corner of an outdoor rubbish shed, according to Fire Department reports. The flames then spread up the side of the wooden structure and extended into the attic.

Firefighters were forced to make a hole in the roof in an effort to vent the fire. The walls in the rear apartment of the second floor were opened up as well.

Officials estimate damage to the building at $125,000.

The fire is under investigation by the State Fire Marshall and the Quincy Police Department.

Fire officials say the building is owned by Ralph J. Maher.

Phelan, Chretien Organizers

Petition Drive On To Keep Wollaston Fire Station Open

By JANE ARENA

Angered over a recent suggestion by Mayor Francis McCauley that the Wollaston Fire Station be closed to "beef up" manpower at other fire stations, City Councillors Charles Phelan and Larry Chretien have organized a petition drive against the closing of the station.

A meeting for Wollaston residents to sign the petition was scheduled for last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the Second Floor Conference Room at New City Hall.

The petition will also urge McCauley's successor to appropriate funds for the renovation of the fire station no later than July 1, 1990.

McCauley's suggestion to close the station at some point in the future came after $15,000 study which revealed the need of $1.2 million in renovations to the station.

McCauley said at the time of his recommendation that the station was not unsafe. He said he would not close it himself, but would recommend it to his successor, because closing the station would save the taxpayers money and would also be beneficial to the other fire stations by spreading the apparatus and manpower from the Wollaston station throughout the city.

McCauley defended his idea on Tuesday, calling it "a good suggestion" and "one which will have to be looked into" by the next Mayor.

McCauley added that the response time, the time it takes the fire department to respond and arrive at a fire, would "not be significantly cut" by the closing of the station. He said that fire apparatus is adequate enough so that response from other stations would not be significantly less.

"He's not the expert," Chretien said Tuesday, adding that Fire Chief Paul O'Connell has indicated strong concern over the closing of the station.

Chief O'Connell, on vacation this week, told City Councillors at the recent Public Safety Committee meeting that closing the station may indeed be cut if the station is closed. He added that he would prefer deactivating equipment over closing an entire station.

Chretien, in whose ward the station is located, notes that the station is the second busiest station in the city.

"There are eight fire stations in the city," Chretien said Tuesday, "and only two—Wollaston and West Quincy—on the western side of the city. What if there are two fires in West Quincy at the same time?" he asked, noting that traffic conditions in West Quincy and Wollaston would further inhibit response time.

"Mayor McCauley can talk all he wants about saving money," Chretien said, "but that's the wrong way to go about saving money."

Chretien said he and Councillor Phelan have had neighborhood meetings on other issues recently and have had the petitions available at these meetings. Some people

Quincy Hospital Goes 'Smoke-Free' Friday

Quincy Hospital is joining a growing number of health care facilities in implementing a total ban on smoking in the hospital environment.

The hospital, which goes "smoke-free" on Sept. 1, will celebrate the changeover to a more healthful workplace and patient care environment with a special "Let's Go Smoke-Free" Reception today (Thursday) at 3 p.m.

"Beginning this week, we are offering our patients, employees and visitors cleaner and healthier surroundings," said Kenneth Einstein, M.D., a specialist in lung diseases and a member of the hospital's medical staff.

"Providing an atmosphere conducive to people's well-being will support the hospital's dual mission of curing illness and practicing preventative medicine. The no-smoking policy is an opportunity for us, as members of the medical community, to set an example of safe, healthful living," Dr. Einstein added in an open letter to employees published in the hospital's weekly newsletter, "Monitor."

Nancy Doyle, a program associate with the American Lung Association, will be the keynote speaker for the smoke-free kickoff event, at 3 p.m. on Thursday in the hospital cafeteria. Doyle has worked closely with a wide range of companies that have instituted smoking bans. She will share a number of corporate "success stories" with employees, administrators, and friends of the hospital. Representatives of the QH Board of Managers, medical staff, administration and nursing department will also offer brief remarks at the ceremony.

As part of its smoke-free environment promotion, the hospital has offered employees free smoking cessation courses. In

Kerry Hearing Here Thursday On Drug Trafficking

Senator John Kerry will hold a regional field hearing of the Senate Subcommittee on Narcotics and Terrorism today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

The hearing is to obtain local information on the extent of drug trafficking in the area and the impact of drug treatment programs.

Kerry recently completed a two-year investigation into international drug trafficking and how anti-drug efforts often took a back seat to U.S. foreign policy goals.

Earlier this year, Kerry filed the Drug Intelligence Assistance Act which would provide $120 million in grants to aid local police in drug enforcement. $24 million of the monies would be available to Massachusetts to help establish local and regional drug intelligence units.

The following officials scheduled to give testimony at the hearing are: Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt; Plymouth County District Attorney William O'Malley; Norfolk Sheriff Clifford Marshall; Plymouth County Sheriff Peter Y. Flynn; Mayor Carl Pitaro of Brockton; Lt. David Rowell of the Quincy Police Department; and Chief Richard J. Sproules of the Brockton Police Department.

Local input from these hearings are vital as the Congress resumes 1990 budget prioritizing in Sept.

Early Deadline For Next Week's Sun

Because of the Labor Day holiday there will be an early news deadline for next week's Quincy Sun.

All news and sports releases and advertising should be in The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St.

by 5 p.m. tomorrow (Friday).

Those planning to place political advertising should take special note of this early deadline because next week's issue of The Sun will be the last before the Sept. 12th mayoral and school committee preliminary election.

A disciplinary hearing for Quincy Plumbing Inspector Ralph Maher, who allegedly violated state conflict-of-interest and campaign fundraising laws, was postponed this week and rescheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 11.

Maher was put on paid suspension by the city after the Patriot Ledger reported his fund-raising roles during the past two mayoral elections and possible conflicts of interest between his position with the city and his own business and real estate interests.

Maher Hearing Rescheduled For Sept. 11

Mayor Francis McCauley said the city disciplinary hearing, scheduled for Monday, was postponed because Maher's attorney, Stephen R. Delinsky had a scheduling conflict and was forced to postpone the hearing. McCauley said that Sept. 11 has been set for the hearing, but that it may take longer than one day.

In April, a Norfolk County grand jury began looking into Maher's alleged violations, but, according to Mayor McCauley, have come to no conclusion as yet.

Meanwhile, the city has conducted its own investigation, McCauley said.

The disciplinary hearing was to have been conducted by Assistant City Solicitor Robert Quinn. David Grunebaum, city labor lawyer, was scheduled to act as prosecutor.

Last week, the city released its findings of seven counts of violating the "standards of conduct for municipal employees" as well as two counts of "unlawful solicitation of political contributions."

According to those two counts, Maher allegedly solicited contributions for the 1985 mayoral campaign of Joanne Condon and the 1987 campaign of Joseph LaRais. State law prohibits municipal employees from soliciting or receiving campaign contributions.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey said Monday he has heard "through the rumor mill" that Maher is considering resigning his position, although he has said he has heard nothing for certain on the issue. As the appointing official for Maher, Mulvey would be officially notified of his resignation.

McCauley also acknowledged that, as of Monday, there had been no official resignation by Maher.

Q-Vote Associates Endorses 3 For School Committee

Frank Santoro, Ron Mariano and Gary Fine, candidates for four-year terms on the Quincy School Committee, have been endorsed by Q-Vote Associates, according to Marcia McCarthy of Squantum, Q-Vote president.

Santoro, an incumbent, was unanimously endorsed by the Q-Vote selection committee "because of his long and positive record as an incumbent who does his homework on important issues ... he always has the interests of the parents, teachers and students uppermost in his mind."

Newcomer Mariano was endorsed unanimously because of his experience as a budget analyst, and also as a former Quincy classroom teacher.

Fine, also a newcomer, the selection committee felt could "offer knowledge and genuine interest in educational issues to the Quincy School Committee."

Q-Vote, a political action committee of the Quincy Education Association representing Quincy citizens interested in promoting quality public education in Quincy, was founded 10 years ago in response to educational cuts forced on Quincy. It has approximately 1,200 supporters on its current mailing list, according to McCarthy.

Faulty Fire Alarm Fine Proposed

By JANE ARENA

Faulty fire alarm systems which prompt a needless response from the Quincy Fire Department may soon be subject to fines if a city ordinance sponsored by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan comes to pass.

The Councillors have been working with Quincy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell to create an ordinance which would charge city property owners for false alarms caused by faulty equipment.

The ordinance, Cheney says, is modeled after a similar one used by the Quincy Police Department, wherein business and residential alarms, directly hooked to the Police Department may cause false alarms.

"After the second or third time the Police Department will charge the business because they've failed to correct the system," Cheney said.

The Fire Department ordinance, due to come before the Council at the first City Council meeting in Sept., would work in the same manner.

Commercial and residential buildings in Quincy, which have alarm systems directly linked to the Fire Department, would be warned for the first false alarm caused by a faulty system, Cheney explains, and would be asked to correct the problem.

Another false alarm within a six month period would result in $50 fine to the property owner, he said. Any subsequent alarms within the same six month period would be subject to fines of $100.

After the initial six month period is expired, Cheney explained the cycle would begin anew.

Cheney emphasized that the fee system is more than just a way to raise revenue for the Fire Department, which is facing a budget crisis in FY 90.

"The citizens of Quincy are really supplementing these false alarms," Cheney said, adding that Chief O'Connell has estimated that such alarms are in excess of "29 percent of the Department's calls."

"When there's a false alarm it costs us X amount of dollars to respond to that particular alarm, and it endangers the lives of Fire Department personnel and the lives of other people on the streets."

"It is our initial feeling," he continued, "that the people should be reimbursed for this service if the people (responsible for the alarms) don't take any correct action."

Mayor Francis McCauley agrees. "It's a good idea," he said, "and I've spoken to the Chief before on it, before the ordinance came up. It makes sense."

According to the Fire Department's Annual Reports, McCauley noted, actual fires have decreased since 1982 while so-called "nuisance calls" have significantly increased.

In 1982 there were 2,043 actual fires while in 1988, 1,222 actual fires were recorded, representing a decrease of 821 or a decline of 40.2 percent.

The figures for needless runs by the Fire Department were recorded at 1,051 in 1982, while last year that number was 1,529. The figures show an increase of 478 needless calls in recent years, or 45.5 percent.

"In some case the calls get to be a nuisance," McCauley said, "and we should be charging for it. I favor it."

Cheney said that residents would not be levied for instances where a smoke detector picked up a burning toast or other actual "fire incidents," but only for those alarms which somehow malfunction to call the fire department out on a needless run.

"And this does not apply to all the residents of Quincy," Cheney added. "It is only for multi-family dwellings which have alarm systems directly hooked to the fire department, or businesses which have those alarm systems."

Although no exact figures have been reached, Cheney said that the fee could raise "a substantial amount of money for the fire department in the first year." He added that the money would actually go to the City and it would be up to the Mayor to appropriate it for the fire department.

"We didn't really want to do something like this," Cheney said. "But we found it necessary. Citizens should be reimbursed for the services utilized."

ELM STREET PARK submitted a model of Freddy Krueger, the maniacal madman in the "Nightmare on Elm St." film series, (a different Elm St.) and was awarded fifth place.

A Quiet Election

The mayoral campaign looked like a sure battle royal when four major contenders stepped into the ring a half year ago.

But it hasn't really materialized. What was expected to be a red-hot race, settled into a slow waltz.

With the Sept. 12th preliminary election less than two weeks away and Labor Day just around the corner, the average voter so far doesn't seem to be that excited about it all.

There hasn't been that many clear cut issues to separate the candidates or to whip up voter interest.

None of the candidates have delivered a so-called knockout punch. No one has swung hard enough with enough. And there just doesn't seem to be enough to swing with.

Voter registration for the preliminary election seems to reflect apathy.

Since last October only an estimated 300-400 new voters have enrolled.

Ordinarily there would be 1200 or more new voters for a municipal election.

Even special evening registration hours held at City Hall and in Quincy Point, Montclair, Southwest Quincy, Wollaston and Atlantic didn't spark any great interest. Neither did a Saturday session at City Hall.

"It was the slowest I've seen it in years," says City Clerk John Gillis. "The interest just wasn't there."

Why? For one reason, thinks Gillis, there is no mayoral incumbent running this year. An incumbent can always be blamed for city ills. Incumbent bashing is always fair game, always good for a headline, and for heating up voter interest.

But Frank McCauley isn't running for re-election. And that leaves this year's candidates -- Councilors Steve McGrath and James Sheets, former mayor councillor Joseph LaRaia and businessman Peter O'Connell with no incumbent's track record to step on.

And as far as the so-called issues are concerned, there isn't much that separates the four. They're all in favor of better schools, public safety and against drugs, etc.

GILLIS

The hottest exchange so far has been over the sludge facility at the Quincy shipyard and efforts to get the MWRA headquarters -- or some of it -- located at the shipyard, too.

O'Connell and McGrath have gotten the most ink on that one.

The only other contest on the Sept. 12th ballot is for a four year School Committee term with nine candidates in contention for six nominations.

Incumbents Mary Collins and Frank Santoro, Judith Brams, Richard Crespi, Gary Fine, Michael Jovanovic, Ron Mariano, John McDuff and Michael Preble.

But a lack of City Council action, Gillis believes, is a major cause for the lukewarm voter interest so far.

There are no City Council candidates on the Sept. 12 ballot. Not enough candidates interested to create a preliminary election.

Despite three seats -- one of them vacant -- the at-large field attracted only five candidates, two shy of a preliminary runoff.

The five: incumbents Tim Cahill and Patricia Toland, Michael Cheney who is giving up his Ward 1 seat to run at-large, Susan Gallagher and Denis Tardo.

Open Council seats in Ward 1 and 4 lured only two candidates for each: Peter Kolson and Marcia Olinto in Ward 1 and Tom Fabrizio and Joseph Shea in Ward 4.

With three candidates needed for a preliminary election in each ward, the four now are already considered nominated and will square off in November.

Four ward councillors are already elected without a vote being yet cast.

Incumbents Ted DeCristofaro (Ward 1), Larry Chretien (Ward 3), Charles Phelan (Ward 5) and Thomas Nutley (Ward 6) have no opposition whatsoever and a free ticket to re-election.

All of this, Gillis thinks, has kept Election Year '89 in low gear so far.

But he is still forecasting a 40 to 45 percent voter turnout Sept. 12.

He thinks the four mayoral candidates are going to make a major effort to get the voter out to the polls.

And with the four candidates still pretty much bunched every vote and voter will definitely count; he says.

YOU CAN AFFORD INSURANCE

Insurance eliminates worry. Without the institution of insurance, most, if not all, commercial ventures would be unable to function. Insurance gives the businessman protection and confidence against all risks and exposures consistent with the day-to-day operation of his business.

But a good insurance program should go one step farther. It should also provide and advise on the elements of prevention. Prevention helps us keep premiums low consistent with the amount of protection they afford.

Adequate insurance assures peace of mind. Knowing your plant, store or other business operation is protected against fire, floods, theft, and equipment failures can do so much towards making your business run smoother. To know that you are well-covered is a comforting feeling indeed.

At Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. our insurance professionals are happy to discuss the many protection options available today. Please give us a call at 471-6200 or stop by our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy.

Opposes Cigarette Ads, Smoker Rights Meetings

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Kudos to Quincy's Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro for his public disapproval of a Smokers Rights meeting held at the Quincy Sons of Italy Lodge Aug. 23.

Edward Sweda Jr. from GASP (Group Against Smoking Pollution) is right on the mark, no ands, ifs or butts when he states that the meeting was nothing more than an attempt "to manufacture the appearance of a grassroots uprising" in support of the right to smoke cigarettes.

R.J. Reynolds ought to take all their rhetoric and free ashtrays back to Winston-Salem, North Carolina. No one I hope is really buying their freedom of choice sham because the tobacco industry's bottom line is the color of money. Despite a significant drop in smoking, cigarettes remain among the most profitable of all consumer products, generating about $35 million a year in domestic retail sales.

The various cigarette companies have set up something called the Tobacco Institute, a political research and lobbying organization with an annual budget of at least $29 million, according to Internal Revenue Service disclosures under the Freedom of Information Act and has been crisscrossing the nation in support of your right to smoke cigarettes because when you smoke they earn their profits. The tobacco industry came to town, but you'll never hear any industry spokesperson speak on the long-term health risks involved. They, apparently, believe they can smokescreen the dangers like cancer and C.P.O.D. away with good old American P.R.

Recently, my father went through five years of living hell with chronic pulmonary obstruction disease - in plain English - emphysema. My father also had a 50 year, 2-pack a day habit and wasn't able to give up his cigarettes until 1978 when he was age 65. And while there may not be conclusive evidence that his death on Aug. 5 was cigarette-related, I have no doubts in my mind that this was, in fact, the case.

Smokers Rights meetings need to stop looking at symbols like the Marlboro cowboy riding high in the saddle and imagine my father, and so many others like him, lying in a hospital bed grasping for every single breath and waiting to die. My father was hooked on nicotine for 50 years before being able to say No to it and he, I believe, like so many others, do themselves in on a daily basis everytime they light up.

Personally, I hate cigarettes and believe they are a health danger and the product shouldn't be encouraged either through fullpage advertisements as in last week's Quincy Sun (I kept looking for the portable oxygen tank in the Marlboro Country cowboy's saddlebag) or be allowed a political soapbox at a Sons of Italy lodge. As a member of the Quincy lodge, I would hope this recent pro-cigarette meeting is the last to be held there.

Finally, people should look beyond the cancer threat. It is real but the greatest danger is from C.P.O.D. because it slowly builds up and puts folks through a nicotine purgatory that no one deserves. My advice to smokers is to try and quit and my advice to young people is never start. My father smoked for too long but never encouraged the habit with his kids and neither I nor my brother smoke.

So remember, the next time you light up, don't think of Thomas Jefferson or the Bill of Rights, think of a hospital bed with a family watching their father slipping away in tobacco smoke.

Wigglesworth Nominated For Congress

The Quincy delegation threw its support to Richard B. Wigglesworth on the third ballot and the Milton man received the Republican nomination for Congress from the 14th district in convention Aug. 31-Sept. 6 at Dedham.

But one delegate, George Taylor, was not happy about the way in which City Council President Thomas S. Burgin rose to withdraw the name of favorite son Russell A. Sears and endorse Wigglesworth.

"It was a bombshell for some of us," he said, "for we did not consider anyone in our delegation had the right to sell us. It turned a fair fight into an unAmerican one."

Cooking Tips From Betty Crocker

Spirited Cooking

What could be more appropriate with American food than American wine? Americans are just beginning to discover how sensational our wine really is—with singular character, it stands up to its European cousins, winning honors and acclaim around the world.

Quality American wines are easy to find these days, and just as easy to include in a variety of delicious recipes—cooking with wine should never be difficult or intimidating, experts agree. Most importantly, while American wines add unique flavor to foods, the alcohol in the wine cooks right out.

A new cookbook is made to order for those who'd love to enhance their meals with the delicious taste sensation of a fine wine. Called Betty Crocker's Cooking With Amer- ican Wine from Prentice Hall Press, it features over a hundred recipes covering poultry, fish, meat, eggs, cheese and desserts. Included are such tantalizing suggestions as the classic Walnut-stuffed Turkey enhanced with Chardonnay, Beef Roast with Winter Fruit made with Zinfandel, Pears Poached in Red Wine and this savory stew classic:

This hearty beef-vegetable stew is enhanced with a dry red wine.

BEEF-VEGETABLE STEW WITH BARLEY

- 1 pound beef stew meat, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 cup Petite Sirah or dry red wine
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon snipped fresh rosemary leaves or 1/4 teaspoon dried rosemary leaves, crushed
- 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
- 1 can (10-1/2 ounces) condensed beef broth
- 1 can (14-1/2 ounces) whole tomatoes, undrained
- 1/2 cup uncooked barley
- 1 cup broccoli flowerets
- 2 carrots, sliced
- 1 medium onion, cut into wedges
- 4 ounces medium mushrooms, cut into halves

Cook and stir beef in oil in 4-quart Dutch oven until brown. Stir in wine, pepper, rosemary, garlic, beef broth and tomatoes; break up tomatoes. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 1 hour. Stir in barley; cover and simmer until beef is almost tender, about 30 minutes longer. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer until vegetables are tender, about 20 minutes. 4 servings.

Quality-tested by the world-famous Betty Crocker Kitchens, each of these classic and innovative recipes will add pizzazz to any menu. Lavishly illustrated and filled with tips on selecting, storing and serving wines, the cookbook is available at local booksellers.

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Breaded Chicken On The Zingy Side

One of our favorite meals in our household is breaded chicken. And we have it quite often. So the other night with the chicken, I made a certain type of potato that my mother made when we were kids. It's so simple, and tastes quite like potato skins that are so popular these days. Today, I will give the recipe for both the chicken and potatoes and hope you will enjoy as much as we do.

ZINGY CHICKEN

- 8 chicken thighs (or as much or little as you need, or chicken parts of any kind)
 - 1 cup corn flakes crumbs mixed with 1 cup unseasoned bread crumbs
 - 1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese
 - 1 egg
 - 1/2 cup skim milk
 - salt and pepper to taste
- Skin and wash the chicken and dry with paper towel. Mix the egg, milk, salt, pepper and grated cheese until blended. Coat the chicken first with the egg mixture and then the crumbs. Place in a slightly greased baking pan, and cook covered in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes and then uncovered for about 15 minutes.

4 potatoes cookie sheet salt and pepper

Wash the potatoes. Leave the skin on and cut in half inch slices. Salt and pepper them and place them on a cookie sheet. Bake in a 400-450 degree oven for about an hour. In between time, with a spatula, turn the potatoes once. When the tops are brown, they are done and delicious! We ate them plain but our daughter Nancy used ketchup on hers. You can also use sour cream depending on how your waistline looks!

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at That's Italian, Franklin St., South Quincy; Previte's Market, Summer St., Quincy Point; Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

"HOMEWORK HELPER" SNACK MIX EARNS HIGH GRADES

Snacks play an important part in the daily diet of active youngsters. Since snacking habits learned at an early age may carry through to adulthood, it's important to teach children to snack wisely. Having sensible snacks on hand helps them choose great-tasting foods that won't spoil dinner-time appetites and can provide important nutrients.

"Homework Helper" Snack Mix from The Quaker Kitchens gets high grades in taste and nutrition. It's a chewy/crunchy combination of Oat Squares Cereal, dried apple chunks and raisins lightly sweetened with brown sugar and cinnamon.

For additional quick and easy recipes that kids and adults will both enjoy, send for "Hurry, Let's Eat!," a colorful 48-page booklet from The Quaker Oats Company.

"HOMEWORK HELPER" SNACK MIX
 2 tablespoons margarine
 1 tablespoon firmly packed brown sugar
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 4 cups Quaker Oat Squares Cereal
 1 cup firmly packed dried apple chunks
 3/4 cup raisins

Microwave Oven Directions
 In 4-qt. microwaveable bowl or storage container, microwave margarine at HIGH about 30 seconds or until melted. Stir in brown sugar and cinnamon. Add cereal, apples, raisins; mix until pieces are evenly coated. Store tightly covered in refrigerator up to 5 days.

Conventional Oven Directions
 Melt margarine in 3-qt. saucepan over medium heat. Stir in brown sugar and cinnamon. Proceed as directed above.

It's hard to believe development means progress when you're only moving forward an inch a minute.

Jim Sheets has always believed in putting the brakes on developers who ignore the possible side effects of development – like increased traffic volume. As far back as 1985, when Jim was City Council President, he warned against the side-effects of overdevelopment. In 1986 he proposed aggressive zoning changes that would restrict the size of the density of residential developments in our neighborhoods. Jim Sheets didn't jump on the bandwagon of politicians sounding off about overdevelopment in 1989. He's been fighting against overdevelopment in Quincy all along. Cast your vote for Jim Sheets. And keep Quincy moving forward.

Caring Makes the Difference.

Phelan Urges Fire Dept. $150,000 Restored

By JANE ARENA
Ward Councillor Charles Phelan has urged Mayor Francis McCauley to restore the funding of $150,000 to the Quincy Fire Department's overtime budget.

He has also sent a letter to State Senator Paul D. Harold urging him and the other Quincy delegates to "do whatever possible to restore the local aid cuts made by the governor."

The letters came after last week's meeting of the City Council Public Safety Committee, of which Phelan is chairman, during which Fire Chief Paul O'Connell reported on problems with the department's manning levels.

Due to the Governor's reduction of local aid to the City, a cut of over $3 million over last year, the Department has suffered a sharp cut in overtime spending. Chief O'Connell reported last week that, unless $150,000 is restored to the department by Sept. 1, he will be forced to take the Houghs Neck Engine 6 out of service, along with its complement of three men. This will decrease the department's already lower than usual manning level.

In his letter to Senator Harold, Phelan said that "due to a cut of $3.2 million, Quincy will be facing some very difficult choices in the areas of Police, Fire and Education."

Referring to Chief O'Connell's report at the meeting, Phelan told Harold that the manning level at the Fire Department, which has already suffered recent reductions, will suffer further if the funds are not restored.

The manning level of the Fire Department should be 37 firefighters and 10 officers per shift, Phelan notes. As of June 1, 1989 that level was brought down to 34 firefighters and 10 officers with Ladder 2 of the Wollaston station taken out of service. That number will be reduced again to 31 firefighters and 10 officers with the loss of the Houghs Neck Engine 6 and its three men complement, unless the department is restored the $150,000 to its overtime budget by next week.

"This is only one area that has been affected by the lack of funding," Phelan told Harold. "Certainly other areas will soon follow."

In his letter to Mayor McCauley, Phelan said that the manning level problems of the Fire Department stem from the cut in the overtime budget.

"With only two months into FY90 budget," Phelan said, "more than 50% of the overtime budget, needed to cover sick time and vacation times has been expended."

Meanwhile, Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney has written a separate letter to McCauley suggesting that the money for the Fire Department could come from an expected Chapter 90 reimbursement from the state for the 1988 fall street resurfacing program.

Cheney noted that Quincy will be receiving the sum of $592,000 under the Chapter 90 reimbursement and that $309,000 of that amount is expected to arrive as early as the first week of September.

Cheney also stated that the city would not be "shortchanged" on this year's street resurfacing program since there is, according to his letter, $1.145 million to $1.737 million available for street resurfacing.

Cheney urged the Mayor to make the appropriation to the Fire Department at the first meeting of the City Council in September.

"The overtime money that is needed is already making up for a very dramatic shortfall in the Fire Department," Cheney said Monday, "it is my feeling that (fire protection) is a very basic service that we provide to the City of Quincy... the money is there and will be received in the first week of September... there is simply no reason why this very basic service should not be funded."

Mayor McCauley maintained Tuesday, however, that there are "simply not enough resources to restore (the $150,000) ... the city's Free Cash supply will leave only $900,000 for emergencies next year," he said.

"The (police and fire) chiefs are well aware of it," he continued, "they were told before ... there is no money right now."

McCauley said that "if the situation gets better" Cheney's request will be considered with those of other City Councillors.

"The state money (from Chapter 90) hasn't come in yet," he said "we'll have to wait and see... if things improve we'll consider it."

Questions regarding the program may be directed to Sister Regina Harrington, CSJ, at 472-1408.

September Registration At First Parish Church School

United First Parish Unitarian Church School will hold registration Sundays from Sept. 10 to Sept. 24, from 11:30 a.m. to noon.

There will be a registration table in the parish hall, with informational brochures, the 1989-90 Church School Prospectus, and a calendar of events for the coming year. Teachers Jane Molloy, Amy Ross and Russ Savelle will be on hand to answer questions.

This year's program includes four levels of instruction as well as a Youth Group for teens.

Level 1 (ages 0-3 yrs.) will use "Read Me a Story," a curriculum based on stories reflecting U.U. values, followed by crafts and activities.

Level 2 (ages 6-9) will cover "What is Religion --For Others and For Us?", focusing on questions about religion and different ways of being religious, and including such activities as having lunch with the minister and planning their own worship service.

Level 3 (ages 10-12) will use "That Book -- The Bible," which acquaints the children with the history and organization of the Bible as well as some of the better known Old Testament stories.

The Youth Group, will be using and evaluating a new curriculum, "Who Are We, and What Do We Stand For?" based on the principles of Unitarianism. In addition there will be supervised child care for ages 0-3 in the Nursery every Sunday.

A prospectus-calendar is available by sending a self-addressed/stamped envelope with a request, to United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy 02169. For more information call Brenda Chin, 479-1577.

PREPAYING A FUNERAL PRESERVES YOUR ASSETS

The law permits a certain amount of money from your estate to be set aside for funeral expense should illness deplete your assets. We can help you place such funds in an irrevocable trust that will guard against inflation. Participation in THE NEW ENGLAND FUNERAL TRUST assures that your wishes will be known.

Please write or call for a free brochure that explains the details of funeral preplanning.

Petition Drive Against Closing Wollaston Fire Station

have signed the petitions, he said, and others have taken copies home with them to collect signatures.

"Ultimately I think we'll be able to get someone carrying the petition on every street in the area," he said, adding that he expects to get "a couple of thousand signatures."

Councillor Phelan agrees that a couple of thousand signatures can be expected.

"We need to demonstrate strong public support for the Wollaston Fire station," he said.

Chretien said he feels the money to renovate the Wollaston station should be budgeted "soon."

Chief O'Connell has said that the station could be closed down by the state "any day," according to Chretien.

"If nothing else," he said, "let's get the roof fixed (soon) because that's causing structural problems."

McCauley said that the petition drive is the "expected response" to his suggestions of closing the station.

"Of course people don't like it," he said, "but, if you don't have a lot of money, you have to make some hard decisions ... and this is a long range thing, something for the next mayor to look into."

But, Chretien said that the purpose of the petition drive is to "make a strong impression on the next mayor."

"I know for a fact that people in Wollaston believe that local government begins with police, fire and schools, and they'd be willing to spend the money to keep the Wollaston station open."

Conservation Commission To Meet Sept. 5

The Quincy Conservation Commission will meet Tuesday, Sept. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room, City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

The agenda for the meeting: • Notice of Intent filed by George V. McGinn for the reconstruction of a fire-damaged service station; new building to be 32 feet by 72 feet; installation of a new island, pumps, canopy and associated site work. Demolition of the existing fire damaged building.

• Notice of Intent filed by Northern Division, Naval Facilities Engineer Command, Naval Base, Philadelphia Pa. for improvements to the existing stormwater drainage system at the Naval Family Housing complex, Squantum Garden units. Project includes unearthing outlet pipes and cutting bank to embankment top; constructing headwalls; installing new tidal flood gates at each outfall; placing rip-rap downstream of each headwall and outfall.

Hancock Pool Closed Sept. 1-10

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool will be closed from Friday, Sept. 1 through Sunday, Sept. 10. Maintenance on the pool will be done during this period.

Recreation Department supervised swim programs will resume Monday, Sept. 11.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Labor Day is a typically American holiday. It is an important day...not only for those in the ranks of labor, but for every citizen in this land. It is a day when the nation as a whole does honor to those who labor - whether it be with hands or head. In Europe, the great day of labor is May 1 - May Day. It has often been racked with demonstrations, and many times it has been marked by riots. Not so in America. We celebrate by simply enjoying the fruits of our labors. This country was founded on the theory that a nation could be welded out of peoples from all sorts of backgrounds - provided they were willing and ready to work together.

It took labor of all kinds to carve this nation out of a wilderness...to cross treacherous rivers...to carve roads through trackless forests...to clear lands and build towns...

Labor Day is not a day set apart for any one group, but a day which all of us may celebrate. With this in mind, let us on this Labor day rededicate ourselves to work to the best of our abilities - so laboring that we may pass on to the next generation a nation better and stronger for our having lived and toiled...

Together, we can change things.

A Public Service of The National A.P.C. & The Red Cross Council

A Tradition of Trust For Over 70 Years.

Just before World War I, Sweeney Funeral Homes' first location was established in a small storefront on the corner of Hancock and School streets. Dennis S. Sweeney, the homes' first funeral director is remembered as a rather tall man, who had a beautiful, yet somber voice. Dressed in his characteristic top hat and tails, his singing was requested at funeral processions for over 30 years.

When he died in 1948, he entrusted the continuation of the family-owned tradition of instinctive and genuine concern for the city's bereaved families to his nephew, M. Joseph Sweeney.

Since 1917, Sweeney Funeral Homes have always meant the finest, most traditional service that Quincy has to offer. But we've also changed with the needs of the times, whatever they were. As early as 1940, we began offering pre-planning as a way for wise Quincy residents to plan their future.

Today, with funeral costs one of the top five major expenses for most families, pre-arrangements make better sense than ever before. Call Dennis Sweeney, our third-generation funeral director, at (617) 773-2728. Our family has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. It's a Tradition of Trust that stands as our guarantee.

Cheney Urges $150,000 Fire Dept. Cut Restored

Ward 1 councillor Michael Cheney has urged Mayor Francis McCauley to restore the $150,000 cut from the Quincy Fire Department overtime budget, noting that the department is at a critical stage as far as manning is concerned.

The request came in a letter sent to McCauley one day after a meeting of the City Council Public Safety Committee.

During that meeting last week, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell outlined plans to cut at least Engine 6 and its complement of three men from Houghs Neck by Sept. 1 unless the department receives additional funding. Chief O'Connell also discussed the possibility of closing the Wollaston Fire Station. The closing of the Wollaston Station, which is in need of upgrading and improvement, was the suggestion of Mayor McCauley as a way to save money and beef up manpower at other stations.

In his letter to McCauley, Cheney said the money for the Fire Department could come from an expected Chapter 90 reimbursement from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for the 1988 fall street resurfacing program. Cheney noted that Quincy will be receiving the sum of $592,000 and that $309,000 of that amount is expected to be reimbursed to the city as early as the first week in September.

Cheney suggested in his letter that the Mayor appropriate the $150,000 of that reimbursement check to the Fire Department.

"It is my firm belief," Cheney stated in the letter, "that this is a small amount of money to appropriate for basic public safety. This amount of money could potentially prevent the risk of injury, or even death, to a resident or firefighter."

Furthermore, Cheney stated that the City would not be "shortchanged" on this year's street resurfacing program since there is, according to his letter, $1.145 million to $1.737 million available for street resurfacing. The figure, he said, represents Chapter 90 Funds immediately available and those held in Quincy's account, totaling $590,000, funds approved by the City Council totaling $146,000, a $400,000 Planning Board contract, and the state Chapter 90 reimbursement.

"The financial situation in the City is certainly not so critical as to prevent us from providing basic public safety protection for its residents," the letter stated.

Cheney urged the mayor to make the appropriation to the Fire Department at the first meeting of the City Council in September.

John Brady Receives B.U. Book Award

John Brady of Quincy, a junior at Quincy High School, received a Boston University School of Education Sesquicentennial Book Award recently.

Brady is a member of R.O.T.C. and the Quincy High School yearbook staff. He is also a Jefferson Forum Volunteer and a school representative. He is interested in computers and piano.

Sponsored by the Alumni Executive Board at the School of Education, the award is given in recognition of future educators. This award will be presented in selected high schools around the world to one junior at each school who has expressed an interest in the teaching profession and who is viewed as having exceptional potential by the educators of the school.

Criteria for selection include good character, an interest in a career in education, participation in extra-curricular activities both within the high school and in the community and an appropriate grade point average through the midpoint of the junior year.

The Alumni Executive Board is making these awards in recognition of Boston University's Sesquicentennial. Other book awards will be given throughout the year. For more information about the book awards, contact Professor Thomas Culliton Jr. of the School of Education, Alumni Executive Board at (617) 353-3223.

Long-Term Mortgage Interest Rates Expected 'To Slip A Bit'

Long-term mortgage interest rates are expected to slip a bit further into the fall, which should help keep home sales steady, according to the latest monthly "Outlook for the Economy and Real Estate" from the National Association of Realtors.

The Aug. issue says that the interest rate decline continued last month due to reports of lagging economic growth, resulting in a drop in the Federal Reserve Board's funds rate, followed by a drop in the prime interest rate.

However, the outlook notes that because no substantial retreat of inflation is foreseen, financial markets likely will keep long-term rates from falling significantly below their current levels. As a result, fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages probably will "bottom out at just above 9.0 percent," before increasing slightly in the late fall.

Sales of existing single-family homes are expected to pick up slightly over the next few months; the outlook does not predict a sales surge, despite lower rates. Slow employment growth and a sluggish economy probably will keep the seasonally adjusted resale rate between 3.30 million units and 3.50 million units during the second half of the year.

A copy of the outlook, published by NAR's forecasting and policy analysis division, follows. It contains an economic commentary by Dr. John A. Tuccillo, NAR chief economist, along with the following predictions for the real estate industry and economy in general for 1989:

- Sales of existing single-family homes are expected to total 3.41 million units, dropping 5.0 percent below sales for 1988.

- Sales of new single-family homes are expected to total 631,000 units, dropping 6.8 percent from 1988.

- Housing starts are expected to total 1.44 million units, dropping 3.8 percent from a year ago. A total of 1.04 million starts for single-family units is expected, dropping 4.4 percent from 1988.

- Starts for buildings with two-to-four units are expected to total 56,000 units, dropping 4.7 percent from 1988; and starts for buildings with five or more units are expected to total 342,000 units, falling 1.7 percent from 1988.

- The national median existing-home price is expected to reach $93,800, rising 5.0 percent from last year. The national median new-home price is expected to reach $121,800, rising 8.3 percent from 1988.

- Interest rates for fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages are expected to average 10.2 percent, falling from an average of 10.5 percent for 1988. Interest rates for one-year, adjustable-rate mortgages are expected to average 8.8 percent, rising from an average of 8.5 percent last year.

- The gross national product (the total value of the nation's goods and services) is expected to total $5,228 trillion in current dollar terms, representing an inflation-adjusted increase of 2.6 percent from 1988.

- Consumer price inflation is expected to reach a rate of 5.0 percent, compared to 4.1 percent in 1988.

- The civilian unemployment rate is expected to be 5.3 percent, compared to 5.5 percent last year.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for nearly 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

BAY POINTE MARINA

Bay Pointe Marina To Complete Renovations By Spring

Quinoil Industries of Quincy has begun construction on the former Harbor View-Continental Marina site at Quincy Point.

The new marina, which has been renamed Bay Pointe Marina, will provide additional berthing space for a region which is plagued by insufficient dock space for area boaters. The project will increase the marina's berthing capacity by approximately 35% to a total of 232 berths.

and will be able to accommodate vessels up to 150 feet. Up to 50 transient dockage spaces will also be available.

New construction will include a 20,000 square foot inside storage building, laundry facilities, showers and changing rooms. The marina will also have a new fuel dock, a 50 ton travel lift and outside and inside storage.

Work is expected to be completed by next spring.

American Babe Ruth Stars Edge Nationals, 7-6

Michael McManus of the American League Elks and Patrick Gallagher of the National League Local 1139 were named the MVPs as the American stars edged the Nationals, 7-6, in the annual Babe Ruth League all-star game.

First baseman McManus played an excellent game on defense and drove in the tying and winning runs in the bottom of the ninth with a long double.

Shortstop Gallagher singled twice, scored two runs, played strong defense and struck out three in two innings on the mound.

Steven Loud, Michael Malvesti, Matt Collins, Dan Kearns and Pat Clifford pitched well for the Americans, allowing only four hits over nine innings.

Bob Fitzpatrick (five strikeouts in three innings), Gallagher, Chris Cunio and Scott Dunn pitched well for the Nationals.

Right fielder Michael Kelly and shortstop Chris Peck were defensive standouts for the Americans with Peck also having two hits. Joe Zona made a fine catch in left field for the Nationals.

The Americans jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first as Loud walked, took third on Mark Kelleher's single and scored on Collins' sacrifice fly.

The Nationals tied it in the fourth when Gallagher scored on Brian Campbell's sacrifice fly.

The Americans scored three runs in the sixth on hits by Clifford, Steve DeRoche and Jim Gately.

The Nationals tied the score in the eighth as Gallagher had a key hit and added two in the ninth as Ed Rizzitano had his second hit of the game.

Triling, 6-4, in the bottom of the ninth, the Americans battled back. Kevin Mantville led off with his second hit and, with the bases loaded, McManus hit a long shot through the outfield to put a dramatic end to an exciting and well-played game.

The Americans' roster included Kelleher, Loud and Malvesti of Bryan Post; Kearns, Kelly and Peck of Barry's Deli; Tom Courtney, DeRoche and Mike Wood of the Firemen; Tony Bianco, Clifford and McManus of the Elks; Garrett Butkus, Matt Fratolillo, Gately of Houghs Neck and Collins, Mantville and David Skutul of Golden Print.

Jim Higgins of Bryan Post, Tom Foley of Bryan and Dan Duncan of Barry's Deli were the coaches.

Playing for the Nationals were Dunn, Fitzpatrick and Gallagher of Local 1139; Cunio, Michael Geddes and Rob O'Connor of the Police; Tom Balzano, Dave Musiuk and Tim Ross of Bank of New England; Vinnie Anderlonis, Keith Norris and Andrew Veneziano of Granite City Electric; Tom Benner, Sean Connelly and Tom Ridge of Morrisette and Campbell, Rizzitano and Zona of Sons of Italy.

Coaches were George Dunn, Leo Shea and Stephen Buckley, all of Local 1139.

The coaches, parents and players thank Ray Cattaneo, George Page, George Derrane, Sal Salvatore, John Franchini, Ted Stevenson, Ralph Elwood and John Grennon for their efforts in making the game a success.

At Quincy Dinner Maloney Says There Should Be More Than One Legion Team

Boston College baseball coach Richard 'Moe' Maloney told the Quincy Legion baseball players to set goals for themselves and go all out to achieve these goals.

Maloney, the speaker at the annual baseball dinner, said "When I graduated from Boston College my goal was to someday coach there and that goal was finally reached last year. It took a while because who thought Eddie Pellagrini would be there for 31 years? I am proud to be coaching at my alma mater. You boys, too, can reach your goals if you put your minds to it."

Maloney, who previously coached at Boston State, Bentley and Mass. Bay Community College, was a member of a B.C. squad which played in the College World Series.

"I have had several Quincy players in the past and they all worked out very well," he said.

Maloney supported Quincy coach Ed Spring's opinion that there should not be only one Legion team in Quincy. "I believe all boys who want to play ball should have the opportunity," he said. "Have as many teams in the city as you want."

Spring repeated that a lot of boys wouldn't be able to play if there was only one team in the city.

"I think we Legion coaches should sit down with the Babe Ruth League and Little League coaches and discuss the situation in the city," he said. "Also, I'd like to see the Legion players help the coaches of their previous Babe Ruth league teams."

"Next year will be the 50th year for Quincy Legion Post baseball and we are proud of what we have accomplished here. I'm sick of hearing our players being put down. We have some fine players and I can assure you Quincy Legion baseball will continue."

Spring introduced his coaches for next year, Vic DiGravio, former head coach; his son, Vic; Len DelVecchio, Joe Ciardi, Bobby Higgins and Andy Palmiero.

Past commander and former athletic officer Warren Demers was the master of ceremonies and brought the greetings of the post.

"I feel Legion baseball is one of the finest programs there is and it has been one of the Quincy post's major programs for 50 years," he said. "Sixty-five percent of the major league players are Legion graduates and every Hall of Fame inductee since 1975 played Legion ball."

Retiring coach Dick Laracy was presented a certificate of appreciation from the players. Dick, who has coached Quincy Legion for four years, has been associated with youth sports for 20 years.

The following players received jackets or sweaters:

-TOM SULLIVAN

THE QUINCY LEGION baseball team finished with only a 6-12 record, but ran into some tough luck as it lost four games by one run, two in extra innings, and two games by two runs. Front, left to right, Jim Kearns, Pete McLoughlin, Jim Maloney, Mike Toland, Richie Burns, Jim Gordon and Chris Beatrice. Back, Coach Ed Spring, Nick Dragone, Paul McLellan, Mike Connor, Tim Baker, Steve McInnis, Steve Waas, Wayne McCulley, Greg Clifford and Coach Dick Laracy. Missing are Barry Glynn, Donnie Anderson and Kevin Daley.

AIMING FOR A STRIKE IN THE ALLEY is Alfred "Al" Benedetti, 96 years old this month, and a twice-a-week bowler.

At 96 He's A Twice-A-Week Bowler

Alfred "Al" Benedetti is 96 and a twice-a-week bowler.

"Al", who came to Quincy in 1903, lives in the two-family house with his daughter, Madelyn MacDonald, at 73 Rodman St., West Quincy. His other daughters are Laura Prescott and Anna McKinnon, and he has seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

He worked for Bethlehem Steel Shipyard for 47 years, and, prior to that, at Norfolk and Charleston S.C. shipyards in engineering.

"Al" bowls Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Merrymount Bowling Alley, with an average of 70-80 points — last week he was top scorer on his team. He celebrated his 96th birthday with his friends at the bowling alley, and blew out the 96 candles on his cake with no trouble at all.

He is also active in the Senior Olympics of Beechwood Community Life Center.

Men's Softball

Point Division C Champs

The Point Pub, which at one time won 14 games in a row, is the champion of Division C of the Quincy Men's Softball League.

The Pub was helped by PIP Printing's win over runner-up Granite Rail. The Pub (22-5) and the Rail finished in tie for first but the league rule (tie breaker) gives the team with the best won-lost record against the other the title. The Pub was 2-1 with the Rail this season.

The two teams are expected to meet again in the playoffs. Putnam's Investments finished at 20-7. Hot Rock and Continental Cable each at 14-13.

The Point Pub players are Capt. Chuck Sullivan, Brian Beliveau, John Burns, Bob Kane, Dave Zurows, John Koceniak, Joe Bohmback, Joe Godfrey, Mark Glynn, Mike Sullivan, P.J. Hussey, Steve Conatas, Paul Batti, Scott McArthur, Bob Ilenello, Mike Bates, Stu Coull, Brett Heene, Al Freeman and Darin Zemp. Jim Lyons is coach and Lou Gates, manager.

Tom Scolaro pitched a five-hitter as Continental Cable rolled over Putnam Investments, 11-0.

Cable jumped off to a 6-0 lead in the first inning. A decided underdog, Cable was led by acting coach Wally Farrell, who drove in the only run needed and played and outstanding game in left field. Scolaro had three hits and two RBI.

Dave LoSordo had two hits and played strong defense, and Ron Reichart, Bruce Kannenburg, Rick Mahoney, Mike Horgan, Gary Walsh and Dave Angelos played well. For Putnam George Reese and Lloyd What had fine games.

Police MDA Runathon Labor Day

The Quincy Police Runners Club is sponsoring a runathon for Muscular Dystrophy on Labor Day, Sept. 4 covering 20 miles from Scituate Harbor to the Quincy Police Headquarters.

The runathon is open to anyone who wishes to run the 20 miles or join along the way.

The runners club is seeking pledges per mile for muscular dystrophy and anyone interested in running or pledging is asked to call officers Charles Santoro or Steve O'Brien at Quincy Police Headquarters at 479-1212.

The runathon will start at Scituate Harbor (Pegotty Beach parking lot) at 8:30 a.m. and finish at Quincy Police Headquarters.

Runners who are running the 20 miles or joining enroute include officers Santoro, O'Brien, Jack Kelly Jr. and Joseph Murphy; Lieuts Frank Mullen and John Mulligan; and Sgts. Richard Curran, Robert Crowley and William Stenmon.

All proceeds will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Track Club X-Country Registration Sept. 5

The Quincy Track Club will hold registration for its fall cross-country program

Tuesday, Sept. 5, from 6 to 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

All summer participants, as well as new members (boys and girls) 7 to 14 years of age from Quincy and surrounding towns are invited.

Practices will be held every Tuesday and Thursday from 6 to 7 p.m.

Further information can be obtained by calling Jeff Hennessy at 472-5537.

In addition, dietary aids such as celery and carrot sticks will be available free of charge in the hospital cafeteria for smokers who are struggling to abstain as the new policy is implemented. The hospital is also assembling "gift packs" and "survival kits" for both smokers and non-smokers, containing samples of sugarless gum, mints, and other alternatives to tobacco products, as well as an array of brochures and buttons extolling the positive health effects of quitting smoking and smoke-free environments.

Organizations and companies that have lent support to the QH smoke-free campaign include the American Cancer Society, South Shore Unit; the American Lung Association, Norfolk County Chapter; the South Shore YMCA; Hancock Tire and Appliance, Quincy; Ferrero U.S.A., Inc., importers and distributors of Tic Tacs mints; and Planter's Lifesavers Corp., manufacturers and distributors of Carefree and Bubble Yum sugarless gum products.

Effective this Friday, smoking by patients, employees and visitors will be prohibited throughout the hospital.

"Smokers and non-smokers alike are asked to join together in making patients and visitors aware of the new fresh-air policy," the hospital administration told employees earlier this week.

"Through the new policy, members of the hospital community will set an example for others by promoting healthy living. People may need to be gently reminded that smoking is no longer allowed anywhere in the facility."

Lisa's Dance Studio Students Win Awards

Several students from "The New School Dance", directed by Lisa Hoover, recently won awards and recognition for their talent.

Noelle Hussey, age 19, was chosen by Larry Woo, record producer and manager, as a new member of "Les Montage," a group which has just completed their first music video. This group has opened for such acts as "New Kids on the Block," and a record deal of their own is pending. Noelle has also been chosen as a finalist in the "America's Most Beautiful Girl" competition.

Paula Jones, also 19, placed second in the Best Model in Boston competition. She has performed in the benefit shows for Horizons for Youth and the Campaign for a Drug-Free America.

Robyn Doody, age 20, most recently was chosen as a runway model for Elegant Accents, and has also performed in the benefit shows listed.

Jackie LeClair, age 24, winner of many competitions, has been working with magician Flash Dana and His World of Magic as a dancer assistant. She may soon travel to Japan with Flash and Carlton the Magician for a three-month tour.

Michelle Ferrini, age 22, numbers among her competition successes, Nair's Best Legs in Boston and Venus Swimwear. She hopes to accompany classmate Jackie LeClair to Japan.

Arthur Purslow, age 22, has been a lead male dancer at King's Dominion in Virginia, has performed also at Busch Gardens and in the Broadway show, "A Chorus Line." He looks forward to competing on Star Search in October.

Hoover, dance teacher, choreographer, performer and model, has performed with the rock group Scandal and singer Tom Jones, danced for the Emmy Awards, Studio 54 in New York, and appeared in the video, "The Impossible" with Flash Dana.

Arts Lottery Applications

Applications for the Fall Cycle of the Arts Lottery will be available Friday, Sept. 1, from the Mayor's Office at City Hall and from the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., according to Ann E. McLaughlin, assistant director.

These applications are for the January-June 1990 cycle and are available for individuals and groups involved in the arts.

WEEK OF: August 31

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Trends that have recently begun to appear continue over the coming six-eight months. Pay attention especially to financial occurrences and take firm control in this area. Details as always are important to you but it's equally important to see the broader picture. Romance is highlighted in early 1990.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Effort spent repairing wounded relationships is worthwhile--the results are almost immediate. Partnership arrangements are generally favored. Youngsters respond well to your example.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Your curiosity keeps you asking questions--and some important points are revealed as a result. Travel to familiar destinations includes some offbeat experiences.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

A shy acquaintance takes a page out of your book--and now competes with you for the limelight. Sense of design may be rather offbeat; be warned, especially if selecting an outfit.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Life is a series of choices this week--you may have to choose between two social events, two travel destinations, two courses of educational study. In each case, don't necessarily opt for the obvious.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

The week goes by at a breathtaking pace; it's best to put your tasks in a priority sequence. Communicating, always your strong suit, is even stronger than usual.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Some bizarre combinations work unusually well. Your role this week seems to lie in bringing together individuals as well as ideas. One caution: be warned to a self-indulgent streak.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

It's especially important to look your best and present yourself impeccably; someone in a high position is making a decision that involves you. Encourage kids to be curious.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Small pets figure in week's plan; you may be entertaining a pooch or a pussycat. Although travel is a possibility, it's more likely now that travelers land on your doorstep.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Imagination explores new grounds. This is one of the year's best weeks for undertaking a creative project. Creativity, however, does not have a place in current financial dealings.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Memory may be playing silly games; this is a good week to keep diaries and calendars nearby. Partner is in an introspective mood. Musical events are highlighted during and after weekend.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Your casual comments are taken to heart; exercise some caution, especially when offering criticism. Dramatic events are highlighted; you may be making a debut at this time.

By-pass oil filtration helps to reduce both oil changes and engine wear

Your full-flow filter can't do it all. Because the regular full-flow oil filter is inserted directly in the line of oil circulation, it must filter oil quickly in order to keep from starving the engine of oil.

This means that only the larger particles of dirt can be filtered out of the oil since time, slower filtration would cause a "bottleneck" in circulation at the filter.

Unfortunately, the smallest particles of dirt are also some of the most damaging inside an engine. Experts agree that over 60 percent of all engine wear is caused by particles too small to be filtered by regular oil filters.

These particles are small enough to enter the spaces between bearings, rings, etc., but are too large to "float" harmlessly between the metal surfaces in the film of oil. Instead, like a sharp pebble inside a shoe, the particles gouge and dig into the surfaces, leaving them slashed and battered.

By-pass oil filtration

Unlike a full-flow filter, a by-pass filter is situated outside the main line of oil circulation. The by-pass filter taps into the main line, bleeding off and cleaning only a portion of the oil at one time.

This means the by-pass filter can retain the oil longer and do a thorough job of removing contaminants without the worry of obstructing oil circulation.

Certain by-pass filters, such as those from AMSOIL Inc., will even remove destructive water from the oil, helping to prevent rust and corrosion inside your engine.

Reduces oil changes

By cleaning the oil so completely, by-

BY-PASS OIL FILTERS extend the service life of engine oil well beyond "normal," making it possible for this man to spend more time driving his vehicle instead of being underneath it.

pass oil filters increase not only engine life, but also the life of the oil itself.

With by-pass oil filtration, the service life of the oil can be extended well beyond "normal," depending upon the quality of oil and the conditions and severity of use.

While using by-pass oil filters, the best way to determine the serviceability of your motor oil is by having the oil analyzed. An oil analysis allows you to monitor the condition of your motor oil determine its protective capabilities, and decide from this information whether an oil change is necessary.

For more information about by-pass oil filtration, write to AMSOIL Inc., AMSOIL Bldg., Superior, WI 54880, or call toll free: 1-800-223-2774, ext. 199. SC895044

Don't take your tires for granted

It's quick, it's easy, it's free and, best of all, even the home mechanic who's all thumbs can do it.

The "it" is checking the pressure in your car's tires, something you should be doing on a regular basis says Saab-Scania of America, Inc., importer of Swedish-built Saabs.

Air is still free at many service stations, and inexpensive tire gauges are even available in supermarkets, says the Swedish car maker, warning that improper tire inflation takes its toll of tires through uneven wear and, in some cases, accidents.

In addition to forcing you to replace tires more frequently, an underinflated tire creates more rolling resistance. More simply put, it means that your car burns more gasoline trying to push itself along on underinflated tires.

Telling figures

Estimates show that a tire underinflated by only five pounds of air increases fuel consumption by as much as seven percent, according to one industry source.

What is the right amount of air to put in your tires?

This depends not only on the tire but on how you plan to drive your car. Most manufacturers list recommended tire pressures in owner's manuals supplied with their cars.

If you don't have an owner's manual for your car, look inside the glovebox or on your car's sun visor for a sticker listing pressures.

Check tire pressure in morning

Recommended pressures normally apply to cold tires, meaning that you should check your tire pressures early in the morning, before you begin your drive.

Also listed on the table are recommended tire pressures for cruising at certain speeds with a given number of passengers and amount of baggage. The rule of thumb here, as Saab advises owners of its cars, is to increase tire pressures as anticipated cruising speeds or loads rise.

If underinflating a tire is bad, what about overinflation? The answer is that putting too much air in your tires is not advisable because, like underinflation, this can also cause tires to wear prematurely, decrease ride comfort, alter your car's handling performance, and reduce the tires' contact patch, that small square of your tire in contact with the road's surface at a given moment.

How do you know if your car's tires need more or less air? One way is that an underinflated tire will often show wear on the outer surfaces of the tread.

An overinflated tire will show wear by the smoothing of the tread in the middle of the tire, but your best bet is keeping a tire gauge in your car and taking readings regularly.

Replace tires as necessary

By Federal law, all tires sold in this country must incorporate wear indicators in the form of smooth, treadless strips running across the width of the tire, which become visible as the tire's tread reaches the point that indicates the tire should be replaced. Saab's advice here is don't play with fire; when it is time to replace worn tires, do so at the first opportunity. SC894646

Child Care Center At Crown Colony

Bright Horizons Children's Centers, designers and operators of worksite child care centers, has leased 2100 Crown Colony Drive, a free-standing 6,375-square-foot child care facility now under construction in Crown Colony Office Park, Quincy.

Crown Colony is a joint venture development of Vazza Associates and Edward A. Fish Associates.

"Crown Colony is the premier new office park of the South Shore," said Stephen I. Dreier, chief financial officer of Bright Horizons. "It has an excellent location for tenants, and is ideal for a child care facility." The Center is scheduled to open in Nov.

The Center is designed as an open environment to maximize the monitoring, safety and care of the children. There will be separate rooms for infants, toddlers, and pre-schoolers, plus a reception area for parents. The philosophy of Bright Horizons is to provide high quality child care at or near the parents' workplace. Parents are invited to participate in activities and visit anytime during the day.

"With 80% of all working women in the U.S. in their child-bearing years, the issue of child care has become critical to employers seeking to attract and retain quality personnel," said James M. O'Hare, president of Vazza Associates. "The child care center is one step closer to Crown Colony's complete corporate environment. Employees feel secure knowing that they have child care, a medical center, hotel, and MBTA station right outside their door."

Crown Colony is a 175-acre master-planned office park located seven miles south of Boston at the intersection of Route 93 (the Southeast Expressway), Route 128 and Route 3. 1100 Crown Colony Drive, a new 132,000-square-foot building situated next to 1200 Crown Colony, is scheduled for delivery in September.

John McKay Named To Catholic Charity Board

John E. McKay of Quincy, a partner in the marketing and public relations firm of Cohn/Thompson Effective Communications, Inc., has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston for a three-year term.

Announcement was made by Don Rodman, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston and president of Rodman Ford in Foxboro.

McKay, 27, has been involved with the annual Summer Party and Celebrity Auction to benefit the Sunset Point Vacation House for underprivileged children in Hull. The camp is under the direction of the Boston Regional Office of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston. McKay also serves on the executive committee for the annual black-tie dinner with Cardinal Bernard Law and the Christmas Party at the Museum of Science.

"It is a great honor to be

named to the board," said McKay. "Catholic Charities helps so many people and I am glad to be able to contribute to their great work. Hopefully, we'll be able to help even more people in need in the years to come."

Catholic Charities is a multi-service agency and one of the largest independent organizations of its type in Massachusetts.

Consumer Tips from
The Better
Business Bureau, Inc.

Avoid Rug Burns When Shopping For Carpets

When shopping for carpet, you may wish to choose one that matches your decor and your lifestyle. It's also important to shop around to compare price and quality.

To figure out how much carpet you'll need, multiply the width of the room by its length to get the number of square feet. Next, divide the number of square feet by 9 to get the total square yards. For example, a 12' x 18' room (216 square feet) requires about 24 square yards (216 divided by 9) of wall-to-wall carpet.

How much can you afford to spend? In addition to the price of the carpet, ask about the cost of padding and installation. And, if you plan to buy on time, don't forget about finance charges.

To find a reputable dealer, ask your friends or relatives for recommendations. Also check the dealer out with your Better Business Bureau.

The dealer can advise you on the best carpet and padding for your needs and budget. Will the carpet be installed in a high traffic area? The kitchen or bath? Do you have children or pets? Also ask about the different natural and man-made fibers that are used to construct the carpet. You may want carpet that is resilient, easy to clean or stain resistant.

To judge the quality of carpet, examine the depth, thickness and density of the pile. Bend back a corner of the carpet. If the pile density is sparse, you'll see a lot of backing. This "grin test" does not apply to shag carpets, since their longer tufts are spaced farther apart to produce a more casual look.

Watch out if the dealer promises to refund all or part of the price of the carpet if you refer other customers to him who also buy. The price of the carpet may be inflated to cover the "bonuses."

Also be wary of advertisements that offer fantastic bargains for carpet by the room. Will your living room, dining room and hall be carpeted for one low price? You may find that the carpet is of poor quality. Or, the room in your house may not be the same size as the ones in the ad.

Another trick is to advertise the price per square foot. This may be confusing since carpet is usually sold by the square yard. So when you compare prices, make sure you compare the same quantities.

Before signing a contract, review it carefully. Does it list the brand name, manufacturer's name, style, color and size of the carpet? It should also include the total square yards, the price per square yard, and a full description of the padding as well as the total purchase price, including any installation and finance charges.

Tuning In by Seli Groves

"Knots Landing" star Michele Lee spent her summer as executive producer of, and starring in a new CBS film, "Single Women, Married Men." That's a tentative title folks, but it does sum up the premise of the flick, which is about a support group for women whose lovers are married, but not to them. Other stars are "Newhart's" Mary Frann, "Paradise's" Lee Horsley, "L.A. Law's" Alan Rachins, Jeanette Arnette of "Head of the Class," Oscar nominee (for "The Color Purple") Margaret Avery, Tony winner and former "Knots Landing" star Julie Harris, and former "Fame" regular Carrie Hamilton (Carol Burnett's daughter).

The movie is based on a real-life support group, which bolsters my suspicion that we're witnessing the advent of creeping talk-show-ism infiltrating our films. The next flick in this trend might well be about a support group for former devil-worshipping transvestite bullmic housewives.

Michael Jovanovic Candidate For School Committee

Michael Jovanovic of 62 Town Hill St., Quincy, has announced his candidacy for a four year term on the Quincy School Committee.

Owner and operator of Community Real Estate, Jovanovic has an extensive academic background.

He studied Law in Belgrade, Yugoslavia and Theology in Oxford England. He also holds four American degrees: B.S., B.D., M.A., and A.B.D., and is certified to teach in four languages: English, Russian, French and German.

Jovanovic has taught in Europe and America on all levels of instruction, from elementary school to doctorate. He was a personal language teacher to the son of King Peter II of Yugoslavia.

MICHAEL JOVANOVIC

In America, Jovanovic has taught at Harvard, Pittsburgh, Wittenberg and Stanford Universities. He served on the team of interpreters for the University of Pittsburgh during the 1958 visit of Nikita Khrushchev.

When asked why he is running for the Quincy School Committee, Jovanovic had this to say: "There is a dire need for America to assess where we are going. The classroom is the point of departure ... with my academic and pedagogic background, I would like to contribute to American revival and rejuvenation."

"My priority as a Quincy School Committee member would be the students, who are America's future."

"The best country in the world deserves to have the best education in the world," he said.

"Let's begin in Quincy."

Dental Tips

Of those who visited a dentist in 1986, 70 percent went for a cleaning, compared with 54 percent in 1978.

Only 19 percent went for fillings, compared with 34 percent in 1978. People who visited the dentist less than once a year had fewer cleanings, examinations, and X-rays done and more extractions, oral surgery, and dentures (ADA survey).

Grand Rapids, Michigan, was the first U.S. community to fluoridate its public drinking water in 1945.

The number of people covered by dental benefits has increased significantly, which is an important factor in the increase in the number of people who have visited the dentist. In 1970, about 12 million Americans had dental benefits; today, about 110 million have dental benefits.

Jill St. John, Jack Klugman, Diana Ross, Carol Burnett and Cher have all worn braces as adults.

The total number of orthodontic patients has doubled since 1971, and today 15 to 20 percent of patients wearing braces are between the ages of 20 and 60.
